SUGAR RATIONING

Third Allowance of 6 lbs.

A third allowance of six pounds of sugar for jam making is to be made available immediately by the Rationing Commission, said the Minister for Trade and Customs (Senator Keane).

The total maximum allowance of sugar for jam for each person is now eighteen pounds.

Unexpected increased stocks in the Southern States in the last fortnight are responsible for the third allowance. The sugar available is being passed on to the consumer without delay in view of the urgency of the need for it for jam making.

PAPUA

Plans for Development

Australia is not only sending supplies to the troops operating in the South-west Pacific Ocean, but is also supplying rations to the natives whose village life has been dislocated by the war.

"Normally," said Senator Fraser, Minister for External Territories, in a special interview, "the natives get their food by their own efforts, but we are now sending rations to them from Australia, mostly by air, and despite the difficulties of distribution they are receiving the supplies fairly regularly. We are also supplying them, as far as possible, with trade goods.

"The Commonwealth Government and the people of Australia have every reason to be proud of the part the natives of the Territory of Papua

The object of the machine is to facilitate the Branding, Castrating and Ear-marking of Calves from any age up to twelve or eighteen months and it has been proved a great labour saving machine, and no user would now be without a BOTTRELL BRANDING FRAME

The machine consists of a Wooden Frame which has its sides curved to receive the body of the animal, and turns on hinges fixed in the ground, with the motion resembling the opening and shutting of a book. One side of the frame is held upright against the fence by a latch, while the other side moves freely on its hinges under the control of a ratchet. The calf passes from a crush or race into the Frame, which is now closed as far as necessary, leaving the head and hind ports free. The latch is raised and the Frame turned on its side. The Branding and Castrating can now be done with the greatest ease,

CAN A TEACUP TELL YOUR FORTUNE?

Perhaps! But the predictions of fortune-tellers have a habit of being wrong. To restrict spending to an absolute minimum is not only a contribution to Australia's war effort; it is plain common sense—for money spent on non-essentials is money that should be directed to helping Australia to Victory.
Winning the war is the grave responsibility of the Nation—Saving for the Nation is the grave responsibility of every individual.

TRUE STORY OF GLORIOUS GREECE

PEOPLE DYING OF HUNGER IN THE STREETS

A FORCE THE NAZIS CAN NEVER DESTROY

Sometimes the Nazis must shudder when they think of the future. Those of them who find themselves in the occupied countries, especially, must wake up in the middle of the night and wonder, desperately, what is going to happen; for sooner or later, there must come a day of wrath, a very dreadful day!

No words can tell what the Nazis have done in Eastern Europe and the Balkans. Even a moving picture, conveying direct to your eyes a very tiny fragment of what passes for life in Nazi-occupied territory, would be too disgusting to watch without a twist of the heart and a heave of the stomach.

The Nazi-Fascists are fighting to make men slaves. They employ a certain principle in their efforts to subjugate the people they have conquered.

The principle is this: No revolt can come out of a literally starving people; a man whose stomach is sticking to his backbone will obey, for the sake of a mouthful of food.

STARVATION THAT BEGETS MADNESS.

Nothing is so awful as long drawn-out hunger. It produces a misery such as you cannot imagine. It brings a weakness more dreadful than the crying weakness of a child after a terrible fever.

Your knees tremble and won't support you; your inside parts ache with a frightful gnawing ache; your will goes out of you, and you are in pain, real pain.

Every nerve shrieks "Food! Food!" Every vein, in which the blood has thinned out, seems to sob and throb. Such hunger brings a kind of madness. You eat earth, to allay the pangs of it. You swallow carrion that a jackal would not touch.

More! you fight to get a chance of swallowing carrion. You eat leather boots and belts, and think yourself the luckiest person alive to be able to grab a mouthful of acorns or grass!

What is even worse, you see, under your eyes, those whom you love suffering like yourself; and the sight of their suffering multiplies your own; you know the sight of your suffering adds to theirs.

And there is nothing you can do. Over everything hangs an atrocious sense of fate, of doom, of utter desolation and helplessness.

Meanwhile your conqueror, the Nazi, struts past, plump-faced, sure of himself, well fed and clothed.

I have said it before; I am going to say it again. A thousand Athenians die every day of starvation. Men see their wives lie down, living skeletons, and watch them sighing out their last breath.

Women see their children, terribly wasted, crouching like animals, their eyes twice as large as they should be, their limbs like pipestems.

And the Fascists and the Nazis swagger in the streets, blown out with meat and drink.

It is better to do before submitting to the Nazis.

PHILOSOPHY OF PAST AGES.

The story I offer you to-day comes out of Athens. It was written on some blank pages of an old exercise book, and it concerns an aged Greek gentleman whose surname was Nikolides.

His Christian names included the name Socrates. There is a coincidence about this. For on some of the pages in the book there were some students' exercises, taken down from dictation perhaps.

They were transcriptions of some chapters by the great ancient Greek Plato, in which he reports the last speech of the philosopher Socrates, 399 years before the birth of Christ.

Socrates was on trial for his life. He had been unjustly accused of various crimes, including the corruption of youth. The fact of the matter was that the ancient Socrates had sought the truth, and given offence to a corrupt power.

[illegible] who condemned him:

"You are depriving me of a very few years of life: and it is for this that you will incur the blame of putting me to death.

"You thought in geting rid of me to free yourselves from those who made you give an account of your way of life, but others will arrive harsher than I in that they will be younger: and they will make you feel more keenly.

"If you think by killing men you can escape censure, you are mistaken. There is but one way—not that of suppressing your mentors, but seeing to it that your lives are right."

Then, having spoken nobly of death, he concludes:

"Now it is time to depart: I to death, and you to life; but which of these is the better lot is hidden from all but God."

That was said in Athens more than 2300 years ago.

Nikolides might aptly have repeated it, word for word, when the Nazis shot him only a few months ago.

FRAIL, AGED AND GENEROUS.

I don't know who wrote this. It is one of those anonymous documents that come, like little cries of anguish, down the black corridor of Nazi oppression. Read it, and remember:

N. S. Nikolides was a Greek of Greeks and a good man. He had been wealthy, but never greedy or mean. He had lived in Athens all his life. His business was the tobacco trade. He was a dealer in Macedonian tobacco, other kinds of tobacco, and other commodities of all kinds, but mostly tobacco.

He had a fairly large family. When the war began his wife was still alive. He was an old man, more than seventy-five years old, and very thin and frail-looking.

His wife was a big, rather fat woman. They were both loved by everybody for their generosity and kindness, and their house was always open to a guest. They had four sons and two daughters, and a number of grandchildren.

First, this is what happened to the family of Nikolides:—

The three younger sons were killed in the fighting. The eldest, being sick with a weak stomach, could not go to fight. But his two sons were killed. He himself was, for no reason at all, killed by two Germans. They kicked him until he died; it amused them to do so.

When Mrs. Nikolides heard of this—I mean the aged mother—she said nothing, but sat down, and did not speak nor eat. In three days she died.

The eldest son was a widower. The three others had wives. Two of these were young, and good-looking women. The Germans took them away. Nobody has seen or heard of them.

The third, who was the wife of the youngest son, was not good-looking; she was a woman of charm, but not beautiful. She was left with her son aged sixteen.

There were several other grandchildren of the old people. They simply disappeared. Either the Nazis took them away or they killed them. They were not seen again.

There were left in the house the following people:—The old man, N. S. Nikolides; the daughter-in-law, Xenia; her son, Nicholas; and a little boy named Philip.

The daughters of Nikolides were in different parts of Greece with their husbands, and have not been heard of since. It is good for them if they are dead.

FORCED INTO BONDAGE.

The house was ransacked. Everything was taken. Old Nikolides was shattered with grief at the death of his wife, whom he had always devoutly loved; they had never spent a night apart in fifty years.

The conquerors in Athens spread death and misery at once.

They took away all the ablebodied men for forced labour. There were things to rebuild, and so they made our remaining ablebodied men into slaves. They took the boy Nicholas, though he was only sixteen. I have since learned that he poisoned his hand, and was made to work on, and became very ill so that his arm turned black; but there were no doctors for him, and he was allowed to die, with great suffering.

He was only sixteen years and two months old, and very handsome.

DYING IN THE STREETS.

[illegible] peared. Famine broke out immediately, and with it disease. But there were no doctors left.

Weeks passed; many weeks. People were dying of hunger, lying down in the streets and dying there, too feeble to get up. Dogs, cats, rats, mice, sparrows—everything was eaten. There was no life left.

I saw a woman sitting in a doorway, dead of cold and hunger, and her baby still alive and screaming piteously, tried to take milk from her, who was shrivelled and starved to death.

This was nothing. People became desperate and robbed graves for linen winding-sheets. There was nothing, at all left. The Nazis seemed to grow fatter: they laughed at us.

You could not walk along a street without finding somebody who had fallen out of weakness and died where they lay.

Once I found five children, all dead. They had been trying to keep themselves warm by clustering together.

Rations were available, but only enough to keep one from falling dead of hunger, but then only if you could manage to buy them. Most people could not. They are dropping dead of hunger every day, still.

The Nikolides suffered with the rest. Old Nikolides gave away all he could, and then he also had nothing. All that had been his was confiscated; he had been wealthy. The six-year-old boy Philip had a suit of clothes and a coat, but he was wasting away to a ghost.

Nikolides said nothing, but he had grown calm. He would not eat, but gave all he had to the child. His daughter-in-law, Xenia, out of her sufferings, became demented.

She went out into the street and screamed and screamed, until she was taken away. The old man tried to do what he could for the little boy Philip.

GERMANS TAKE CHILDREN.

Then the Germans began to collect Greek children. They did not say what for. I think that, feeling their future man power was being drained away by heavy losses everywhere on the battlefronts, they wanted to build up an army of slaves for the future.

They have been taking children away in France and everywhere—to train them in abject obedience and slavishness.

They called for Philip. It was pitiful to see the masses of starving children in the vans. I was with Nikolides when they came for Philip.

The old man said this: "Philip, I thought I would like to kill you before letting you fall into their hands. But it is too late. Listen, you are an intelligent child. Listen and remember. You are Greek. You have been Greek for three thousand years. Remember that, whatever they try and do to make you forget it. Remember, Philip. The glorious dead of Greece are watching you!"

SENTENCED TO DEATH.

A German hit the old man with his clenched fist, and the old man Nikolides (he was seventy-five) fell down, but talked from where he lay prostrate, with blood on his white beard:

"You have seen this, Philip; you whom I love and who loves me."

The child struggled and kicked in the hands of the soldier who was holding him. He sobbed: "I'll kill them, I'll kill them, I'll kill them!"

He loved the old man.

Nikolides said: "It is bad to hate; but it is better to hate evil than not to hate it. Still love good, but hate evil always. What you see is evil, Philip. Remember me, and them! Do what your heart says always, always."

They took the child away. They took the old man Nikolides before a little group of officers in judgment. He was accused of inciting to disobedience, of seditious talk, of corrupting youth.

He was sentenced to be shot.

He said: "I shall be in better company, among the good dead. But they watch you, they look on; and you shall see that the old heroes of Greece can come back!"

Before he had time to say more he was hustled out and shot in the yard. I found strength enough to bury him, and have planted a laurel tree over his grave. He was of the old spirit that no Nazi can kill.

So ends, or perhaps only begins, the simple story of the Nikolides.

In Memoriam

LOWE.—In loving memory of my dear husband, father and grandfather, Walter William Lowe, who departed this 28th day of December, 1940.

What would I give your hand to clasp,
Your dear sweet face to see;
To hear again that loving voice
That meant so much to me.
When days are long and friends are few
Dear Walter, how we think of you.
Flowers may wither, leaves fade and die;
Some may forget you, but never shall I.

(Inserted by his loving wife, sons John, Ernie, William and Tom (overseas), and daughter-in-law and little grandaughter Carmel.)

COASE.—In loving memory of our dear father, Joseph William Coase, who passed away on January 14th, 1942.

Lovingly Remembered

(Inserted by his son and daughters.)

OLZARD.—In loving memory of my dear mother, Elizabeth, who passed away on 29th of January, 1940.

God saw the road was too rough,
The hill too hard to climb.
He gently closed her weary eyes
And whispered come with Me and rest.

(Inserted by her loving daughter and son-in-law, Violet and Tom.)

SMALL.—In loving membory of our dear mather, who died on January 31st, 1937.

Gone, but not forgotten.

CURRENT TOPICS

ACCIDENT.

Harry Ibbotsen (54), farmer, sustained a fracture of the wrist when he fell from his horse at the 10 chain road. After attention by the Ambulance he was taken to the District Hospital.

scheme. It was decided to give Mrs. Coppin more assistance and to make a strong drive immediately to cover the whole of the town. Messrs. V. A. Summers and D. J. Connellan were appointed co-organisers to assist with the scheme. It was also decided to endeavour to have the Prisoners of War Appeal fund included in future in any combined patriotic appeal in the town and district. The Secretary (Mr. Hallam) was authorised to telegraph for 1000 house tags for attachment to gates of donors to the P.O.W. street adoption scheme.

TOWN COUNCIL

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME

Allied Works Council

The fortnightly meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen J. Deveney, M. A. Busteed, W. R. Golding, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

Leave of absence was extended to Aldermen Smith and Anderson.

MAYOR'S ACTION CONFIRMED.

The Mayor reported on the recent deputation to Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., concerning Gladstone's request to have the Boyne River water scheme completed by the Allied Works Council.

The Mayor's action in forwarding telegrams to Mr. F. M. Forde, M.H.R., and the Co-ordinator General (Mr. Kemp) was confirmed.

LAYING OF PIPES.

It was decided to take up with the Allied Works Council to see what plant was available for trenching in connection with the laying of pipes for the first section of the water scheme.

It was decided to hold a special meeting of the Council to go fully into details concerning the first section of the scheme, viz., the connection between the present reservoir at Tondoon Creek dam and the town, and the laying of larger mains locally.

At this meeting an alderman will be appointed to go to Brisbane and make personal contact with Mr. Kemp.

AIR RAID SHELTERS.

Advice was received from the Civil Defence Organisation that the Council was liable for its half share of the cost of construction of public concrete air raid shelters, and that a loan of the amount £870/4/3 would be granted to meet the Council's cost.

TOOLOOA STREET GATES.

Copy of a letter from the Gladstone A.L.P. concerning delay to traffic at the Toolooa Street railway gates was sent to Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A. In this connection the Calliope Shire Council had previously advised that they were in favour of a new route which would cut out the gates referred to.

It was decided to recommend to the Shire that the Town Council was in favour of a continuation of the present bitumen road from the overhead bridge to the Boyne River.

GENERAL.

Ald. Golding was appointed the Council's representative on the Employment Board.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

A.C.W. Joan Rigby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rigby, Roseberry Street, who is a member of the W.A.A.F.'s, is spending her leave with her parents.

Corporal Max Burdon, who is a member of the R.A.A.F., is spending his recreation leave as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rigby, of Gladstone.

The many friends of Mr. Alf. Gent, of the Railway Department, will regret to learn that he is again an inmate of the District Hospital, where he is making good progress towards recovery.

GLADSTONE GIRL'S PROMOTION.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Moore have received the pleasing news that their daughter Phyllis, previously sergt. in the A.W.A.S., has been promoted to staff sergeant. This makes the third promotion gained since joining the women's army a little over six months ago. Phyllis is stationed at Toowoomba.

LIEUT. CLIVE MOORE.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Moore, of Gladstone, have received the following offi-

Aid Detachment were asked recently to hold themselves in readiness for urgent calls to assist sick and wounded passing through the town, and all had their kits, etc., prepared immediately. This tribute to the efficiency of the members must have been very gratifying to their tutor (Mr. W. V. Coase), who spent a great deal of time training first aid volunteers. It must also have been very pleasing to their medical officers, including Dr. J. A. McGree, now Colonel McGree with the forces, as he was their first lecturer.

BOYNE WATER SUPPLY SCHEME

NOW AN IMPORTANT NATIONAL UNDERTAKING

SHOULD BE CARRIED OUT BY ALLIED WORKS COUNCIL

Realisation that the people of Gladstone are facing another crisis in the threatened failure of the water supply, and that the Boyne River scheme was no longer a local matter, but a national project, were the main points made by speakers in a representative deputation which waited on the Minister of Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams).

The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis) presided, and there were also present: Aldermen Golding, Anderson, Smith, Tudman, Deveney (Town Council), Schache, Hopper (Harbour Board), Joseph (Chamber of Commerce), Darling, Caterson (Trades and Labour Council), Show (Swifts Aust. Pty. Ltd.), Burrows (Hospitals Board), Tracey, Peters (A.L.P.), Trott (Fire Brigade), Smith (Waterside Workers), Wyllie (Carpenters' Union), McKay (Builders), Douse (A.R.U.), Tait (Emergency Services), and Grayson (Town Clerk).

SERIOUS POSITION.

The Mayor explained that recent experiences had shown that the completion of the first portion of the Boyne water scheme, viz., the connection of the town with the present reservoir by 12-inch pipes was not enough. In fact, it would only aggravate the position. Industrial development, shipping, meatworks, butter factory, etc., all large users of water, were fast depleting the present supply. So serious had the position become that the Railway Department were running four trains daily from Barmundu at a weekly cost of £250 to bring in their own water. Consequent traffic congestion, unnecessary wear and tear of rolling stock and usage of manpower were important items. Shipping requirements meant that often the rest of the town had to be cut off altogether. Both the Shell Coy. and Dairy Association had to resort to installation of sea water for certain purposes in an effort to supplement local supply. The Meatworks was unable at important work periods to get water, and the Butter Factory was in the same position. The completion of the whole scheme to bring water to Gladstone from the Boyne River had now become essential, and Mr. Williams would be asked to confer with Sir Harry Brown in an endeavour to have the work commenced immediately by the Allied Works Council.

ALLIED WORKS COUNCIL.

Ald. Anderson said that he would first move a motion that this gathering of citizens and representatives of various bodies empower Mr. Williams to request the Allied Works Council to proceed with the completion of the Boyne River scheme.

This was seconded by Ald. Smith and carried.

NATIONAL MATTER.

Mr. Hopper said that the Gladstone Harbour Board had established many facilities for shipping, but the main need was good water. Ships at present could not get suitable water. It was a national matter, and he urged Mr. Williams to take the matter up immediately.

GLADSTONE NOT GETTING A FAIR DEAL.

Ald. Golding said he was pleased to see such a representative gathering. It was time Gladstone got a fair deal. Ratepayers were fast losing a commodity they had paid for, as the water was being taken by industrial users and cut off from households for as long as 12 hours. It had taken the Council from 1937 to 1943 to get the 12-inch main for the first portion of the Boyne scheme, and from correspondence it would take another 20 years to get the water to Gladstone. He urged Mr. Williams to interview not only the Co-ordinator General (Mr. Kemp), but Sir Harry Brown himself, to put Gladstone's case for an immediate supply. The cost of implimenting supplies to local industries—railway, Butter Factory, Meatworks, etc., and holding up of shipping would more than pay for the whole scheme. At present money was being wasted on account of water not being available. Citizens should not be asked to forego everything. The people of Gladstone could not pay for the whole scheme, but the Allied Works Council should do the job as an essential work vitally necessary to all industries supplying wartime needs.

WHOLE SCHEME NECESSARY.

Ald. Tudman and Deveney supported the proposal, and endorsed the remarks of the Mayor.

Ald. Smith said they should not hesitate to go for the whole scheme immediately. He had suggested the Allied Works Council to aldermen treackly fluid, and the staff had to waste valuable time and labour boiling the water. He had never seen the Hospital staff so indignant in 16 years as they were the other day when the water was cut off for shipping. The authorities should be told the effect the water had on septic systems in a hospital. The Board had spent over £300 in carting water when the supply failed. Mr. Forde should be urged to move immediately, and members of the deputation should meet regularly until satisfaction was obtained.

FIRE BRIGADE.

Mr. Trott said that the position of the Fire Brigade was simple. Often there was no water in the mains, and firemen might as well go home. It would be good-bye to Gladstone if a fire occurred at a period when the tanks were being built up.

AN ESSENTIAL PROJECT.

Mr. Joseph, who apologised for the absence of the President of the Chamber of Commerce (Mr. A. H. Friend), said that the water position in Gladstone had changed from a domestic one to a national one, and it should no longer be solely the concern of the ratepayers. Transport, foodstuffs and shipping, all part of the war effort, demanded that the scheme be classed as an essential project. When the supply failed in 1941 the position was bad enough, but what would be the position to-day if the reservoir was empty? He agreed that the delegation should meet again and keep hammering for the scheme.

AT MEATWORKS.

Mr. Maurice Shaw said that Swifts Aust. (Pty.) Ltd. had expanded to such an extent that they had outgrown their own water facilities, and now depended on the Council to keep going. Though aldermen had done their best, the plants had often been let down. The time had arrived when a complete closure of all departments was possible. It would not only be serious to the war effort, but a tragedy from an employment point of view. Even in peacetime the Meatworks was essential, and must be supplied with water.

BUTTER FACTORY.

In the absence of Mr. S. C. Wilson, general manager of the Port Curtis Dairy Association, the Mayor said that the Butter Factory, another big food producing unit, was vitally affected. The Association had spent a lot of money putting down bores on various sites, but were unable to get a suitable supply of water, and were still in difficulty.

RAILWAYS.

Mr. B. Tracy said that although he had no authority from the department, as local railway foreman he could give members some information. With the exceptionally heavy traffic the department, in an effort to relieve the drain on the town supply, were running four trains daily from Barmundu, bringing 80,000 gallons of water per day. As much as 190,000 gallons per month had been drawn previously from the town supply. He felt sure the department would assist in any way to see the town get a good supply of water.

UNABLE TO GET A BATH.

Mr. Peters said his members were concerned with workmen being unable to get a bath, and householders domestic water. The department was paying £250 per week to bring its own water in. People growing vegetables had to let their gardens go.

TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL.

Mr. Darling said that the Trades and Labour Council had tackled the problem some time ago, and met Mr. Forde with the suggestion that the Federal Government should move in the matter. Without water the secondary industries of the town would never grow. Although Gladstone could not get its scheme completed, it was peculiar that Rockhampton had no trouble in getting finance for water. He was fully conversant with local manpower problems, and felt sure that the Allied Works Council could carry out the scheme immediately if it was approved by the Federal authorities.

PRODUCING FOODSTUFFS.

Mr. Caterson said that up to 900 of his A.M.I.E.U. members were producing foodstuffs in an essential industry.

Mr. R. Smith, who apologised for the absence of Mr. G. Wyatt (waterside president), said that members were behind the deputation to a man.

A DEMAND.

Mr. McKay said that it was ridiculous connecting 12-inch mains to an inadequate supply. The Trades and Labour Congress, held in Brisbane, had recently passed a resolution moved by the Gladstone delegate, supporting the proposal to have the Boyne water scheme completed by the Allied Works Council. Thus a lead had been given the town. A demand should now be made for the scheme.

Mr. Douse, A.R.U., supported Mr. McKay, and finally Ald. Anderson spoke to his motion, outlining his activities when ratepayers were recently cut off from the service.

PRIORITY UNDERTAKING.

In reply, Mr. Williams said he was pleased with the greater appreciation that was being shown of the importance of having this important scheme purely local matter, and he urged that those present should combine in an effort to have the whole project carried out by the Allied Works Council. He pointed out that before he left Brisbane he had been in communication with the Deputy Director General of Allied Works, Mr. J. R. Kemp, with the result that he felt the time was ripe for an application to be made for this job to be classed as a priority undertaking.

TELEGRAMS DESPATCHED.

The meeting unanimously decided to adopt this suggestion, and despatched telegrams to the Federal member for the district (Mr. F. M. Forde) and to Mr. Kemp, as a preliminary step towards having the undertaking in question placed on the priority list for commencement and completion with as little delay as possible.

MR. WILLIAMS CONGRATULATED.

During the deputation the Mayor and various speakers joined in congratulating Mr. Williams on his recent appointment as Minister for Agriculture.

OBITUARY

MR. JAMES WRIGHT.

It is with profound regret we record the death of a well-known and most highly respected citizen in the person of Mr. James Wright.

Born in Calliope sixty-one years ago, he remained in the district practically all his life.

Educated at the local State School, the late Mr. Wright was employed by the Calliope Shire Council for many years. After severing his connection with this public body he commenced dairy farming, and continued at this pursuit until his death, which occurred suddenly on Saturday, December 5.

When retiring to bed on the previous night Mr. Wright appeared to be in his usual good health and spirits, but passed away peacefully in his sleep.

Deceased is survived by his widow (who was Miss Margaret Ann Bennedick), two sons, Roy and James, of Calliope, and two daughters, Mrs. J. Baker (Calliope) and Mrs. Chas. Brown (Bocoolima), and six grandchildren to mourn their loss.

The cortege was most representative, and the many wreaths showed the esteem in which the deceased was held.

The Rev. W. E. Boyldew officiated at the graveside.

MRS. J. G. ALLISON.

An old and highly respected resident of Gladstone in the person of Mrs. Jeanie Gow Allison passed away at the General Hospital on Wednesday, January 5.

The deceased, who was 82 years of age, was a native of Scotland, and arrived in Brisbane some 60 years ago. Shortly after her marriage to Mr. Andrew Allison (who predeceased her 15 years ago) she came to Gladstone with her husband, where they resided for the past 53 years. Deceased leaves one son (Andrew) and four daughters —Mrs. Harvey (Rockhampton), Mrs. Craig (Miriam Vale), Mrs. Stovold (Barmundu), and Sister Allison, who is serving with the A.I.F.

The Rev. W. E. Boyldew officiated at the graveside.

MRS. G. CLAYTON.

The death is announced of Mrs. Grace Clayton, of Gladstone, which took place at Mitchell on Wednesday, December 23, at the ripe old age of 84 years.

Deceased resided with Mr. and Mrs. P. Vock prior to her departure for Mitchell, where she intended to stay with her daughter (Mrs. Andrews) during the duration of the war. The late Mrs. Clayton was a well-known and respected citizen of Gladstone, having resided here for 48 years. Her husband predeceased her 14 years ago. Deceased leaves two sons and three daughters to mourn their loss.

The funeral took place at Mitchell.

ROLL OF HONOUR

SIGNALLER LESLIE HALL.

A note of profound sadness spread over the Yarwun and [illegible] tricts when it became k[illegible] naller Leslie Hall had died of wounds on December 19, while on active service with the A.I.F. in New Guinea.

The deceased, who was the third son of Mrs. J. Hall, of "Glenshee," was 28 years of age. He was born in Yarwun, where he spent his childhood days. Later he attended the Central Technical College, Rockhampton, where he obtained brilliant passes in the junior and senior public examinations.

Mr. Hall [illegible] returned home to help manage his widowed mother's property. Until the outbreak of war he took an active part in every movement for the progress of the Yarwun district. He was a keen sportsman, excelling in cricket and tennis.

Mr. Hall was the first lad from the Yarwun and Targinnie districts to offer his services to the nation in its hour of trouble. A few short weeks after was was declared on Germany. He was accepted for the A.I.F., and later saw service in Britain, the Middle East, Syria, and New Guinea. He was at Tobruk during the whole of its now famous siege. His passing is a loss which will be felt by all, for he possessed sterling qualities and stood high in the estimation of all who knew him. Probably no other lad in the district was so well liked by so many.

Signaller Hall leaves a mother, three brothers, Jack (R.A.A.F.), George (R.A.A.F.), Ron (Rockhampton) and four sisters, Mesdames Dawson (Bajool), Shaw (Townsville), Ferry (Rockhampton), and Miss Edie, to mourn their loss. Deepest sympathy is extended to them in this time of sorrow at the passing of one who meant so much to them.

A TRIBUTE.

Each one of us who knew him
Has lost a valued friend;
We scarce can realise it.
But his dearest ones will miss him
In their home the most of all.

POST WAR CONDITIONS

WORKERS HOPE FOR A BETTER WORLD

BAD OLD DAYS MUST NEVER RETURN

In this interesting article Howard Drayton has disclosed the inward hopes of seven men typical of the working classes of Britain for conditions after the war.

Most of these men could be duplicated here in Australia, and the statements made lay upon us a duty of preparing now for that better world for which men are fighting and laying down their lives. To fail in this would almost be as great a calamity as that of losing the war.

The sun was warm; the air was clean and fresh, like the village. A few fishermen stood talking outside the post office; the policeman cycled leisurely past, calling a cheery "good morning," and a little old lady with an outsize market bag shuffled awkwardly into the butcher's shop.

At the doorway of one of a block of grey stone cottages, trim, neat and Navy style four ex-Navy men seemed unable to tear themselves away from surroundings they and their kind have known so well in the long years when Britain has faced up four-square to desperate eras in her island history.

One of the four men was an ex-chief petty officer, and he lives in the end cottage, with a pleasant garden that runs down to the sea, and where on a green headland, at whatever time or in whatever weather you come upon it, the ex-sailors seem as if they have just shined-up from doorstep to flagpole, as if expecting a visit from the lords of the Admiralty.

I called, "Good morning, Joe; what's the news to-day?" The ex- C.P.O. removed a well seasoned briar from his teeth and replied: "News! Why, me and me pals is reck'ning how we'll make out in this here new khaki battledress they're gonna issue."

He chuckled, and the chuckle sent a couple of seagulls screaming with terror high into the blue.

"I suppose there's bound to be some adequate reason for it, but for the life of me I can't see the necessity for khaki battledress for the men on this vital job. On their shoulders in the new rig they will wear a flash with the title 'Coastguard' or 'Coastguard Aux.'

The innovation follows a recent order in council declaring the Auxiliary Coastguard to be part of the armed forces of the Crown, and giving them the same status in this respect as that of the regular Coastguards, who will discard their traditional blue uniform, which seems a great pity.

In a rich voice Joe said: "Times are changing. Three years ago, down these parts, we were busy watchin' for contraband; and I don't only mean tobacco, spirits and th' like. In them days there was fair traffic in human contraband; poor devils wanting to escape from Hitler's Europe, [redacted] run the rule over them [redacted]ed landin' from fishin' craft.

"They still come nowadays, but not like they useta. Now and again we sight a boat tossin' about out there, and it will have a couple of more refugees aboard."

On the door of his cottage are painted the words, "H.M. Coastguard." Inside the cottage there are neat racks for telescope, compass, charts, signal flags, and lamps, official papers, and a wall telephone.

Many a ship in distress in peacetime had good cause for gratitude to Joe and his contemporaries around Britain's coasts.

Since the Battle for Britain many an R.A.F. man has been similarly grateful, for the Coastguard Service has saved dozens of flying crews after they baled out over the "Drink." So long as men like Joe keep watch and ward around our seaboard "all's well."

When, as Joe said, "this little lot's over mebbe we'll get some real excitement, mebbe with some new type of dope runners!"

His grey-blue eyes twinkled. Joe's a great kidder. Since September 1939 his life has been one long piece of excitement.

DOWN ON THE FARM.

A couple of hefty farm horses were splashing through black mud to their fetlocks towards the stables, and I dodged a dollop that came flying my way, and called to the farmer.

I've known this particular "Mister Busy Acres" for many years, but had not seen him for months. He grinned recognition and called back, "Why, hello mister, come in, the missus will be brewing tea."

Over our third cup of tea he told me:—

"It's a couple years since folk were asking 'what's wrong with farming?' when the Army and the Airforce wanted men for navvying on the new sites for barracks and airfields, the wages they paid tempted hundreds of young farm workers away from food production, which, to my way of thinking, was a national shame.

"Now they've taken the boys into the Forces and left us to fend for ourselves as best we can. The land girls are splendid, but they weren't born to the job. They used to call us 'clodhoppers,' and I reckon they'll call us it again when this war's over, like they did after the last. But it won't make no difference to us, for we mean to go on fightin' for the rights we're entitled to, and we're not goin' to give up the fight till we've won!"

I'll second his opinion. It takes a war to make us realise the debt we owe to our yeomen. And it takes the peace, more often than not, for us to forget that debt. This time we've got to square accounts.

A stocky little 120-ton ship reared up on her squat haunches, but the skipper stood tight, with oilskin encased legs planted firmly among a slithering mass of white fish. I yelled to him, and he waved a huge gorilla-like arm at me.

I knew this man for a grand old friend, if there ever was one, for I had sailed with him into the North Sea before and after Dunkirk.

In those days he stopped fishing for fish, to fish for a catch far more deadly—enemy mines. He and his trawlermen lived through soul-stirring days and nightmare nights, and their stories are epics of valour.

But you can't get men like these to talk.

He said: "Yes, we've gone back to fishing these days, and we're doing our bit to keep the country's larder stocked. But, and don't you forget it, we're still fighting the seas and the Germans to live, not to die!

"What we want—like that boy of mine in the Merchant Navy wants—is a future worth living!" And that is a point you and I and the other men would do well to bear in mind.

Along a cobbled roadway, with the broad river on one side and an almost endless line of tall, flat faced warehouses on the other, gangs of dockers made their way towards the night-shift, I found a stevedore, and we talked as he worked.

He said: "Maybe, if you'll come 40 years since, when the old dad worked here, I could have told you a story to make your hair stand on end, and stay on end! In those days dockers worked a nine-hour day for 6d an hour, which isn't what you'd call big money."

Those dockers welcomed the big and the little ships as they came heading home with full cargoes. They aimed at turning around those essential links in the Atlantic lifeline in record quick time, and they achieved what they set out to achieve.

But they've still got a grouse or two, and it won't do any harm for the Minister of War Transport to look into a few main items.

For a start, the average docker to-day is aged around the forty-five mark, for they've taken most of the younger men for the Forces, and a middle-aged man wants a slightly longer break between spells of humping than a younger fellow.

But they're not allowed more than an hour, for one meal, which they buy and eat in Nissen hut canteens mostly owned by private catering firms. They spend 10d and get meat, potatoes and vegetables.

But to get the meal dockers have to queue, and that means knocking off ten or fifteen minutes before proper time or going without. And that sort of thing isn't good enough. Ask the dockers.

There's another point: Beer costs plenty these days, and work on the docks is mighty thirsty work—and you can't get beer just when you feel like it. So the dockers have taken more and more to tea.

But they can't get tea without going to the canteens, and they can't go to the canteens whenever they want to relieve a mighty thirst.

There's a move afoot to close those canteens save for that one hour—and it would be a highly unpopular move, believe me.

I left the docks, for I had to see three more men I knew; a miner, the driver of a big eight-wheeled truck on which I aimed making part of my way back towards the south—and that certain shopkeeper.

From a coal begrimed face with two twinkling but tired eyes, I got a grin that looked as if it might be splitting the face in two, from ear to ear. In time we got around to talking of his work, and in a general way these were his views:—

Coal costs a lot too much; too much in terms of money, too much in terms of toil, too much in suffering, and too many lives. Year after year the mine casualties go up, and the cost of warming our homes grows steadily higher. The wages of the miners do not!

Modern methods which ought to mean additional safety too often mean greater output, but more accidents; figures published by various depart- [illegible] little pithead cottage, we talked of the current wrangling about production and future shortages, and he said, "Miners have never had a real square deal, and that's a fact. You see, lad, we have always been underpaid, and had to work in conditions we wouldn't keep whippets in.

"We've asked for nothing more than our due, and it is the fault of the owners and the Government that the pits these days are staffed by middle-aged miners.

"The youngsters wouldn't stick it, not the way us old hands did."

Time was short and I was due on my way back towards the South. At ———, nowadays a hive of war industries, I dug out my truck driver, had a quick cup of strong coffee with him, and climbed into the darkened cabin of his giant eight-wheeler, carrying more than 10 tons of vital war supplies.

He shifted the gears, eased in the clutch, and with a muffled roar we were on our way. Day and night, along all the great trunk roads, the big transports are roaring along in an almost endless procession. To and from the South Coast, London, Manchester, Liverpool, the Midlands and the North the drivers open out and send their trucks roaring towards the end of the journey.

Like the merchant ships, these also are a link in the vital lifeline that feeds and arms Great Britain and her Allies.

With the big steering wheel held lightly, and the sole of his heavy boot resting easily on the accelerator, the driver said:

"Doing this run six nights a week now; up one night, down the next. I'm lucky; I've been getting home for week-ends the last six weeks, but you never know when they'll switch you.

"Fed up with the job? Not likely. Now and then you get a bit fed up with the same old road, but, well pal, it's all in a day's work."

We roared on for another 20 miles, averaging about 20 miles an hour, and the main road was busy with trucks and lighter lorries speeding in the opposite direction, and more vehicles ahead of and behind ours.

Couple of years ago, the driver explained, this job could have been anybody's headache. Police and drivers were fighting the menace of "lorry girls," large numbers of whom were making their way from distressed areas to London, and the Home Office instituted an inquiry in which police, trade unions and heavy road users took part.

For a while the menace was very real. Young and attractive girls were being "bought and sold" by shady agencies in the big cities. But, as my driver pal told me, "It was us blokes who stopped it. A lot of us risked our jobs, and treated the girls decently.

"It wasn't their fault they couldn't get work. But now work's come their way the girls are okay and happy. There's no need to worry about morals when folks are working, and that's a thing we've all got to be doing these days to beat that perisher Hitler."

I dozed the last dozen miles, and awoke with a start when the truck slowed down and stopped. A watery sun was climbing out of the East, and I called back "Cheerio!" as the driver shifted the gears and headed for the last lap of his journey.

Then I made my way towards the shop of that tradesman I wanted to see.

He was the only one of the men whose stories I am telling who told me that business was bad, which, in fact, it is for him. But he's a bit of a psychologist, and though his cash doesn't show the same returns it used to, in a way he's feeling a lot happier about it.

You see, he's a pawnbroker!

"It was pretty heartbreaking," he said, "when the people used to come here every week, regular as clockwork, raising a few shillings on all they had in the wide world. Work was scarcer than money; there was illness through malnutrition; the kids were growing up, and there were always more babies coming.

"Every Monday morning they came, and as the weeks went past, the things they pawned became older and I couldn't advance them the same amount of money. God knows, poverty's the most damnable thing in the world.

"Well, I'm a lot poorer these days than I used to be, and I've got fewer customers. But I'm glad they're fewer. And maybe if we get a real people's peace when this war is over we shall not want 'Uncles' any more!"

ATLANTIC CHARTER.

I set out to tell the true stories of these men of 1942 Britain. When I talked with the pawnbroker it gave me a chance I'd been looking for; it gave me the opportunity to mention some of the many letters that came my way after my recent story in "The People," "A New Britain is Born."

So I said to my pawnbroker friend, "A reader disputed that story of mine, called me a 'dirty swine' for writing it, and said if I'd return the envelope and notepaper, he'd try and make them into a bullet for me.

Another reader from Birmingham wrote reminding me that at the end of this war your modern Miracle will cease, and yet again out will come the whips, the starvation and degradation of the workers.

Yet another wrote that capitalism starved us for years and will do the same again. The Government never learns that idle men need money—and money means work.

[illegible] in for heroes," and it's been a struggle, but I won through.

When it comes to a question of going back to the bad old days of 1919 to 1939, haven't the workers who are winning this war, haven't they got it in their power to secure post-war conditions?

Every worker—and every drone, for that matter—has the right to exercise his right to vote, and unless I'm mistaken, there'll be a general election when we've licked the Axis. Isn't a better, a more secure future what we are all fighting for? To doubt that future is to doubt one's own effort.

No wonder, therefore, that the people of Germany are losing confidence. Their visions of world conquest are slowly but surely vanishing into thin air. They see the possibility of down-trodden and ill-treated nations rising in their wrath against them, and they begin to be afraid.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

A.L.P.

GLADSTONE BRANCH

Annual Meeting

At the annual meeting of the Gladstone branch of the A.L.P. the President (Mr. H. Anderson) reviewed the past twelve months activities, and referred to the several matters taken up by the branch, the most recent being the organising of all bodies in arranging a deputation to Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., to secure a water supply for Gladstone. The branch suggested that the whole of the Boyne River scheme should be completed by the Allied Works Council.

Thanks were due to the Mayor and aldermen and representatives of other bodies for their co-operation in this matter.

A vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Williams for making a special visit to the town to meet and confer with the deputation, also for his assistance generally throughout the year.

The branch first moved in the matter of forming an Austerity Loan Committee. The drive was the best yet made in Gladstone, and the workers of the town were the principal contributors.

Mr. F. M. Forde, M.H.R., rendered excellent assistance during the year.

Members stood in silence as a mark of respect for an old member, Mr. A. T. Power, who recently lost his daughter.

Election of officers resulted:—

President, Mr. H. Anderson (re-elected), vice-presidents, Messrs. D. D. Jackson and E. T. Carron; secretary, Mr. H. Peters (re-elected).

A tribute was paid to the splendid work of Mr. Peters since he took over the secretarial duties.

It was decided to ask that black-out conditions in Gladstone be modified.

GERMANY

VISIONS OF WORLD CONQUEST

"Slowly But Surely Vanishing"

A very different Winterhilfe campaign has Hitler inaugurated this year, compared with that at the opening of the war. If you and I were Germans we would to-day be feeling very down spirited and discouraged. An exceedingly blue winter faces Germany. The Fuehrer has said so himself.

His speech lasted for only 70 minutes. In former days Hitler was hardly able to get warmed up in 70 minutes. Yet in this "short speech" Hitler gave away more secrets regarding German morale than perhaps any we had yet found out.

Probably if anyone but Hitler had delivered this speech the Nazis would have had him shot. It is encouraging to the Allies, and it comes out of Nazi Germany itself.

The gross inconsistencies, the blatant contradictions, the melancholy passive note of hopelessness, the almost abject apology for not having achieved formerly boasted aims and objectives, the grave warning of an unbroken monotony of hardships still ahead after having strained and endured so much—all these sombre and sober thoughts the Fuehrer has poured into the tired souls of the German people. It must give them many anxious misgivings to brood over during the coming dark northern winter.

Winterhilfe, indeed! Based on the scene Hitler himself has outlined, I should hate to change places with any German.

SABOTAGE.

Certainly no better indication from the highest authority could be wanted that sabotage is going on regularly in Germany to-day, or why should the Fuehrer even mention it if it were not taking place to an alarming extent?

Nor can things be too happy internally in Germany when Hitler has to say: "If I tell the people at home not to worry, that the German front everywhere and the soldiers who man it are standing unshakable, I can at the same time tell the German soldiers that behind them there is a home front that will never leave them in the lurch."

This is exactly what happened in 1918. The home front was beginning to doubt the ability of the army to win a victory, and the army was wondering if the home frontwas betraying them. At that time it led to the general crack-up of Germany. Can it be that the same leaven is working again?

You can't put YOUR HOME into the War Loan, but—

THE man who owns a house, or a factory, or a farm, cannot put it into the War Loan. Neither can the carpenter put in his kit of tools; nor the A.M.P. Society its £140,000,000 of assets.

It is the largest possible part of our current income that the Government needs, and should have.

The A.M.P. Society's £140,000,000 of assets (every penny of which belongs to its members) are already invested in Loans to the Commonwealth, to Local Authorities, Water Boards, Shire Councils, Electricity Undertakings and the like; to graziers and farmers for the development of primary industry; and to members for the building of their homes. Those assets are not available for investment in the War Loans. They are already hard at work.

What the Government needs from the Society is all that part of its current income that it can possibly spare from the wartime, restricted conduct of its business, and it gets that. The Society puts £500,000 a month into the War Loans.

Government war expenditures totalling a million pounds a day are bringing greatly increased incomes to many families, and a natural temptation to spend more.

Such money as is spent in maintaining health and full working capacity, and in meeting commitments is justified, but beyond that the good citizen will not go. Every pound he can save will go into the War Loans.

KEEP A CHILD CONTENTED

Suggestion For Tired And Worried Mothers

(By "Violet")

The old saying that "The devil finds mischief for idle hands to do" is as true of the average healthy child as it is of adults.

To overcome that tendency, Mrs. E. M. Brookes Hall offers the following suggestions in an article, "Think Before You Scold." Here is what she says:—

"Oh! Michael has been so naughty this morning, he has nearly driven me potty," said a young mother to me the other day. "At last I became so desperate that I gave him a jolly good smacking."

"And then what happened?" I asked.

"Oh, that didn't have much effect. He soon got over it and got into mischief again."

"Why, what had he been doing to make you smack him?" I asked.

"First when I was bathing baby he took his powder tin and went and shook some into all the corners as he had seen his daddy do with the insect powder to get rid of the ants. Then because he saw me put the nappies in to soak, he had to go and put the kitchen towels in the same pail. Later on I was putting our things into the suitcase to go and spend the week-end with mother, and he would insist on bringing things that I did not want and putting them in as well, till I did not know whether I was on my head or my heels. And finally to cap it all, he went and rocked baby's pram just when he had gone off to sleep and of course woke him up. Then I smacked him hard."

"Poor little fellow," I said. "He thought he was helping."

"Helping," she repeated with great scorn. "When he had got over the smacking, he went and 'helped' Mary with the nappies and soaked himself to the skin."

I still thought "poor little fellow," and also "poor little mother."

If she had not been overwrought, she would have realised that none of the things that had annoyed her were really naughty. A child must be doing something all the time when he is not asleep, and at Michael's age cannot be expected to distinguish between what he may and may not do. No why those strange grown-ups can do things that he is scolded for imitating.

I recently had my little grandson of two years, while his mother was in the maternity home.

It was very tiring and sometimes irritating when cooking, for instance to have his chubby hand stretched out to seize everything that I put down, often to have it broken or spilt. So I devised a plan. I gave him an unbreakable basin, a cup, a spoon, a little flour and some water, and a few other oddments, and put him into some old dungarees and told him to make a cake.

He made a delightful mess, but it occupied him happily while I was busy and saved my time and temper.

If we grown-ups would just put on our thinking caps to find something that they may do before we get busy ourselves, there woud be fewer tears and frayed tempers.

All children love playing with water. Surely it must be possible to purchase waders or paddling suits, and if not to make something of the sort out of an old waterproof. Failing that, take off their shoes and put on something which does not matter and let them "help" or mess with water themselves, and then change them afterwards.

And let us continually remind ourseves that infants are not necessarily naughty because they annoy us.

SOIL CONSERVATION

INSIDIOUS THING

Penalties Man Has To Pay

All over the world some of the best brains are working on the problem of preserving that top layer of soil without which life could not continue to exist.

The classic example of what soil erosion means is the Dust Bowl in the United States, where the surface soil in intensely tilled areas has literally "gone with the wind."

In fact, every country, and especially the comparatively newly settled lands, provides impressive examples of the penalties man has to pay for despising nature's law relating to the fitting use and conservation of fertile soil.

While the United States provides some appalling evidence of man's folly in mishandling the gifts of Providence, that country also provides glowing examples of new and strikingly successful methods of soil erosion control. Not only has erosion been checked in many areas, but eroded land has been reclaimed, and in many cases made richer than ever it was before.

By terracing, countour ploughing, and other methods, the moisture holding capacity of lands which previously had been subject to serious erosion has increased. That is one of the outstanding achievements of reclamation work in the Dust Bowl country where rainfall is usually very light.

The conclusion of the modern agricultural engineering school is that soil conservation pays.

Guided by the experience of other countries, particularly the United States, as to what to do and what to avoid, much can be done by farmers towards saving that spade's depth of soil from which we get our living.

Soil erosion is an insidious thing. Perhaps no single generation sees much of the consequences of wrong use of land.

In South Africa it probably took a couple of hundred of years for the erosion problem to emerge. The same thing may be said, perhaps, of the Argentine, where sheet erosion became so serious as to impel the Government of that country to prohibit cultivation altogether in some districts and let the land go back to grass.

There are many causes of river, gully, and sheet erosion which are familiar to every farmer. One generation, after all, is only a trustee for the generation which is to come after.

It is a national duty then to protect soil in every practicable way—by judicious clearing of timber, by tree reservations on hilltops and steep slopes and river banks, by contour cultivation and contour furrowing, and by all the other means prescribed on the basis of modern knowledge.

If that is done, a definite obligation to posterity shall have been discharged.

HIGH COST OF DOING NOTHING.

Nations and national cultures have died of soil erosion, and if we do not look out, that will be our fate, too.

The Greeks grew rich and their culture was in flower while their soil was slipping under their feet.

It appears unlikely that the bare, rocky hills of Greece could to-day support a culture that would compare with the past.

And so also of Palestine, North Africa, parts of Italy, and even in England and Scotland; and in China and Peru, the world is moth eaten by man. Through it all runs the old story of terracing and careful farming ruined by wars, by greed, and by every force of human stupidity.

In dealing with the problem of soil erosion, a country may easily die of economy—that is, when land and money meet in a head-on collision. The cost of soil conservation may sound tremendous—that is, the cost of doing something; but the cost of doing nothing is certainly stupendous.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

KEEP DOWN COSTS.

CARE OF IMPLEMENTS

Care of farm machinery keps down costs in running a farm by saving expenses in repairs and replacements

Regular and thorough lubrication always pays. A few minutes occasionally spent in checking over adjustments, overhauling canvases, tightening up loose nuts, and so on may often prevent a breakdown and save both worry and expense at a busy time, apart from the fact that a timely overhaul, particularly of harvesting or seeding machinery, will ensure that any duplicates which may be necessary are available when required.

A shed should be the only home for the plough, combine and header, and, in fact, all machinery when not in use. Machinery depreciates quite heavily enough, even when used and looked after with care; continuous exposure to the elements probably doubles depreciation.

Another point well worth consideration is to know when to scrap. New and better machinery is being evolved almost every year, and with which faster and more efficient work can be done, so there is every temptation to scrap or sell what one has and buy the newer model.

Sometimes it does pay to scrap existing plant and buy the more efficient implement. The header has replaced the stripper, the combine the drill, and so on, but every addition purchase should be considered on its merits.

The question should be: Will it pay? Can the old machine be adapted to approximate the work of the new one? Prematurely placing a half-worn machine on the scrap-heap or market just to save a few days with a new implement may not be profitable. It is a matter which calls for careful thought, with an eye always on practical farm economy.

CAN YOU HELP?

Books, magazines and old clean newspapers are urgently needed by the Gladstone branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. If you have any old newspapers, books, or magazines, kindly leave same at Gladstone Cash and Carry, where they will be collected regularly and despatched to the troops in camp. The camps in the outlying centres are much in need of reading matter and indoor games, such as playing cards, etc. See what you can do.

TOMORROW'S SUCCESS

Tomorrow's success is founded on today's preparation And proper preparation is the responsibility of every citizen from the greatest to the least. Putting aside our ordinary everyday needs and habits, we must subordinate everything to the nation's war effort ... the universal preparation for tomorrow's victory. The nation's leaders, speaking with the voice of the people, call for preparedness — in men, machinery, and materials.

The manufacturers of Cane-ite have pledged themselves to devote the whole of their resources to the achievement of victory. The part played by Cane-ite in a score of defence activities cannot be set out in detail. But they are of such magnitude that civilian requirements must necessarily be subordinated to them. So if heavy military and A.R.P. demands for this all-Australian product are causing delays in civilian deliveries, this Company seeks your continued forbearance. Defence MUST come first.

Here's Something You Just Can't do Without . . . . The "Bottrell" Branding Frame

The object of the machine is to facilitate the Branding, Castrating and Ear-marking of Calves from any age up to twelve or eighteen months and it has been proved a great labour saving machine, and no user would now be without a BOTTRELL BRANDING FRAME

The machine consists of a Wooden Frame which has its sides curved to receive the body of the animal, and turns on hinges fixed in the ground, with the motion resembling the opening and shutting of a book. One side of the frame is held upright against the fence by a latch, while the other side moves freely on its hinges under the control of a ratchet. The calf passes from a crush or race into the Frame, which is now closed as far as necessary, leaving the head and hind ports free. The latch is raised and the Frame turned on its side. The Branding and Castrating can now be done with the greatest ease.

POST-WAR DEVELOPMENT

WATER AND FODDER CONSERVATION

Projects Vitally Necessary

"A greater development of irrigation projects and schemes for the conservation of both water and fodder reserves throughout the State and the Commonwealth will become necessary for the greater and surer production of such products of the land as cotton, tobacco and flax, as well as summer and winter fodders for immediate use or their storing for future use, as the case may be, if we are to meet fully the needs of this country after the war."

This statement was made recently by the Agriculture Minister (Mr. T. L. Williams), when commenting on the broadcast address delivered a few evenings ago in Sydney by Mr. E. S. Spooner, M.H.R., in which he advocated an Australian-wide plan for conservation of water, administered and financed by the Commonwealth, for the greater production of food in the post-war period.

"I believe," said Mr. Williams, "that any person with a sense of the value of irrigation, combined with the conservation of fodder in all or any of its recognised forms, will readily agree with such a proposal. As a matter of fact," he added, "numerous irrigation and fodder conservation schemes or projects are certain to receive a greater fillip after the war than ever before.

Preliminary work on any such schemes or projects should be started as soon as possible, and advanced to such a stage that the absorption of men discharged from the fighting services, munition factories, etc., can be undertaken straight away. Such projects are vitally necessary, and as soon as one is put under way and nearing the stage of completion, others should be commenced.

The Federal Government should be urged to regard these and similar projects for the increasing of our primary production as highly important undertakings, and be prepared to finance them fully or contingent on the State Governments' providing a proportion of their ultimate cost.

By this means we will not only be in a position to provide employment and wages for those in need of both in the post-war reconstruction plan, but at the same time we will have gone a long way towards making Queensland comparatively safe from so many of its recurring droughts, with resultant losses to the producer as well as to the would-be consumer.

"National security undoubtedly lies in production, just as national prosperity and real national progress lie in the direction of production, particularly in times of depressed prices," he added. "Indeed, it has long been recognised that real national progress can be had only by the establishment of well-balanced primary and secondary industries, on sound and secure lines."

"This would supply permanent and profitable employment for increasing numbers of rural and industrial workers, which are our two main factors providing the real wealth and the wealth producers of the nation respectively," said the Minister.

GLOBAL WAR

FAITH IN THE FUTURE

Road to Victory

Not since the beginning of the war have the United Nations been able to face a New Year with more confidence and conviction of eventual success.

We are by now aware that the enemy on every front is still tremendously strong, that he has probably many high cards up his sleeve, and that opportunities for playing them will undoubtedly occur from time to time.

The future does not lie before us like a straight, unbroken road leading to victory, but we are confident that we shall not be turned back to face the empty altar of defeat.

This faith is in a large measure a reflection of events in Russia and North Africa, rather than a clear appraisement of the situation in the Pacific.

The success of the 8th Army and the forces in French North Africa have raised our hopes and indicated purposeful aggressive policy on the part of Britain and America.

The astonishing strength and resilience of Russia inspires new enthusiasm and faith in ultimate triumph over Germany, and some of us incline to think with Dr. Benes that Germany can last no longer than another year.

These are splendid and undoubted grounds for confidence and hope, and their existence is an indication that we think in terms of global war rather than in the narrower view of our own national safety. But it must be clear that early victory in the West does not mean a speedy end to our own struggles and trials. Regardless of the fate of Germany, the Japanese will have to be beaten, utterly and completely.

In the last two months our forces in New Guinea have made unbroken if slow progress. The enemy has been on the defensive since the days when his threat to Moresby was turned aside. Australians and Americans have fought splendidly along the jungle trails and given the Japanese no rest, forcing him back yard by yard.

In the Solomons our American Allies have done wonders in consolidating and extending their hold upon a vital strategic point, and there is every reason to believe that progress will be maintained.

Despite all this, there is a vital fact to be considered. We have made progress; we are still calling the tune, but the piper is asking a high price.

There is indeed a long way to go before we can say that the enemy is on the run. Our advance has not been made without cost. When we rationally consider the distance that we must advance before even the threat of invasion is removed, it must be clear that there can be no easing of our effort. There can be no false optimism and no easy victory.

Every forward step against the enemy entails bitter fighting, and there are no grounds for assuming that in the next twelve months the rate of progress will materially increase.

This is no matter for despair, though it may be a grim and bitter fact.

This year must see a great, inspired and concerted effort on the part of all Australia; a surging forward, a great and unselfish endeavour to sweep the enemy back.

Let us join together in this New Year, devoting all we have to defeating the enemy. Only then can we congratulate ourselves that victory is in sight.

Q.P.S.

A Consumer Service

Queensland Pastoral Supplies' policy of supplying goods direct to the man on the land is appreciated more and more every year. The benefit of reduced costs is passed direct to the consumer, and when there is sufficient demand for any line, be it barb wire, furniture, sheep dip, fertiliser, tools, or household furnishings, Queensland Pastoral Supplies organises production and makes it.

Selling their manufactured lines straight from the factory, considerable saving is effected by the purchaser. One of the largest trade organisations in the State, interstate and overseas, Q.P.S. also maintains what might be termed a personal service, inasmuch as the special requirements of regular customers, whether they be the quality or standard of goods required, the special method or route of forwarding, etc., are noted and remembered, and many are the personal services carried out by Q.P.S. for its customers.

Enquiries of all sorts, ranging from those associated with sick stock and motor tyres to the planning and building of a house, and the installation of an electric fence or a producer gas unit, are all in a day's work.

Q.P.S. advertisements appear regularly in our issues, and every reader will find more than one line of interest in their perusal.

For many years the Q.P.S. range of calendars, with the familiar pictures of the dogs, have been the feature of thousands of Queensland homes, offices and hotels. Paper shortage and other difficulties have restricted such publications, and Q.P.S. have been forced, in their calendar this year, to go from the dogs to the gee-gees. A copy of the new departure is available to customers, post free, on request.

THE Son and Daughter of the late Elizabeth Jane Ambrose wish to sincerely thank all kind friends and relatives for messages of sympathy and kindness extended to them in their recent sad bereavement.

Kindly accpt this as our personal thanks.

In Memoriam

McLEOD.—In loving memory of my dear husband and our father, R. McLeod, who passed away on 6th January, 1938.

Always Remembered.

(Inserted by his loving wife and family.)

WENITONG.—In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, Dorothy, who passed away on 21st January, 1941. Age 3 years.

A silent thought brings many a tear
Of one we loved and miss so much.
For we who loved her only know
How much we lost two years ago.

CURRENT TOPICS

AIR RAID WARDENS.

Sergt. S. Coxon advises that a meeting of air raid wardens will be held to-morrow night (Thursday) in the basement of the Town Hall, when a lecture will be delivered by Mr. E. Radford. A large attendance is requested.

ASSISTANCE APPRECIATED.

The Secretary of the Austerity War Loan Committee (Mr. H. Peters) writes: "The Austerity War Loan Committee wish to thank you for the amount of publicity you gave to the loan, which was of great assistance to them in the campaign."

MAIN ROAD BRIDGE.

The Minister for Works (Mr. H. A. Bruce) has advised the Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. Williams) that the Main Roads Commission had been authorised to construct a bridge over the gully between Beecher and Burua Railway Stations on the Gladstone-Calliope Road.

A.C.F. STREET STALL.

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the A.C.F. and Patriotic Fund will be conducted on Friday, February 19, and the convenors (Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen) will be pleased to receive donations of jam, cakes, sweets, pickles, vegetables, flowers, etc., for sale on that date.

FINED £5.

In the Miriam Vale Police Court, before the Acting S.M. (Mr. Donovan), A. Roe was charged with failing to enrol for military service. Defendant pleaded guilty, and was convicted and fined £5, with 6/- costs of court, in default one month's imprisonment. Captain G. C. Melson, area officer, Rockhampton, prosecuted.

AUCKLAND STREET CROSSING.

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) is in receipt of advice from the Minister for Transport that a new arm for the Pearson wig-wag signal at the Auckland Street railway level crossing had been forwarded from Brisbane. These signals had been out of commission owing to one arm being rusted by salt air. They would now be in commission again shortly.

NET PROFIT £54/17/7.

The country stall, conducted at the Christmas Fair in aid of the A.C.F. and Gladstone and District Patriotic Fund, held on December 18, was as usual an outstanding success, and resulted in a net profit of £54/17/7. The chairman of the Country Stall Committee (Mr. H. Nell-Ballantine) and the secretary (Mrs. E. J. Ferguson) wish to thank all who sent donations of cash or kind to the stall, and all those who in any way assisted to make the stall a success.

COMFORTS FUND

SERVICE TO THE TROOPS

Work Appreciated

The good work which the Australian Comforts Fund is doing for the welfare of the fighting forces is of a nature that the result is not often seen, providing as it does for the comfort of our soldiers at all corners of the earth. Countless letters of appreciation tell of the benefits received.

Just recently the Gladstone branch was called upon to assist in supplying food for a train load of Australians, who had not arrived on schedule, and Allied troops during their stay in town were supplied with forty dozen of soft drinks by the Chairman of the Executive (Mr. W. R. Golding).

Army patrol vessels have been catered for, and men on outport work have written letters of appreciation for supplies of tobacco and cigarettes received, which could not be obtained through the ordinary channels.

The citizens of Gladstone and district who support this patriotic body will be pleased to learn of the appreciation by those for whom this fund was intended for.

CHRISTMAS HAMPERS.

I know you will be pleased to hear that every man on board received a Christmas hamper on December 25," writes the commanding officer of an Australian warship to the headquarters of the Australian Comforts Fund (Queensland division).

Every day letters of thanks are being received at headquarters from members of the fighting forces on land and sea, thanking the A.C.F. and its supporters for the hampers distributed at Christmas.

Tribute to the quality of the hampers is paid by the naval officer, who adds: "I can assure you these hampers impressed everyone as being on a most generous scale, and as containing items of a most practicable nature. They did much towards brightening Christmas, which can be at its best only when spent at home."

An airman in New Guinea starts his letter: "Dear friends of the services," and says: "Every man in our unit received a similar A.C.F. parcel, and it would have done your hearts good to see the pleased expressions on their faces."

From a member of another force comes a letter saying: "As we are a long distance from the source of supply, it is sometimes difficult to get delicacies through the canteen, and your parcel arrived at a most convenient time. The contents were ideally chosen to suit all tastes, and left nothing to be desired."

Another letter from the same area says: "We all appreciate the work of the A.C.F. very much, and its standard seems to be to do as much as possible as often as possible. During the year we have had several issues of various kinds from the A.C.F. I think that when this war is over one of our brightest and most lasting memories will be of the work of the A.C.F. and other welfare units, and their willingness to try to make the way a bit smoother."

"We have just completed a very strenuous three months in New Guinea, having fought from one side of this island to the other," writes a lieutenant colonel, expressing thanks for hampers distributed to his unit. "During this time, owing to transport difficulties, we could only receive bare necessities, and parcels from home and comforts were unknown, which makes them all the more appreciated now."

TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL

GLADSTONE BRANCH

Various Matters Dealt With

The Secretary of the Trades and Labour Council (Mr. J. G. Darling) advises that several communications have been received by his body relative to matters dealt with by the Council.

C.C.C. JOBS.

The General Secretary of the Queensland Trades and Labour Council asked for the name of a representative of the Gladstone T. and L. Council for a credentialled delegate to visit C.C.C. jobs in the Gladstone district.

The name of Mr. G. McCabe is to be sent on as the local nominee.

PORT OF GLADSTONE.

The Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) advised that he was taking up with the Minister for Supply and Development (Mr. Beasley) concerning the Council's representations that greater use be made of the wharf facilities at Gladstone.

Mr. Beasley also wrote stating that he was impressed with the case of the Gladstone Trades and Labour Council at the deputation to Mr. Forde that increased shipping at Gladstone would ease the congestion at southern ports, and lessen the strain on the railway system.

BOYNE WATER SCHEME.

Mr. Forde, replying to the recent deputation from the Trades and Labour Council which suggested that the Federal Government should take over the Gladstone water supply and complete the Boyne scheme by the Allied Works Council, enclosed a letter from Mr. H. A. Bruce, State Minister for Public Works. Mr. Bruce asked for a full report from the Acting Local Director of Local Authority affairs.

BUTCHERS' UNION.

The Minister for the Interior (Mr. J. E. Collings) advised Mr. Forde that he had received his telegram from Mr. Darling (secretary, Butchers' Union, Gladstone), complaining that members had worked excessively long hours for the past 12 months, and were called upon by Allied Works Council immediately they commenced their three weeks' annual leave. Failure of a break would create absenteeism and refusal of overtime through overstrain.

Mr. Collings advised that the Allied Works Council had been advised that members of the Butchers' Union were not to be called up.

Mr. Beasley (Minister for Supply and Development) advised A.M.I.E.U. members that his Brisbane office had arranged for Swift Aust. (Pty.) Ltd. to seucre supplies of cotton duck for use in the manufacture of aprons. Efforts were also being made to improve the position concerning canvas gloves.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

SICK AND WOUNDED

Services Appreciated

The magnificent work of the Gladstone Red Cross was never more appreciated than recently, when all personnel were called upon to assist a large number of evacuees and sick and wounded servicemen passing through our town. Officials, members of the various circles, and the V.A.D.'s worked splendidly providing and distributing fruit, milk, cigarettes, ice creams, water melons, etc.

Mr. A. H. Friend, an executive officer of the branch, supervised the purchasing and delivery of the food and members of the knitting and sewing circles brought goods from their depot.

An idea of the work may be gained from the fact that 45 gallons of milk was distributed. In all four trains were supplied, the ladies working until a late hour at night to see that everyone was attended to. Members also assisted the refreshment rooms staff, and comment was made on the splendid work of the manager (Mr. Hogan) and his staff in attending to abnormal numbers at short notice.

An officer in charge subsequently expressed his appreciation of the splendid work performed by the Gladstone Red Cross, a service which would not be forgotten by the authorities and servicemen.

APPRECIATION.

The assistance was not confined to Red Cross personnel, many townspeople who are organised by Rev. W. E. Boyldew brought gifts to waiting passengers, and those who received them thoroughly appreciated the generous gesture.

In passing, tribute is paid to the continued efforts of the Rev. Boyldew to make the lot of the serviceman more contented. For many months he has organised various forms of entertainment for them. At his request local residents have had two, three, and as many as four visiting servicemen each Sunday night to dinner. They are, of course, invited to attend the evening service at St. Saviour's Church afterwards. When one guest asked if it was really necessary to attend the service, another wittily remarked, "It's a sort of voluntary conscription, so you'd better go, boys." In addition the rev. gentleman has organised socials and dances, and often invited visiting personnel as his guests. The boys have a lot of time for Rev. Boyldew.

TOWN COUNCIL

STREET AND ROAD WORKS

Twelve Pipes Damaged

At the last meeting of the Town Council the Overseer (Mr. R. Tait) reported as follows:—

EDWARD STREET.

The concrete culvert near the corner of Edward and Scenery Streets has been completed. The roadway over the culvert has been formed up and metalled. The 15-inch dia. pipe at the corner of Edward Street and the Gladstone-Calliope Road has been extended further back, and the guide post shifted back, which improves the access to this street.

GONDOON STREET DAM.

The stone pitched wall of this dam from the top of the largest leak was opened up. The core was found to be composed mostly of rubble and earth, and it had settled down a good bit where the water was leaking through. Two loads of puddled clay were packed in, and all holes and cracks in the stone pitching along the front of the dam and along the bank on Easton's side were cemented up.

GLADSTONE-CALLIOPE ROAD.

All the largest of the pot holes on the bitumen surface on the Gladstone-Calliope Road have been repaired between the foot of Bramston Street and Police Creek. A lot of small holes are beginning to appear on the surface, which will be attended to as they develop.

YAROON STREET.

Two notice boards have been erected, one at each end of the cutting at the bottom of Yaroon Street, cautioning the traffic to go slow.

MEAT WORKS ROAD.

A start has been made to repair and gravel the pot holes on the Meat Works Road, between the railway crossing and the turn-off.

Two classification discs were received from the Main Roads Commission to be put up on the Gondoon Street bridge. This matter has been attended to in accordance with their instructions.

NEW PIPE LINE.

Five men were engaged on December 15 under subsidy loan conditions from the Labour Exchange to clear the pipe line between Nos. 1 and 2 tanks, and to improve the gully crossings. This work was completed on December 24.

The cast iron pipes arrived here on December 28, and were unloaded and stacked at Auckland Point. After they had been stacked they were tested for cracks by myself and Mr. Poulson, the Iron & Steel Co.'s representative. Twelve pipes altogether had been damaged in transit. Those have been marked with white paint, so that they can be kept separate when carting.

Mr. Parsloe, the successful tenderer for the carting, signed the specification and conditions for carting on December 31, and a start was made with the carting on January 1. Four loads were carted that day. Since then rain has intervened and held up the work.

A real start cannot be made on the pipe line until the special castings and valves have arrived, and until I have discussed with Engineer Fenwick the matter of plant and where it can be obtained. A portable forge would be necessary on the job. The Council has a blower and legs for a portable forge. I would advise purchasing a tray for this forge so as it can be used.

The report was adopted.

WATER REPORT.

The Water Foreman (Mr. D. D. Jackson) reported that the following works were carried out during the month of December:—

Reading water meters.

Repaired leak which developed in the Coney Island line.

Repaired leak in 4-inch cast iron main on Auckland Hill.

Attended to valve at the corner of Gondoon and Bramston Streets.

Cut off several consumers, pending repairs to their water services.

AT THE WATERWORKS.

A stud broke on the gland of No. 1 piston; bored old stud and fitted a new one.

Ground in valves on suction gas engine; removed coke from the scrubber, and washed and replaced same; also cleaned gas pipes between the scrubber and engine.

The plant is in good order and running satisfactorily. During the month the suction gas plant ran for 171¼ hours, and pumped approximately 1,513,760 gallons.

The rainfall at the Waterworks for the month of December was 255 points.

The dam on January 1 was 9ft. 6ins. below the by-wash, being a drop of 1ft. 8ins. for the month.

Both Nos. 1 and 2 tanks were full on January 1. Changed the pumping twice during the month from direct pumping to gravitation.

The water consumption was again heavy for the month of December owing to activities.

The recent rains put 4ins. in the dam, but this has since been pumped out, and the dam on January 11 was 9ft. 6ins. below the by-wash.

One new consumer was connected during the month.

The report was adopted.

PADDY'S MARKET

Monthly Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Gladstone Harbour Board was held on Friday. Present: Messrs A. W. Drewe (chairman), W. R. Golding, E. W. Crow, R. S. Wilson, C. W. Macfarlan, and the Secretary (Mr. A. D. Hopper).

Leave of absence from the meeting was granted to Mr. C. S. Schache.

The Department of Health and Home Affairs asked that every attention be given to the destruction of rats.—Received.

The Shell Company asked for permission to set up a temporary pipe line for the pumping of salt water for testing purposes.—Granted.

Payments amounting to £1093/4/1 were confirmed, and accounts amounting to £72/10/11 were passed for payment.

RESCUE AND DEMOLITION SQUAD.

A meeting of the Rescue and Demolition Squad will be held in the basement of the Town Hall on Thursday night at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is requested so that the squads can be organised for the practice to be held on February 6.

A STORM.

On Sunday afternoon a storm which was narrow in area, passed over Gladstone, causing a fair amount of damage to buildings. The old portion of the rear of a picture theatre suffered most, and was blown into the main street, where other damage was sustained.

OBITUARY

MR. ALEX O'SING.

The sudden death at Rockhampton on Saturday evening last of Mr. Alexander O'Sing, aged 72 years, removed another of Gladstone's early pioneers. Deceased had complained recently that he did not feel very well, but he was able to make one of his usual visits to the central city to attend the race meeting there. Apparently he collapsed after returning from Callaghan Park and was found in a sitting position at his nephew's residence. Death was evidently instantaneous, following a heart attack.

The O'Sing family shared the honour of being among the first residents of the town of Gladstone, the father (John O'Sing) arriving at the port nearly 90 years ago. The young boys quickly gained a name for first-class horsemanship, and Jack, Billy, Alec and Alf were ranked with the Sheans, Rideouts, and others who later became champion riders. Deceased was always known as Alec, and was very popular with the older generation. He attended the Gladstone State School in 1874, the early teachers being the late Wm. Morley and the late Mr. Geddes.

The late Mr. O'Sing joined the staff of Messrs. H. & J. Friend, and for many years worked in the store and on deliveries. It was whilst engaged on the latter job that he met with a serious accident. Horses attached to a lorry bolted, and he was smashed against a verandah rail in stopping them. Blindness threatened, but medical care soon restored him to health, and he then commenced as a cabbie, his hansom cab with splendid horses being known to travellers throughout the State.

He put the first motor car, a model T Ford, on the town rank, and during the next decade he put a new Ford on each year, being one of the few hire men who could deal direct with the Ford distributors in Brisbane. His son Albert joined him in the hire business, and carried it on when he retired. Subsequently he acquired the freehold of the Wadleigh Hotel, Boroen, and when the lease expired he conducted the business himslf. He also bought the Railway Hotel at Yarwun, and conducted it for some years. Eventually, however, he disposed of his interests in the hotel business and settled down in the Valley.

The late Mr. O'Sing took a keen interest in racing. Besides riding many of his own horses he trained several well-known performers, notably Fogabolla, which won at Rockhampton, Gladstone and Calliope, and Princess Lily, Iris, and others. Quite recently he purchased a maiden eight year old (Leo Sun) in Brisbane, and succeeded in winning several events with him, much to the amazement of his friends.

Deceased was one of the original party of kangaroo hunters, which included the late Joe Coase, Dan Butcher, Jim Coase, Roley Joyner, Ernie Smith, Harry Pujolas, and the O'Sing brothers. Members would ride out to Calliope to join Harry Pujolas, and only the best horses and kangaroo dogs were used in the sport, which attracted great interest. The roos were hunted along the banks of the Calliope and Boyne Rivers, following the lines of an old country hunt. On one occasion Ernie Smith (who is now with Jack O'Sing the only remaining members) hit a cork tree near Toolooa and broke his jaw, the chase being abandoned whilst the injured man was brought to hospital.

Deceased married Miss Nora Burke, who predeceased him some years ago. His drive from Gladstone to Rockhampton in a buggy and pair in one day for his marriage was then a notable event, the two grey ponies used being beautiful animals, which attracted a lot of admiration.

Deceased won many prizes at early shows with hacks, buggy horses and ponies, buying from as far south as Maryborough.

There are three surviving sisters, Mesdames J. Darling senr. (Glastone), Oswald (Rockhampton), and Kirkwood (Gladstone), and three brothers, John, James and William (Gladstone), and Alf (Rockhampton). The late Mr. O'Sing had one daughter, Mrs. Jones (Millie), who died last year, and one son, Alexander Albert ("Bert"), who conducts the Railway Hotel, Calliope.

Deceased was a member of the Loyal Gladstone Lodge M.U.I.O.O.F., being the second oldest surviving member of the branch.

The funeral, which took place on Monday afternoon, was largely attended, there being many wreaths and tributes of sympathy. Rev. Father Campbell officiated at the graveside, and the Oddfellows' service was read by Bro. W. H. Woods. Amongst the pall bearers was a representative of the Gladstone Turf Club (Mr. A.W.F.G. Crow).

AUSTERITY LOAN

GLADSTONE COMMITTEE

Affairs Finalised

The final meeting of the Gladstone Austerity Loan Committee was held in the Town Hall Chambers, the business being the winding up of affairs connected with the campaign.

As is usual in such stages of a committee's affairs, there were several "post mortems" held, but the general opinion, as expressed by the members present, was that although the quota of £40,000 allotted to Gladstone was not reached, the response was very creditable.

The exceptional number of applications received, which must have compared more than favourably on a per capita basis with that of most centres, showed to what extent the rank and file of Gladstone are behind the war effort. For comparison purposes, further information on this point is being sought from Queensland's Campaign Director.

It was felt, however, that good though the results were, they could have been much improved upon had a better representation of business men been associated with the Committee, and the hope was expressed that when a new committee is formed for the next loan, more of this section of the community will be represented.

Eulogistic remarks were made by all members concerning the work performed by the Secretary (Mr. Peters), and a resolution was passed placing on record the sterling services rendered by him.

Figures furnished in connection with the house-to-house canvass disclosed that this phase of the campaign had been well worth while, and it was suggested that its operations might well be extended in any future campaign. The majority of the people approached readily agreed to complete the application forms, and it became more apparent as the canvass progressed, that procrastination was the main reason for the poorer response in the earlier stages of the campaign.

The meeting was closed by the Chairman (Mayor Dennis) thanking the committee for its support, and expressing the hope and confidence that before the next loan was due to be floated the Allied Nations would have proceeded a considerably further distance along the road to victory.

MRS. E. J. AMBROSE.

The death occurred at the Gladstone General Hospital on Saturday, January 9, of a well-known and respected resident in the person of Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Ambrose, following a short illness.

The deceased, who was 50 years of age, was the widow of the late Mr. Ernest Alfred Ambrose, who it will be remembered fought through the last war.

The late Mrs. Ambrose leaves one son, Ernie (Johnnie), who is at present serving with the R.A.A.F., one daughter, Gladys (Mrs. R. Wilson), four sisters, Mesdames W. V. Coase, R. Forty, R. Winter (Gladstone), J. Kasmeroski (Bundaberg), and two brothers (J. and V. Lyons), to mourn their loss.

The funeral took place to the Gladstone Cemetery, the Rev. Father McSherry officiating at the graveside.

MISS L. B. RIGBY.

There were many expressions of regret in the town and district when it became known that Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rigby had lost their twin daughter, Linda Beatrice ("Bin") after she had been ill for some little time.

Deceased, who was 31 years of age, had not enjoyed the best of health in recent years, but loving care and visits to relatives in the south had resulted in a marked improvement. However, on a recent visit to Warwick she became very ill, and although Mrs. Rigby was able to bring her home, she failed to rally, and passed away in the District Hospital on Saturday.

Of a quiet disposition and charming nature, "Bin" made many friends. She was educated at the Presbyterian Girls' College, Warwick, and in recent years had assisted the Red Cross with beautifully knitted articles.

The funeral moved from St. Saviour's Church of England, Rev. W. E. Boyldew officiating at the service. There were many floral wreaths and tributes of sympathy from friends in the town and district.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

MR. HANSON IN REPLY.

Sir,—In your issue of Wednesday, December 23, Mr. Funk endeavoured to point out the benefits reaped from socialism. But alas, Mr. Funk, you have only filled the baby's bottle with liberty!

I quote you when I say that the basic point in your argument is "an appeal for the introduction of a complete form of socialism."

But socialism is a very broad term which men like you interpret in many different ways.

You infer that the sympathies of nations should be with the worker, who has less means of defence, and that the capitalist is the one who should begin to rectify the many abuses which undoubtedly exist.

But no policy of socialism, such as the one to which you refer, which aims at the destruction of all social unequalities can be tolerated.

Social unequalities are essential to the general good of mankind: some men being employed on necessary manual works, others in intellectual pursuits, whilst various grades of difficulty or genius required in the work done demand various grades of remuneration. And this, of course, means social inequality, Mr. Funk.

No person ever condemned the employment of man servants and maid servants, but he did vindicate their rights and the rights of employers.

A socialistic form of government is quite wrong in itself, let alone in its many applications, because it violates the essential rights of man, which includes the right of ownership to private property.

Capitalism is the economic system in which industry, production, distribution and exchange are controlled by individuals who possess property and who devote some or all of it to enterprises of commercial value, subject to certain restrictive State legislation.

It is not a political form of government. That is where you are wrong, Mr. Funk, because it can function under a monarchy or under a republic. We can call it, however, an economic form of government, since it results in a certain state of society.

Capitalism may be a wash-out and an evil to some people, Mr. Funk, but you can't clear the hurdle simply by advocating socialism, and the sooner you realise that, Mr. Funk, the more credit I shall give you for common sense.—Yours, etc.

K. J. HANSON.

CLEARER DEFINITION WANTED.

Sir,—Regarding the letter of "Elector" in your issue of December 19, and the reply by Mr. Leo. Funk on December 23, I thought "Elector" would have replied, as there are several points on which I am sure many people (including myself) are very vague.

I refer chiefly to the reference of the labourer selling his labour power and the part which mentions the contradiction of the capitalist system.

This reads alright, and might be quite correct, but I think that Mr. Funk should have given a clearer definition of what he means.—Yours, etc.,

RATEPAYER.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Corporal E. Robinson, of the A.W.A.S., is spending a few weeks leave with her parents in Pier Street.

Miss Enid Knight, of Rockhampton, is the guest of Mrs. M. Robinson, of Gladstone, for a few days.

Sergt. R. Watts, of Gladstone, who has been in New Guinea for the last eighteen months, is at present spending a month's leave with his parents.

"In aircraft and munitions undertakings Australia has achieved extraordinary results, often in the face of heart-breaking difficulties. But we must go on to greater and greater achievements in production and design, and give the fighting services the best we are capable of giving. Production is the key to winning the war and to winning the peace."—(Mr. J. Storey, Director, Beaufort Division, Commonwealth Aircraft Corporation.)

SUGAR RATIONING does not mean—

SUGAR rationing does not mean that we should not use sugar in our morning tea. It is merely a simple way of helping us do our duty.

We have to be thrifty Thrifty with sugar, with tea, with clothing, with MONEY.

We have two wars to win: the war against inflation and the war against the aggressors.

To keep the cost of living from spiralling upwards, we must spend as little as possible. We must live frugally; pay off our debts; pay our Life Assurance premiums; and put all we can into the War Loans. In our own interest we must make things do, or do without.

Paying our Life Assurance premiums (even increasing them) helps the war effort, for a large part of the money goes into the War Loans. The A.M.P. Society (which belongs to its members and is purely co-operative) is putting £500,000 a month into the Loans. This money does the double duty of protecting its members' families while it protects the Nation.

AUSTRALIA

CLAIM TO NATIONHOOD

Pride in Our Freedom

Australia's claim to nationhood is not something which can be allowed to rest solely upon the deeds of her fighting men.

No nation had a more impressive introduction to the ranks of fame than Australia, in the heroic deeds of her sons at Gallipoli, in Egypt, France, and Flanders.

Once again Australia's manhood is in the ranks of justice and freedom; but now, more than ever before, that is not enough.

To-day it rests upon every Australian—man, woman, and even child—to share the tasks of a nation in the throes of total war. In no other way can they earn protection behind the battlefront, and a share in the fruits of victory.

Compared with the peoples of Greece, Poland, Czechoslovakia, France and other countries, we have little conception of the terrors of this war. Compared with the awful sacrifices of China and Russia, we have suffered relatively little, though we mourn the loss of many of our sons on the battlefield.

A national effort is a total effort. Not merely the effort of the fighting men, of the makers of munitions, or the effort of those who give their time and money to the cause. It is the sum total of all effort, and this total cannot reach its national maximum unless everyone contributes a full quota.

In this respect our enemies have few deficiencies. Theirs is a total effort, although regimented under the whip. Their united effort is that of slaves. It does not arise from the inspiration of a just cause. It is not the chosen course of a free people.

In this freedom we have great pride; but pride is justified only so long as we are prepared to pay for it.

Freedom has never been cheap. History bears witness that it cannot be bought at cut rates; its price is higher than compulsion because it is beyond price.

Let there be no mistake; nothing short of the maximum from every individual will suffice to retain our freedom. The strength of our Allies might save us from defeat, but history could not save us from shame.

We should individually ask ourselves to-day and every day, "What have I done for victory; what more could I have done for freedom?"

It all depends on us.

HOME FRONT

Kitchen Conscious

Domestic evolution has tended to move the home centre from the kitchen, but war has swung the pendulum right back, and once more we are kitchen conscious.

After all, the kitchen is the most homely room in the house. It's a workshop certainly, but it's generally an attractive one. So we're back to the old pioneering days when many a meal was cooked and eaten in the kitchen.

This war is being fought on manpower, and that includes woman power too. If there's not enough woman power in the house to serve meals in the ordinary way in the dining room, well it's back to the kitchen to save work and time.

Dining in the kitchen can be achieved without any loss of dignity. It's by no means a squalid affair. Modern kitchen are bright and pleasant rooms. Big, old-fashioned ones can easily be made into delightful dining places, and can have a special dining corner.

In streamlined modern kitchen (if they're bigger than a cupboard) the same good effect may be obtained. Dining alcoves take up very little space.

Picnic tablecloths and serviettes, relics of happy al fresco meals out of doors, can be used too. They save the laundry and have pleasant associations for the diners.

If the kitchen table has to be a preparation bench as well as a dining table, there are many attractive designs that may be used for both. But if you can't get a porcelain topped table or a plastic topped one, try your own prowess with a paint brush.

Think of the saved footsteps, and think, too, of winter fuel saving. The fuel you save will help to "bake" munitions. In the summer time there's the refrigerator or ice box quite handy for drinks and dessert.

CAN YOU HELP?

Books, magazines and old clean newspapers are urgently needed by the Gladstone branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. BONE CHEWING.

No animal can thrive unless its food contains a sufficiency of certain elements, including the minerals phosphorus and calcium. The requirements of the different farm animals are, however, not the same. Normally enough phosphorus to maintain the health of cattle is contained in the pasturage, but for various reasons e.g., phosphorus deficient soils, and a succession of years in which the rainfall is scanty—a deficiency in this element arises in the natural feed.

An early symptom of phosphorus deficiency is a marked desire shown by affected animals to eat bones and offal. This condition is fairly common in parts of Queensland. Animals develop dropsical swellings, stiffness in gait, and symptoms similar to those of rickets in children.

Young cows about the time of first and second calf, milking cows, cows heavy in calf make heavy demands on the available phosphorus, and are therefore very susceptible. Dry cows and older stock are less liable to suffer.

Stock suffering from a shortage of phosphorus will chew bones, pieces of wood, bark, earth, and other substances.

Treatment, except in extreme cases, is followed by good results. On the smaller holdings where animals are watered at troughs, the addition of six drams of phosphoric acid to each ten gallons of water, supplemented by a ration of bran and chaff, gives very satisfactory results.

Under station conditions a lick containing sterilised bone meal two parts and coarse salt one part—a proportion of two to one—with the addition of molasses to increase palatability, may be made available to the animals.

LEAKAGE OF INFORMATION

"THE ENEMY LISTENS"

Residents Again Warned

Are you a fifth columnist? One can just imagine the din of selfrighteous no's as the question is answered. But let us go into the matter a little more closely. Can you honestly say that in the last six months you have not offended in word or deed against the National Security Regulations. Have you ever discussel troops movements or the positions of defensive weapons? Have you ever repeated an idle rumour? If you can truthfully say no to all that, then there is no need to read the remainder of this story. The attention of those who admit the soft impeachment is, however, earnestly desired.

One can be a fifth columnist either by design or through ignorance and carelessness. Unfortunately, the result, so far as leakage of information goes, is the same; the information is these for the enemy agent to collate and forward to the quarters in which it will do the most harm.

LESSEN FORGOTTEN LESSONS.

There are still children who believe in Santa Claus, and this is desirable and also understandable, but to think that there are still adults who believe that this Northern State is without a big quota of fifth columnists stretching credulity to more than breaking point. In the cosmopolitan population such as that with which Queensland is blessed, one can be tolerably certain that we have a fairly high percentage. Surely the lessons of previous campaigns, in which fifth columnists took such an active and disastrous part have not already been forgotten. The lessons have been particularly hard ones, and it is inconceivable that we have not made full use of them.

WEIGH YOUR WORDS.

Every time you write, think carefully before you commit yourself to something that was better left unwritten. Before you speak, carefully weigh your words. There is no truer caption than "the enemy listens."

He is not an idle listener. He has been trained for many years to collect evidence to aid his own intelligence officers. He is cunning and plausible, and betrays little outward interest in a conversation, but he misses nothing.

Have you ever written anything like this:—

"The Americans have the biggest searchlight in the world on ——. There are anti-aircraft guns all round it."

The information was correct, and had it fallen into the hands of the enemy rather than that of the censor, would have given them very valuable information.

TELL IT TO THE (SUB) MARINES.

"All round us are ammunition dumps, right through the bush by Bill's home. —— Road has been closed to civilian traffic."

A dispersal area has been disclosed. "—— ships are in the harbour," (giving the number).

Handy news for our late submarine visitors.

If we must talk, and so far there are few indications that we are dumb, let us talk of anything but ships, troops, and aircraft.

SUGAR RATIONING

Third Allowance of 6 lbs.

A third allowance of six pounds of sugar for jam making is to be made available immediately by the Rationing Commission, said the Minister for Trade and Customs (Senator Keane).

The total maximum allowance of sugar for jam for each person is now eighteen pounds.

Unexpected increased stocks in the Southern States in the last fortnight are responsible for the third allowance. The sugar available is being passed on to the consumer without delay in view of the urgency of the need for it for jam making.

"It has been the policy of the Government not to withhold supplies from the public whenever they could be made available, and this principle was being maintained in this instance," the Minister said.

This extra allowance may be obtained by householders by writing to the Deputy Directors of Rationing in each State, enclosing an addressed envelope for an application form, which then correctly filled in will be handed to the retailer with the "D" strips from the ration book filled in with the name and address of the customers, and pasted on the back of the form.

The three special issues for sugar for jam making and fruit preserving now provide a maximum total allowance of eighteen pounds per head. The first issue is simply obtained. The ration book is merely presented to the retailer, who will cut off the strip along the top of the "B" coupon (sugar) page—the strip containing the letter "B" and the words "customer's name and address." The retailer will then supply the first issue.

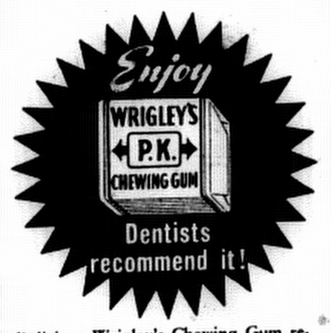
To obtain the second and third issues application must be made in writing to the State Deputy Director of Rationing, enclosing an addressed envelope for reply.

An application form will then be posted back to the applicant.

For the second issue the "customer's name and address" slip as was used from the "B" coupon page to obtain the first issue must be cut from the "C" coupon page, filled in and pasted on the back of the form. The form is then completed and handed to the grocer or retailer, who will then supply the second sugar allowance.

One member of the household can apply on behalf of all other members.

The method of application for the third special issue is the same as for the second. In this case the "customer's name and address" slip at the top of the "D" coupon page is used. Persons who have not previously applied for the second issue may use the same application form to obtain the third issue.



Delicious Wrigley's Chewing Gum removes the particles of food which lodge between your teeth and cause decay. PAPUA

Plans for Development

Australia is not only sending supplies to the troops operating in the South-west Pacific Ocean, but is also supplying rations to the natives whose village life has been dislocated by the war.

"Normally," said Senator Fraser, Minister for External Territories, in a special interview, "the natives get their food by their own efforts, but we are now sending rations to them from Australia, mostly by air, and despite the difficulties of distribution they are receiving the supplies fairly regularly. We are also supplying them, as far as possible, with trade goods.

"The Commonwealth Government and the people of Australia have every reason to be proud of the part the natives of the Territory of Papua have played in the struggle on that area. Letters from members of the fighting forces and press correspondents, both Australian and American, have paid glowing tributes to the work of the natives and to their courage and loyalty in the difficult circumstances in which they have been placed since the Japanese first attacked Port Moresby in February last. The official reports are no less enthusiastic in their praise.

"The area of the combined Territories of Papua and New Guinea is 180,000 square miles, with native populations of approximately 300,000 and 750,000, respectively. At the time of the Japanese invasion a large portion of the area had not been adequately surveyed, and one result of the military operations will be that when the war is over we shall have a much greater knowledge of the country. That is one very important gain we shall make as a result of the war.

"The Government, however, is not waiting for the peace before thinking of what form the development of these territories shall take in the future: it is already engaged in formulating the policy that will be followed when the time comes for the resumption of normal civilian life."

CURRENT TOPICS

WATER PUMPED.

At the last meeting of the Water Authority the Engineer (Mr. E. W. Phillips) reported that during December he had pumped electrically for approximately 600 hours, using 11,496 units. The report was adopted.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY.

The usual monthly street stall of the Women's Auxiliary, R.S.S.A.I.L.A., will be held in Gondoon Street on Tuesday, February 9. Donations of produce, cakes, jams, sweets, flowers, etc., would be much appreciated by the organisers (Mesdames P. Irwin and M. Brown).

VICE VERSA DANCE.

A night everyone will enjoy is the vice versa dance, to be held in the Trocadero on Friday, February 12. The programme will include jazz and old-time dancing, a jitter bug competition, and free Monte Carlo and spot dances. A cash prize will be given for the best vice versa couple. A first-class orchestra of four has been engaged. The funds will go to augment the Convent School fund.

ASSISTANCE APPRECIATED.

The Secretary of the Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society (Mr. H. P. Hallam) has received the following letter from the Commissioner of the Red Cross, Brisbane:—"We have been informed by our representative, who travelled aboard recent ambulance trains passing through your centre, of the excellent co-operation afforded the Field Force by the members of the Gladstone Red Cross branch, and of your personal efforts in this direction. We are most grateful for this assistance, and can assure you that this is greatly appreciated by us all at headquarters."

PROPERTY SALES.

Mr. Lance R. Weiske, commission agent, advises the sale of the grazing property, "Warree," situated near Calliope, to Mr. F. M. Hicson, a well-known grazier of this district. The vendor is Miss M. Miller. The Miller family have owned "Warree" for many years. The property is freehold, permanently watered, and well improved. The sale was effected on an unstockd basis. This agent also advises the sale of another property at Targinnie, to Mr. J. Storey, of Yarwun, the vendor being The Union Trustee Co. of Australia Limited and Mrs. A. Charlton, as executors in the estate of the late George Charlton.

NEW GUINEA

Red Cross Services

Sergeant S. E. Brialey, of Yarwun, writes from Port Moresby as follows:—

"We have had two issues of tobacco through the Red Cross these last two weeks. They do marvellous work here for the hospitals and con. depot.

Our last issue was cigarettes and tobacco for each of the convalescents and staffs, and at the moment we are over 600. There was tinned cake, tins of biscuits, custard powder, jellies, lime cordials, washing, toilet and shaving soaps, and socks for those who needed them.

"We give everybody a cup of tea or coffee at 10.30 a.m., with sandwiches and cake or biscuits, and in the afternoon a cool drink with cake or biscuits, and at 8.30 p.m. soup or coffee. This is in addition to regulation meals, which couldn't be bettered in Australia.

"It is the con. depots job to build up the boys, and they are only discharged when proved 100 per cent fit.

"We had some of the poor chaps here that were cut off by the Japs and left in the jungle six weeks or more, living on what they could find until they made camp.

"They were almost dead with starvation and exhaustion, so you can imagine how they appreciated those extras we gave them from the Red Cross.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

PRISONERS OF WAR

Street Adoption Scheme

The President of the Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society (Mrs. H. V. Phillips) met the ladies and gentlemen in charge of the P.O.W. street adoption scheme on Wednesday night, when progress was reported and a plan of campaign mapped out for a continuation of the drive.

The co-organisers advised that Mesdames K. Coppin and R. Elliot, who have been in charge of the scheme, had made excellent progress.

Mrs. Elliot had completed Yaroon Street, the canvass being practically 100 per cent. Mrs. Clyde Smith had similar success with Roseberry Street.

Mrs. Hallam had already completed Side, View and Ormonde Streets, this being the first section in Gladstone completed.

Mrs. Elliot had canvassed that part of Auckland Street from Yaroon to Roseberry Street, and Mrs. Clyde Smith was continuing this street to the railway crossing.

Auckland Hill had been handed over to Mrs. Watson. Fowler Estate had been allotted to Mrs. Ricketts, and arrangements had been made to work Bramston Street.

Mesdames Elliot and Clyde Smith were congratulated on the splendid canvas they had made of Yaroon and Roseberry Streets.

It was decided to seek the co-operation of the Boy Scouts and the Junior Red Cross, and to concentrate on certain sections in a big drive.

It was reported that additional street signs and house tags had arrived, and would be attached immediately.

AN APPEAL.

The organiser of the canvass (Mrs. Coppin) has left for her annual holidays, and an appeal is being made for ladies to assist the small committee who are now at work on the campaign. It is felt that there are many women not connected with other Red Cross activities, such as Knitting and Sewing Circle, Paddy's market, catering for servicemen, who could lend a hand to complete the Prisoners of War Adoption scheme.

Recent letters from local men who are prisoners of war in enemy territory tell of the regular arrival of their Red Cross parcels with food and medical supplies. Some go so far as to say that the parcels have actually saved their lives. Even in Malaya and other Japanese prisoner camps Red Cross parcels are beginning to arrive, and their distribution is being strictly supervised by Red Cross officers. The plight of these prisoners is often desperate, as they have had to contend with unsuitable and insufficient food. Here is a chance for everyone to assist.

The small Red Cross tag on the gate or fence should be a source of pride and satisfaction to those residents already contributing.

Election Pact

Negotiations shortly will be opened between the two non-Labour parties in the Federal Parliament for a binding election pact at the Federal election to be held later this year.

The arrangement tentatively proposed is that while preserving their separate party identities members of the two parties should campaign as two wings of a common non-Labour party.

Features of the arrangement are expected to be an agreement not to run candidates in opposition to each other, and to achieve complete pooling of electoral machinery and resources in each electorate.

WOMEN'S CHEAP SANDSHOES.

Because women's cheap sandshoes are fast becoming "white elephant" stocks, and are perishing on the shelves of many retail stores, their coupon value has been reduced from seven coupons to four coupons by the Rationing Commission. The reduction applies only to women's sandshoes sold within fifteen miles of any capital city at a retail price not exceeding 12/6 a pair, and to those sold outside this area at not more than 13/- a pair. The generally decreased demand for sports shoes as a result of rationing, and also the wartime decline in sporting activities, is considered to be the reason for the slow demand. It was further stated that in all cases where a special issue of coupons is granted to an occupation a special issue of the same number of coupons may be granted to apprentices in that occupation.

SERVICEMEN AND EVACUEES

RED CROSS ACTIVITIES

Excellent Work Appreciated

Members of the Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society continue to do excellent work in attending to the comfort of large numbers of allied servicemen and evacuees passing through the town.

On Tuesday the President of the Society (Mrs. H. V. Phillips) and many of her members, in their attractive Red Cross uniforms, arranged the purchase and distribution of large quantities of milk, ice cream, mangoes, sandwiches, cake, etc., the gifts being appreciated by the recipients.

Again on Thursday members of the branch and V.A. Detachment were called upon to attend another large unit passing through.

It has been the custom previously to hand the food and delicacies to a Red Cross officer for distribution en route, but on Thursday Mrs. Phillips asked that permission be given the local Red Cross to personally hand the milk, ice cream, fruit, etc., to servicemen.

This was readily agreed to, and proved to be a much better arrangement. It not only gave a large number of Red Cross women something to do, but also gave them an opportunity to make personal contact with the men, who demonstrated their appreciation of the Gladstone members in no uncertain manner.

This makes the sixth train this month waited on by members of the branch. The necessary work is, of course, making a very heavy call on the funds of the Society, but the President and her committee are confident that a generous public will appreciate the urgent demands and continue to assist the Red Cross.

AMBULANCE BRIGADE

246 CASES TREATED

857 Miles Travelled

At the monthly Ambulance Committee meeting the Chairman (Mr. A. T. Power) presided, and there were also present: Messrs A. S. Fry, J. F. Clayton, H. N. Ballantine, W. O'Reilly, and W. V. Coase (secretary).

VOTE OF SYMPATHY.

A vote of sympathy was pased to the Chairman (Mr. A. T. Power) on his recent sad bereavement, the loss of his daughter. Members stood in silence for one minute.

BUDGED APPROVED.

The Brigade budget for the year ending June, 1943, was approved by the Governor in Council.

GENERAL.

A vote of thanks was passed to all subscribers during the month.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

The Superintendent (Mr. W. V. Coase) reported:—

During the month of December the Brigade attended 67 accidents, 154 transports, 25 office cases, total 246, and travelled 857 miles.

The following donations have been received since last meeting:—Ladies' Committee £51/12/1, R. Smith, A. W. R. Smith, V. Stitt, A. H. Wyatt, Geo. Wyatt, W. Roberts, J. Brodie, £1 each, S. C. Milford 18/-, Mrs. P. Linnane 6/-, Mrs. Geo. Doble 2/-, Geo. Curtis 5/-, Reg Winter 5/-, Marvin Jones 2/-, A. Ease 5/-, Alfred Stirrat 11/-, Mrs. J. C. Jordan 2/-. Mrs. Alex Fisher 10/-, Mrs. E. A. Ambrose 2/-, Miss K. Farmer £1, A. Sutherland 10/-, Mrs. M. Leadbetter 10/-, Mrs. Ferguson 10/-, Bearers' euchre £1/14/-, Mr. Dixon 4/-, J. Callanan 6/-.

Bearer P. Hutcheon has been on holidays, and hon. bearer A. R. Barker was on duty during his absence.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Private G. J. Sweeney, of the A.W.A.S., will report back to duty at the Queensland and New Guinea L. of C. Area Records Office after spending leave with her parents in Gladstone.

Leave was spent with their parents in Gladstone by Miss Alice and Doreen Wood, who are serving with the A.W.A.S. in the north. They were accompanied by Mr. Cecil Wheatley, of the R.A.A.F.

AUSTERITY LOAN

GLADSTONE'S EFFORT

Receive a Blue Pennant

Mr. H. Peters, secretary of the Gladstone Austerity War Loan Committee, has received the following letter from the State Organising Secretary (Mr. A. V. Porter), Brisbane:—

"The Prime Minister (Mr. John Curtin) has expressed his deep appreciation to all who assisted in making the £100,000,000 War and Austerity Loan such an outstanding success.

"I promulgate his appreciation to you with the greatest satisfaction, as the success of the loan campaign in Queensland was a tribute to the enthusiasm and efficiency of our committee system. Some were more successful than others, but all, I am sure, worked with vigour in an endeavour to reach the quotas set. I would like to take this opportunity of adding the thanks of my Committee to all those who assisted in the campaign.

"By the over-subscription of the War Loan our Australian war effort has received a great stimulus.

"Honour pennants will be awarded on the following basis:—

Red pennant, champion of State.

Pale blue pennant, over £8 per head of population.

Green pennant, over £5 per head of population.

Dark blue pennant, for subscribers' quota.

"The Bulloo Shire is to be congratulated on obtaining the State championship, with a subscription of £17 per head of population, and for exceeding its subscribers' quota by 17.

"The financial quota was reached by the following:—Town of Bowen, town of Charleville, shire of Bulloo, shire of Diamantina, shire of Douglas, shire of Longreach, shire of Tambo.

"The subscribers' quota was obtained in the following centres:—

	Quota.	Actual.	Over.
City of Warwick ...	467	494	27
Town of Bowen	217	285	71
Town of Charleville	228	346	118
Town of Dalby	240	315	75
Town of Gladstone .	332	581	249
Town of Roma	224	241	17
Shire of Bulloo	36	53	17
Shire of Cardwell .	360	388	28
Shire of Diamantina	13	29	16
Shire of Longreach .	359	360	1
Shire of Winton ...	183	268	85

"In 1943 our Australian war production will reach its peak, consequently our war expenditure must and will increase. There will be other loans; what amount they will be for or when they will be floated has not yet been decided, but the time for the perfection of our organisation will be all too short.

"Let us, therefore, prepare now; get our campaign organisation into top gear; make sure that our committees are fully representative of each section of the community; strengthen them in every possible way, and ensure that when the call comes we will be equipped to meet it.

"The war savings campaign is continuous. See what can be done in your area to improve it. Advance applications for the next loan are important, so endeavour to encourage them.

"Would you urgently call your committee together and make your plans for the immediate future? Do not hesitate to call for our assistance in any direction that may occur to you. In short, let us all pull together for an all-out effort in 1943 in the hope that victory may be won with a just and lasting peace."

It will be gleaned from the foregoing that Gladstone exceeded its subscribers' quota by 249, and in recognition of the effort will receive a dark blue pennant. Gladstone's cash quota was £40,000, and the amount raised was £26,290.

SCOUT NEWS

Second Gladstone Group

(By "Wonga.")

The last two months have been very busy ones for the Group. The ladies' committee have run several very successful social evenings in the hut, and also a children's party on a Saturday afternoon.

A street stall was held by the scouts, and articles for sale included numerous toys and gadgets made by the troop.

A crowded house greeted our second concert this year. Over 160 people paid for admission. Everyone wants to know when the next one is going take place.

We wish to thank Mrs. Sutton, Miss Jones, Master Jones, and Messrs. Jones, Wegert, Crane and Mennicon, who assisted us with items.

Altogether the group funds benefited to the extent of £40.

A very efficient committee was responsible for the great success of these functions by their untiring work, mainly behind the scenes.

The committee are:—President, Mrs. J. Gooschalk; vice-president, Mrs. G. Ramsey; secretary, Mrs. D. Lacey; committee, Mesdames M. Humphries, M. Baynton, E. Johnston, M. Steel, M. G. Fleetwood, N. Paterson, C. J. Wegert, and R. Marek, Misses B. Johnston, S. Mackenzie, and D. Mackenzie, and Messrs. V. Lacey, L. Humphries, and J. Gosschalk.

The late Mrs. Lusk was also a strong supporter, and assisted the Group in many ways.

The monthly socials will be a feature this year at the hut, and we hope to commence them in March.

During recess the troop has been very busy.

The following have been very active:—P.L. J. Gosschalk and N. Trevor, Scouts E. Robins, J. Winter, R. Bain, N. Lacey, J. Mackenzie, J. McClelland and C. Anderson, and Cubs D. Patterson, B. Millwood, C. Gosschalk, N. Boyle, and B. Winters. They worked hard collecting magazines and books for troops passing through, and their reward was the wonderful welcome they received when distributing these gifts.

They also met various hospital trains with papers, magazines, books, cakes, sandwiches and fruit. Here, too, they received a wonderful welcome, and in some cases were told that Gladstone was the first town on their trip south where the troops had received this attention.

This is certainly a feather in the caps of the scouts and cubs concerned, and the ladies also who helped them.

One night five scouts slept all night on the platform so as to make certain they met the train.

These boys, of Second Gladstone Group, worked hard, and they had great yarns with ex-scouts, rovers and scoutmasters, and have quite a correspondence going in consequence.

In November the Group had a visit from G.S.M. Irwin Crow, a native of Gladstone, who has a group in Thangool of 45 members.

A.S.M. Lex Stabb, who is in the A.I.F., also paid the hut a visit while on holidays. Mr. Stabb was a member of this group before he enlisted.

AT THE POWER HOUSE

Two Engines Running

At the last meeting of the Electric Light Authority the Engineer (Mr. E. W. Phillips) reported as follows:—

Two poles and single phase mains were erected in Quarry Street.

The Electric Inspector for the State Electricity Commission during December carried out the annual inspection of reticulations and the checking of earth resistances, etc., also a check inspection of several installations.

Several repairs were carried out on the engines. As both engines are now running daily it is almost impossible to do repairs in the day time, most of them having to be done after 9.30 p.m.

Two consumers were connected up for eleven lights and two power outlets.

The report was adopted.

"It may be that the war in Europe will end before the war in Asia. Should events take such a course, we should immediately bring all our forces to the other side of the world to the aid of China, and above all, to our own kith and kin in Australia and New Zealand in their valiant struggle against Japan."—(Mr. Churchill.)

CORRESPONDENCE

(We do not necessarily identify ourselves with the views expressed by correspondents.)

SOCIALISM EXPOUNDED.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—In your Wednesday's issue appeared two letters dealing with a letter written by me on December 23 last.

The letter by "Ratepayer" sought some information, whilst the other deliberately avoided the contents of my letter, and the writer contented himself with half-baked personal abuse and stupid attempts to put into my letter meanings and words which I could never at any time have written.

A reply to both letters is embodied in this one, so I would ask "Ratepayer" to carefully read this, and he will find the answers to his questions.

I would add that if "Ratepayer," or anyone else wants any further information, then he can contact me personally or through the columns of your valued journal.

Your correspondent, one K. J. Hanson, says that "socialism is a word which men like you interpret in many different ways."

This is merely stupid, as I interpreted it in only one way—the abolition of capitalism, and I based my interpretation on the Marxist theory, the same as some two hundred million people throughout the world, a theory which has proved successful in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics for the past 25 years.

Again, when he says "You infer the capitalist is the one who should begin to remedy the many abuses which undoubtedly exist," he is merely distorting the truth, for I fully understand that it is impossible for the capitalist to rectify the said abuses, for to do so would be a direct blow at his own system, and if this remedying of evils were to be carried to its natural conclusion then eventually the capitalist system would abolish itself, and so no capitalist desires that State of affairs; then any change must be brought about by the working class in conjunction with the peasants or poor farmers.

I quite agree that there must be different classes of work performed, and of course, different rates of remuneration, based on the Marxist thesis: "From each according to his ability, to everyone according to his needs." But I cannot agree with his snobocratic attitude of a manual labourer not being allowed to mix socially with an intellectual, and furthermore, no real intellectual would tolerate it either.

The Marxist theory does not object to the employment of man servant or maid servant, but it does emphatically raise its voice against the exploitation of these people by their being employed for profit or private gain.

He says: "He did vindicate their rights (servants), and the rights of their employers." Now, pal, tell us who "he" is, please do.

The only rights of the workers which will satisfy me are the rights of the working class to the fruits of its toil.

All political economists recognise that there is a big chasm between the wealth which a labourer creates and that part which is returned to him as wages, the other part being recognised as surplus value or profit.

How is this surplus value created? To explain this we must have you understand that to create wealth the capitalist must, along with other commodities (raw materials, machinery, etc.), purchase labour power, which is a man's capacity for labour, or his capacity for productive activity, or as Marx says, "Labour power in use is labour itself."

Just as we buy electricity from the Town Council,, but when we make use of the electricity to light a lamp or heat an iron, then we are using electric power.

When the capitalist purchases labour power he almost invariably does so at a price below its value, and it is this difference between the value of labour power which the worker receives in the form of wages, and the value created by labour power in the process of labour which gives the surplus value.

Your correspondent, one K. J. Hanson, says that a socialist form of government is wrong because it violates the right of private ownership of property (the right to extort profits out of the sweat and blood of the worker). Any system which opposes capitalism must violate the sanctity of capitalist exploitation, and were I to advocate leaving this scourge on humanity intact, then I would not be advocating socialism.

For any right to be "essential," as your correspondent says, it must be inherent, which means it has been in existence for all time. The menials of capitalism have done their utmost to prove that the division of society into classes is inevitable, but it has in reality been proved that the human race lived for many thousands of years without any class division, class rule, or exploitation. For an enlargement of this see "Origin of the Family," by Frederick Engels."

Your correspondent says that "capitalism is an economic system in which industry, production, etc."

In his utter disregard for the choice of correct wording he has become confused between capital and industry, for anyone knows that industry and production are corelated, and that without industry (which under a capitalist system means the exploitation of the workers' labour power) there can be no production. If you must mouth high sounding phrases please get them correct.

He also says capitalism is not a political form of government, but further down he says it may be called an economic form of government, because it results in a certain form of society (exploiter and exploited). Any neophyte can readily see that any form of Government which can exist must be a political one. If there is or could be such a thing as an economic form of government, then it would be very interesting to know how it could function without its political satellites and stooges.

We quite agree with you that the big finance capitalists, who dominate the capitalist system through their directorates on various companies, do control the political representatives, who in turn prepared and hold the State in subservience to the wishes of the "big men," but the form of government is and must always be political.

Your correspondent says that the capitalist State can and does function under both monarchy and republic. Yes, but only until such time as its internal contradictions bring it to the verge of bankruptcy.

The principal contradictions of the capitalist system are three in number, and may be set down as:—

(1) The antagonism between capital and capitalist in the effort to expand their markets and thereby further exploit the labourer.

This leads to the swallowing of the weaker by the stronger, and ultimately leads to the monopolist stage of capitalism. The contradiction is that whilst capitalist fights the worker he also fights his fellow capitalist in the grab for more profits.

(2) Poverty in the midst of plenty. With the stepping up of production and improvements in machinery and technique the labourer can produce in a limited time a vast amount of surplus value. The labourer, in his own particular country, can absorb part of this gigantic production, with the result that vast quantities of goods are left in the warehouses. In a frantic endeavour to cover himself the capitalist indulges in an orgy of dismissals and reductions in wages thereby lowering the standard of the worker, who can now purchase still less goods, with the result that the capitalist endeavours to expand to the colonial possessions. Here we have Imperial capitalism, which ultimately leads to the swallowing of the weaker by the stronger, giving birth to monopolies.

(3) The antagonism between capitalist and worker. When the monopolistic system shows signs of disintegrating the struggle between wage-slave and capitalist becomes more acute, and in final desperation the capitalist system goes over to plain naked Fascism (as witness Germany and Italy, and the Balkan States), in an endeavour to further subjugate the masses and prevent the ever recurring economic crises, which are the fruits of a decadent system, and which ultimately lead the world into bloodshed, involving thousands of lives and the destruction of property, such as we have scourging the world to-day.

No, friend Hanson, I have never asked for or wished for your good opinion, and if, as it appears, I must adopt Fascism for my politics to acquire your graces, then I am firmly convinced that I can get along quite comfortably without you.—Yours, etc.,

LEO FUNK.

Before you strike a light remember the needs of the armed forces. The demand for matches is enormous, but the output is adequate for all, provided matches are used sparingly. Some of the chemicals used to make matches have to be shared with the munitions industry. So adopt the slogan: Fewer matches, more munitions.

RUSSIANS' SUCCESS

AUSTRALIANS WAKE UP

Labour Policy Condemned

Ex-A.I.F. writes:—

The success of the Russians, and their stout resistance of the Germans, is much admired by all their Allies. This success, however, could never have been accomplished had not Stalin taken strong and decisive action some time ago to get rid, for ever, of all obstructionists who were likely to impede a successful campaign.

That nation is now united, with the one objective, that of defeating the enemy. Can we say the same of Australia, with its Wards, Blackburns, Dedmans, Calwells, Rosevears, Brennans, Fallons, and many others, who are more intent on implementing Labour policy, no matter how extreme it is, than in an all-out effort to drive the enemy from our gate? These people are either very ignorant, or plain stupid.

Even now the Prime Minister warns that Japanese troops are massing in Timor. They are not there for a picnic. The only inference that can be drawn is that an attack on Australia is contemplated. Our best defence is to attack them before they can finalise their plans, and to do this we must have one united army. Authority must be given without delay to transfer all Australian troops to the A.I.F., so that they can be sent anywhere to meet and destroy the enemy before he can effect a landing on our shores.

With the recent acrimonious debate at Canberra, the Japanese will be very pleased, and will gleefully approve of Messrs. Blackburn, Calwell, Ward and company. The electors should remember all these men, and give them their just deserts when they again seek to re-enter Parliament. Australians should be more alive to what is going on right under their noses, and when opportunity offers, banish this coterie from the public life of Australia. It is the only remedy we have.

BLACK MARKETING

"Offenders Fifth Columnists"

"In future all rationing offences against the National Security Regulations and the Black Marketing Act will be rigorously dealt with," said the Minister for Trade and Customs (Senator Keane).

"Warnings will not be issued to persons offending against one of the war's most essential home front restrictions," he said. "Such offenders are fifth columnists of the worst type."

"The Rationing Commission considers that there is now no excuse for persons failing to observe the regulations. Both traders and the public have had more than six months' experience of rationing, and should be fully aware of their obligations. The plea of ignorance could no longer be accepted. Special investigation staffs have been engaged in all States, and the Commission intends to deal with all offenders without distinction."

"The first six months of rationing has proved the scheme to be highly successful, and a most efficient solution to the supply problems it was designed to overcome," he added. "In fairness to traders, it must be said that they quickly acquainted themselves with the new methods of rationing, and, in the main, had readily and willingly co-operated with the Commission. Most traders realised that black marketing was as injurious to business as it was to the community at large."

The heavy penalties for rationing offences were outlined later by an official of the Commission.

"If the rationing offender is prosecuted upon indictment under the Black Marketing Act, the penalty is imprisonment for not less than a year in the case of an individual, and a fine of not less than £10,000 in the case of a company. Lighter penalties are imposed for offences prosecuted under the National Security Act."

PRIMARY INDUSTRIES

Stability Essential

Though last week's session of the Federal Parliament was confined to a review of the war situation, the Leader of the Federal Opposition and Country Party (Mr. A. W. Fadden) took an important step in the interests of primary producers throughout Australia.

In the House of Representatives Mr. Fadden gave notice of his intention to move the following motion:—

"That this House is of the opinion that—

(a) The stability and productiveness of the primary industries are essential to the nation's war effort.

(b) Those who engage in these industries are entitled to just treatment as citizens, including a fair wage based on Australian standards, and comparable with that prevailing in secondary industry, to employees, and a fair price to employers.

(c) It is unjust to establish any scheme for the fixation of wages in primary industries which does not provide for impartial and full investigation of the facts, and a due consideration of the economics of the industries concerned.

(d) The time is overdue for the complete consideration by the Government of the position of the primary industries from the point of view of man power requirements, prices, and costs: having in mind that ultimate soundness can be achieved only by fair prices, adequate wages, proper living conditions, and improvement generally in the amenities of country life.

SUGAR RATIONING does not mean—

SUGAR rationing does not mean that we should not use sugar in our morning tea. It is merely a simple way of helping us do our duty.

We have to be thrifty Thrifty with sugar, with tea, with clothing, with MONEY.

We have two wars to win: the war against inflation and the war against the aggressors.

To keep the cost of living from spiralling upwards, we must spend as little as possible. We must live frugally; pay off our debts; pay our Life Assurance premiums; and put all we can into the War Loans. In our own interest we must make things do, or do without.

Paying our Life Assurance premiums (even increasing them) helps the war effort, for a large part of the money goes into the War Loans. The A.M.P. Society (which belongs to its members and is purely co-operative) is putting £500,000 a month into the Loans. This money does the double duty of protecting its members' families while it protects the Nation.

JAPAN

A POOR COUNTRY

Millions Live in Poverty

The Japanese, like their German friends, have always given as an excuse for their aggressive policy the explanation that their native territory is over populated and they need room for normal expansion.

It is an old theory, and one that finds a passive acceptance among some Australians. They have heard the story repeated so often that they believe it without probing its foundations.

It is true that Japan is very poor. But the reason is easy to find. For fifty years her rulers have developed all the resources of the country in preparation for war, and in making war against her neighbours.

All this time they have supported a huge navy and army, and a coterie of wealthy gangsters, quite out of proportion to the productive capacity of the country. It is thus not strange that the millions of her ordinary people are living in poverty.

But by normal standards Japan is by no means over populated. She has 190 people to the square kilometer, while England has 188—not a very large difference. Holland has 233 and Belgium 270, which indicates a fairly substantial difference in favour of Japan. Also, there are large parts of Japan, notably in the island province of Hokkaido, that are quite unsettled; so much so that the Governor of that area has frequently complained to Tokio of the difficulty in getting Japanese to emigrate from the cities and settle on these rich lands.

For ten years the great country of Manchuria has been controlled by the Japanese, but never has there been more than half a million Japanese living there. They have no desire to leave their homes.

It is quite clear that the only reason for Japan's widespread and continued aggression is her desire to conquer vast territories and exploit them commercially for the benefit of a few thousand members of the governing class and the aristocracy of rich merchants.

It has been estimated by a Japanese professor that the population of Japan would be stabilised at 80 millions by 1955. Her great commercial expansion during this century is adequate proof that she has been able to share equally in the benefits of modern industry and development, and that the poverty of her population has been caused by a misuse of her native talents and resources. Like Nazi Germany, she chose guns before butter.

Japan has no problem that cannot be solved by peaceful collaboration with the other nations of the world, nor any internal suffering that could not be relieved by the abandonment of her policy of warlike aggression. If she wishes to commit social and economic hara-kiri before the altar of one-eyed ambition, she merits no sympathy from her neighbours.

SUMMER FRUIT DRINKS

Wholesame Beverage

Nothing is more refreshing or pleasing in warm weather than a well-prepared fruit drink, while from a health point of view the habit of drinking fruit juices needs no stressing. Their wholesomeness may be particularly emphasised as beverages for children, who, left to their own devices, are quick to acquire the taste for them.

Many so-called orange and lemon drinks contain no fresh fruit at all, but are made from chemicals and artificial colouring matter. Not only do they not have the food value that the real fruit possesses, but they may be definitely injurious to the child's health.

The only drinks of this kind that the child should be permitted to have should be made from the fresh fruit juice. Mothers who make real fruit juice drinks for their children will not be teased for artificial soda and other harmful drinks. Fruit juices not only satisfy thirst; the natural fruit acids they contain supply beneficial elements to the child's diet.

PINEAPPLE DRINK.

Wash the skin of pineapple. Place in a lined saucepan with the core and enough cold water to cover. Cook slowly three-quarters of an hour. Add three tablespoons or more sugar and the juice of one orange or lemon. Strain and allow to cool. Chill and serve.

FRUIT PUNCH.

Take half a cup of lemon juice, one cup orange juice, grated rind half orange, one tablespoon grated lemon rind, one quart water, three or four cups of sugar. Cook water and sugar for three minutes, cool and mix with orange and lemon juice, rind, etc. To this add the following ingredients:—(1) One quart ginger ale, quarter cup preserved ginger cut up finely; (2) one cup grated pineapple, one pint of soda water.

FRUIT CUP.

Take two lemons, one quart boiling water, two oranges, four passion fruit, one ripe pear (if available), four tablespoons sugar, few drops cochineal. Wash lemons, peel thinly into a large jug or bowl; squeeze juice and place it in jug with rind and sugar; pour boiling water over this and cover till cold. Strain into glass jug, colour very pale pink, add slices of oranges, passion fruit pulp, and cut pear or other fruit. Place in icechest and serve very cold.

IN THE KITCHEN

Maintenance Jobs

In addition to running the home, most housewives are now the "odd job men."

Odd job men, whether within the family or outside it, have taken their assorted knowledge where it will do the most good to the war effort. They are vanished members of a fast vanishing race. The housewife must now depend upon herself for most of those tasks.

To avoid many annoying breakdowns in domestic equipment, appliances should be treated with the loving care a good mechanic bestows on a machine entrusted to him.

Humble, but efficient, servant of almost every home is the electric iron. It is precious, too. When the current number wears out it may be difficult to replace.

Manufacturers urge you to use your iron sparingly. Don't let it simmer and stew while the clothes are being damped, and you are finishing up the sorting. Remember, as well as wearing out your iron you are wasting power that is needed for other purposes.

When the ironing is finished, clean the surface of the iron by "ironing" a sheet of salt sprinkled paper. Never leave burned starch on the surface. You'll find it on next week's washing if you do.

Don't treat the cord roughly by yanking it out of the socket. Ease it out gently by the plug. It's a sensitive thing and bruises easily!

Instead of crushing it unceremoniously into a drawer, fix a couple of cotton reels in a handy place and make a "hanger" for your cord. You'll be able to coil a couple of cords on this gadget, and you will certainly lengthen the life of the flex.

"UNDERGROUND" PRESS

Cheering News

Special editions of Poland's "underground" newspapers were rushed off the presses and swiftly distributed all over Poland as soon as the news of the British victory in Egypt and the Allied landings in North Africa were picked up.

Over night chalked inscriptions announcing the defeat of the "invincible" German Army appeared on walls and buildings, and the good news spread like a flame.

The Secret Movement in Poland sent the following message to General Sikorski in London: "Allies' victory in North Africa evoked spontaneous joy here, and has increased the enthusiasm to continue resistance and our faith that Germany's defeat is near.

"We beg you in the name of the Polish nation to send our heartiest wishes for continued success of operations to President Roosevelt, Mr. W. Churchill, and the British and American armies."

VITAL FOOD FRONT

LACK OF PLANNING

Minister's Scathing Criticism

"That the Australian management of the food front was approaching the Gilbertian was a statement I made in the Queensland Parliament when speaking on a motion before the House to urge that a better deal generally be given to the primary producer," said the Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams).

"That was said in November last, and since taking over the control of the Department my opinion has been reinforced by further evidence that my criticism of the treatment of the so called backbone of the country was fully justified," declared Mr. Williams.

POSITION CHAOTIC.

There has been an almost entire lack of systematic co-ordination and orderly planning in connection with production on the vital food front, with the result that the position can only be described as chaotic. Prompt and effective action is necessary to ensure that the primary producers receive an adequate return for what they grow, or the nation will inevitably be faced with a grave food shortage.

FARMERS DISCOURAGED.

"I contend that the farmers are not receiving proper recognition for the most important part they are playing in feeding the armed forces and the civilian population. They are becoming discouraged not only because of the lack of sufficient labour, but more particularly on account of the fact that they are unable to obtain actual costs of prodution for what they grow."

FOOD PROBLEM.

"In both Britain and the United States maximum production is encouraged by guaranteeing the farmers prices which cover cost of production, and I am absolutely convinced that unless and until our agricultural policy is based on this equitable and sound fundamental principle no real progress is likely to be made in solving the food problem.

"Clearly the objective is to not only provide ample food for current consumption, but we must try to build up reserves so that our quota obligations to the Mother Country may be met, and which will also carry us through into the difficult days of post-war reconstruction, when Australia will be called upon to contribute substantially to the feeding and general rehabilitation of the starving millions in countries which have been overrun by the robber Axis Powers," declared Mr. Williams.

GUARANTEED PRICE ESSENTIAL.

Posing the question whether this increase in prices to the primary producer might not be the start of a vicious circle of rising costs of living, Mr. Williams stressed that the additional food cannot be produced unless the farmer is guaranteed a price big enough to induce him to increase production.

The production of our primary products must be regarded as the base of a scale. It is the application of labour to primary production which determines the subsequent cost of commodities. We must start by ensuring that the base of the scale is firmly founded. The current concept takes into account the secondary and distributive industries only, and in our past neglect we have failed to see how poorly based has been our estimation of living costs.

CRUX OF THE PROBLEM

The principle of cost plus 10 per cent has been applied to certain essential secondary industries, and this is accepted as equitable, but the primary producer is usually required to sell his produce at world parity rates without regard to costs of production and the welfare of himself and the community.

So far no economist or financial expert has been able satisfactorily to explain just why the producers of food and much of the raw material necessary for feeding and clothing the population should be treated in a different manner to the manufacturing and distributive industries and the wage earners.

"It is all too obvious that cheap food and raw materials have been the definite purpose behind the existing international economy, but I can see no justification for the exploitation of that hard-working section of the community with the object of keeping down the cost of living."

"That indeed is the crux of the problem," said Mr. Williams, "and the more the position is studied the clearer it becomes that making human welfare the objective in any measure dealing with food instead of being incompatible with national prosperity, would be one of the easiest methods of bringing about that ardently desired state—economic security and national prosperity."

WIRRAWAYS

Forethought in Magnesium

The gallantry of Australian Wirraway pilots, which has drawn amazed tributes from American pilots (who know just what these planes are up against) was emphasised recently when the greatest Wirraway story of the war came through from New Guinea.

This told of Pilot Officer J. C. Archer's shooting down of a Zero—an achievement for any plane, let alone one of what the Americans describe as "those old crates."

Modern aero engines and planes, such as are now being built in Australia, cannot be built without magnesium, a metal one-third lighter than aluminium.

Germany was the leading producer of magnesium, but she needed all she could lay her hands on for the building up of her own Luftwaffe.

Fortunately for Australia's aeroplane industry, the Broken Hill Pty. foresaw magnesium bottlenecks.

Officers from the company were sent to England to investigate production methods, and on receipt of their report, the construction of a plant was undertaken immediately at the Newcastle Steelworks.

This was put up in double quick time, and the first magnesium ingot was cast in a year less six days from the date of the investigation officers' departure for England in July, 1940.

Aero engine parts, either of pure magnesium or an alloy, absorb 60 per cent of Australia's magnesium production. The metal is also used in the production of war necessities, such as projectiles, tracers, fire bombs, rescue floats, and parachute flares.

After the war magnesium will be used unceasingly to provide light parts for civilian necessities such as typewriters and vacuum cleaners.

AMERICAN "BURMA" ROAD

Many Obstacles Overcome

Described as an Army triumph, the 1671 mile Alaskan Highway, linking Dawson Creek in British Columbia to Fairbanks in Alaska, has been opened four months ahead of schedule.

This important highway, so important that it has been named the American "Burma Road," was planned ten years ago by a Scottish engineer, Donald MacDonald. There were many obstacles in the way, including mountains and muskeg, mushy ground that goes down to freezing level. But Army engineers defeated the muskeg by "floating" their highway on a bed of gravel and logs, a technique adapted from the old-time corturoy roads built by American pioneers. The U.S. Army surveyed it and built it, and now will maintain it and convoy supplies over it.

At the beginning of this century Edward Harriman, president of Union Pacific Railroad in the States, proposed to extend the company's railroad system through Canada and across Bering Strait to link with the Russian system, despite the break of gauge involved. He proposed that the Strait (which is only 50 feet deep) should be traversed by bridge, tunnel, or ferry. Edward Harriman was the father of Averill Harriman, now President Roosevelt's personal envoy.

The Alcan Highway is a winding track through a land of silent hills, nameless lakes and bewildering distances, but it is a strategic road of the first importance, linking the Alaskan bastion and the base of men and materials in Canada and the United States. Alaska may prove to be a dagger aimed at the heart of Japan.

Enjoy WRIGLEY'S P.K. CHEWING GUM

Dentists recommend it!

Delicious Wrigley's Chewing Gum removes the particles of food which lodge between your teeth and cause decay. It penetrates the tiniest interstices into which even the bristliest toothbrush can never reach and massages the gums stimulating the flow of lymph necessary to keep them firm and strong. That is why Wrigley's helps keep your teeth bright, strong and healthy. Wrigley's also aids your digestion. Three delicious flavours — P.K. OUR RADIO SERVES THE U.S.

When San Francisco called "go ahead" into the ear phones, William Chickering, U.S. war correspondent, swung Captain Nolan, of San Diego, into the "March of Time". This typical U.S. air fighter, one of the few to get aloft during the attack on Pearl Harbour, took American listeners close to war in the air. They learnt the hazards of beating storms above the Owen Stanleys en route to dive on Japs. From this Aircobra pilot, with 90 combat hours to his credit, they heard "Inuependent Action is out. We fight now as a unit, whether protecting our bombers or attacking enemy installations."

CURRENT TOPICS

AMBULANCE DANCE.

The Ambulance dance held at the Trocadero last Friday night was well attended. Excellent dance music was played by Miss G. Ward's orchestra, and the duties of M.C. were carried out by Mr. W. Ross. The next Ambulance dance will be held at the Trocadero on Friday night, February 5.

UNAUTHORISED SHOULDER TITLES.

The Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) stated that the wearing of shoulder titles "Darwin" and "New Guinea," or other unauthorised shoulder titles, was strictly forbidden. He said that some troops returned from Darwin and New Guinea had been wearing such unauthorised shoulder titles.

GLADSTONE HOSPITALS BOARD.

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams, has been advised by the Minister for Health and Home Affairs (Mr. E. M. Hanlon) that Mr. F. Donovan, acting Stipendiary Magistrate, Gladstone, has been appointed chairman of the Gladstone Hospitals Board in place of Mr. L. H. Mansell, transferred.

BEECHER-BRIFFNEY CREEK ROAD.

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams, has been advised by the Queensland Main Roads Commission that following representations concerning the state of the Gladstone-Calliope Road from near Beecher Railway Station to the Briffney Creek bridge, the District Engineer had completed plans for the above section. The construction would be commenced at an early date.

ROLL OF HONOUR.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Shandley, of Auckland Street, Gladstone, has received word that their son, Driver John Shandley, had died from injuries accidentally received in New Guinea. Prior to his death Driver Shandley was with the forces in the Middle East for nearly two years. Driver Shandley, who enlisted in Gladstone, was 27 years of age. The deepest sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Shandley in the loss of a brave son.

Girls.—Brushe J. A., 1b, 9c, 10a, 11a, 26a, 27a (EC3); Rigby A. M., 1c, 10c, 11b, 17c, 28a, 29b (EC4); Tudman B. M., 1c, 10a, 11c, 26c, 27c.

In addition to the pupils of the Gladstone State and High School who were successful, several Gladstone pupils attending other schools were also successful. These included Patricia Margaret Connellan (Glennie Memorial School, Toowoomba), Valeria M. Moran (All Hallows Convent, Stanthorpe), and Maxwell Friend (Church of England, Grammar, Brisbane).

Marion Lynn, of Ingham, a pupil of the Glennie Memorial School, Toowoomba, who is holidaying in Gladstone, had a brilliant pass in twelve subjects, securing seven a's.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

STREET AOPTION SCHEME

Excellent Work Performed

The ladies in charge of the Prisoners of War Street Adoption Scheme are doing great work, and some real progress is being made in a drive to cover the whole of the town.

In addition to the streets mentioned in our last report, Mrs. Watson has made a 100 per cent canvass of Auckland Hill, and is now completing it as far as Marine Parade. This lady has also volunteered to do Bramston Street, which is next on the list.

Mrs. Elliot, who pioneered the P.O.W. canvass, is to be relieved of some of the routine weekly collection to enable her to do new streets.

Her next canvass will be Auckland Street, which has been completed to date between Yaroon and Roseberry Streets.

Mrs. Elliot will continue on to the Valley.

Fowler Estate is being canvassed by Mrs. R. Ricketts, and Barney Point by Mrs. Johnston.

In the absence of Mrs. Clyde Smith her collections have been taken over by Mrs. Hartley. Mrs. Masterson is to assist with collections on her return to town.

Over 100 houses now bear the Red Cross tag, which denotes that "this house helps to support an Australian prisoner of war."

The canvassers report wholehearted co-operation by the majority of householders, many contributing up to 2/6 per week. Even the kiddies have joined in to help our boys obtain their weekly parcel. Demands for tags have come in from streets and lanes not yet canvassed.

The co-organisers (Messrs. V. Summers and D. Connellan) are assisting the canvassers to further the campaign. They called on the ladies on Monday with fresh supplies of tags, literature, receipts, etc. The big street signs with the wards "This Street Supports an Australian Prisoner of War," are now ready for Side, View, Ormonde, Yaroon and Roseberry Streets, and Auckland Hill.

More women are wanted urgently to assist in canvassing the rest of the town, and contact should be made with Mr. Summers, 'phone 163, or the branch President (Mrs. Phillips), 'phone 165, by those able to co-operate.

CALLIOPE

Ambulance Dance

Another large crowd attended the Ambulance dance, held at Calliope last Saturday night. Town and country were well represented, and a most enjoyable evening was spent in dancing and cards. Excellent music was supplied by Miss M. Archay's orchestra, and dancing was kept going in full swing by hon. bearers A. Barker and Frank Farmer, extras being played by Miss Beryl Rideout, Miss McFarlane, and Miss Jenkins.

The spot waltz was won by Miss B. Rideout and partner (Mr. H. Armour), and the Monte Carlo by Mrs Butcher and Mr. Stan Brown.

Mr. Jim Ironmonger had charge of the door, while Mr. Geo. Curran was the raffle ticket seller.

The euchre was again in the hands of Mr. Sam Dickinson, and the lady's prize was won by Mrs. W. Bentley, and the gent's by Mr. T. McMahon.

Groceries (raffled) was won by Mr H. Watson, Glenlyon Street, Gladstone, with ticket No. 3519

The 1d raffle was won by Mr. Sam Jefferis, Beecher.

The next dance will be held at Calliope on Saturday night, February 20.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Aircraftsmtn Allan Hay, of Gladstone, has returned from the south on leave. After spending two days in Gladstone he left for Rockhampton to spend the rest of his leave with his parents, Corporal D. M. Hay and Mrs. Hay. He left by yesterday's mail train to join his unit in the south.

VICTORY CELEBRATED.

"I think it is an excellent idea," he said, "this trophy for players who have never won a prize before, and to celebrate my victory in a fitting way, I want to stand drinks to everybody here who has never had a drink before!"

GLADSTONE TOWN COUNCIL

ALD. GOLDING DEALS WITH BOYNE RIVER SCHEME

ACTION TAKEN TO SECURE AN ADEQUATE SUPPLY

The fortnightly meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen J. Deveney, M. A. Busteed, W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. E. Smith, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

LIGHTING RESTRICTIONS.

Civil Defence Organisation, Brisbane, acknowledged receipt of a letter, asking for a relaxation of the present street lighting restrictions in Gladstone, and advised that following upon the advice from the Commonwealth Government the minister would confer with military authorities with a view to determining the extent to which relaxation of the restrictions might be extended to areas outside Brisbane. The representations made would be considered in connection with this review.—Received.

EMPLOYMENT EXCHANGE BOARD.

Monto Shire Council advised that their Chairman (Cr. C. A. Webb) had been nominated as the representative of the Shire on the Employment Exchange District Board.—Received.

LORD STREET.

A petition, signed by Messrs. A. E. Brown, W. Walters and F. Leach, drew attention to the unsatisfactory condition of that portion of Lord Street bounded by Auckland Street and Oaka Lane. They asked if some suitable means of drainage for the street could be devised for this section, and so dispose of surface waters from Auckland Hill. During recent heavy rains their properties had been flooded, with resultant damage to gardens and the properties in general. A move by the Council to bring about the desired results would be much appreciated.—Referred to the Works Committee for report as to the cost.

PIER STREET.

A petition, signed by H. J. Irwin, L. Taylor and A. Neuman, drew attention to the bad state of the roads in Pier Street and Oaka Lane, West of Auckland Street, and hoped they would be attended to.—Left in the hands of the Works Committee.

GENERAL.

It was decided that the £2/2/- paid by the Austerity Loan Committee for the use of the Town Hall be handed back to the committee as a donation.

It was decided that Mr. W. Sommerville be asked to again take over the position of caretaker of Auckland Hill Park.

The Mayor reported that the work recently carried out on Renton's drain was most unsatisfactory, and he moved a motion that the Health Inspector report immediately on the drain, which was carried unanimously.

In answer to Ald. Tudman, the Clerk stated that the number of dogs registered to date was 300, and it was stated the herdsman was doing good work in this direction.

Water Authority

PRIORITY WANTED.

Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) acknowledged letter advising him of the proceedings at a deputation fully representative of Gladstone which waited upon the Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams), urging the granting of priority for construction of the Boyne water supply scheme. Mr. Forde advised he had taken the matter up with the appropriate Commonwealth authorities and the Premier and Treasurer of the State, and would write further on the matter as soon as possible.—Received.

ACTION TAKEN.

The Co-ordinator-General of Public Works (Mr. J. R. Kemp) advised that the necessary action was being taken with a view to securing an adequate priority to ensure that materials and labour would be available for the work on the Boyne River water supply scheme. The Council would be further informed when the matter had been finalised.—Received.

10in. and 12in. CASTINGS

Mr. W. J. Reinhold, consulting engineer, Brisbane, wrote:—"I have paid a visit to the works of Messrs. Sargeant & Co. Ltd. with a view to obtaining first hand information on the progress of the special castings for the Boyne River water supply scheme. A large proportion of the 10in. and 12in. casting in valves, etc., have been cast and are in process of being machined and drilled, and I anticipate that this firm will be forwarding a very representative consignment in the near future. The very large demands being made upon this firm for moulding and casting for defence orders is making the position increasingly difficult, but they are making every effort to fill all their orders. I will contact them again next week, and hope to be able to advise you of the date of consignment. Would you please advise me whether you are able to obtain the hire of a suitable tractor locally for use in excavation of the trenches: also let me have a list of what plant you have available for the work."—Received.

FIRE FIGHTING PURPOSES.

Department of Local Government Affairs, Brisbane, wrote regarding the saltwater supply scheme for emergency fire fighting purposes which it was proposed to instal at Gladstone, and the department was willing to place the order for the pump and material, and action was being taken accordingly.—Received.

ALD. W. R. GOLDING.

Ald. Golding said the correspondence received that night dealt with the whole of the Boyne Fiver water supply scheme, the work to be carried in its entirity. He had again gone into the whole question, and with a view to once more stressing the urgency of the scheme on behalf of the ratepayers and that large quantities of water were being used in the national interests on short notice, he telephoned Mr. Reinhold last Saturday, and emphasised that no suitable plant could be obtained locally, and how necessary it was for him to get a trenching machine to enable the first portion of the scheme to be started without delay, as the pipes had arrived.

He (Ald. Golding) was informed by Mr. Reinhold that he would endeavour to get a trenching machine from the Brisbane City Council, and Ald. Golding pointed out to him how essential it was to get it forwarded to Gladstone at the earliest possible date.

'It was time the scheme was started, he said, but they had to put up with the usual Government delays in such matters, and they were still waiting for an A1 priority for the construction of this important scheme.

Ratepayers would note that Mr. Forde had taken the matter up with the proper Commonewalth authorities, also with the Premier and Treasurer of the State, and the Co-ordinator-General of Public Works (Mr. Kemp) had taken action with a view to securing an adequate priority to ensure that materials would be available for the work, and that the Council would be further advised when the matter had been finalised.

This was most encouraging, continued Ald. Golding, and it indicated another step forward in the agitation for the completion of this important scheme. It had been reported that important meetings of the Council had lapsed for the want of a quorum, but that was not so, as the Council had an excellent record in regard to its meetings. Recently a meeting had been called for a Friday, when it was known that several aldermen would be unable to attend, and the particular meeting should never have been called. That was the first meeting spread over a large number of years that had lapsed.

The difficulty at present was to secure manpower, and in answer to a question asked by Ald. Golding Ald. Smith stated that no waterside labour would be available, as they had restrictions placed on them.

He (Ald. Golding) was determined to force the matter in getting the scheme started, and with that object in view moved that action be taken immediately to get Engineer Fenwick to visit Gladstone to discuss and expedite the scheme.

The motion was seconded by the Mayor and carried unanimously.

MOST ENCOURAGING.

Ald. Anderson said the letter from Mr. Kemp was most encouraging, and it would appear that he had got in touch with the C.C.C. for plant and manpower, as no labour was available in Gladstone. He agred it was a good move to get Engineer Fenwick to Gladstone to discuss the whole scheme, inclubing the question of machinery and manpower.

NO LACK OF AGITATION.

Ald. Deveney said there was nothing lacking in agitation in Gladstone to get the scheme started, but it was in Brisbane where the delays occurred.

DAIRY ASSOCIATION

The rate of pay was 1/3 per lb. choice, 1/2½ first, and 1/1½ second, 7d pastry qualities, the total pay being £96,289/12/11.

A.L.P.

At a special meeting of the Gladstone A.L.P., with the President (Ald. H. Anderson) in the chair, it was decided to write Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., as follows:—

"The Gladstone Town Council is being asked by the A.L.P. to call a public meeting to coincide with visits by Mr. Williams and the Deputy Co-ordinator-General (Mr. Kemp). The object of the meeting will be to discuss, review, and listen to reports of progress regarding the Boyne scheme, and what hope we have of getting the water supply. If the visits cannot be arranged at an early date the public meeting is to be held and the position discussed from a local standpoint."

Mr. F. M. Forde is to be asked to send a Federal officer to Gladstone to report on the quantity and quality of the water available here. The urgency of the position is to be pointed out to Mr. Forde and the possibility of large quantities of water being required at short notice.

Mr. W. O'Reilly was appointed returning officer for the labour candidates to contest the next elections for the Council, Harbour Board, etc.

£500 Sales Tax

Until the assessment of £500 sales tax on goods manufactured by the Red Cross Cafe in Brisbane in the last two years is referred to Mr. Curtin in the Commonwealth Parliament for review, the cafe will not pay the tax. A resolution to this effect was passed unanimously at a meeting of voluntary Red Cross Cafe workers.

The workers further decided to press for an amendment of the Sales Tax Act to provide for exemption from tax goods manufactured by benevolent institutions set up since the war began, proceeds of which are used to provide aid and comforts for men on active service, and sick and wounded prisoners of war.

MOTOR GENERATOR SET.

Mr. A. E. Axon, consulting engineer, Brisbane, wrote relative to the motor generator set at the Harbour Board. When the motor generator set was installed it was done to save the heavy expense of converting the crane from D.C. to A.C., and it was considered that the losses in the M.G. set would be small, as the crane was not being used much. In order that the position might be analysed, he would be glad to be advised of the approximate units used by the crane and an indication of the present hours of operation. In order to save losses it was necessary that the motor generator should be switched off when the crane was not operating.

The matter was referred to the Lighting Committee to bring in a report as to the cost of operating the crane and the motor generator set.

GENERAL.

Ald. Anderson stated he had received complaints about the lack of current during the day, which should not be, and the matter should be investigated and rectified. It was decided the matter be brought under the notice of the engineer.

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB

ANNUAL REPORT

Work for Year Reviewed

The following annual report on the 1942 season has been adopted by the Committee of the Gladstone Golf Club, and will be submitted to the annual meeting of members:—

ANNUAL REPORT.

In presenting the 16th annual report for the 1942 season, the main features are the splendid war record of your club and the excellent work performed by a very small committee, resulting in an improvement of over £50 in the finances of the club, despite extremely difficult conditions.

We started the year with a deficit of £2/8/11, and finished with a surplus of £47/16/11.

This was particularly gratifying to the honorary secretary (Mr. O'Sing) who achieved something approaching a miracle on reduced membership, restricted trading operations, and reduced receipts generally.

"AMAZING WAR RECORD."

When the season commenced great difficulty was experienced in securing office-bearers, but eventually Mr. V. A. J. Byrne took the office of president, and other positions were gradually filled. However, our President soon followed the example of the past president (Colonel John McGree), and joined the fighting forces. He is now a lieutenant in the R.A.A.F., stationed at Rockhampton.

The professional (Mr. Albert Klemm) is still on active service in New Guinea, and keeps in touch with the club by letters to Mr. Moore and other members.

Three club members, all of the Moore family—Lieut. Clive (prisoner of war, Malaya), Ken (A.I.F.), and Phyllis (A.W.A.S., Toowoomba), are in the forces.

Harold Jensen, Norm Goddard, and young Billy Shaw are now old campaigners in the Middle East, having carried the club's colours through Tobruk and El Alemain.

Your past captain (Jim Craig), Des. Shaw, Ken Small, Eddie Cantor, Jack Starmer and Norm Cole are all doing their bit.

Two esteemed members, Dick Groeben and Billy Milne, lost their lives on active service with the R.A.A.F., and the sympathy of all will go to their relatives.

Your present secretary (Mr. H. O'Sing), who was undoubtedly instrumental in keeping the club going during 1942, is also an old digger, being a member of the first A.I.F.

The percentage of officials and members on active service is possibly a record for any golf club.

When Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., attended the function on closing day to present the trophies he remarked that it was an amazing war record for a small club, and one that many large city clubs would envy. Mr. Williams was attending his first function as minister-elect, and received the congratulations of members on his elevation to cabinet.

NICE GESTURE.

As a patriotic gesture, your committee gave war savings certificates and stamps for all trophies won during the year. Further, all trophies and balls won by members of the committee were redonated to the club—a very nice gesture, which was appreciated.

MEMBERSHIP.

Membership was 51, against 94 the previous year. All membership fees were reduced by half. The season opened on April 4 as against February 22, the principal reason for this being the difficulty in getting the links in order. We closed on November 28 as against December 7 in 1941. Despite the reduced fields the competitions attracted keen interest, the principal results being:—Monthly medal, Mr. H. C. Moore (re-donated); sticker, Mr. H. O'Sing (re-donated); eclectic trophies (presented by Mr. M. Hanson), W. H. McCray 1, H. O'Sing 2, H. C. Moore 3; associates' monthly medal and Jones Cup, Mrs. Burnham; sticker, Mrs. Easterby; eclectic, Mrs. Easterby 1, Mrs. O'Sing 2, Mesdames Starmer and Craig 3. No championships were played.

An amount of £11/8/- was expended on war savings certificates and stamps instead of balls and trophies. Donations of £1/1/- each were made to the Red Cross, A.C.F., and Patriotic Funds.

OFFICERS.

The 15th annual meeting was held on January 31, 1942, when the following officers were elected:—

Patron, Mr. A. H. Rolfe; president, Mr. V. A. J. Byrne; vice-president, Mr. D. J. Connellan; captain, Mr. F. Pearson; hon. secretary and treasurer, Mr. H. O'Sing; committee, Messrs H. C. Moore, W. Otty and P. Whitman. Leave of absence was granted 15 members and 4 associates. Mrs. J Craig and Miss L. Burrows were appointed associate delegates.

When Mr. Whitman left on active service Mr. Jack Bliss was appointed to the house committee, and Mr. Bob Elliot was elected to the Works Committee in place of Mr. W. Otty (resigned on account of pressure of business.

GRATIFYING RESULT.

Despite the initial difficulty in getting an annual meeting and the delay in securing officers, the committee and secretary worked so well that the season was a great success. In fact, if taken on a comparative basis on revenue and membership, it was the best in the history of the club. Faced with the problem of preserving the assets of the club and keeping the links open so that members and service personnel could get a game of golf, a small but willing band made a great job of it, showing just what enthusiasm and voluntary effort could really do. A few of the main receipts will show what difficulties the club had to contend with. Subscriptions fell from £150 to £40/19/-, competition fees from £145 to £72, bar receipts from £366 to £192. Fees were reduced by half. The most gratifying result came from the bar, where notwithstanding increased costs of liquor and duty (over 20 per cent) and a drop in receipts of £174, the profits amounted to £62/7/3, as against £59/1/8 in 1941. This is a tribute to the splendid work of an energetic house committee. Your works committee had to go right through the season without a pro., and they did a good job. Your captain (Mr. Peardon) and your associate delegates (Mrs. Craig and Miss Burrows) were always on the spot, and carried out their duties satisfactorily. The associate delegates assisted as usual with all club functions.

WORK OF HON. SECRETARY.

In closing, special mention is made of the work of the hon. secretary and treasurer (Mr. Harold O'Sing). He carried out his duties without even cost of car hire, and paid his own subscription. The year 1943 will again be a difficult one for members and officials, but we can only hope that the links will be kept in order until the end of the war brings us back to normal membership and conditions.

WEDDING BELLS

POWER-NUGENT.

At St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Nobbs Street, North Rockhampton, on December 26, at 6.30 p.m., the marriage was celebrated of Olivia May, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Nugent, North Rockhampton, to Robert Frederick, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Power, Gladstone. Rev. Father Murtagh officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the church to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mr. Linus McGuin. She wore a dainty frock of needlerun lace over taffeta, made with an uplift bodice, with a sweetheart neckline and a full slightly trained skirt. Her veil of embroidered tulle (kindly lent by her sister-in-law, Mrs. G. Nugent) was worn with a pleated tulle frill, and was finished with a spray of frangipanni. She carried a shower bouquet of white gladioli, frangipanni, stephonatis, with maidenhair and bridal fern, tied with white satin streamers.

The bride was atended by her twin sisters, Misses Mavis and Iris Nugent, who were dressed alike in pink and blue hailspot net over taffeta. Their frocks were made with an uplift bodice with a sweetheart neckline and a very full skirt finished with ruching, and were worn with a shoulder length tulle veil, finished with pink and blue rosebuds. They carried shower bouquets of pink and blue hydrangeas, which were arranged with fern and tied with pink and blue satin streamers.

Mr. Arthur Power acter as best man, and Mr. Charles Nugent was groomsman.

During the signing of the register Mr. Cecil Gott sang "Ave Maria."

As the bride left the church little Janice Christiansen (niece of the bridegroom) presented her with a white satin horseshoe.

The wedding breakfast was held at the Majestic Cafe, where the bride's mother received the guests waring a pink shadow show frock, with white accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a black rip-tide frock with black accessories.

When leaving for the north, where the honeymoon was spent, the bride wore a blue grandstand frock with a matching blue hat.

EDUCATION

RIGHT OF THE PARENT

Doctrines of Communism

(By K. J. Hanson, Gladstone)

The sanest approach to the educational problem as we know it in Australia is to consider the meaning of education and to provide an answer to the question to whom education belongs.

These are fundamental questions. The foundations must be securely placed before we build the superstructure.

Education means something more than the imparting of information. It means more than mere intellectual training. It is the development of all the powers of body and faculties of mind—physical, intellectual, moral and religious. It includes all those experiences and influences whereby one's body is developed, knowledge is acquired, and character is formed.

Now, we must consider the question: Does education belong to the State or to the parent? Clearly the assumption is often made that education belongs to the State. Many Australians have accepted this teaching on faith and have made no attempt to reason the matter out for themselves. Education does not belong to the State. This becomes manifest when we consider the nature and function of the State.

The State exists to help individuals and families to do either what they are unable to do of themselves or what they can do only imperfectly. The State, or civil society, is natural to man. This is clear from the fact that man tends to associate with groups of his fellowmen, that he is fitted for such association, and that only in this way can his mental, moral, physical and intellectual powers reach their full development. The State supplements and completes the individual and the family, but in no sense does it create individual and family rights, nor may it abrogate those rights.

The State then is not the source of all rights. The individual has natural rights, so, too has the family. The State did not create these rights; it cannot take them away. The rights of the individual include his right to life, to marry, to worship as he thinks fit, and to possess private property. Man, by his very nature, has the right to marry, and it is from the marriage contract that the rights of parents concerning their children originate.

Nature supplies parent and child with instincts of affection which no other relationships can satisfy or replace. The parent is the only guardian of the child known to nature. The parent has the right of educating the child.

How different are the doctrines of Communism, Nazism and Fascism in relation to education. Education, they claim, belongs to the State, and to it alone. They claim the whole man, and are determined that the State shall have a monopoly of education, to train their future citizens in the particular mould that they desire.

We Australians cannot accept the doctrine that the State is an absolute entity, a kind of super person, a divinity. The State is not an end: it is a means: it exists for man, and not man for the State.

Education belongs to the parents, but they may use the school as an ally in their work. Indeed, the school is to-day a practical necessity. Now, what is the duty of the State? The State may, of course, provide its own schools, conducted according to its own methods, but where the parent objects to these then other schools approved by the parents should be established by the State and equipped and maintained by the State. In all these schools the State enjoys full right of inspection and examination, for public moneys are being spent and the public should have a guarantee that the money is being well spent.

The multiplicity of systems that may be thus created need cause no alarm, for firstly the groups requiring special treatment will not be numerous, and secondly, it is inadvisable that the whole educational system of a country be cast in a single mould. Even such a strong advocate of governmental interference in moral matters as John Stuart Mill once said, "A general State education is a mere contrivance for moulding people to be exactly like one another; and as the mould in which it casts them is that which pleases the predominant power in the government, it establishes a despotism over the mind, leading by natural tendencies to come over the body (on liberty).

This is the right method of approach to our educational problems. First let us define education, then show that the duty of educating belongs to the parent, and finally that the State must supplement the efforts of the family by maintaining schools acceptable to them.

PRICE OF BUTTER

1/6 PER LB. ASKED FOR

Minister in Reply

Recently dairymen and other persons interested in primary production in Central Queensland wrote to the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) seeking his support in a request for a minimum price of 1/6 per lb. for commercial butter.

He immediately took the matter up with the Minister for Commerce and Agriculture (Mr. W. J. Scully), and a copy of his reply to Mr. Forde is as follows:—

MR. SCULLY'S LETTER.

"I have to acknowledge your strong personal representations on behalf of dairymen and electors in the Capricornia electorates, who ask that a minimum price of 1/6 per lb. be paid for commercial butter.

"I have to advise in reply that the question of butter prices is one for determination by the Federal Prices Commissioner (Professor Copland). As the result of conversations I have had with representatives of dairymen's organisations I understand that a case is being prepared for presentation to the Prices Commissioner immediately the award, which the industry has asked for, is announced. In view of this it is desirable that Capricornia dairymen co-operate with their State organisation in making the case as strong as possible.

"The Government is not unmindful of the difficulties which confront farmers, and as soon as assuming office asked the Prices Commissioner to make a survey of prices and costs to see if an increase could not be given. As the result of this decision small increases were granted on both butter and cheese. Concerned with rising costs the Government decided in October last to vote £2,000,000 per annum to the industry. The first payments in connection with this subsidy will be made either at the end of this month or the beginning of February.

"The Government has given evidence of its desire to assist in other ways. In an attempt to help the industry overcome the shortage of mill offals it reduced the price of wheat to dairymen and poultry and pig raisers. It has also subsidised the N.S.W. and Queensland Governments for the purpose of aiding fodder conservation plans in the dairying districts.

"It would be well perhaps to cite one or two other instances of the Government's endeavours to improve the position of primary producers generally in order that your correspondents might see where its sympathy lies.

"When Labour was in opposition it consistently urged that the contract price for wool should be reviewed to enable growers to recover their costs. These requests were flatly refused. When the Curtin Government was formed one of its first acts was to enter into negotiations for a review of the wool agreement. The British Government acceded to its representations and granted an increase of 2d per lb., thus lifting the aggregate income of growers by £9,000,000.

"The Government also decided to remove the levy of 15 per cent which had been imposed on beef, lamb, mutton and pig producers by the previous administration. The removal of this virtually raised the contract price to growers by 15 per cent.

"Similar treatment has been accorded to many other sections of primary industry, but as these possibly do not bear on local production they are omitted.

"It is necessary that I refer to the Government's efforts in order that your correspondents might fully appreciate its willingness to render all possible aid to a section which has suffered many years of neglect."

PRESERVING FRUIT.

Country women who usually bottle their home garden fruit crop can still preserve it despite sugar rationing. Pulped fruit will keep well if care is taken to sterilise all containers and to seal the contents while at boiling point. Purees of fruit may also be made. These need some sugar, but most fruit is palatable with the addition of a quarter of a pound of sugar to one pound of fruit. Preserved in this way, fruit can be used later for pies or desserts, with good results. Sugar, if necessary, can be added when the fruit is finally used.

FOOD FACTS

NUMBER 3A

Nature's Perfect Food is

MILK

Providing more nutrition than any other single food, Milk contains the vital vitamins and minerals needed to protect against illness, ensure good digestion, build healthy tissues, strong bones and teeth.

It aids normal growth, develops energy, and protects against ill-health.

Children up to 16 years should have 1½ pints of milk daily—either to drink, or in soups, sauces, custards or puddings.

SUGAR RATIONING does not mean—

SUGAR rationing does not mean that we should not use sugar in our morning tea. It is merely a simple way of helping us do our duty.

We have to be thrifty Thrifty with sugar, with tea, with clothing, with MONEY.

We have two wars to win: the war against inflation and the war against the aggressors.

To keep the cost of living from spiralling upwards, we must spend as little as possible. We must live frugally; pay off our debts; pay our Life Assurance premiums; and put all we can into the War Loans. In our own interest we must make things do, or do without.

Paying our Life Assurance premiums (even increasing them) helps the war effort, for a large part of the money goes into the War Loans. The A.M.P. NATION NOT UNITED

PEOPLE TIRED OF PARTY POLITICS

Mr. Fadden Hits Out

"A nation that is not united politically cannot fight with the full energy and moral backing of all its people," said the Leader of the Federal Opposition, Mr. A. W. Fadden. "That," Mr. Fadden added, "is tragedy."

"In stating that I am saying nothing new. I have been urging abolition of party government for the last two years. I offered, when Prime Minister, to serve under John Curtin. So did R. G. Menzies, yet here we are to-day in the second year of war with Japan, and the fourth year of world war, still at each other's throats. Could anything be more stupid?

"We are still fighting hard for our homes and our freedom. We will have to fight harder. The outer armour of the Japanese has scarcely been dented. To beat him, to keep him off and push him further from our shores, will call for all the resource, courage, sacrifice, we can muster.

"While young men are dying in the leech-infested, evil-smelling jungle of New Guinea, and in the timeless sands of the Middle East, the great Australian Labour Party is wrangling about where Australians will be sent to fight: has thrown vital national policy to uniformed, irresponsible, misdirected, and inconsequential unions; has tried to usurp the people's power in times of stress for purely party purposes; has succeeded, by a process of Dedmanism, in creating near-chaos in ordinary everyday essential business; and, in many other ways, has dangerously diverted the minds of the people from war to politics.

I don't want to be political, but I must set out plain and vital facts to drive into every good, honest Australian mind what Andre Maurois, distinguished French author, wrote in "Why France Fell"—"To be strong"—"To preserve a united country."

Labour to-day is not honest with the people. It is not honest with itself. It urges the people to unity, yet will not itself unify. Results of recent Queensland State polls show that the people are waking up to it. There is clear evidence that they are sick and tired of the narrow, vicious, nation-weakening party game.

Labour played the party game on war taxation, "kidded" the people, and then, in office, turned round and taxed. For twelve months, with Japanese bayonets shadowing the bodies of our women and children, it dodged the one-army issue. And now, after wide disruption and strife, it plans still to limit the operational area of the militia forces. On that alone, I indict the Labour Party, as forfeiting for ever the right of the people's votes. It is throttling the Nation's honour with the party-hangman's rope.

When this war is ended with victory I want every Australian to be able to say, clear-eyed, to the men of any other Nation: "We stood for liberty: we stood for the Christian ideal; we fought as a nation united wherever the fight for freedom waged."

What does party matter to-day? What does Labor's policy matter to-day? What does the policy of any other party matter? Not a tinker's damn! Only one thing matters—a strong government of all the parties for all of the people.

"To be strong; to preserve a united country," said Andre Maurois. That is my message to the Australian people in 1943.

GERMANY'S LONG TERM PLANNING

Hitler's Dream of World Conquest

Wickham Steed, speaking to overseas listeners in the B.B.C. sequence, "World Affairs," threw a strong light on Germany's long term planning for world conquest. He said:—

"When Paris fell on June 14, 1940, Hitler believed he would be in London by August 15. Then, he may have thought, the forecast which one of his minor prophets (Professor Ewald Banse) had published in 1932 would come true. This forecast, to which I drew public attention in October, 1933, ran:—

"It is very important to judge English popular character in the event of an enemy invasion. The people to a man, would certainly rush to arms and would allow themselves to be mown down in heroic tenacity before giving ground step by step. But is is a question whether people would stand the test of hunger. A part of them would stand even this out of patriotism, but another part would give up the game. We confess it is charming to imagine and to portray people at some future time, a people who will have to obey foreign lords in a country unconquered since 1066, or will have to renounce its lucrative colonial empire."

This was written and illustrated by a map to show how England would be invaded a few months before Hitler was appointed German Chancellor. He promptly gave Professor Banse a professional chair to teach military science at a German academy.

In the same book Professor Banse forecast the destruction of Poland, and the occupation of Holland, Belgium, and Northern France, as preliminaries to the invasion of England.

So, when these preliminaries had been carried through by mid-June, 1940, Hitler not unnaturally thought the invasion and conquest of England a matter of course. Then, according to his reckoning, Russia could be crushed, the United States and South America paralysed by German and pro-German factions, and he (Hitler) would rule the world.

FACTORY WORKERS

Help the Red Cross

Last week an interesting presentation took place in Sydney, when Mr. George Bass, secretary of the Labour Council of Newcastle, and Mr. J. Bayliss, Red Cross industrial organiser for the Newcastle district, handed over £1500 to Mr. A. L. Blythe, honorary director of Red Cross Appeals, and other members of the N.S.W. Red Cross Executive.

This money is the second substantial contribution to Red Cross funds from factory and other industrial workers in the Newcastle district. The money previously collected was divided equally among Red Cross branches there.

The greater part of the £1500 handed over was collected under the workers' penny-a-week scheme, by which sixpence is subtracted from the employees' pay envelopes every six weeks.

The majority of the unionists in Newcastle are either already members of this vast scheme, or have promised to link up, and the steady income of £100 a month is growing daily. In some factories (B.H.P. for instance) workers contribute as individuals to the Red Cross fund, taking a particular interest in the men who have enlisted for the fighting services even from this essential industry.

Mr. W. G. Mahoney, industrial organiser for the Red Cross in N.S.W. (former Labour M.H.R. for Dalley) has been responsible for the organisation of the scheme, working through the various unions. He has also assisted to organised the scheme in other States, and workers throughout Australia are now helping support the Red Cross and all its many services.

SALT OF THE EARTH.

Common salt is one of the four or five most important raw materials in the world, and United States factories have estimated that they will use ten billion pounds of it this year for war production. Aeroplanes, tanks, jeeps, guns, synthetic rubber and high-test gasoline all use its sodium and chlorine. Sodium cyanide enables gear surfaces to stand shock and strain, while ethyl chloride and sodium-lead alloy produce tetraethyl lead for high octane fuel for aviation.

CAN YOU HELP?

Books, magazines and old clean newspapers are urgently needed by the Gladstone branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. If you have any old newspapers, books, or magazines, kindly leave same at Gladstone Cash and Carry, where they will be collected regularly and despatched to the troops in camp. The camps in the outlying centres are much in need of reading matter and indoor games, such as playing cards, etc. See what you can do.

AUSTRALIAN INDUSTRY

MUST BE DECENTRALISED

Post War Planning

(By the Director of the Rationing Commission, Dr. H. C. Coombs)

The tendency of the last century, particularly in Australia, has been to concentrate industry in the large centres. More than half our population and the major part of our industry are in the six metropolitan areas of the capital cities of our States.

These capital cities are, when judged by human standards, failures in social organisation. They are neither beautiful, healthy, nor efficient.

We must be prepared to move our industries—to decentralise them, to plan their location so that not merely do we get efficient production, but we build up a healthy balanced life for those engaged in industry.

In place of the over-grown city and the drained and exploited country, we must have planned development on regional lines.

The industrial resources of natural economic regions require to be developed within the region. With the coming of electrical power, there is much less need to concentrate industry.

Many lines of consumers' goods can be and are produced for relatively small markets. The dispersal of these industries, together with the opportunities offered by local resources, provide the basis for regional development which will break down the barrier between city and country to their mutual advantage and make possible within each region a balanced economic life.

In the towns and provincial cities that this regional development will make possible, we have our opportunity to build our communities of homes which are close to the work which the people have to perform, and which fulfil the needs of a healthy social life.

It is clear from what I have said that if we are to provide for the people the "capital equipment" for basic human activities, we cannot leave the task to private enterprise. We must in this part of the field at least call a halt to the multiplication of goods, to the wastes of isolated individual effort, and to the anarchy of speculation and jerry building.

To put it on no higher plane it is clear that the vast mass of people cannot afford from their own incomes to pay for the sort of homes and community services which are essential to their lives, any more than they can pay for their own roads, lighting and sewerage. We must plan, construct, and pay for the equipment of our social life collectively.

This then is the position. The economy of the past has failed in two major respects. It has failed to use to the full the human resources at its disposal. It has failed to organise economic effort, so that it develops opportunity for those activities which are the material of the drama of human life. This is both our task and our opportunity.

On the basis of past experience we can assume that on the average private enterprise will leave unwanted some ten per cent of our productive resources.

With these resources directed to the regional development of our national estate, to the construction of the capital equipment of social life, and to the building of homes that are not merely shelters, but centres of family life and the nucleus of social organisation, we can indeed transform our lives.

In the last four years the seven million pairs of hands of the Australian people have been turned to the tasks of war. Their achievements have been magnificent. Let us plan, now so that those hands may be turned as soon as possible against other enemies—the enemies of poverty and unemployment and the degradation of the human spirit.

Let us plan, too, for positive aims—to build in Australia a social environment in which the common life of our people will take on new colour, new intensity, and new dramatic quality.

NUTRITION CAMPAIGN

Will Aid Producers

To dispose of food surpluses as soon as they occur is one important aim of a nation-wide nutrition educational campaign to be launched by the Commonwealth Department of Health early this year.

If gluts are expected in any food item the people will be told in advance, and by means of tasty recipes prepared by Australia's foremost authorities will be induced to eat greater quantities of that food.

In this way organisers of the campaign hope to relieve primary producers of many of the worries associated with the disposal of any foodstuff of which a glut is threatened.

Explaining the purposes of the campaign for which Federal Cabinet has voted £15,000, the Federal Minister for Health (Mr. Holloway) said that it aimed at maintaining Australian nutrition standards despite wartime food difficulties. Unless the foods available were used to their best nutritional advantage, public health standards would suffer.

The campaign would take the form of advertisements in metropolitan and country press, radio announcements, and free pamphlets for women in the home.

The public would be told vividly and simply what foods were in good supply, what was their nutritional value, and how to prepare and cook them in the most tasty way. For foods in short supply alternatives of equal health value would be suggested.

Mr. Holloway said the campaign had been made necessary for increasing restrictions on the number and quantity of foodstuffs available, the introduction of consumer rationing for a number of food items, the increasing number of married women entering industry with much less time for the preparation of meals at home, and the possibility of periodic gluts in certain vegetables, followed by shortages.

The campaign will be planned on an Australia-wide basis, but attention will also be given to the special needs of the various States and local campaigns will be organised in collaboration with State Nutrition Committees.

"The most modern nutritional principles known to medical science will be introduced into the campaign, which should help to raise public health in Australia to new high levels," said Mr. Holloway.

USE FRUIT

Save Sugar

There are several ways to preserve fruit without using sugar. This may be added later in small quantities when the fruit is being prepared for actual use.

A booklet issued by the Commonwealth Rationing Commission gives recipes for pulping, bottling, and making fruit juices without sugar, and methods of drying fruit at home.

Issued on paper cut to the shape of a preserving jar, the booklet opens out to form a four-page folder of convenient size which would make a valuable addition to any collection of preserving recipes.

There is no charge for the booklet, which may be obtained by applying to the Deputy Director of Rationing in capital cities, enclosing an addressed envelope.

66 UNITS OF VITAMIN "B1" FOR BREAKFAST!

Professor Priestley, of the Sydney University, writes in the "Australasian Baker" of July, 1942:—

"With respect to their vitamin B1 content, breakfast foods may be divided into two groups: Those that are wholly pre-cooked ready to eat and those not pre-cooked, or only partially pre-cooked during the process of manufacture.

"With few exceptions all members of the former group are extremely low in vitamin B1.

"Members of the second group retain the greater part of the vitamin B1 present in the original cereal grain from which the breakfast food was prepared.

"Thus, a plate of a pre-cooked ready-to-eat breakfast food without the milk, gave 2 units of vitamin B1, while a plate of porridge of rolled oats gave 66 units—33 times as much."

Here is further convincing proof of the wonderful food value of Uncle Toby's Oats — the cleanest, freshest and highest quality rolled oats obtainable. Remember, a breakfast of Uncle Toby's Oats provides 66 units of Vitamin B1 — serve it regularly throughout the year. Sold by grocers everywhere

FINED £2.

In the Court of Summary Jurisdiction on Thursday, before the acting S.M. (Mr. J. Donovan), Edward John O'Brien was charged with committing a breach of the National Security Regulations, having made a photograph of the harbour. Defendant pleaded guilty by letter, and was convicted and fined £2, with 6/- costs of court, in default 14 days in the Brisbane Gaol. Sergt. S. Coxon prosecuted.

FINED £5.

In the Court of Petty Sessions on Thursday, before the acting S.M. (Mr. J. Donovan), Samuel Day was charged with failing to enrol for military service. Defendant pleaded guilty, and was fined £5 with 6/- costs of Court, in default 28 days in the Rockhampton Gaol. Day was allowed one month in which to pay the fine. The Area Officer (Captain G. C. Melsom) prosecuted.

POLICE COURT.

In the Police Court on Thursday, before the acting S.M. (Mr. J. Donovan), Conrad Hugo Craig was charged with committing a breach of the Liquor Acts, being unlawfully found on licensed premises. Defendant pleaded guilty by letter, and was convicted and fined £2, with 6/- costs of court, in default 14 days in the Charleville lock-up. Sergt. S. Coxon prosecuted.

RADIO INTERFERENCE.

During the past few days users of wireless sets in Gladstone have experienced considerable interference greatly affecting the reception of even nearby National stations. It is generally thought that the trouble originates at the Power Station or the power mains, and several residents have written to the authorities complaining of the reception. Several tests have been made, and it is definitely shown that the fault does not lie as originally suggested, with industrial plants, as the same conditions apply after the closure of these units.

SOUTH GLADSTONE POST OFFICE

Toolooa Railway Crossing

The Gladstone branch of the A.L.P. has received advice from Mr. F. M. Forde, M.H.R., that he has made representations on behalf of the branch to the Deputy Director of Posts and Telegraphs to have South Gladstone Post Office made a money order office.

Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., advised the branch that he is awaiting further information concerning the request that the black-out conditions be modified at Gladstone.

Mr. Williams also advised that the Minister for Transport has stated that the abolition of the Toolooa railway crossing gates (where road traffic is subject to delay) is a matter for the Main Roads Commission and the Calliope Shire Council.

The Minister for Transport also advised that the new railway locomotive depot at Gladstone would not be completed for some time.

TOWN COUNCIL

ANOTHER REBUFF

Comment by Ald. Golding

The Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson) has received the following letter from the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) through the Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams):—

THE LETTER.

"With further reference to your letter of the 24th December, regarding a water scheme for Gladstone, I have to inform you that I am writing to the Hon. F. A. Cooper, Premier and Treasurer of Queensland, in regard to the matter, asking him to give it further consideration, with a view to having it listed as one of the necessary works to be carried out.

"You will quite understand that the Federal Government does not undertake water schemes for the various towns throughout Australia. The only water schemes that have been undertaken by the Federal Government have been in connection with military camps.

"I am anxious to help the people of Gladstone in every way possible, but it is no use misleading them into thinking that the Commonwealth Government is about to put down water supply schemes throughout the various municipalities of Australia, because this has always been primarily the responsibility of the local authorities and the State Governments.

"The Federal Government enters into the matter by making available the necessary loan money to the State Governments to be spent on approved works put up by the State Governments to the Loan Council, and there approved as necessary public works to be carried out with the loan money supplied to the State Governments.

"If the Gladstone water supply scheme is recommended by your State Government as one of the urgent works to be carried out, I feel sure that the necessary priority in regard to supplies of material and man power can be arranged, having due regard to other urgent Army and Air Force commitments."

CITIZENS DISAPPOINTED.

Ald. W. R. Golding, in commenting on Mr. Forde's reply to the letter forwarded to him as a result of the representative meeting of all bodies, held in the Town Hall recently, said the reply would be received with considerable disappointment by the citizens of Gladstone.

TOWN AND PORT.

They had hoped, continued Ald. Golding, that the town and the port of Gladstone was of sufficient national importance to justify some assistance being given by the Federal authorities, but apparently it was not considered as such. Mr. Forde, no doubt, had considered that the Boyne water supply scheme was a purely local affair, and therefore would come under the jurisdiction of the State Government.

MANY REBUFFS.

It was no use, went on Ald. Golding, being discouraged at the turn of events, as the Council time after time over the last six years had received many rebuffs. There still was a lot of spade work to do before the Boyne River scheme was an accomplished fact, and in this both Mr. Forde and Mr. Williams could assist the Council.

A1 PRIORITY NECESSARY.

Even though the pipes for the first section were now on the site, there seemed to be no chance whatever of getting the job under way, with no machinery and no manpower, and such would it remain until such time as an A1 priority was granted. No unemployed were registered at the Gladstone Labour Bureau.

CO-OPERATION OF ALL PARTIES.

The Council had always had the sympathy of the Co-ordinator General of Public Works (Mr. Kemp), and until such time as they had received his reply to the application for a priority, the fate of the scheme would hang in the balance. If the work is to go on in its entirety it would need the fullest co-operation of all parties, particularly the unions, who in his opinion would be the deciding factor.

INTEREST AND REDEMPTION.

It must not be forgotten, said Ald. Golding, that the Council had had the Treasurer's word that he would grant a remission of one-third of interest and redemption over a period of fifteen years, which in itself would mean a saving to the ratepayers of £25,000 on an estimated cost of the scheme at £90,000.

In conclusion, Ald. Golding stated no effort would be spared by the Council, and the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis) had called a special meeting to deal with the matter.

GLADSTONE TOWN COUNCIL

FINANCIAL POSITION REVIEWED BY TOWN CLERK

EXCESS CREDIT OVER DEBIT BALANCES £4600

At the last meeting of the Town Council the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson) submitted his financial statement for the period 1/7/42 to 31/12/42, and this disclosed a credit balance of £4600/2/1.

GENERAL FUND.

This fund commenced the financial year with a credit balance of £237/1/4, and at 31/12/42 the credit balance was £2509. The position at the end of six months is very satisfactory, and compares more than favourably with any previous year. It must be realised that a number of ratepayers who usually make payment at the close of the financial year, have this year paid their rates within the discount period.

On the receipts side of the statement amounts of £156 and £39 have been transferred from the Cleansing and Town Hall Accounts respectively, being clerical supervision. An amount of £97/18/3 was the cost of the new Court House drain, and was paid by the Department of Public Works on 1/1/43; likewise the Treasury rebate on interest and redemption was paid by the Treasury Department on 4/1/43. It is anticipated that reimbursement of civil defence expenditure, amounting to £156/4/- will be made during the current month.

An amount of £32/18/8 has been received for impounding fees, and this exceeds the budget figure of £30 for the year by £2/18/8. The items "license fees," "baths earnings," "sales of freehold land," "rent," and "interest on rates," are more than maintaining their relative budget positions. An amount of £3926/3/7 has been collected for general rates, and I anticipate that the budget figure of £4800 will be realised. The collection of cemetery dues, £235/2/, is satisfactory, as the budget figure for the year is £375. I would suggest that permission be obtained from the Auditor General for the writing off of irrecoverable cemetery dues.

On 1/7/42 the bank balances of the Loan Rate and Cleansing Accounts, amounting to £16/4/1 and £225/6/6 respectively, were closed and transferred to the General Fund. These amounts are not included in the General Fund credit balance of £2509.

On the disbursements side of the statement the items "audit fees," "civil defence expenditure," and "pay roll tax," have exceeded the budget figures. The former excess was caused by the Auditor General increasing the annual audit fee after the preparation of the budget, and the excess in civil defence expenditure was an extraordinary item. The pay roll tax item of £63/12/7 includes Coney Island payments and a refund of £90/13/5 appears in the receipts.

An adjustment of this refund will be made with the Electricity and Water Undertaking Funds before the close of the financial year. I anticipate that the items benzine and oils and cemetery will exceed the budget before the close of the year. Provision has been made in the budget to cover the increased Fire Brigade Board precept (£371/9/- to £649/11/10), and the first moiety of £324/15/11 has been paid. Final payment will be made in March of this year.

A payment of £160, being the year's instalment in reduction of the old Town Fund overdraft, was made during the six months under review. The Auditor General has advised that in future interest and redemption repayments on account of Council loans must be made from the Loan Rate Fund. The position with the Undertaking Funds (Water and Electric) is the reverse, as a transfer is effected from the Electric Loan and Water Loan Funds to the relative Undertaking Funds, and interest and Redemption paid from the latter funds.

On 30/6/42 the banking account for the new Town Hall Account was closed and merged with the General Fund.

The majority of expenditure items are in accord with the budget, and provided expenditure of an extraordinary nature is not incurred, the result as at 30/6/43 should be an excellent one.

ELECTRICITY UNDERTAKING FUND.

This fund was in credit £631/15/6 on 31/12/42, and the budget provides for a surplus of £30/0/9 for the financial year. Owing to an oil company not forwarding invoices for diesel oil supplied, an amount of £450 is still owing for that item, and a credit balance of £181/15/6 would reflect the true position as at 30/12/42. The nett collections for the sales of light and power for the six months amounted to £4881/3/8, as against the budget figure of £9850 for the year. I anticipate that the budget figure will be realised, but the excess (if any) will be slight.

It would appear that the reduction in the discount allowance from 10 to 5 per cent was warranted, seeing that the budget estimate for the nett sales of light and power was increased by £702/14/4 over the actual nett collections for the previous financial year.

On the previous year's discount figures the reduction of 5 per cent in the discount allowance would result in a gain of £457/7/2, so that actually additional revenue amounting to £245/7/2 over last year's figures has to be collected during the current financial year.

Due to restrictions in hours and commodities the reading of certain trading houses have been considerably reduced. The elimination of shop window lighting and the brown-out restrictions have also resulted in a loss of revenue. However, the revenue from increased industrial activity should balance the losses from these sources.

An amount of £25/4/- was received for the sale of D.C. meters, also £93/9/3 from the Shell Coy. for material supplied and work performed. The remaining receipts items are in conformity with the budget.

On the disbursements side of the statement no item has exceeded the budget, and extraordinary or emergent expenditure has not been incurred. I anticipate that the items "wages and oil" will exceed their relative budget figures.

I have mentioned the fact that £450 is still owing for the purchase of diesel oil, and the amount of £1045/16/7 in the "actual" column should read £1495/16/7, as against the budget figure of £2750 for the year. It is most difficult to obtain an accurate estimate for this item owing to the fluctuating market price.

Increases amounting to £1/2/6 per ton have occurred during the six months. The remaining disbursement items are in accord with the budget. If the anticipated surplus of £30/0/9 is to be realised I would suggest that a strict control be exercised over expenditure and a continuous drive carried out against those consumers in arrears for light and power.

ELECTRIC LOAN RATE FUND.

The estimate for the collection of electric loan rates is £500 and £361/16/9, and has been collected for the six months, and I anticipate that the budget figure will be realised. An amount of £357 was transferred to the Electricity Undertaking Fund to meet interest and redemption repayments.

CLEANSING FUND.

This fund is in credit £756/0/1, and the estimated surplus of £59/8/6 for the year would appear to be accurate. Cleansing rates, amounting to £2090/4/7, have been collected, or £559/15/5 short of the estimate for the year. It seems certain that the expenditure item, "sanitary contractor," will exceed the budget figure. A considerable number of additional daily services are at present being carried out, thus the anticipated excess. A corresponding increase in revenue will be effected. An amount of £156, representing clerical assistance, was transferred to the General Fund during the six months.

As previously mentioned, the credit balance of this account, amounting to £225/6/6, was transferred to the General Fund on 1/7/42.

LOAN RATE FUND.

Loan rates, amounting to £1208/4/3, have been collected for the half year, the budget figure for the year being £1440. Interest and redemption of Council loans amounting to £1060/12/9 was paid during the period.

The banking account for this fund was closed on 1/7/42, and the credit balance of £16/4/1 transferred to the General Fund.

WATER LOAN RATE FUND.

This fund is in an excellent position, as a credit balance of £776/15/10 would indicate. Water loan rates amounting to £1681/9/6 have been collected, the budget figure for the year being £1920. An amount of £953/9/2 has been transferred to the Water Undertaking Fund to meet interest and redemption on water loans.

I anticipate that this fund will finish the year with a surplus of approximately £200, or £191/4/6 in excess of the budget figure.

WATER UNDERTAKING FUND.

This fund is in credit £1196/19/10, and it would appear that the budget surplus of £120/18/7 for the year will be realised. The sales of water by meter are very satisfactory. An amount of £638/16/2 has already been collected, as against the budget figure of £900 for the year. The December readings amounted to £200, and the revenue from these sales will be received during the current month (January).

The six months' collection of water consumers' rates amounted to £1796/11/7, the budget figure for the year being £1950. This was a difficult item to estimate owing to the allowance made to consumers for the period that the town water supply failed.

A transfer of £953/9/2 was received from the Water Loan Rate Fund during the period. No expenditure item has exceeded the budget, and emergent expenditure has not been incurred. I anticipate that the items "wages and new water scheme" will exceed their relative budget figures before the close of the financial year. The chlorination plant at the Waterworks cost £151/16/-, but this will be a charge against the loan of £15,000 when funds are made available.

The remaining expenditure items are in accord with the budget.

It is pleasing to note that the cast iron pipes for the first section of the Boyne River scheme have been landed and are at present being carted along the reticulation main. The completion of the scheme in its entirety would be welcome news for the whole community.

INTEREST AND REDEMPTION.

Amounts of £2801/6/4 and £758/4/8, being interest and redemption repayments on Treasury and State Government insurance loans respectively, have been paid during the six months.

LOAN POSITION.

BOWLING

WIN FOR L. CAMERON.

Main interest at the Bowling Club centred in the competition to select a member to represent Gladstone in the district singles title to be played at Rockhampton.

L. Cameron just beat A. W. Drewe 31-30 after a splendid contest. No less than 37 ends were played before a decision was reached.

Social matches resulted:—

Coxon, Ferris, Bycroft, Wilson v. Garrett, Schmidt, Hogan, Jackson 31-6.

Hixon, Dennis, Johnston v. Witty, Friend, Golding 28-23.

Henery, Joyner, Busteed v. Duff, Weiske, Archay 28-15.

Ferris, Barker, Drewe v. Garrett, Seaton, Chapman 25-17.

Coxon, Hickey, Wilson v. Friend, Dennis, Greasley 12-23.

Lodder, Sly, Busteed v. Burton, Joyner, Loveday 29-21.

INQUESTS HELD AT GLADSTONE

BARRAM DIED FROM EXTENSIVE INJURIES

"NO ONE TO BLAME FOR MEATWORKS ACCIDENT"

An inquest into the circumstances surrounding the death of Noel Barram (18), cheese factory employee, Bracewell, which commenced on December 22, was concluded at Gladstone last Monday. The Coroner (Mr. J. Donovan) presided.

ENGAGED CHANGING A PULLEY.

Constable C. S. Fielding, Mt. Larcom, stated that Noel Barram, who resided with his parents at Bracewell, was fatally injured at the Cheese Factory about 3 p.m. on December 4, and was admitted to the Gladstone Hospital, where he died at about 8.30 p.m. the same day. At the time the deceased was injured he was engaged changing a pulley belt attached to a machine known as the curd mill. Acting on instructions he made a thorough examination of the scene of the mishap. As different machines are used in the processing of the curds, it is necessary to use different belts of varying widths and lengths.

CURD MILL.

The witness interviewed the manager of the factory, Robert Burton, who stated a little before 3 o'clock on December 4 he gave two of the employees, Tom Fiddes and Noel Barram instructions to mill the curds in vat 3. A lad named Arthur Andersen also joined Fiddes, and the three then prepared the curd mill for operation. The curd mill consists of a wooden frame, which holds a series of cutters, which force the curds into a box-like arrangement, which cuts the curds into small squares. These cutters are driven from a belt extending from a pulley wheel on the main drive shaft above on to a pulley wheel on the frame of the curd mill.

DRAWN VIOLENTLY UPWARDS.

The ends of the belt hanging down were seized by Arthur Andersen, who passed them around the pulley of the curd mill, and Fiddes assisted him to effect the join. Andersen then with Fiddes bent down to affix the curd mill to the rim of the vat, and at the same time let the belt go. Anderson then stated that he idd not quite realise what happened, but the curd mill flew up into the air, striking him in the groin as it was drawn violently upwards, not being fastened down to the vat. The blow spun Andersen around, and when he looked up he saw Barram had been wound around the drive shaft by the belts. Both belts were still there, as the agitator belt had not been dropped, although it had been removed from the pulley wheel and had been resting lightly on the shaft. As far as Andersen was aware Barram did not cry out.

ENTANGLED IN THE BELTS.

Fiddes at once ran to the engine for the purpose of stopping it, which he did. Fiddes had to run a distance of about twenty-five yards, and he slipped when crossing the whey drain, which delayed him. Barram was then hanging up on the drive shaft and twisted around it, being entangled in the belts. Fiddes cut these away, which released the curd mill. William Andersen then got a rope, which Fiddes tied around Barram's body, but he had lapsed into unconsciousness. With the aid of the rope the body was steadily lowered into Fiddes' arms, after which he was carried into the storeroom and placed on a bench.

INJURIES.

Barram was still unconscious, his right arm being badly fractured at the shoulder, also at the forearm. There were also lacerations on the face and neck. The wound in the arm near the shoulder had been caused by a compound fracture, the end of the bone protruding and tearing the flesh and severing the artery.

NO SUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES.

From the result of his inquiries and investigations he was unable to ascertain whether the cause of the accident was from the curd mill not being bolted down to the rim of the curd vat, and so flying up along the belt to strike Barram, or whether he fell off the agitator assembly when stepping off on to the ladder, or whether he was caught by either of the belts. He was of the opinion, however, that the occurrence was accidental and there were no suspicious circumstances.

BLEEDING PROFUSELY.

Thomas Fiddes stated he was a general assistant at the Cheese Factory at Bracewell, where he had been employed since April 28, 1942. Following the accident his first thought was to stop the engine, and to do this he had to run round the end of the vat. In doing so he fell into the whey drain, delaying him for a few seconds. Barram then appeared to have lapsed into unconsciousness. His first thought was to effect his release, and to do this he borrowed a knife from Andersen senr. and cut the belt. He then climbed the ladder to unwind the tangled belt from Barram's body and neck. When the body was lowered he could see that Barram had received a serious injury to the right arm near the shoulder, from which he had been bleeding profusely, also a deep laceration to the left lower jaw. Mr. Miller, Ambulance superintendent, Mt. Larcom, had then arrived and attended to him, and subsequently Barram was conveyed to the Gladstone General Hospital.

SHOCK AND HAEMORRHAGE.

Constable J. O. Holley stated that Dr. Skinner had informed him that when Barram was admitted to the hospital he was found to be suffering severely from shock and haemorrhage, resulting from his injuries, which consisted of a crushed and almost severed right forearm, a crushed and almost severed right upper arm, a large deep lacerated wound on the left side of the face through which the jawbone was showing, a dislocated right knee, and multiple bruises around the neck, on the right hip, on both legs, and on the right side of the face.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION.

After admission to the hospital Barram was kept under the anaesthetic by Dr. Yum while Dr. Skinner gave him a blood transfusion. Barram's condition improved, and the right arm was amputated by Dr. Skinner just below the shoulder, and the large deep wound on the left side of the face was sutured. During the operation the patient's condition became worse, and soon after it was finished Barram died.

EXTENSIVE INJURIES.

Dr. Skinner told Constable Holley that everything possible was done to save Barram's life, and it was a wonder that he lived so long owing to the extent of his injuries.

MEDICAL CERTIFICATE.

The medical certificate issued by Dr. Skinner showed that the cause of death was haemorrhage and shock, which was brought about by the injuries received.

Evidence was also given by Robert Burton, William Andersen, and William Henry Miller.

The inquest was closed.

Meatworks Accident

In the new Court House on Thursday afternoon the Coroner (Mr. J. Donovan) held an inquest into the cause and circumstances surrounding the death of Richard Joseph Ryalls, who died in the General Hospital on December 18, 1942.

Sergt. S. Coxon conducted the inquiry, and Mr. M. B. Ryalls appeared to watch the interests of his late father.

HEAD INJURED.

Constable J. O. Holley deposed that under instructions from Sergt. S. Coxon he made inquiries on December 18 into the death of Richard Joseph Ryalls, aged 65 years, who had died in the General Hospital about 1.15 p.m. on that date. He proceeded to the Hospital, where he met Dr. Skinner, and accompanied him to the morgue, where he saw the dead body of the deceased. Dr. Skinner pointed out an injury at the back of the deceased's head. The injury was a large swelling at the base of the skull, and it was bluish black in colour. Dr. Skinner also informed the witness that deceased had met with an accident at the Meatworks, a calf having charged and knocked a gate down, causing Ryalls to strike his head heavily on the concrete floor. Deceased was conscious when he arrived at the Hospital, but he could not remember anything that had occurred.

FRACTURED SKULL.

Dr. Skinner stated that he had examined the deceased, and the result of the examination showed that there was a large bruise and a small cut on the back of his head, and there were signs to indicate a fracture of the base of the skull, with haemorrhage inside the skull. There were also abrasions on the back of the right hand. Deceased's condition rapidly grew worse after his admission to the Hospital. At first he was very drowsy, and then became unconscious, and subsequently died.

SCENE OF ACCIDENT INSPECTED.

Constable Holley proceeded to the Gladstone Meatworks, where he made an inspection of the scene of the accident with Mr. Drewe, the manager of Swift Australian Company (Pty.) Ltd. He went to the stockyard, where cattle were being drafted into separate lots before being killed. From this yard there are long narrow yards, one being known as the cattle race, and the other is used for sheep and calves. The walls of these yards are very strong, and about 8ft. high, the floor being made of concrete.

A WILD CALF.

Constable Holley interviewed William Shuck, Thomas Slater, and Robert Edward Stewart, all of whom witnessed the accident, and who are all employed at the Meatworks. He ascertained that Ryalls was assisting these men in assembling the calves from the other cattle in the races. One calf was separated from its mother and driven into the cattle race. Slater placed the top bolt into position on his side, and he saw deceased at the other end with the hurdle, apparently leaning on it. The calf in question was of fair size and very wild. It rushed the hurdle and attempted to jump it near where the deceased was standing. The calf crashed into the hurdle, which swung back on to deceased, hitting him near the chest, and he fell, striking his head on the concrete floor. He ascertained that the weight of the calf after being dressed was 160 lbs., which would be a fair size one.

NO NEGLIGENCE.

From the result of his inquiries Constable Holley was of the opinion that the death of the deceased was accidental, and was caused by his head striking the floor heavily. He could not find that there was any negligence on any person's part other than deceased, as he apparently made no effort to place the holes in the race. The only way, in his opinion, to obviate any further accident in future would be to put swing gates at the races, and concluded his evidence by stating "the wooden hurdle is only a flimsy affair, and I think it should be built much stronger."

"PURELY ACCIDENTAL."

By Mr. Ryalls: I did not witness the yarding of any calves, but if a calf was separated from its mother it would be natural for it to rush back to its mother. In spite of this I still say that deceased should have had ample time to have had the bolt of the hurdle put in. It is possible that deceased may not have noticed the calf coming at the gate of the race, and if such was the case he would not have had time to put the bolts in to the hurdle. It is possible that deceased's age would operate against him in that he would not be so quick as Slater with the bolts. In my opinion, even had deceased bolted the hurdle, the calf charging it would have broken it. The occurrence was purely accidental.

CALF JUMPED THE HURDLE.

William Shuck deposed that he was employed by Swift Australian Compan (Pty.) Ltd., as a foreman stockman, and knew deceased for about eight years, who was employed at the Meatworks as a yardman.

As witness walked up the race the calf rushed down the hurdle, and at this time he saw the deceased at the other end of the hurdle. The calf did not go through the gate, but jumped the hurdle near where Ryalls was standing. The calf hit the hurdle, and the hurdle hit deceased across the chest, knocking him right over, and he hit his head on the concrete floor of the race. Deceased seemed to be knocked stiff, and his head went right back. He went to his assistance, but he was unconscious at this time.

"I'M DONE."

About a quarter of an hour later Ryalls regainsd consciousness, and he tried to raise himself up, and said to witness: "I'm done; take me out of this!" He mentioned that his right ear was sore, and was feeling it. Witness noticed a large lump at the back of his head, which was turning blue, and it was changing colour the longer he was there. Ryalls was conveyed to the General Hospital by the Ambulance, and about 10.30 a.m. Shuck went to the Hospital and saw deceased in bed, but he did not know him, as he was unconscious.

NO ONE TO BLAME.

Witness was certain that the whole occurrence was purely accidental, and was of the opinion that deceased did not have time to put the pin in the hurdle when the calf charged it. He did not consider that anyone was guilty of neglect or contributory negligence, or was in any way to blame. If the hurdle was dispensed with and a gate made in the wall at the end of the yard this would prevent any further similar accidents to this one.

OBVIATE OTHER ACCIDENTS.

Robert Edward Stewart deposed that he did not notice any blood coming from Ryall's ears, mouth or nose, and Shuck and Slater laid him on his back outside the big shed, and placed two or three chaff bags under his head. He saw the accident, and he was certain no party was to blame for it. The system of separating stock at the works was satisfactory. However, if the hurdle was shifted away altogether this would obviate any similar accidents in the future. If the hurdle was removed and a gate put in at the end of the yard it would be an improvement.

NO SUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES.

Michael Bernard Ryalls deposed that the deceased, Richard Joseph Ryalls, was his father. The deceased was 66 years of age, and was born at Gladstone. He saw his father at the Hospital, but he was in an unconscious condition, and he died about 1 p.m. on December 18, 1942. He had made inquiries, but did not think there was anything suspicious in connection with the death of his father, or that anyone was to blame in any way for it, and he was satisfied that the occurrence was accidental.

The inquest was closed.

—0—

MR. FORDE'S ACTION

"Passing the Buck"

Just when hopes were being entertained that the Federal Government would take action to see that the town of Gladstone would be connected with the Boyne River water at an early date, a letter from the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) has apparently put the plan back to scratch again.

The Secretary of the A.L.P. (Mr. H. Peters) has been advised through Mr. T. L. Williams that the Federal Government does not undertake to put water schemes in the various towns of the Commonwealth.

Mr. Forde has written to the State Premier (Mr. F. M. Cooper), asking him to give it further consideration, with a view to having the scheme listed as one of the necessary works to be carried out. Mr. Forde says that he feels sure that the necessary priority in regard to the supply of material and man power can be arranged.

INDIGNATION.

There is intense indignation locally at this fresh development, and considerable despondency amongst aldermen, union, and industrial members who had been working very hard during the past few months.

"NEVER ENDING DELAYS."

The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis) said that he was very dissatisfied and greatly concerned at the apparently never ending delays. Aldermen and members of the recent deputation to Mr. Williams had accepted the advice of that gentleman that the scheme be referred to Mr. Forde with a view to its completion by the Allied Works Council. After nearly seven years, it was quite evident that the Town Council was just where they started from, and the national aspects of the scheme from an essential standpoint were being lost sight of. After all, the recent representations to the Commonwealth Government they were now referred back to the State Government. Perhaps Gladstone people would be expected to go through their six years' agitation once more, and perhaps see their supply fail for the second time in that period

PEOPLE FED UP.

One well-known industrial official said that Mr. Forde's letter was a classic example of "passing the buck." Mr. Williams suggested Mr. Forde, now Mr. Forde suggests Mr. Cooper. People were getting fed up to the neck, and many would vote for the abolition of parliaments if there were many more instances of such tragic happenings.

"REFUSE TO PAY RATES AND TAXES."

Another member of a militant organisation said that the only way to bring the politicians to their senses and a realisation of the town's serious position would be to refuse to pay rates and taxes of any description until the people were given a supply of water necessary for the health of the community. Over 6000 people were being faced with a water famine, and highly essential industries supplying vital war needs were threatened with closure. If the supply failed the people should evacuate the town and leave it to the politicians.

PROTEST.

Mr. J. G. Darling, secretary of the Trades and Labour Council, said that members of his affiliated unions would meet shortly to deal with the position. The President of the A.L.P. (Ald. H. Anderson) and the Secretary (Mr. H. Peters) are taking steps to protest against the suggester further delay. Strong protests are to be made immediately, and the serious state of the present supply emphasised.

What "pulling together" CAN DO

THE purpose of the A.M.P. Society is to provide financial protection for its members. It is a good example of the force and virtue of prudence when put into practice.

The Society is purely co-operative. That is to say, it belongs to its members and is controlled by its members. Through membership in it an average of one family in every three in the Commonwealth has some measure of financial security, that measure being decided by each member, without let or hindrance.

The Society is, indeed, the greatest co-operative institution in the Commonwealth. Its accumulated funds have reached £140,000,000. Last year it paid out £8,250,000 in benefits to its members or their beneficiaries. For some time it has been putting £500,000 a month into the War Loans; the total now lent to the Commonwealth is £46,000,000, so the Society helps to protect the Nation while it protects its members.

The strength of the A.M.P. and the security of its members come of Co-operation, allied with Prudence. When men and women pull together for their mutual happiness and progress there is no limit to what they can do, provided they seek the things it is wise to seek and shun those it is wise to shun.

Free French Movement

French underground newspapers tell the story of twelve student pilots at an air school, who were dismissed when France gave in, refused to return to their homes, and at a secret meeting agreed to join the Free French movement.

They borrowed money from friends, bought a 9-ton sailing vessel, fitted it with an outboard motor, and on a cold, foggy morning, put out to sea, hoping to reach England. The motor broke down and they were overtaken by a German patrol boat and arrested.

When they returned to port and were led to prison, surrounded by German soldiers, the townspeople looked on, grim and sad. The German judges offered mercy to any who would denounce the instigators of their flight. The twelve refused to tell, and the Nazis sentenced the two eldest to death and the other ten to hard labour for life. Not one flinched.

The ten sat gloomily in a cell apart from that occupied by the two condemned lads, when a prison guard brought a letter. It read:—

"Dear Friends and Brothers.—Tomorrow at dawn we will be told that our petition for clemency was refused, and an hour later we will have left this life. Before we fall beneath the German bullets we will stand hand in hand and cry 'Vive la France!' You, like us, have committed the crime of loving our country. We pay without regret the price of our patriotism. And you, dear comrades, in time of hope and illfortune, remember us and be worthy of us. Pray for us, and for our dear France, too, and tell the truth everywhere. Adieu."

Both were shot at dawn. The ten others are still in German concentration camps. Air Force cadets; their ages from 15 to 18 years.

COMMANDOS

A Family in Action

To-day American Liberators, Hurricanes, Spitfires, Catalinas and other planes roar across the battle skies of the world. Their performances are taken for granted. But less than 25 years ago every flight was so amazing an achievement that it was front page news. Long distance fliers were adventurers as gallant and daring in undertaking as Francis Drake. One of them was Raymond Parer, test pilot of the Great War. Now, at 47, he is still an adventurer.

Recently he received his discharge from the R.A.A.F. (where he had an administrative job). He is now chief engineer on a ship which will carry ammunition and food to Allied bases through highly dangerous waters. He is "in action" again, and glad of it.

In 1920 a patchwork plane, comprised more of makeshift replacements than original and orthodox parts, struggled across the Timor Sea to make a landing in Australia. No one was more amazed than the two pilots. They had seen death face to face many times on the flight from England. Flying over Vesuvius, the plane was caught in the downward current of air created on the lip of the volcano by the rising hot gasses. It was sucked down so rapidly that bolts and screws lying on the floor of the plane were showered on their heads. At Moulemein, in Burma, they crash-landed to save running into the crowd which had gathered to meet them. A wrecked plane and three months in hospital were the results. A new undercarriage, a new propeller, and two motor car radiators helped patch up the plane, and the two pilots flew on to Australia, hopefully rather than expectantly.

The flight in this patchwork plane was the second flight from England to Australia—an epic achievement lasting 206 days (the actual flying time was 168 hours) in the face of continual engine trouble, financial worries, nerve-racking anxieties and experiences.

One of the pilots was Lieut. J. D. McIntosh, killed a few months later in an air crash in Western Australia. The other pilot was Lieut. Raymond Parer.

Ray Parer is not the only member of his family with this unquenchable spirit of adventure. His brother Bernard is a commando. His cousin Cyril is a commando. A cousin's husband is a commando. His cousin Damien has won recognition as a war photographer. His brother Kevin is claimed to be the first pilot killed in New Guinea in this war. He was killed on January 21st last year.

New Guinea, aviation and the Parers have been inseperably connected for many years. Ray Parer ran his own aerial transport from Wau to Salamaua. Kevin Septimus Parer, youngest of this family of seven sons and two daughters, continued the service from Salamaua to Wewack, 500 miles up the coast.

At the time of his death Kevin Parer was flying under Government orders, evacuating women and children across the island to Port Moresby. He and his assistant pilot, Ernest Clarke, were caught in an early morning raid by 13 Zeros which swooped low across the aerodrome, firing incendiary bullets. Kevin's plane caught fire, and Clarke was badly burned making a gallant attempt to rescue him. Clark himself, now flying with Astra Airways, was seriously wounded when the Zeros made a return sweep across the 'drome.

There are close and affectionate ties between two branches of the Parer family. The two fathers were brothers. The two mothers were sisters, and the second generation have common interests and a common sympathy.

Leo Parer, now doing x-ray work in Sydney, is the eldest of his family. His brothers are Ray, Vincent, a doctor in Brisbane and a captain on the Army reserve; Tony a doctor at Maleny, 40 miles out of Brisbane; Bob (the father of two sets of twins), an aircraft inspector in Queensland. He used to be Kevin's ground engineer—and Bernard. The two sisters are Mary, a nurse, who keeps house for Tony, and Josephine, who has a job with the American Army in Melbourne.

Damien Parer, whose films and photographs from various war fronts have shown uncommon artistry is one of the cousins. He had an interesting experience of coincidence recently, when he visited Wau. In looking over the ruins of his sister's home there he found two things—a doll which he had sent one of his little nieces from the Middle East, and a letter addressed to him which his mother had written and forgotten in the haste of the evacuation to post.

Damien's brothers are Fonso, on the staff of a Sydney munition factory; Adrian, a Franciscan priest in Melbourne; Stan, who works with his cousin Leo in Sydney; Ben, returned A.I.F. sergeant from the Middle East, now doing x-ray work in Brisbane, and Cyril. The only sister of this family, Doreen (the mother of two sets of twins) is married to commando Sgt. Owen.

During a recent broadcast from the States, Lowell Thomas asked if anyone had news of his old friend, Ray Parer. He would be interested indeed to know that this adventurous Australian has now joined up to carry on the fight with his own countrymen.

TOMATO DISEASES

Target Spot

Unlike Irish blight, the disease of tomatoes known as target spot is most commonly encountered during the warmer months. Growers in the Stanthorpe district and in coastal areas in which tomatoes are still being planted are therefore advised to take precautions against the incidence of this disease.

The general effect of target spot on the plant is to produce dark-brown leaf and stem spots, a quarter to half an inch in diameter. These are often marked by concentric rings, and it is these markings which give the disease its name.

Affected leaves gradually turn yellow and dry out, the plant becoming defoliated from the base up. Other common symptoms produced by the casual organism consist of a black spot on the fruit, usually commencing near the insertion of the stalk, and a brown shrunken area at the base of the seedlings, which may eventually cincture the stems and cause their death.

The dark spot first formed on the fruit often becomes covered with a greenish-black felt-like mound of mould of characteristic appearance.

The disease may be controlled by applying copper sprays or dusts commencing in the seed bed. The spray or dust should be thoroughly applied and used sufficiently frequently to keep the whole of the plant, including both upper and lower leaf surfaces, well covered.

In wet weather, when there is danger of a very quick spread of the disease, this may have to be done every few days. It is also preferable to spray rather than dust under such epidemic conditions, though where speed is necessary or the ground is too wet for heavy spraying implements, dusting may have to be employed.

As it is very unusual to find a tomato crop free from insect pests, such as corn-ear worm, growers are reminded of the value of combination sprays and dusts which will control not only the commonest fungous diseases, but also the more frequently encountered insect pests of tomato fruit and foliage.

The remains of all tomato plants should be cleaned up and burned at the end of the season.

Full information on the spraying and dusting of tomatoes is obtainable from the Department of Agriculture and Stock.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

Cross of Lorraine

That the majority of the French in Madagascar were sympathetic to General de Gaulle and anti-Vichy was amply shown.

A speaker in the B.B.C. programme "La Vraie Voix de Madagascar" told of many subtle as well as boldly defiant devices used there by those resisting the "new order."

The "Cross of Larraine," the symbol of liberation, was found everywhere. Such a cross, "one metre fifty high," was painted at each corner of the door of the Surete Generale. This had been done over night.

Much more daring was another night's work. The people of Tananarive awoke to find upon the lawns of the Square Gallieni, an immense Cross of Lorraine, fifteen metres by ten. The authorities ordered the Kaolin to be rubbed out. Perhaps it was rubbed in. Anyway, the result was that the cross became incrusted in the turf. A new order was given: "Take up the turf." It was obeyed. Yet once more the desired result was not achieved.

The naked red earth formed the Lorraine Cross, most marked in the middle of the green sward. This became the subject of jibes and rejoicing throughout the town. Now authority's blood was up. The Governor ordered the bare space to be filled in with fresh turf. But the new turf is a young, more delicate green. There is still the unmistakable impress of the Croi de Lorraine. It is as the French inhabitants say, the youthfulness of the Cross of Larraine which makes it ineffaceable.

CONCENTRATION CAMP

Women Do Not Weep

A Croat author, Ivo Balentovic, visited a women's concentration camp in Yugoslavia a short time ago. Afterwards he wrote an article about it which was published in the Hungarian paper "Magyer Nemzet" (which is by no means anti-German). The article was read in the broadcast to Austria, in the B.B.C.'s European service. The following is an excerpt (translated from the German) from Balentovic's article:—

"A young woman was pointed out to me. She had formerly been the leader of a group of Cetnicks and Partisans in Bosnia. I will just call her Maria. She is a Croat and a Catholic. She is very intelligent, and has organised the various groups of Serbian and Croatian women taking armed action against the German and Italian troops. For more than a year they remained hidden in the woods.

"I questioned her: "Are you sorry for what you have done against the Fatherland?"

She deigns no reply. I ask:

"When you are free again, will you recognise Croatia as an independent State?"

"I?" she says, and I can see from the look on her face. She regrets nothing. She has no remorse for the cast that her actions have led to the Germans burning down whole villages as a reprisal. No, she knows no repentance. She just glares at me and says:

"There are 2000 women in this camp, and not one of us weeps."

Before you strike a light remember the needs of the armed forces. The demand for matches is enormous, but the output is adequate for all, provided matches are used sparingly. Some of the chemicals used to make matches have to be shared with the munitions industry. So adopt the slogan: Fewer matches, more munitions.

AMERICA-RUSSIA

Another Highway Opened

Last week's Sydney letter gave a brief account of the linking of Alaska to the United States (which bought it from Russia in the early days) by the engineering triumph of the Alcan Highway.

Yet another link in what may well be a highway connecting the Straits of Magellan to Cape Finisterre, on the west coast of Spain, which would measure more than the circumference of the world, was completed recently.

This is the largest suspension bridge in Latin America, erected by the Republic of El Salvador to link the two American continents by a 14,000 mile pan-American highway.

The Russian Government instituted some time ago a 5000-mile road building scheme to link the east cape of the Russian foreshore of Bering Strait with the gigantic Trans-Siberian and Vladivostock systems. This should be completed early this year, and with the opening of the Alcan Highway, may provide a valuable alternative route for the supplying of lend-lease goods from the United States to Russia.

CAN YOU HELP?

Books, magazines and old clean newspapers are urgently needed by the Gladstone branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. If you have any old newspapers, books, or magazines, kindly leave same at Gladstone Cash and Carry, where they will be collected regularly and despatched to the troops in camp. The camps in the outlying centres are much in need of reading matter and indoor games, such as playing cards, etc. See what you can do.

66 UNITS OF VITAMIN "B1" FOR BREAKFAST!

Professor Priestley, of the Sydney University, writes in the "Australasian Baker" of July, 1942:—

"With respect to their vitamin B1 content, breakfast foods may be divided into two groups: Those that are wholly pre-cooked ready to eat and those not pre-cooked, or only partially pre-cooked during the process of manufacture.

"With few exceptions all members of the former group are extremely low in vitamin B1.

"Members of the second group retain the greater part of the vitamin B1 present in the original cereal grain from which the breakfast food was prepared.

"Thus, a plate of a pre-cooked ready-to-eat breakfast food without the milk, gave 2 units of vitamin B1, while a plate of porridge of rolled oats gave 66 units—33 times as much."

Here is further convincing proof of the wonderful food value of Uncle Toby's Oats — the cleanest, freshest and highest quality rolled oats obtainable. Remember, a breakfast of Uncle Toby's Oats provides 66 units of Vitamin B1 — serve it regularly throughout the year. Sold by grocers everywhere

CURRENT TOPICS

AIR RAID TEST.

An air raid test will be carried out in Gladstone on Saturday, February 6, and all sections of the local civil defence organisation are requested to be at their posts at 2.15 p.m.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND GUILD.

The next Church of England Guild street stall will be held in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, February 26, and donations of produce, cakes, sweets, etc., will be much appreciated. The secretary is Miss Butterworth, Auckland Hill, Gladstone.

ST. PATRICK'S BALL.

The annual St. Patrick's ball will be held in the Trocadero on Wednesday, March 17, and the ladies of the Catholic Church are hard at work to make this year's function an outstanding success. The admission charges are, gents 4/-, ladies 3/-.

A.C.F. STREET STALL.

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the A.C.F. and Patriotic Fund will be conducted on Friday, February 19, and the convenors (Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen) will be pleased to receive donations of jam, cakes, sweets, pickles, vegetables, flowers, etc., for sale on that date.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY.

The usual monthly street stall of the Women's Auxiliary, R.S.S.A.I.L.A., will be held in Gondoon Street on Tuesday, February 9. Donations of produce, cakes, jams, sweets, flowers, etc., would be much appreciated by the organisers (Mesdames P. Irwin and M. Brown).

PATRIOTIC DANCE.

The slogan of the Patriotic and Comforts Fund is "Help us to help our local boys," and with this in view the first dance of 1943 will be held in the Trocadero to-night (Wednesday). Music will be supplied by a full orchestra, and all roads should lead to the "Troc," to-night (Wednesday). Soft iced drinks will be on sale.

PROSPECTIVE BRIDES.

The Rationing Commission cannot make any special allowance to prospective brides. If a girl gets married in war time—a natural thing to do—she must expect to submit to war time conditions, as brides of the last war had to do, and as all other women have to now. A trousseau represents an extra stock of underwear and spare dresses. The Commission suggests that girls who marry can plan for the future by buying the minimum of clothes at present, and thus help the war effort by not imposing an unnecessary strain on our stocks of clothing and man power.

GERMAN BIRTH RATE

Sunk to Low Leel

A recent B.B.C. German broadcast, addressed more especially to the women, gave the figures of German losses in Russia. Dead or permanently disabled amount to four and a half millions.

The same transmission quoted the Frankfurter Zeitung's statement that the birthrate in Hitler's wartime Germany has sunk to a lower level than it did in the last war. The decline in the first four months of 1942 totals 120,000 birth, a drop of 24 per cent. The broadcast pointed out that the more territory Hitler occupies the fewer Germans will remain to populate the extended Lebensraum.

To counterbalance the falling birthrate the Nazis are introducing new laws to cover children born out of wedlock. A decree has been in force for several months in Holland and Norway specifying State benefits for the unmarried mother and her child of a German father. It appears that this decree is now to extend to other occupied countries.

State provision for this "stud" morality is far-reaching, and embraces considerable financial support—at the discretion of the Reich Commissioner, and be it noted, the military courts.

SOCIALISM

OWNERSHIP OF PRIVATE PROPERTY

Mr. K. J. Hansen in Reply

Mr. K. J. Hansen, Gladstone, writes:

Enclosed you will find my reply to Mr. Funk's letter. For my part the matter rests, because, unlike the babbling brook, which hails that—

"Men may come and men may go
But I go on for ever."

I can't go on for ever, hence for my part my argument and ideals must be accepted by the Gladstone public as I have written.

Thanking you very much for your kind consideration in publishing my articles.

THE LETTER.

Mr. Hansen's letter is as follows:—

Now, firstly, comrade Funk, let us consider the right of ownership of private property, which I may add you wisely neglected to discuss in your recent letter.

Formerly socialists were determined to eradicate property altogether, but comparitively recently they have discovered a distinction between private and "personal" property, as it came to be appreciated that clothes and other things were "private," or we are now asked to say "personal" property.

Private ownership of the means of production is a much more narrowly restricted question, comrade. The advocates of its abolition or prohibition, as the case may be, are simply putting the demand for public or State ownership in other words. But to abolish private ownership of the means of production is not to abolish private property in general.

Morally, it is true, we are trustees for all our property. At the same time in human affairs, property may be described as a natural right. There is no mysticism hovering over the origin of such a right. It is based simply upon the expediency for the common welfare, an expediency rooted in the very nature of things.

But though private property may be held subject to all kinds of restrictions and conditions, the principle itself cannot be dispensed with if any freedom of self expression is to remain to the individual; if society is not to be reduced to a hideous dead-level of impoverished barbarism.

Even in a socialist State, your Utopia, comrade Funk, it must remain true that the first necessity of all economical government is to secure the unquestioned and unquestionable working of the great law of property—that a man who works for a thing shall be allowed to get it, keep it, and consume it in peace. Note, sir, that I used the words "economical government."

Now, comrade, let us consider another fundamental principle, viz., the equalisation of incomes. The cry for equalisation of incomes succeeded the earlier cry for the distribution of wealth. This latter has at last, I think, been abandoned, since even the socialists have come to recognise—besides a multitude of other difficulties—that even if an equal distribution could be effected, a few months later there would be no equality at all; the thrifty, the enterprising and the talented would be beginning to resume the position of the more wealthy.

The advocates of equal incomes, as of most socialist ideas, usually support their demand with the claim of justice. With regard to this plan, it must be pointed out, firstly, that it is impossible to base any scheme for the distribution of wealth upon merit, which is wholly incalculable;

Secondly, that merit is not even approximately equal, so that there is no justice in equal reward for unequal deserts.

Thirdly, that there is likewise no more equality in the varying needs of different people.

Fourthly, it is manifestly unjust that easy and pleasant work should be paid for at the same rate as that which is disagreeable and arduous.

So for all these reasons the equalisation of incomes would be very far from affording a just distribution of wealth.

No State can lawfully attempt within the area of its jurisdiction to introduce a condition of communism or to abolish all private ownership of productive wealth, and thus establish a socialist regime, because such action of the State would violate the strict natural right of existing private owners of productive wealth, in so far as it would deprive them even of that portion which would yield them a decent human livelihood. The law of nature itself gave them a strict right with which the State has no lawful power to interfere, and with which the common good demands that the State must not interfere.

No, comrade, I have never asked anyone to become an advocate of Fascism. I never asked you, nor am I of the opinion that anyone should accept the barbaric principles and justice of such a totalitarian state as Fascist Germany.

Fortunately, my ideals of true justice and equality rank far above those of a maniac. I refer, of course to Hitler.

I have just finished reading a book entitled "Mission to Moscow." I would be very glad to lend it to you, sir. The author voices my opinion on Socialist Russia. I quote from him: "Leaders of the Soviet Union I came to know. They are a group of able strong men. I disagree with them in many respects, but I accord to them that which I assume unto myself, namely, credit for honest convictions and integrity of purposes."

That is Ambassador Davies opinion of the leaders of Russia. But unfortunately, Mr. Funk, I am not in accordance with many of the socialistic ideals. These convictions I have written about. The matter rests.

BOYNE WATER SCHEME

"A COURSE OF ACTION"

Mr. Forde and the Premier

The Gladstone branch of the A.L.P. has received further advice from the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) regarding the Boyne River water scheme. The letter reads as follows:—

"I have your letter of the 14th January concerning the desire of members of your organisation that the Boyne River water scheme be completed as soon as possible.

"I discussed the matter with the Premier (Mr. F. A. Cooper) in Brisbane yesterday, and we decided to follow a course of action which we hope will have the desired effect.

"I will write you further at the earliest possible moment."

This branch noted the Press reports regarding a letter received from Mr. Forde to this branch, a copy of which was also forwarded to the Town Council. As this letter had not been before a Council meeting, the A.L.P. refrained from making comments, good or otherwise. The Secretary (Mr. Peters) understands the Council is having a special meeting to-night (Tuesday) regarding this letter, and the Press will be in attendance to publish all Aldermen's opinions.

The A.L.P. has also received a letter from Mr. T. L. Williams as follows:—

"I have to advise that I am getting in touch with Mr. Kemp to ascertain if it will be possible for him to visit Gladstone at an early date. If he can go I will make an effort myself to accompany him."

The A.L.P. has asked the Mayor to allow all bodies who attended the previous meeting to attend this special meeting, and they are awaiting his reply.

BOXING

GLADSTONE TOURNAMENT.

A boxing tournament, under the auspices of the Port Curtis Amateur Boxing Association, will be held in the Town Hall next Friday night in aid of the funds of the Patriotic and Comforts Fund.

An excellent programme has been arranged, and will include eight events.

The main fight of six rounds is between two well-known boxers, Jack Sweet (Benaraby) and Frank Bastean (Newcastle), and this should be a thrilling contest.

The other fights arranged are:—

Ernie Hughes v. Pat Pershouse, Terry Smith v. Stan Pershouse, Des. Raynor v. Colin Weldon, Reg Ringuet v. M. Rooney, Monty Montgomery v. Pat Byrne, Kevin Lindley v. Jack Johnson.

Two other contests will be arranged, and the admission prices are: Ringside 5/-, and 3/- and 2/-, with ladies 1/-.

The tournament is in aid of a worthy cause, and all roads should lead to the Town Hall next Friday night.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

L.A.C. N. Milne, of Gladstone, who has been spending his leave with his parents, returned to his unit in the south last Monday.

COMMUNISM

OBJECTIVE AIM OF SOCIALISM

How the "State" Dies Out

Mr. Leo Funk, Gladstone, writes:—

In offering some comment on the article on education which appeared in your columns of Wednesday, January 27, under the pen of Mr. K. J. Hanson, I would point out that my remarks are not to be considered as in any way personal. They are completely impersonal, in so much as I would address them in the same manner to anyone who wrote a similar article.

It is quite easy to see that Mr. Hanson is not satisfied with the "State" and its functions, and realising that he has the makings of some "good material," I am offering these few remarks in the hope that it may put him on the right track.

Before we can attempt to criticise the "State" we must first of all clearly understand what is the essence of the "State," and the purpose for which it was created, and to do this we must start back into history many thousands of years.

The original form of society (i.e., amongst primitive man) was classless. They lived in groups, each sharing in the common toil, each sharing in the common spoil.

As could only be expected, some of the tribes domesticated the animals which abounded at that time, whilst others reaped a rich harvest from the grain, fruits and berries, growing wild. The gradual depletion of these sources of supply led to the earliest efforts at cultivation. The development of fire made travel easy and safe at all seasons, for the fire could give warmth, and at the same time keep away prowling beasts. Through this wandering tribes contacted one another, where previoosly distance and a lack of fire, etc., was a bar to travelling. Through these contacts we are brought to the development of the system of exchange, with the result that the more there was to exchange the more there was to be had by this system of barter; so formerly, where it was neither necessary nor desirable to take prisoners during tribal wars, it now became apparent that the prisoners could be forced to do the cultivating and any other menial tasks, and thus we have the first division of classes—slave-owner and slave.

It is quite easy to follow from this how there developed the classes of land-owner and slave, with the owner having over the slave the right of sale, life, and even death.

As each slave could and did produce more than was actually necessary for the immediate needs, he created a surplus; and as this belonged to the slave-owner the class of slave-owner was established.

Right throughout the course of history, wherever there has been classes there has been struggle, as between oppressed and oppressor, and as this struggle became violent, the owning class, which naturally was in a minority, had to have some central authority which could and would subject the oppressed class, and thus it became necessary to have a "State" or central authority.

This type of State was much weaker than its counterpart of to-day, due principally to lack of means of transport and communication.

Both ancient Rome and Greece were founded on slavery, and whether the system be monarchical or republican, the slave-owning epoch was a slave-owning State, wherein only the slave-owners had any rights, and the slaves were, by law, "things" or "talking tools," and the murder of one or any number of them was not considered a crime.

Thus we conclusively arrive at the basic definition of "State" as an institution which sanctified the private ownership of property, and declared this acquirement as the highest purpose of all human society, an institution which perpetuated the division of society into classes, but also the rights of the possessing class over the non-possessing, and the rule of the former over the latter.

With the change from slavery to serfdom the law went with it, but always to uphold the rights of the land-owning individual as against the masses in this state of society—the baron against the serf.

The change from slavery to serfdom effected really only one change in the position of the poor class; it merely changed its masters, with this benefit to the peasant, that he was not considered the direct property of the landlord, which at that time was a definits gain in the struggle for liberation.

History is rich with stories of the struggle of the slaves under slavery, and the peasants under feudalism. This was to be expected, and the rule of a small minority of people over the majority could not be maintained without compulsion (the State).

The development of trade towards the end of the middle ages by the discovery of America, when precious metals increased and silver and gold became means of exchange, brought into being a new class of capitalists, who developed very rapidly. With the abolition of the landlord as the principal oppressor and the development of capitalism, the masses once again changed masters, and the propertyless class was still obliged to sell its labour power to the capitalist in order that it might subsist. Every new development from slavery through feudalism down to present day capitalism has broadened and intensified the struggle of classes, which in its turn has caused the "State" to become more and more the instrument of the ruling class, backed up by every device of human ingenuity.

The intense development of capitalism in the fields of production has sharply defined two things in particular in the state of society:

(1) Intensification of the struggle of the masses to obtain the means of subsistence and freedom from domination, this being brought about by the concentration of large numbers of the propertyless class in industrial areas, and

(2) Confined power in the hands of fewer and fewer as the capitalist system of production progressed through its various stages up to the stage of monopoly capitalism of to-day.

So we see that hand in hand with the development of capitalism goes the development of the "State," whose purpose is to maintain the rights of private ownership of property, the right of rule by the few over many, even to the extent of using the "armed forces" of the State against any effort of the masses to gain improvement of conditions, as witness the introduction of soldiers against the strikers in pre-war America.

Two thousands years ago Spartacus organised his fellow slaves into a revolt against the slave-owners of the day of the Roman empire. In the end they were defeated, seized and tortured by the slave owners.

In 1929 Suma Suma (a schooner master) and Kateo (native sergeant of police) assumed leadership of 4000 native boys who forgot all racial and tribal differences in the struggle for better conditions and approached the mission at Rabaul to ask for just one white man to put their case for improved conditions.

On arrival at the mission they were met by Rev. J. H. Margetts, who informed the authorities and set about getting the boys back to work.

On the promise that their requests would receive favourable consideration the ringleaders gave themselves up. The promise was kept to the extent that Suma Suma and Kateo, along with 30 others, were sentenced to terms of from two to three years gaol. And what about the conditions they demanded A pound a month minimum wages with more considerate treatment from their white masters.

Two thousand years makes no difference to the role of the State, and so long as we have classes, then just so long will the State fulfil its function of violent oppression of the many by the few.

Your correspondent has no knowledge of the functions of the State, otherwise he would never have mentioned the communistic "State" when dealing with Nazism or Fascism, or even capitalism.

Communism is the objective aim of socialism, and even under socialism there is no such thing as classes in society, no exploiter and exploited, no oppressor and oppressed, no private ownership of property, or means of production. Thus, there being no classes, there can be no one to oppress or suppress, and thus the functions of the "State" cease. The "State" is not abolished; it just dies out.

V.D. SUFFERERS.

Sixteen of twenty girls charged at the Central Police Court last week under the Vagrancy Act were found to be suffering from venereal disease. On another occasion seventeen girls with V.D. were released on their own undertaking that they would continue remedial treatment if allowed to return to their homes.

The magistrate explained that he had no option, because there was no proper place of detention where these girls could be treated. The need for such an institution was vital.

DEMOCRATIC RECONSTRUCTION.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—We have been repeatedly told that we are fighting this war to make the world safe for democracy, now plans are being made for post-war reconstruction.

The people of the world, certainly, are not responsible for organising and conducting this war; they have been stampeded into it, and evidently it would appear that the people of the world will not be consulted regarding the plan of world reconstruction. Where does democracy come in?

Democracy must be caused to function. The time is ripe for responsible people throughout Australia, and the many democratic countries of the world, to, in the first place, exert their energies to the full in the mighty effort to win the war, and in the second place, see far beyond the present turmoil and tribulation, with full understanding and preparation for democratic reconstruction when peace on earth prevail.

God-given faculties, and the powers of the will of the people need to be exercised with purpose and determination. Law, order and progress, based upon the essential fundamental principle of "Freedom in Security"—local, national and economic—operating under an advanced system of local self determination and national co-ordination, await to be established.

Our future destiny is wrapped up in the effective economic expansion of Federation in Australia, together with the unshakable stability of all competent parts of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

To effect pro-war democratic reconstruction it is essential the Federal Constitution be revised to make it really democratic.

The people living in many areas, having interests in common, of from 40,000 square miles and upwards, throughout the continent, should be given the democratic privilege which makes British communities outstanding—the privilege of self determination.

The decentralisation of "Local Self Government" in many "New Federal Units" would give the people living within those units the opportunity of applying their initiative and resource.

Guided by hard won local experience and animated with an intimate knowledge of their own problems, environments and possibilities, they could best advise upon and direct local settlement and development, industrial and commercial expansion and transport, and fashion and administer all social services within the unit.

In this manner a wide plan of general immigration, settlement and development, both local and national, conceived by the National Government working in close collaboration with the many units, could be economically and effectively instituted to develop internally each Federal unit, and nationally the whole entire Federation.

Democratic reconstruction can be speedily advanced, and full results be more readily achieved by embracing the principles of "Economic Democracy."

Every Federal Unit, every immigrant, every asset added to the resources of the nation, further increases the nation's credit and its security.

The activities of the Commonwealth Bank must be advanced to give full national service, making available the nation's credit to finance adequately the nation's requirements, without increasing the public debt or annual interest charges.—Yours, etc.,

WILLIAM AGER.

AT CALLIOPE

PATRIOTIC RODEO

Net Profit £76/17/-

The patriotic rodeo held at Calliope on December 26 was practically ruined by a torrential downpour of rain. The storm, which covered only a small area, yielded 2½ inches in an hour.

The only events finalised were the maiden and novice camp draft, and these were ably judged by Mr. F. G. Knight.

Results were:—

Maiden draft: W. Devine's Lightning, 62 points, 1; W. Devine's Bobbing, 58 points, 2.

Novice draft: J. Martin's Quicksilver, 64 points, 1; E. Aldous' Sally, and J. Martin's Glitter, tied with 60 points, each for second place.

All other events had to be abandoned.

The storm cleared off in time for the ball at night, which was a great success, both financially and socially, and helped considerably to retrieve the day.

NET PROFIT £76/17/-.

The net profit of the function was £76/17/-, and the four bodies participating, viz., Calliope A.C.F., Calliope Send Off and Welcome Home Committee, Calliope District Prisoner of War Fund, and the Gladstone and District Patriotic Fund, each received the sum of £19/4/3.

Cash donations received were:—

Alf. Stirrat	5	0	0
Galloway Plains Pastoral Coy.	5	0	0
F. Witty	1	0	0
W. Devine	1	0	0

THANKS.

The committee extand their sincere thanks and appreciation to the generous donors of money and articles for the stalls; also special thanks to Mr. Arthur Hulme for the use of the rodeo grounds and cattle, and Mr. E. D. Streeter and Mr. Geo. Small for lending cattle, and to the workers of the various stalls, who had their efforts ruined by the downpour, and to Mr. Joe Marek for his work as gatekeeper.

RAFFLE WINNERS.

Winners of raffles drawn on rodeo day were:—

Groceries, Mrs. R. Hay, Gladstone.

Pig, Dawn Mackay, Gladstone.

Iced Xmas cake, Stan Pugh, Gladstone.

Whip, Graham Mylne, Calliope.

Guessing seeds in pumpkin, F. D. Small, Calliope (a cake); D. Wright, Calliope (trophy).

SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Insistence by schools or educational authorities that their pupils wear a particular uniform or special school clothing will soon be prohibited under National Security Regulations. Stating this, officials of the Rationing Commission said that many schools were still issuing new pupils with lists of official garments for the new school year. Many of these lists are far in excess of the reasonable requirements of school children at the present time. "This is just another custom which must be shelved in the present period of serious clothing shortage," they said. "The aim of clothes rationing is to conserve limited clothing supplies, and to ensure equitable distribution of these supplies. Unnecessary use of time, labour, coupons and materials on special clothes for school children is incompatible with these aims and with a hundred per cent war effort."

ALLIED LIFE LINE.

A FAMILY ON THE HOME FRONT—Albert Joseph McAlister and one of his four sons, all of whom work at B.H.P. shipyards. The reciprocal lend-lease aid between Australia and America can operate only so long as the shipping lanes are kept open and ships are built to carry the vital goods. Australia has to do her part in keeping this life-line operating. She has a number of merchant and small naval ships to her credit, built of Australian steel by Australian workmen, and standing up well to wartime hazards.

COTTON CROP PROSPECTS

GRASSLAND ROTATION

Promotes Growth

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) stated that the reports being received from the district officers indicated that the excessive rainfall experienced in most of the cotton growing areas south of Mackay had, as a whole, not promoted satisfactory development in many of the cotton crops. This was particularly true on the older cultivations of fertile alluvial soils, where not only had a rank vegetative type of plant been produced, but an excessive growth of grass and weeds had developed which was difficult and expensive to eradicate.

Mr. Williams said that it was most unfortunate that such prolonged wet conditions had prevailed during December, for with the shortage of labour eisxting on most farms, many growers would be hard pressed to clean their cotton crops. He hoped, however, that every effort would be made to clean and cultivate every cotton crop as early as possible.

The adverse climatic conditions experienced during the planting season in some of the main cotton growing districts had resulted in a considerable reduction in acreage of cotton being planted. It was necessary, therefore, to give the present area of cotton every opportunity to produce as heavily as possible.

In some instances growers might be inclined to abandon heavily weed infested areas, but where a good stand of cotton was present it was advisable to clean the crop, as there was still ample time to produce a satisfactory yield.

One of the most efficient ways would be to start in the middle between two rows of cotton with a pony plough and plough several shallow rounds, turning the soil to the middle each time. With a quiet horse and using long traces without a swingle tree, but putting a spreader close behind the horse, the soil may be turned away from close up to the plants without damaging them. Only a narrow bar of soil is thus left around the plants.

By using a heavy chipping hoe, with one strike of the hoe this bar of soil can be cut through, thus efficiently removing any weed growth left amongst the plants. When the grass and weeds have dried out the soil should be ploughed back towards the plants by means of the pony plough. By this method very seriously overgrown fields of cotton have been saved in past seasons.

The value of the departmental recommendation to plough out grassland during the late summer and early autumn for the following cotton crop, had once more been demonstrated by the results being obtained by farmers in all districts this season.

"Where the grassland was ploughed early last autumn when the soil was moist the weed and grass seeds were turned under so well that little difficulty had been experienced in controlling weed and grass growth this season, even under the very wet conditions experienced. Where the grassland had been ploughed late when the soil was hard and dry, such good control of weed growth had not been obtained.

The grassland-cotton rotation also promotes the growth of a more suitable type of cotton plant for producing satisfactory returns. In spite of the wet conditions experienced, in most areas following grassland the cotton plants were now less vegetative and carrying more crop than were plantings of the same age and variety on old cultivations of similar soil.

The Minister hoped, therefore, that cotton growers would endeavour to plan their work programme so that ploughing of grassland for next season's cotton planting could be started in March. By ploughing then when the soil is moist, not only will costs of cultivation be reduced next season, but also the killing of the grass in March will assist in conserving subsoil moisture resulting from the summer rains for use by the cotton crop next season.

"We, the free nations of the world, can and must prove by showing a high degree of self- sacrifice and devotion to duty and by accepting greater tasks and heavier burdens that we can impose on ourselves a mightier effort and a stricter discipline than ever enforced by the Axis tyrants on their unhappy slaves."—Mr. Churchill.

What "pulling together" CAN DO

THE purpose of the A.M.P. Society is to provide financial protection for its members. It is a good example of the force and virtue of prudence when put into practice.

The Society is purely co-operative. That is to say, it belongs to its members and is controlled by its members. Through membership in it an average of one family in every three in the Commonwealth has some measure of financial security, that measure being decided by each member, without let or hindrance.

The Society is, indeed, the greatest co-operative institution in the Commonwealth. Its accumulated funds have reached £140,000,000. Last year it paid out £8,250,000 in benefits to its members or their beneficiaries. For some time it has been putting £500,000 a month into the War Loans; the total now lent to the Commonwealth is £46,000,000, so the Society helps to protect the Nation while it protects its members.

The strength of the A.M.P. and the security of its members come of Co-operation, allied with Prudence. When men and women pull together for their mutual happiness and progress there is no limit to what they can do, provided they seek the things it is wise to seek and shun those it is wise to shun.

DIRT BREEDS FLIES

Strict Sanitation Essential

Flies are carriers of many infections, and the refuse in which they breed—decaying vegetable matter, old rags and paper, and manure—should not be tolerated in the neighbourood of the home and dairy.

Strict sanitation in this respect is important in the control of contamination of foodstuffs and dairy products. All properly equipped premises should be provided with a barrow, shovel and broom in the milking yard. After each milking the concrete surfaces of milking sheds and the inner yard should be swept, dung and litter removed to the dung heap or bins, and the floors washed down.

Sweeping should not be commenced until the milk and cream have been removed from the vicinity of the bails, etc., or where milk and cream are stored adjacent to the bails until the concrete surfaces to be swept have been thoroughly damped with water to reduce the risks of contamination from dust.

The surface of the main yard should be kept clean, and the dung and litter removed to the bins daily. Dung heaps or bins should be kept not less than 30 yards from bails, milk rooms and yards. They should be situated where prevailing winds will not convey air-borne infection to the dairy premises.

The surroundings of yards should be kept clean and tidy, and when cattle are allowed to camp near yards the droppings should be cleaned up frequently—not less often than once weekly.

USING RUBBISH IN THE HOME GARDEN

Food Material for Plants

There need be very little waste in the home garden. When the annuals are finished they can be turned into the soil to improve its texture and to return some of the plant foods that they have taken out. The best of them are the plants of the pea and bean family—sweetpeas, peas, beans, lupins and the like. These are too good to be thrown on the rubbish heap and burnt. Scraps from the kitchen should be systematically buried, and any fallen leaves make a good mulch when spread under plants to help retain moisture in the soil.

These materials, in the course of decay, not only release their own plant foods, but help to make available what is already present in the soil by encouraging bacterial activity. Too often such material is thrown away or burnt.

Generally speaking, the only vegetable rubbish from the kitchen or the garden that should not be turned into the soil is that which is diseased or contaminated with troublesome weeds. This can be burnt and the ash used as a soil dressing.

Now that potash isnot available for the home garden, ash from the rubbish heap and other fires should never be wasted. It has quite a useful potash content, and is specially useful for roses and such plants in helping them to resist mildew.

Bones should be burnt, and they can then be broken down to a powder with the back of a spade and used as bonedust. The finer the powder the more effective it is as a plant food. Ashes and powdered bones provide two of the three standard substances used as fertilizers—namely, potash and phosphate. The third, nitrogen, is deficient, but it may be supplied by animal manure or urine, the latter being diluted with about four times its volume of water.

Where it is inconvenient to adopt a regular programme of burying rubbish, a compost heap may be built. Vegetable trash is piled in a pit or an old tank, or even in a heap in some corner, and sprinkled liberally with lime. Successive layers are built up, each sprinkled in turn with lime and kept moist, but not wet. The heap rots down to a valuable compost for the garden beds, especially if it is turned over with the fork from time to time. Where there are shrubs in the garden grass clippings fallen leaves, and the less troublesome types of weed can usefully be piled under them to form a heavy mulch to conserve moisture. In the course of time they will rot down and perform the further service of providing food material for the plants. Such a practice often produces unexpectedly good growth in the mulched plants.

There are certain materials which may find their way into household rubbish and which should not be put on the garden.

Boracic acid and borax are very injurious. Borax is often used for controlling cockroaches, and if it is swept up and dumped on a garden bed will produce a barren patch. The same is true for most antiseptics and disinfectants, though the effect may only be temporary. Salt solutions are injurious, though salt washes out of the soil readily and does not produce lasting ill-effects. Such solutions (corn beef water for example) may be poured on weed clumps to kill them.

DEFENCE OF AUSTRALIA

Compulsory Service

One sometimes wonders if the attitude of Messrs. Ward, Caldwell, Fallon and others of their ilk in the Australian Labour Party, is genuine, or just a pose to obtain them a certain amount of limelight among the unthinking and un-Australians who believe in them. They surely must be very ignorant if their oft expressed views on the defence of Australia are their genuine opinions.

Their vehement opposition to Australians fighting anywhere but in Australia is ridiculous and ultra parochial. Do they ever pause to think where Australia, and they themselves, would be to-day but for the American forces who left their own shores and came thousands of miles at great risk to help defend them from becoming slaves to the Japanese?

Do they want to see Australian towns destroyed by shellfire and bomb because our forces have been prevented from meeting and defeating the enemy before they could land on Australian soil? Any schoolboy could tell you that the best defence is offence, and to carry the battle to the enemy, not wait until he attacks you.

It would appear that they ardently believe in compulsory unionism, but do not believe in compulsory service to render the country safe and free for their fellow unionists. Every good Australian is willing to leave these shores to meet the enemy elsewhere, and prevent him from desecrating our fair land.

The man on the land does not wait for the bush fire to destroy his neighbour's property, and thus render his own vulnerable, but goes at once to fight it and prevent it spreading and causing further damage. So it is the duty of every Australian who loves his freedom and his country to go and meet the foe before he reaches Australia.

The Defence Act should be so altered that Australian soldiers could be sent anywhere deemed necessary for the defence of Australia, the only proviso necessary being medical fitness. Whole divisions which have been trained would then go abroad with officers, N.C.O.'s, and men who are known to each other. This system would have many advantages. If a country is worth living in it is worth fighting for.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

ANNUAL MEETING

President Mrs. P. Irwin

The annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary was held in the Diggers' Hall on Wednesday, January 20. Present: Mesdames H. J. Welsh (president), Gardiner (vice-president), L. M. Walker, Brown, Irwin, Soppa, Farnsworth, Gordon and Stanfield. Mr. P. A. Friend (president) and Mr. Lodder (secretary), of the R.S.S.A.I.L.A., were also present.

Apologies were received from Mesdames Patrick, P. A. Friend, Lodder and M'Guire (Curtis Island).

The meeting was opened with the National Anthem, followed by a minute's silence for the fighting forces.

WELCOME EXTENDED.

Mrs. Welsh extended a hearty welcome to Mr. Friend and Mr. Lodder to the meeting.

The hon. secretary (Mrs. Anson) was unable to attend, and Mrs. Stanfield kindly took the minutes.

ANNUAL REPORT.

The President (Mrs. Welsh) presented the following annual report:—

I have much pleasure in presenting the fifth annual report of the Women's Auxiliary of the Gladstone subbranch of the R.S.S.A.I.L.A.

OFFICE-BEARERS.

At the annual meeting, held on January 21, 1942, the following officebearers were elected for the ensuing year:—

President, Mrs. P. M. Jones; vice-presidents, Mesdames F. Gardiner, W. Collins, H. Welsh; hon. sec., Mrs. E. Ogg.

MEETINGS.

Four monthly and four special meetings were held during the year.

RESIGNATIONS.

During the year our President (Mrs. Jones) and our Secretary (Mrs. Ogg) resigned, both leaving the State.

At a special meeting, held in October, Mrs. H. Welsh was elected president, and Mrs. Stanfield kindly offered to carry on as secretary.

Mrs. Stanfield resigned in November, and Mrs. H. Anson offered to carry on for the remaining term, for which the Auxiliary is very grateful.

REGRET EXPRESSED.

This year we have lost a few of our members, who have left the town, and much to our regret we have lost the benefit of their services.

STREET STALLS.

Four street stalls were held during the year, and proved a financial success. Our thanks are due to the convenors, Mrs. P. Irwin and Mrs. M. Brown.

THANKS.

The Auxiliary wishes to thank all kind friends for the great assistance in donations and cash.

THIRD FETE.

Our third fete was held on the first Friday in November, the result being far from satisfactory, the attendance being disappointing. The dance at night was a great success, and this somewhat compensated for the small attendance at the fete.

SALE OF POPPIES.

On account of the war the Armistice Day celebrations were again cancelled, but the Auxiliary took over the sale of poppies for the sub-branch, and all members who worked so hard are to be congratulated on the success achieved.

CHRISTMAS HAMPERS.

The Auxiliary forwarded hampers for Xmas to the sons of returned soldiers and Auxiliary members, who are serving with the armed forces. Several letters of thanks have been received.

SYMPATHY EXPRESSED.

Our deepest sympathy was extended to Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Patrick in the death of their son, Lieut. Ron Patrick, M.M., also to Mrs. J. Taylor, on her son, Lieut. P. Taylor, being a prisoner of war. During the year we lost a valuable member in Mrs. W. Hort, who died recently. She was a great worker for this organisation.

£50 IN WAR LOAN.

£50 was invested in the Austerity Loan, and £50 donated to the Gladstone sub-branch of the R.S.S.A.I.L.A.

SOCIAL EVENING.

The year's activities ended with a social evening, members of the subbranch being invited to be present, and all spent a pleasant evening.

LOYALTY AND SUPPORT APPRECIATED.

I wish to thank you all for your loyalty and support, and to those members who have gone away I also extend my thanks, and wish them every success in their new sphere. I hope the Auxiliary will continue to function as successfully in the future.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Mrs. Stanfield then read the financial statement, which was confirmed by Mrs. Walker and seconded by Mrs. Irwin and carried.

AUXILIARY CONGRATULATED.

Mr. Friend spoke of the very satisfactory reports of the Auxiliary, and hoped it would function just as successfully through the coming year. He sincerely wished 1943 would see the Allied Nations closer to victory and peace, and closed by congratulating all members for their work and support.

Mr. Lodder, hon. sec. R.S.S.A.I.L.A., also congratulated the Auxiliary, and was pleased that £50 had been invested in the Austerity Loan, and wished them every success in the future.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Mr. Friend kindly acted as chairman for the nomination of officers for the coming year. The following were elected:—

President, Mrs. P. Irwin; vice presidents, Mrs. F. Gardiner and Mrs. W. Soppa; hon. sec., Mrs. R. Farnsworth.

PRISONERS OF WAR DANCE.

Owing to the storm last Saturday it was not possible to hold the weekly dance of the Red Cross Prisoners of War appeal. The convenors wish to advise the dancing public that the dance will be held as usual this Saturday, and appeal to all dancers to attend, as with the extra expense of distributing necessities to sick and wounded soldiers the money is urgently required. Special novelties will be a feature of this Saturday night's dance, and a "full house" would be slight recognition of the good work being carried out by the Australian Red Cross.

ABLE SEAMAN JOHN TAYLOR.

Able Seaman John Taylor, who was recently married in Sydney to Miss Joy Collins, a member of the W.A.A.A.F., was posted to a course in radio location at the Sydney University. He was one of five successful candidates, and secured first place in his examination. However, when volunteers were called for urgent naval duty John immediately volunteered, and has returned to duty. He is the third son of Mrs. J. Taylor, Auckland Street, to be on active service. In fact, the whole family (three sons and daughter Betty) are in the forces. Lieut. Alec, who was one of the original defenders of Tobruk, is in the Far North, and Philip, who fought through the Middle East, is a prisoner of war in Italy.

RED CROSS WORK APPRECIATED.

Corporal Joe Schneider, who is spending a short period of leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Schneider, West Gladstone, called at the Red Cross Sewing and Knitting class and handed the convenor a donation of £1/1/-. Corporal Schneider said that he had been in a position to appreciate the wonderful work of the Red Cross in assisting the sick and wounded, and felt that the least he could do was to show his appreciation. When the little band of ladies first formed their knitting and sewing circle young Joe volunteered to keep members' scissors sharpened. As the class grew the job became one of considerable work, but he never missed, and on all periods of leave carried on the necessary repairs. Once again he has the members' scissors in perfect order.

MR. WILLIAMS FOR CANBERRA.

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) will leave for Canberra next week in order to attend the regular meeting of the Agricultural War Council, which comprises the various Ministers for Agriculture and Stock from all the States and Tasmania. The meeting, which is expected to last a week, will be presided over by the Federal Director-General of Agriculture (Mr. F. W. Bulcock), and will be attended by several members of the Commonwealth ministry as well as the different under secretaries attached to the State departments of agriculture and stock. As this will be Mr. Williams' first visit to Canberra on behalf of the State's agricultural activities, it is expected that he will be fully occupied while there in urging the claims of Queensland for better recognition than has been the case in the past, particularly in respect to essential supply needs for the primary producer, as well as a better price for his labours generally.

BOYNE WATER SUPPLY SCHEME

STILL HELD UP WAITING FOR AN A1 PRIORITY

POSITION REVIEWED BY ALDERMAN W. R. GOLDING

A special meeting of the Council was held on Tuesday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen M. A. Busteed, W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. E. Smith, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson). Apologies for the unavoidable absence of Aldermen R. R. Tudman and J. Deveney were tendered, and leave of absence granted.

The business of the meeting was to consider and deal with matters appertaining to the Boyne River water supply scheme.

THE LETTER.

The Town Clerk (Mr. Grayson) read the following letter, which was received from the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) through the Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams):—

"With further reference to your letter of the 24th December, regarding a water scheme for Gladstone, I have to inform you that I am writing to the Hon. F. A. Cooper, Premier and Treasurer of Queensland, in regard to the matter, asking him to give it further consideration, with a view to having it listed as one of the necessary works to be carried out.

"You will quite understand that the Federal Government does not undertake water schemes for the various towns throughout Australia. The only water schemes that have been undertaken by the Federal Government have been in connection with military camps.

"I am anxious to help the people of Gladstone in every way possible, but it is no use misleading them into thinking that the Commonwealth Government is about to put down water supply schemes throughout the various municipalities of Australia, because this has always been primarily the responsibility of the local authorities and the State Governments.

"The Federal Government enters into the matter by making available the necessary loan money to the State Governments to be spent on approved works put up by the State Governments to the Loan Council, and there approved as necessary public works to be carried out with the loan money supplied to the State Governments.

"If the Gladstone water supply scheme is recommended by your State Government as one of the urgent works to be carried out, I feel sure that the necessary priority in regard to supplies of material and man power can be arranged, having due regard to other urgent Army and Air Force commitments."

A1 PRIORITY ESSENTIAL.

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) said the letter had been commented on by himself and other aldermen. He would say at the outset that he was very disappointed, as it was just another instance of "passing on the buck," and it would appear they were back to where they had started some years ago. A good water supply scheme for Gladstone was essential, but in the carrying out of the scheme they must get some substantial assistance from the Government. However, as Ald. Golding had previously pointed out, it was absolutely essential to obtain an A1 priority in regard to machinery and manpower before the scheme could be started, and until that priority was received, added the Mayor, no real progress could be made.

"CAN BE ARRANGED."

Ald. Smith drew the Mayor's attention to one section of the letter in regard to priority, and it was read as follows:—"If the Gladstone water supply scheme is recommended by your State Government as one of the urgent works to be carried out, I feel sure that the necessary priority in regard to supplies of material and manpower can be arranged, having due regard to other urgent Army and Air Force commitments."

NO EVIDENCE.

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) said the Council had no evidence that a priority had been granted, despite the fact that it had been recommended by the Co-ordinator-General of Public Works (Mr. Kemp).

Ald. Smith said they could take it from Mr. Forde's letter that priority would be granted in respect to machinery and manpower.

IMPORTANT MOTION.

Ald. Golding moved:—

(1) "That a letter be written the Hon. the Minister of the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) to the effect that this Council, being representative of the citizens of Gladstone, views with great disappointment the decision of the Federal Government to refrain from contributing to or constructing the proposed water scheme for this town, from the Boyne River, on the grounds that its military significance, the trade of the port and the industries established in this area are not of sufficient national importance to justify the expense involved.

(2) "That this Council is of the opinion that such decision could not have been reached had he (Mr. Forde) and his colleagues carefully weighed the facts, which are:—

(a) "That the port is taking a very prominent part in a co-ordinated plan for the conduct of the war, for which water, in quantity, is so vital and urgent.

(b) "That many industries engaged exclusively on war work in this area are dependent on a good water supply.

(c) "That in view of the urgency of the whole scheme and the necessity for its early completion it should not be expected that the citizens of Gladstone should be called upon to bear the extra cost of the scheme brought about by the war.

(d) "We therefore request that the whole question be reviewed with a view to the Federal Government granting a subsidy on the scheme.

(2) "That Mr. Forde be requested to contact the Co-ordinator-General (Sir Harry Brown) and support the Deputy Co-ordinator General for Queensland (Mr. J. Kemp's) request for the scheme to be declared of sufficient national importance to have it declared an A1 priority job, and thus enable the first section of the scheme to be commenced immediately, which is now only held up awaiting priority."

The motion was seconded by the Mayor.

OUTSTANDING ESSENTIAL.

Speaking to the motion, Ald. Golding went on to say that as a citizen of a democratic country he would state without fear of contradiction that one of the most outstanding essentials of life was a good water supply, not only from a health point of view, but essential to industries and industrial expansion, and this Gladstone had been denied.

INTEREST AND REDEMPTION.

The Boyne water supply scheme, continued Ald. Golding, had passed through many phases, and had been reported on time and again, and the correspondence in regard to it had grown to huge proportions. It would be remembered that the State Government, in answer to an application for a substantial subsidy, offered the Council one-third of the cost on wages expended, but this was considered by the Council to be quite inadequate. He (Ald. Golding), with the Mayor, took the opportunity last year of waiting on the Treasurer (Mr. Cooper) at the Railway Station when he was passing through Gladstone, and again stressed the urgency of the scheme, and how necessary it was to get a substantial subsidy, and Mr. Cooper informed them that he would grant a remission of one-third interest and redemption over a period of fifteen years, which would mean a saving to the ratepayers of £25,000 on a scheme estimated to cost £90,000.

SUBSIDY ADVOCATED.

The Council had been pressing for the scheme, said Ald. Golding, for many years, and now the people of Gladstone were urging that finality be reached, and the work commenced at the earliest possible date. Now they were told that the scheme did not have the support of the Federal Government. He readily admitted that the people of Gladstone must play its part in paying for the scheme, but as the port of Gladstone and its industries were also playing an important part in the war effort, and large quantities of water were being taken at short notice, Gladstone's effort, in his opinion, was of sufficient national importance to justify the Commonwealth Government in granting a subsidy towards the cost of the Boyne water supply scheme, as the citizens should not be called upon to bear the extra cost of the scheme brought about by the war.

POSITION SHOULD BE REVIEWED.

Ald. Golding considered that the whole matter should be reviewed by Mr. Forde. Gladstone's position as it was to-day, the work being carried out in the national interests, and how it was playing its part in a co-ordinated effort in the successful conduct of the war, when large quantities of water of first-class quality was so vital.

CO-OPERATIVE EFFORT.

The Council in the past had received many rebuffs, continued Ald. Golding, but for all that aldermen were still fighting hard for an adequate water supply for Gladstone, and with the assistance and co-operation of the unions and a united people, he felt sure the politicians would not dare turn the scheme down.

QUESTION OF PRIORITY.

Ald. Anderson said the statement made by Ald. Golding that Mr. Forde had turned the scheme down was not correct. Mr. Forde's letter indicated that priority would be granted in regard to materials and manpower, and when this priority was received the whole scheme could be started and completed.

"ANXIOUS TO HELP."

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) pointed out that Mr. Forde had said in his letter that he felt sure the priority could be arranged for materials and manpoyer, but there was nothing definite that "priority" had been granted. The Mayor then read portions of Mr. Forde's letter, which stated: "I am anxious to help the people of Gladstone in every way possible, but it is no use misleading them into thinking that the Federal Government is about to put down fater supply schemes throughout the various municipalities of Australia." . . . Another portion of the letter stated: "I feel sure that the necessary priority in regard to supplies of materials and manpower can be arranged, having due regard to other urgent Army and Air Force commitments."

PIPES IN GLADSTONE.

Ald. Anderson stated it could be taken for granted that an A1 priority would be received by the Council, and that the Federal Government would sanction the scheme being carried out. The Council had not made any effort to get a priority, except the action taken by Ald. Golding to get an A1 priority for machinery and manpower when he got in touch with Mr. Reinhold by telephone. However, he considered someone should have gone to Brisbane and made the request so as to enable the first portion of the scheme to be put under way, as the pipes were now on the site in Gladstone.

"A COURSE OF ACTION."

Ald. Anderson went on to say they should be careful not to antagonise Mr. Forde, as the A.L.P. had received a letter from him to the effect that he (Mr. Forde) had discussed the matter with the Premier (Mr. Cooper), and they had decided to follow "a course of action which it was hoped would have the desired effect."

The Mayor: Mr. Forde should have advised the Council, as the governing local authority dealing with the matter as to what action had been taken.

ADEQUATE SUPPLY ESSENTIAL.

Ald. Anderson stated the Council should have been advised, and no doubt a letter would be received in due course. An adequate water supply was essential to the progress of Gladstone, its industries, and the war effort, and everything must be done to push forward the agitation until the whole scheme was an accomplished fact, and he would do everything possible to bring this about.

SCHEME AT PRESENT NOT PROTECTED.

Ald. Golding said the Council, as the governing body of the town, should have been advised as to what action had been taken. "Why should an outside body receive a letter days before the Council?" added Ald. Golding. He (Ald. Golding) had no intention of offending Mr. Forde, far from it, but at the same time they should press for a grant for the scheme on account of its national importance. He wanted the ratepayers to clearly understand that before the scheme could be started with no interruption to the work it was absolutely essential for the Council to obtain an A1 priority in regard to machinery and manpower. The Boyne water scheme at the present time was not protected, and "it can't be until it is so declared by the Commonwealth Government," added Ald. Golding. The whole matter rests in the hands of the Commonwealth authorities in regard to the issuing of an A1 priority.

"DO EVERYTHING POSSIBLE."

They had the men in Gladstone, said Ald. Golding, with the ability to carry out the job, but certain restrictions had been imposed on them. In conclusion, he said he would do everything possible to get the scheme started, and would leave no stone unturned until the people of Gladstone had a first-class water supply.

SHOULD GO TO BRISBANE.

Alderman Smith said that seeing that Engineer Fenwick would not arrive in Gladstone until Friday week he considered that someone should be sent to Brisbane to wait on Mr. Cooper, Mr. Kemp, and Engineer Fenwick in regard to the scheme.

MOTION CARRIED.

The motion, as moved by Ald. Golding, was then put to the meeting and carried unanimously.

FIRST SECTION.

Ald. Anderson: What would you suggest about getting an A1 priority for the first section of the scheme?

The Mayor: We will make application to the Co-ordinator General for Public Works (Mr. Kemp).

Ald. Anderson: Would it not be better to send someone to Brisbane to explain the whole details of the scheme, and thus obtain a priority.

Ald. Golding: I do think someone should be sent to Brisbane with a view to getting the scheme started.

The Mayor: Gentlemen, I will leave it in your hands.

REPRESENTATIVE TO BRISBANE.

Ald. Smith then moved that the Council send a representative to Brisbane with a view to going into the scheme with the Premier (Mr. Cooper), the Co-ordinator General (Mr. Kemp), and Engineer Reinhold.—Seconded by Ald. Busteed and carried.

POSITION EXPLAINED.

At this stage delegates from the various local bodies, who attended the recently called public meeting, waited on the Council, and at the request of the Mayor Ald. Golding explained the action taken by the Council in regard to Mr. Forde's letter, and read the motion that had been carried.

"IF THEY GOT ANOTHER REFUSAL."

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) also stated that a representative would be sent to Brisbane to meet the Premier (Mr. Cooper), Mr. Kemp, and Engineer Reinhold, and they were not in the position to do any more at present; but if the Council got another refusal he would take the necessary action to call another meeting.

COMMITTED TO GO ON.

In answer to Mr. Burrows, the Mayor stated the Council was committed to go on with the Boyne water scheme.

Mr. Heathwood said it appeared from an article in the paper that they were right back to where they started from in regard to the Boyne water scheme, so they were pleased to hear the resolution that had been passed.

Ald. Anderson, with the permission of the Mayor, read the letter that had been received by the A.L.P. from Mr. Forde in regard to the course of action being taken.

The Mayor said it was remarkable that Mr. Forde had not communicated with the Council.

Mr. Burrows stated that the A.L.P. had been pushing the scheme forward, and that would be the reason why Mr. Forde had communicated with it.

"GET WORK UNDER WAY."

The Mayor said the Council had done everything possible, and they would still push ahead with a view to reaching finality. The main thing was to get an A1 priority and get the work under way.

Mr. Burrows said he would like to get the whole scheme for nothing, but whatever happened they must go ahead.

ASSIST THE COUNCIL.

Mr. Heathwood said it would be good in the future for all bodies to meet and assist the Council with its problems.

Mr. Peters said the delegates were present that night to support the Council and push the scheme forward.

The meeting then terminated.

"DOING EVERYTHING POSSIBLE."

The Town Clerk (Mr. Grayson) has received the following telegram from the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde):—

"I am doing everything possible to expedite provision of an adequate water supply for Gladstone.

"Have had interviews in Brisbane on this matter with the Premier, the Minister for Agriculture, and Mr. Kemp, Co-ordinator General of Works, and have since made representations to the Defence Committee, Melbourne, that the work be given an A1 priority.

"If this is done the Allied Works Council could be asked to make available the necessary labour if local labour is not available.

"Will write you further later."

A similar telegram was received by the Gladstone branch of the A.L.P.

DENTAL INSPECTOR FOR GLADSTONE.

Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., has received the following letter from the Under Secretary, Department of Public Health:—"Referring to your inquiry regarding the suggestion that a visit be paid to the schools in Gladstone during the period that the dental clinic is not able to function, I have to inform you that the Chief Medical Officer, School Health Services, has arranged to include Gladstone in the itinerary of one of the school dental inspectors."

RED CROSS SOCIETY

PRISONERS OF WAR

Street Adoption Scheme

The campaign to complete the town of Gladstone in connection with the Prisoners of War Street adoption scheme is being energetically carried on. More streets have been completed, and the attractive little house or gate tags fixed to denote the generous donors.

Mrs. R. Elliot finished Yaroon Street, and then went on to Auckland Street, which is now complete as far as the railway.

Mrs. A. J. Watson, assisted by her family, made a complete canvass of Auckland Hill and Marine Parade, and is now doing Bramston and Herbert Streets. Mrs. R. Ricketts has finished Fowler Estate, and is now doing Fisher Street.

Mrs. Hartley, who took over Mrs. C. Smith's collections in Roseberry Street, is now carrying on the collection for Bramston Street.

These ladies, many of whom had no previous experience, have done a splendid job. They report excellent co-operation from the residents.

In some cases they have to explain that the money collected is devoted solely to parcels of food and medical supplies for our men who are unfortunate enough to be prisoners of war in enemy hands. It is kept distinct from the funds of the Red Cross Society, and cannot be used for any other purpose.

A few people have asked if the parcels really reach our boys, and what proof we have that this is so.

The collectors have plenty of evidence to show that our boys are getting their parcels.

Going right back to the last war, when distribution difficulties were more serious, we have a letter Mr. Arthur Greasley still has from the British Red Cross, which sent him parcels regularly right through his long internment in Germany.

Mr. Len Cowan wrote recently to Ald. R. R. Tudman, and he did not mince matters about the work the Red Cross was doing. The parcels, he said, practically saved the lives of many Aussies, and he would never forget the Red Cross service.

The prisoners' daily menu from a German P.O.W. camp published in our columns some time ago hardly contained enough to keep a healthy Australian alive.

Sergt. Walter Elliott (prisoner No. 10041) in Stalag, Germany, writes:—"Food packets continue to roll in from the Red Cross. I suppose that quite a number of our fellows, now alive and well, would be well and truly under the ground were it not for the Red Cross gifts."

We have official evidence to show that Red Cross parcels are being received by our men in all enemy camps. Even Tokio radio has to admit the splendid work of the Red Cross in getting parcels to men there who are on a meagre diet of rice, bread, etc.

Bearing all this in mind, it is little wonder that Mesdames Elliot, Watson, Ricketts and Hartley are getting a splendid reception, and even demands from residents in streets not yet touched, that tags should be made available to them.

An odd resident will let imself go about heavy taxation and austere conditions generally, but when the ladies point out how fortunate we are to be living outside the actual war area, the argumentive one generally relents, and often offers a month's contribution instead of the weekly 1/-.

The Red Cross official figures are nearly 7000 Australian prisoners in Germany and Italy, and presumably 17,000 in Japan. We have not got all the names of the latter yet, but they are getting their Red Cross parcels just the same. Many Gladstone and district boys are included.

There are still many streets in Gladstone to be completed, and the assistance of any lady or gent will be appreciated.

Troopmaster C. D. Patrick has very kindly arranged the services of some of his Boy Scouts to assist Mesdames Watson and Elliot in collecting, and a similar request for assistance has been made to Troopmaster E. Barker on the Valley side of the line. This will give the ladies more time to canvass new streets.

A.C.F. STREET STALL.

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the A.C.F. and Patriotic Fund will be conducted on Friday, February 19, and the convenors (Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen) will be pleased to receive donations of jam, cakes, sweets, pickles, vegetables, flowers, etc., for sale on that date.

CORRESPONDENCE

(We do not necessarily identify ourselves with the views expressed by correspondents.)

MR. FUNK IN REPLY.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—I have always been taught that when entering into a controversy, whether written or oral, two things are essential:—

(1) Absolute honesty, truthfulness, and sincerity. Now, this would apply in any quotation being made, any authority being quoted, and any interpretation of another parties' remarks.

(2) Give your public the credit for having as much intelligence as you possess, with the power to use same.

On the basis of these two points, Mr. Hanson should never contribute to the press.

He says I have never dealt with the ownership of private property, and goes on with some gibberish about socialists originally intending to prevent an individual from owning even a shirt or pair of sox, etc. The early forms of propaganda against all things socialist, were centred around such ideas, as "if you have two cows you must give me one;" "if you have two shirts then I want one."

This form of anti-propaganda was only a stop-gap until such time as the antagonists thought out something more subtle. Since then anti-propaganda has advanced in its ideas, and thus differs from friend Hanson.

There is one thing Mr. Hanson can be sure of: If under socialism it is not possible for the individual to have two, or even three, shirts where he can afford only one now, then at lease under socialism we will be able to buy a better class of shirt at a lower cost than we do now.

For the benefit of Mr. Hanson: In any political discussion it has always been understood (yes, even before Mr. Hanson's time) that private ownership of property means the ownership of the means of production being in the hands of the exploiting class. Mr. Hanson (yes, even he) must have understood this from my previous letters, and yet, in an effort to inveigle his way out of a question he cannot answer, tries to cloud the issue by inverting my statement. Poor tactics, and one to which the public soon wakes up.

No, Mr. Hanson, there is "no mysticism" about the private ownership of property. Just read carefully my article on the "State" in the "Observer" of 3/2/43, and even you should be convinced that the right is not "natural." Even though it is, friend Hanson, who wrote that without the private ownership of property society is to become something dreadful?

I regret I cannot accept the statement without some sound argument to back it up. No, friend Hanson, your statements are as bald as your ideas. I had to correct you once before about the only form of government possible being a political one, yet I see again that you are harping on the "economic government."

To make it read slightly better I must alter your wording to read: "The first economic necessity of any form of government," and even though I have done this for you, I do not agree with the rest of your remarks.

You have acquired an obsession for using words, quite good English when used in their proper context, but totally unintelligible when dished up as you have done, merely to make an article sound imposing—unquestioned and unquestionable. This squandering of words and prostitution of the English language is nowhere taken as a criterion of journalistic ability.

You say that a man (I take it any man, and therefore everyone) is entitled to "get what he works for, to keep it, and to consume it in peace."

If this is to be so, then the worker is to be allowed to keep the fruits of his toil or production, and as the whole system of capitalism is based on the worker producing more value than he received back in wages for his labour power, thus creating a surplus, and as the worker is to be allowed to keep what he produces, there is no surplus, and naturally no capitalism.

Now, to deal with equalisation of incomes. This belongs to the limbo of anti-propaganda along with the tale of the "shirt," and I distinctly stated previously that the basis of remuneration would be different for different classes of work performed, on the basis of:—

"From each according to his ability, to everyone according to his needs." Surely you must remember having read that, and for you now to pretend otherwise is the old trick of evading to deal with a question for which you have no answer. Thus, the whole six of your paragraphs dealing with incomes are brought under this heading. You say, "no state can lawfully, within the area of its jurisdiction, attempt to introduce a system of communism."

Now, friend, how do you explain away the fact that Latvia, Esthonia, and Lithuania of their own accord in 1939 asked permission of the U.S.S.R. to be brought under that system and incorporated within its boundaries? If you cannot explain this, I will, in a later article.

The law of nature, so glibly framed by you and stated as giving the people the right to live, and insisting that the "state" cannot interfere, needs some comment.

By now you will have read my article on the "state," and from it you may possibly have learned (at least, you will have read) that in the original form of society there was no "state" and no "private ownership of property," and in that era of primitive communism we had the society wherein man was allowed to "get what he worked for, keep it, and consume it in peace."

Your mention of Hitler is unfortunate—for you. Hitler's ideas can be no more accepted than yours, but Hitler did have a certain amount of ability, and further, he had the power to enforce his ideas, which were sown on a fertile field, due to the abysmal failure of the capitalist system as it existed in Germany. The internal antagonisms and contradictions of the system left the way open for the ruling monopoly (the Thysson steel group) to nominate Hitler and back him up with their resources. How well Hitler has repaid Thysson is shown by the fact that Thysson is a refugee in Switzerland, hiding from the vengeance of the mountebank he helped to power. Such is the way of capitalism. Even you recognise that Fascism is a curse, and millions of people throughout the world have answered the call in different spheres to defeat this monster!

You go on to say that the "matter now rests." It was you who attacked my reply to an anonymous contributor, so that by common usage, I am entitled to say if it shall end, or at least I am entitled to close the controversy.

Unlike some people, I have a very open mind on all things political, and would be prepared to read "Mission to Moscow," and my address is Glenlyon Street.

In conclusion, Mr. Hanson, you have broken every canon of journalistic decency by your misquotations, misrepresentations, and mis-statements. If you butt into a man's argument, be a man and play the game according to the recognised rules, and not according to "Rafferty."—Yours, etc.,

LEO FUNK.

PADDY'S MARKET

Home-made Jams

The convenor (Mrs. A. H. Friend) advises that the monthly Paddy's market will be held as usual at the Red Cross hut on Friday next, February 12, when a splendid collection of jams, eggs, vegetables, cakes, flowers, fruit, and other home manufactures will be on sale.

A special call is going out to town and country supporters who have been so generous in the past.

A new and heavy demand is now being made on the finances of the local Red Cross branch. This is the supply of milk, ice cream, fruit and other delicacies to sick and wounded soldiers.

The past month was a particularly heavy one in this connection, and total expenditure was considerable, as all lines have to be bought, delivered, and distributed.

It is a service, however, which is greatly appreciated by our own and allied soldiers.

On Friday a large ham (donated by Messrs. Swift (Pty.) Ltd., will be raffled. It is on display at Friends (Pty.) Ltd.

A special feature of this market will be the large quantity of beautiful home made jams available.

Donors of produce, etc., and particularly flowers, are asked to forward the gifts to Friends (Pty.) Ltd. early on Friday, so that the ladies can have the stalls ready for business in good time.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY.

The usual monthly street stall of the Women's Auxiliary, R.S.S.A.I.L.A., will be held in Goudoon Street on Tuesday, February 9. Donations of produce, cakes, jams, sweets, flowers, etc., would be much appreciated by the organisers (Mesdames P. Irwin and M. Brown).

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Pilot Huddleston, Gatcombe Head, is at present indisposed, and the pilotage work is being carried out by Captain Geo. Hildebrand, Brisbane.

L.A.C. Gordon Hando, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Hando, of Gladstone, who spent a few days leave with his parents, returned south on Tuesday to rejoin his unit.

Miss E. J. Cochrane, assistant teacher of commercial subjects at the State High School, Gladstone, has been advised of her transfer to the Nambour Rural School.

Miss June Connellan, of the Commonwealth Bank staff, Gladstone, left yesterday for Montville, where she will spend three weeks leave before returning home.

Sergt. S. Coxon, Gladstone, is spending his annual leave of one month in the south, and Sergt. O. Peters (Rockhampton) has taken over the charge of the local Police Station in his absence.

News of Constable Jack Mason, who was stationed at Gladstone for many years, comes from Palmwoods, where he is now officer in charge of the Police Station. Mr. and Mrs. Mason and family are doing well in the North Coast centre, where young Noel is attending school.

Mr. R. R. Tudman, Gladstone, has been an inmate of the General Hospital for the past week, but the many friends of the genial "Bob" will be pleased to learn that he has sufficiently recovered to enable him to leave the institution during this week-end. We join in wishing him a speedy and complete recovery to his usual good health.

Mr. E. Clegg, who has carried out the duties of manual instructor for the past five years at the Gladstone State and High School, has been notified of his transfer to the Wynnum High School. Mr. Clegg is a most capable and efficient instructor, and he will carry away with him the best wishes of his many pupils, who will look forward with pleasure to his future advancement in the department. Mr. Clegg will leave Gladstone next Friday to take up his new appointment. Mr. J. E. Cartledge, of Bundaberg, will replace Mr. Clegg.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

What "pulling together" CAN DO

THE purpose of the A.M.P. Society is to provide financial protection for its members. It is a good example of the force and virtue of prudence when put into practice.

The Society is purely co-operative. That is to say, it belongs to its members and is controlled by its members. Through membership in it an average of one family in every three in the Commonwealth has some measure of financial security, that measure being decided by each member, without let or hindrance.

The Society is, indeed, the greatest co-operative institution in the Commonwealth. Its accumulated funds have reached £140,000,000. Last year it paid out £8,250,000 in benefits to its members or their beneficiaries. For some time it has been putting £500,000 a month into the War Loans; the total now lent to the Commonwealth is £46,000,000, so the Society helps to protect the Nation while it protects its members.

The strength of the A.M.P. and the security of its members come of Co-operation, allied with Prudence. When men and women pull together for their mutual happiness and progress there is no limit to what they can do, provided they seek the things it is wise to seek and shun those it is wise to shun.

FOREIGN LEGION

A RUSSIAN SOLDIER

Tells of His Adventures

Born and brought up near Stalingrad, a soldier with the Foreign Legion in Tunisia and Algeria, Andrew Sniguireff, now of Sydney, speaks with authority when he says that he looks forward confidently to the outcome of the two present campaigns.

"I'm sure the Russian Army will sweep on to liberate all the territory now held by the Germans," he said, admitting that he wishes he were back in Russia to give a hand with the fighting.

Andrew Sniguireff also paid a tribute to Australian soldiers.

"They are willing, good fighters," he said, "and their equipment is excellent. Australians in general must unite so that her great strength can be used to the utmost. Strikes in the coal mines and in the factories, and absenteeism are all a gift to the enemy."

Andrew Sniguireff was born at Kamenshaja, built on the banks of the Donetz River, in an agricultural district round and through which the war has been raging during the past months. He was brought up in a Cossack community of farmers. When he was 17 Sniguireff entered a military school in a cavalry regiment. As the military schools throughout Russia were under the jurisdiction of the Government, Sniguireff was naturally called on to fight against the Reds during the revolution, and he fought against them for four and a half years.

FOREIGN LEGION "BAIT."

The defeat of the Whites found Sniguireff and thousands of other White refugees in Lemnos, where they were "dumped," as Sniguireff says, by Russian ships. In Lemnos the hapless refugees were given the choice of going to Brazil (ostensibly to buy plantations, but in reality to enrich unscrupulous land owners), returning to Russia, or enlisting in the Foreign Legion. Sniguireff accepted the "down payment" of 500 francs offered by agents from the Foreign Legion and signed on for the required five years' service.

He had an adventurous five years in the Legion, with hard work (building forts and making roads, as well as fighting), poor food, little pay, and none of the glamour with which Hollywood has surrounded the Foreign Legion.

"The films are much too exaggerated," said the former Foreign Legioner, though admitting that he couldn't resist going to see them just the same.

"In the first place, no woman is ever allowed near the Legionnaire's quarters, and though many of the men serving in the Legion were there from misfortune, it was primarily a refuge for criminals, and when we were stationed in the towns all respectable women kept clear.

"As I had served in a military college I knew something of military discipline, and as I was a good soldier I was never punished or badly treated.

Some youngsters did strike trouble, but then there are always some who strike trouble in any army, be it Russian, French, Australian, or any other. But mostly it was their own fault.

CROIX DE GUERRE WINNER.

Andrew Sniguireff won the Croix de Guerre for courage and coolness in action against the Arabs, for whom he has considerable respect as fighters.

"They are crack shots, as they have no ammunition factories to replenish their supplies, and every shot must be a shot to kill. They fight naked, and have a trick of 'melting into the landscape.' Often patrols would be sent into the mountains in search for Arab snipers, who took a great toll of the Legionnaires," he said.

"But when the soldiers reached the mountains the Arabs had disappeared, only to reappear 'from nowhere' as soon as the soldiers had passed. Those of the Legion who fell out on the marches were stripped by their fellow soldiers of their ammunition and rifles. They were then less likely to be killed by the Arabs. Otherwise the exhausted men would have their throats slit, for why waste ammunition when a knife will do the job?"

HUNGRY DAYS.

The food was poor and insufficient, the long day beginning with nothing more than an unsweetened cup of black coffee, served while the men were dressing at five o'clock in the cold morning.

"I still haven't had enough sugar to make up for all those cups of coffee," laughed Sniguireff.

There was no breakfast, and that one cup of coffee had to last till midday, when each man was given half a loaf of bread, a metal mug of wine, a pannikin of soup, very little meat ("sometimes it was horse flesh, but if you're hungry you'll eat anything"), rice or haricot beans or dried green peas and marmalade (as a special treat) twice a week.

C.W. ASSOCIATION

"Women for Canberra" Movement

"What the Country Women's Association has been doing for years in helping all types of women, standing solidly behind their members, has now got to be done politically," said Mrs. I. L. Weber, M.L.A., in an exclusive interview with Industrial News Service, following the "Women for Canberra" meeting held last week in Sydney. Mrs. Weber, who is acting president of the movement, which she founded in Melbourne recently in co-operation with Lady Brookes, came to Sydney specially for the meeting, which was attended by some 250 women.

The main object of the movement is to encourage women to stand for Parliament, and to support any suitable woman's candidature, regardless of party, religion or class.

"Many Australian women, now working in munition and other war factories, are gaining an increased realisation of the real Australia. They are handling Australian raw materials for possibly the first time in their lives. They are learning to take a pride in the fact that Australian steel is the cheapest in the world, that Australia is pulling her weight in armament production, and with this growing pride and deeper knowledge these women will, I'm sure, take a far keener interest in future in supporting women candidates for Parliament.

"Australia is no longer cut off from the rest of the world," Mrs. Weber continued. "The world has come to Australia, and we have made more progress industrially in the past two years than in 50 years previously. Now let us turn the speed of production and the great initiative that has been developed into the winning of the peace."

Mrs. Weber went on to pay a tribute to the good work being done by women in factories, stating that she had been particularly impressed with their work in South Australia, where approximately 70 per cent of the employees—a bigger percentage than in any other State—are women.

In concluding her address to the meeting, which was presided over by Dr. Mary Booth, Mrs. Weber said: "Mrs. Roosevelt has stated that there should be a woman at the peace talks after this war. I say there should be one woman from every country, including Germany, Italy, and Japan."

Gas-producer trouble prevented one delegate from attending the meeting. She was Miss Irene Searls, general manager of a big Melbourne engineering factory, where she has planned an annexe to be staffed entirely by women. The factory makes machinery for all kinds of food processes, and Miss Searls finds the women already employed there to be keen and efficient, picking up highly skilled jobs very quickly.

FRANCE SOLD BY LEADERS

Churchill's Words Recalled

Among all the words and phrases written and spoken since the beginning of this war there are some that stand out boldly because they the clothed with a vivid significance, and contain the clear essence of truth.

Some of them, more especially the words of Winston Churchill, have become battle standards under which peoples and armies fight, while others have crystallised the strawling panoramics of war in simple, clear-cut mental pictures.

History will record the words of Churchill at a time of supreme trial: "I have nothing to offer you but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

At that time the first great tragedy of the war crashed into the minds of the ordinary people — the incredible, unbelievable collapse of France. Explanations and excuses poured out in confused contradiction: "France was rotten," "France had been sold by her leaders," "France was betrayed by the Communists"— half-truths which further obscured the underlying facts.

But when the flood subsided there remained one clear-cut summing up, one simple explanation; and it was so simple that other people felt the truth of it within themselves, a truth very close to all of them, frighteningly close.

"To live; to live at any cost, without risking anything; that was the desire of the French people on the eve of the catastrophe."

These words were written by Ilya Ehrenbourg, a writer of international fame, who had known intimately the travail of re-awakening Russia; a woman who knew and understood people and nations by their spirit. She saw clearly the sickness of France, and since those words were written many other people and many nations have become conscious of the same symptoms within themselves. "To live without risking anything"— the fatal sickness that spells defeat and the death of nations.

THE PRESCRIPTION.

There have been times when we in Australia have been aware of these symptoms; when the diagnosis made for France might well have closer application.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Curtin) pointed to this danger and its remedy when he said: "We who fight shall fight as Australians never fought before. We who labour shall labour as men and women have never laboured before. In this campaign we shall forget all privileges, comforts and rest. Nothing shall block the way to attainment of victory."

That is the prescription which, if followed faithfully and without reserve, will save us from the sickness that killed France. When this war has been won, and the nations judged, Australia can be justly praised for the deeds of her fighting men. Whether we at home shall have the right to share this praise depends upon the way in which we take to the prescription. If we follow it well it can never be said that we "desired to live without risking anything."

MILITARY HOSPITAL CONSTRUCTION.

The Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) said that the construction of military hospitals throughout Australia was proceeding very satisfactorily and there had been no serious hold-ups. The whole hospitalisation of Australia was well in hand. "Shortage of manpower and materials have caused some inevitable delays in completing the construction of projects," said Mr. Forde, "but these difficulties have not prevented good all-round progress being made." Mr. Forde announced recently that military hospital accommodation in Australia was adequate to meet all demands.

AMERICAN RED CROSS

Floating Service Club

A year ago last week the first American Red Cross hospital ship to operate in this war, the Mactan, arrived in Australia.

Now, at the end of that year, she has been converted into the first American Red Cross floating service club, under the supervision of Mr. Irving Williams, of Patchogue, Long Island, field supervisor for the American Red Cross in the South and South-west Pacific. Mr. Williams was in charge of the ship when she sailed from Manila to Australia with 224 seriously wounded American and Filipino soldiers.

At the request of General MacArthur the 42-year-old Filipino freighter was taken over by the American Red Cross, and within 48 hours converted into a hospital ship, painted white, and marked with red crosses. She slipped out of Manila by night, lit up by the flames of the burning city, to sail without proper charts— and only one jump ahead of the Japs —to Macassar, Timor, Darwin, and finally to an eastern Australian port.

The arrival of the Mactan marked the arrival of the American Red Cross in Australia.

At a reunion party held in Sydney Mr. Williams paid a tribute to the welcome everyone aboard the Mactan had received from the Australian Red Cross on their arrival.

CURRENT TOPICS

COMFORTS FUND MEETING.

The next monthly meeting of the Gladstone branch of the Comforts Fund will be held in the Diggers' Hall on Friday next at 3 p.m. A large attendance of members is requested.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND GUILD.

The next Church of England Guild street stall will be held in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, February 26, and donations of produce, cakes, sweets, etc., will be much appreciated. The secretary is Miss Butterworth, Auckland Hill, Gladstone.

COMMUNITY CONCERT.

A community concert in aid of the Patriotic and Comforts Fund will be held in the Town Hall on Sunday, February 14, commencing at 8.45 p.m. An excellent programme has been arranged, and the admission charge is the modest shilling. Particulars are advertised in to-day's issue.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The usual fortnightly meeting of the Council, to have been held on Monday night, lapsed for the want of a quorum, the attendance being the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis) and Alderman W. R. Golding. Aldermen J. Deveney and H. Anderson are holidaying, while Ald. R. E. Smith was working, and Ald. R. R. Tudman is just recovering from his recent illness.

BOYNE WATER SCHEME.

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) has advised the Council by telegram as follows:—"Have to-day urged the Commonwealth authorities to grant an even higher priority for the Gladstone water supply scheme in order to further the proposal. Will support same in person while in Canberra next week." Similar telegrams were received by the A.L.P. and the Trades and Labour Council.

"LOOK BEFORE THEY LEAP."

The issue of new liquid fuel licenses for commercial use will be banned unless it is proved the vehicle for which they are issued is on essential work. The Chairman of the State Liquid Fuel Control Board (Mr. Fraser) announced a direction by the Commonwealth Liquid Fuel Board to that effect. Mr. Fraser warned prospective purchasers of second-hand cars or trucks, especially those in a commercial category, to "look before they leap." He said that difficulty in purchasing new tyres and spare parts made the purchase of second-hand vehicles unwise.

MEMBERS CONFIDENT.

The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams) has received the following telegram from the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde):—"Referring to our conversation regarding Gladstone water supply, I have conferred with the Prime Minister and the Defence Priorities Committee, and am keeping in touch personally with developments. Will advise further later." Similar advices have been received by the Gladstone Trades and Labour Council and A.L.P., and members are now confident that the member for Capricornia will be successful in getting the Boyne River scheme commenced at an early date.

BETTER DEAL FOR PRODUCERS.

Queensland "Country Life," in its last issue, reports that a good deal of interest is being created in the southern States in a recent statement by the Queensland Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) that unless primary producers received promptly an adequate return for their produce and labours a grave food shortage in Australia was inevitable. It states further that the matter will be raised at a meeting of the War Agricultural Council to be held at Canberra early this month, at which Mr. Williams will be present. The paper in question also reported that at last week's annual meeting of the Warm Milk Producers' Association (held in Brisbane), a resolution was carried congratulating Mr. Williams on his recent statement in the press supporting the principle of cost of production, plus 10 per cent., being adopted for primary as well as essential secondary industries.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

COMFORTS FUND

MONTHLY STREET STALL

Donations Asked For

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the joint A.C.F. and Patriotic Appeal Fund will be conducted in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, February 19.

The convenors (Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen) would much appreciate donations of jam, fruit, cakes, vegetables, sweets, or any other home manufacture or articles for sale on this date.

Donations may be left with the convenors, or at Gladstone Cash and Carry.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

A MEDIATOR.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—What might have ended in a serious brawl was nicely averted by a little tact on the part of Mr. W. R. Golding.

On Monday afternoon an altercation which may have become serious, through a little over indulgence, took place in Auckland Street among a number of boys in uniform, and fight was the order of the day.

The street was blocked for a time, and vehicular traffic had to turn into another street. But not so with Bill Golding, who drove straight into the melee, and after a short conversation with a few of the sober boys the door of his car was thrown open and the maddest fighting man manhandled and bundled into the car and held down. Mr. Golding drove the fighting boy away to his home, and in the meantime those left behind dispersed, and the motor bloke (Golding) was voted an O.K. fellow.—Yours, etc.,

"LOOKER ON."

COSTLY INQUIRY

£500 a Day

The Allied Works Council inquiry, which, it is estimated, is costing at least £500 a day, or £100 an hour, will not end in less than a fortnight. Yesterday it lumbered on into its seventh week, having occupied 28 sitting days.

The cost so far is estimated at £15,000, and more than 1700 pages of transcript of evidence have been typed totalling more than 700,000 words.

Already 70 witnesses have been examined, but possibly another dozen are to be called. So the inquiry bids fair to reach the million-word mark.

It appears certain that all this week will be taken up by evidence, after which counsel will commence their addresses. These will last another week at least.

NO PAPER HANDKERCHIEFS.

The manufacture of paper handkerchiefs and facial and cleaning tissues has been banned by a National Security order. The order is designed to reserve limited quantities of imported raw materials for hospital and other essential requirements.

HEALTH OF THE TOWN

MOSQUITOE MENACE

Dengue Carrier a Day Biter

At the next meeting of the Town Council the Health Inspecor (Mr. P. F. Browne) will report on the health and sanitation of the town for the past month as follows:—

SANITARY CONTRACT.

This service has been maintained in a regular and orderly manner. The plant is in good order and condition; the disposal work well carried out, and there is a good supply of covering material on hand. The collection, removal, and disposal of household refuse is working without complaint, and appears to be giving general satisfaction.

The tip has a good covering of sawdust, and appears to have consolidated very well, standing up to the recent heavy rains. There is a good deal of water lying about the tip, but so far no appreciable amount of sagging is noticeable. Usually after heavy rains voids and pockets form, even in the tops properly covered with earth.

DRAINAGE.

Drainage and other complaints were investigated during the month. The heavy rains have shown up all the low lying places about the town.

Off Lane and parts of Toolooa Street are definitely bad, particularly the properties near Mill's butcher shop. Something should be done to drain this area, as there is still a lot of water lying around.

Regarding the drainage at Renton's flats, this is still very unsatisfactory. Although a little work has been carried out since my last report, it is quite evident that unless action is taken to effect the necessary repairs it will drag on from month to month.

In company with the Council Overseer (Mr. Tait), an inspection of the huts erected for old age pensioners shows that the general position is fairly satisfactory.

The two huts erected for married people are now occupied. One of the huts is occupied by five persons. A portion of the verandah has been enclosed with bags to provide additional space, and there are four beds in the hut.

In conversation with the occupier regarding others occasionally residing on the premises, he states this is untrue, while admitting that a number of his friends called each week, they always returned to their own homes to sleep.

MOSQUITOES.

The position regarding mosquitoes is still very bad in certain localities. There appears to be a fair amount of dengue fever in the town.

Inspections show that there are a lot of unscreened tanks in the town, while others are leaking. Some have been concreted inside.

The mosquito that spreads dengue fever is the house mosquito, and will only breed in clean water, such as roof gutters, tanks, etc. Householders produce their own domestic breeding places by neglect.

Where tanks are not screened a liberal use of kerosene weekly will soon destroy tanw larvae, but it must be carried out regularly.

There appears to be a lot of confusion between the night biting mosquito and the dengue carrier.

The dengue carrier is a day biter, and does all his work during the day. The night bited is a disease carrier, and spreads the disease known as filaria. The individual who has sufficient mosquito larvae in his tank to make life in the house unbarable will tell you it is quite useless to do anything until all our stagnant water is drained off and treated with oil.

This argument is illogical when it is realised that the tank breeder is the dengue carrier, while the other mosquito is the night biter, and carries out all his work after dark.

OBITUARY

MR. J. M. TEMPLETON.

The death occurred suddenly on Monday night of Mr. Joseph Markwell Templeton at his home in William Street.

The deceased, who was an old and highly respected resident of Gladstone, was 63 years of age. He was an ardent supporter of football, and at the time of his death was one of the oldest members of the H.A.C.B. Society. His wife predeceased him a number of years ago.

The late Mr. Templeton leaves two sons and two daughters to mourn their loss.

The funeral took place yesterday, Rev. Father Campbell officiating at the graveside.

TOWN WORKS

STREETS REPAIRED

Road to Coney Island

At the next meeting of the Council the Overseer of Works (Mr. R. Tait) will submit the following report:—

MEAT WORKS ROAD.

Repairs to the Meat Works Road were completed. I have inspected this road since the rain on the 30th, and report no serious damage.

BRAMSTON AND GONDOON STREETS.

Repairs have been effected to the broken places on the bitumen surface in Bramston Street from the foot of the hill at Anson's garage to Gondoon Street intersection, and in Gondoon Street from the overhead railway bridge to Bramston Street.

FRIEND STREET.

Repairs were carried out on this street, but since the rain I notice that scour across the roadway and slight damage has occurred on the far end of the causeway, which will be attended to as soon as possible.

FLINDERS PARADE.

There was a small breakaway on the stone pitching at the side of roadway between the Cattle Wharf and Auckland Point that was dangerous to traffic. This was repaired and put in order again, and gravelling was carried out between Auckland Point and Roseberry Street, but since the rain some places will have to receive further attention.

ORMONDE AND SCENERY STREETS.

A deep washout at the corner of Ormonde and Scenery Streets was repaired, and a gravel footpath formed in front of a property in Scenery Street opposite Bayne Street to prevent storm waters from flowing through this property.

CONEY ISLAND.

With reference to the road across the salt pan between Yaroon Street and Kent Street, I have noticed the foundations of this road have been moving for some considerable time now, especially since the heavy traffic has been going to and fro from Coney Island.

I first noticed this movement in the foundations after the heavy rains last year in January. At that time a crack appeared along the centre of the road on the Kent Street side, and on investigation I found that on each side the road where the wheels ran was sinking and rising in the centre, causing the bitumen surface to crack.

Since the heavy traffic to Coney Island the whole roadway is flatening out, and the surface is getting badly cracked, and will break up altogether if this traffic continues. There was no bottom coarse metal specified for this section of road, only 4in. top coarse metal, which is not sufficient on a built-up bank.

PIER STREET AND OAKA LANE.

With reference to the petition from the residents in the locality of Pier Street, I have to advise the Council that last July, after some wet weather, I cleared all the undergrowth and stumps from Pier Street, Short Street, and portion of Oaka Street, on the western side of Auckland Street, and at that time I promised some of the residents that I would be back at a later date with the grader and grade and form up those streets, but unfortunately the grader broke down and went out of commission, so I was unable to carry out my promise. Nothing much of a permanent nature can be done here until I have the machinery to do the work.

DEEP WASHOUTS.

Since the rain last week-end I have inspected all the streets, and no extensive damage has occurred, with the exception of Lord and Eden Streets, and Oaka Lane between Tank and Eden Streets, where some deep washouts will have to be attended to first; also some attention will have to be given to the drain across Central Lane at the Blue Bell Hotel corner. The other small washouts and the edges of the bitumen will receive attention as soon as possible. I also notice Noogoora burr growing in different places. I would advise that a man be put on to pull this before it starts to seed.

SCHOOL DRAINS.

Inspector Adams drew my attention to the storm-water drains through the school grounds at the end of William Street. I understand that the Public Works Department has allocated a sum of money as their half cost for this work, and if the work is not completed before the end of June this money will go back into the Treasury again, and will not be available.

PENSIONERS' RESERVE.

I have inspected the old age pensioners' reserve, and found all the single men's huts clean and tidy on the day of my inspection. One of the men was chipping the grass from around the lavatories. I purchased one door lock and put it on in the hut occupied by Mr. Summerville.

In company with Inspector Brown I inspected the hut occupied by Mr. Wenntong. There are five persons living in this hut. It was also noted that he has a fowl run built on the land adoining, and several fowls were underneath the hut at the time of our inspection. He was instructed to keep his fowls shut up away from the huts, which he promised to do. He was warned about the number of people who congregate there at times.

LORD STREET ESTIMATE.

To arrive at an accurate estimate for the formation and bitumen surface for Lord Street I would have to take centre levels and cross sectional levels every 50 feet, but an approximate estimate would be £600, and for concrete kerb and channel on both sides would be £280.

GONDOON STREET DAM.

Since the rain I notice that this dam is still leaking considerably, and the water is probably coming in at the end of the stone pitching on Easton's side. However, to ascertain this, the job would be fairly extensive, because along the top of the concrete wall across the creek and along the bank on Easton's side would have to be opened up.

CIVIL DEFENCE.

With reference to my appointment as bomb disposal priority officer I herewith tender my resignation. Since my appointment I have received a quantity of literature from the Department of Home Security, Canberra, in connection with this appointment. I am already in charge of the essential and emergency service, which takes up a good deal of my time; besides, the organising ability required for this position is beyond me.

NEW WATER SCHEME.

The work of the pipe laying is still going on. There was some delay for a few days, not being able to get labour, but this was overcome when we got two men that were discharged from Coney Island. The wet weather also retarded the progress. There still remains to be carted 400 12-inch and 76 10-inch pipes. The special castings that I stacked in the yard were carted out and put where they were required on the line, so as to make room for other castings when they arrive.

AT THE WATER WORKS

RAINFALL FOR JANUARY

1171 Points Registered

At the next meeting of the Water Authority the Foreman (Mr. D. D. Jackson) will report that the following works were carried out during the month of January:—

READING WATER METERS.

Repaired three consumers' service pipes which had been broken by ploughing trench.

Cut off several consumers pending water service repairs.

Removed meter and fitting at the old piggery; also checked over water taps in Victoria Park.

Paid two visits to No. 1 tank in connection with the electric indicator not registering at the Power House. The fault was found to be in the indicator at the Power House.

Pumping was changed from direct pumping to gravitation on three occasions during the month. At present we are gravitating.

AT THE WATER WORKS.

On January 12 the spring on the governor control broke at about 3.15 p.m. on the suction gas engine, and about three hours pumping were lost owing to the engine stopping. This was repaired next day, and the plant is in good order and running satisfactorily.

During the month the electric pump did the bulk of the pumping. The suction gas plant only ran for 65½ hours, and pumped approximately 603,320 gallons.

The rainfall at the Water Works for the month of January was 1171 points. The dam on the 1/2/43 was full, and ran over the by-wash by 6in. this being a rise of 10 feet. This is the first time the dam has been full since the 31/1/42. Nos. 1 and 2 tanks were full on the 1/2/43.

Driver J. Fisher knocked off work on January 15, owing to strained muscles of the back, and Driver H. Plumpton commenced duty on January 19.

"Our economies, our saving, our surrender of personal comforts, personal luxuries and personal extravagances will all be needed if those who have gone out to fight are to be fully supported."—Mr. Churchill.

BOXING TOURNAMENT

BYRNE WINS NICELY

Bastean Knocked Out

The boxing tournament, which eventuated last Friday night in the Town Hall, under the auspices of the Port Curtis Amateur Boxing Association in aid of the Patriotic and Comforts Fund, was witnessed by a fairly large crowd.

Owing to some disorganisation of the original programme by the absence of some of the contestants, the matchmaker had some difficulty in rearranging other bouts, and this resulted in a late start being made with the proceedings. There were four bouts, which was the best that could be done under the circumstances.

The duties of referee were carried out by Mr. Geo. Dale, that of timekeeper by Mr. Dave Groundwater, and the secretary was Mr. F. Janson. The work of the officials was all that could be desired.

EXCELLENT WORK.

During the evening the President of the Association (Mr. C. Henderson) thanked the audience for their patronage, and mentioned that the proceeds went to augment the funds of the Patriotic and Comforts Fund, a body that was doing excellent work for their fighting men.

APPRECIATED.

Mr. W. R. Golding, in his capacity of chairman of the Fund, suitably returned thanks to the Association, the officials, and the boxers for their splendid work, which was deeply appreciated.

A CLOSE CONTEST.

The programme was opened with a contest between Terry Smith (10.7) and Colin Welldon (10.2), and it was a willing bout. Smith started the proceedings with a couple of nice straight punches to Welldon's face, followed by a right uppercut. A clinch followed, and they were separated by the referee.

Smith continued to be aggressive, but a nicely delivered left from Welldon flush to the face, and a hard right to the body steadied him up a bit. Smith, who was fighting well at this stage, received another couple of right hand punches to the body, and they hurt.

Towards the end of the contest both boys were very tired, but nevertheless they put up a hard fight, and there some good rallies. The decision went to Welldon by a narrow margin of points.

A GOOD CONTEST.

This paved the way for the contest between Isaac Hopkins (8.11) and Jack Smith (9.2), and it was a thrilling and exciting bout. At the sound of the gong Smith leaped from his corner and landed a beautiful left to his opponent's face, but failed to connect with his right, which went wide of the mark.

Hopkins showed wonderful skill in evading punches by ducking and clever foot work. He possesses a nice snappy right hand, which he used effectively on Smith's body on several occasions.

For a couple of rounds these two boys fought very hard, a number of strong and telling punches being delivered. The terrific pace set told on them, and they were a pair of tired boxers at the termination of the contest. The verdict went to Hopkins after a good contest.

BYRNE WAS MASTER.

The next bout was between Pat Byrne (9.4) and Monty Montgomery (9.3). There was plenty of excitement in this contest, with Byrne always master of the situation and forcing his opponent all round the ring.

Montgomery was out-generaled in ringcraft, and Byrne used some nice left leads, but failed to back this punch up with a right.

Montgomery connected with some lefts, and occasionally drove his right to the head and body of his opponent, but Byrne never failed to return to the attack with some well directed lefts to the face, and there were some fierce rallies.

Montgomery used his feet to advantage, and time and again was able to escape from many difficult situations. It was an excellent fight, with Byrne running out a winner on points.

BASTEAN KNOCKED OUT.

The main bout, which was billed to take place between Jack Sweet and Frank Bastean, did not eventuate owing to Sweet having sustained an injury to his left shoulder, and his place was filled by Harold Rowe.

A good fight was looked forward to, but Rowe had little difficulty in knocking out Bastean with a beautifully timed left hook that connected flush on the chin after one minute's fighting in the first round. When Bastean rose to his feet he was still in a dazed condition.

CONTROL OF MOSQUITOES

FIFTY PER CENT SUBSIDY

Householders Must Co-operate

The Department of Health and Home Affairs, Brisbane, has notified the Council that in order that the State contribute its maximum share to the war effort, the Cabinet on the representation of the Minister for Health and Home Affairs, has decided to request each local authority to plan its health work for the year 1943.

With this end in view, Cabinet has decided to subsidise local authorities by 50 per cent subsidy in carrying out approved schemes for the control and eradication of mosquitoes in their area.

It is desired that the following works and services be carried out by householders:—

The regular flushing and oiling of storm-water gully traps on all premises after rain.

A much more rigorous inspection of all premises to ensure that larvae is not present in rain water tanks or receptacles.

Pumping water out of all air raid shelters and slit trenches.

The drainage of spouting by a series of holes of small diameter, which would barely effect the conduit value of the spouting.

If these steps are taken immediately the effects would be apparent during the present summer.

Filling in of low-lying areas or drainage of same adjacent to populated areas.

Oiling of temporary water-holding areas within 200 yards of houses which cannot be at once drained.

Introducing fish of suitable character, as has been done by the military authorities with splendid results in swamp areas.

The regular oiling of storm-water street gullies after rain.

RATIONED FOODSTUFFS

TEA AND SUGAR

Hospital Patients

In order to simplify the sale of rationed foodstuffs it has been decided that both tea and sugar coupons will, in future, become available at the same date and for the same period.

As from Monday last, tea coupons C7 to C10, and sugar coupons B13 and B14 were available for the period ending March 7.

In order to meet the desires of the retail trade the Rationing Commission has decided that in future two fortnightly sugar coupons will be made available at the one time instead of one fortnightly coupon as at present.

Arrangements have been made to provide sugar for kindergartens throughout the Commonwealth.

The Minister for Trade and Customs (Senator Keane) stated that when the increased tea issue was made to the public last October it was not possible immediately to liberalise the allowance to catering establishments, including hotels.

However, as from February 1, the scale on which permits are being issued will represent a substantial increase to these establishments.

With the improved tea stock position it is now possible also to liberalise the arrangements in connection with industrial canteens, and the burden of tea rationing to hospital patients also will be eased.

Patients will not be required to surrender tea coupons for the first four weeks of their stay in hospital, and in the case of patients remaining for a longer period, they will surrender a coupon for each additional week in hospital.

COMFORTS FUND

GENERALS MCARTHUR AND BLAMEY

High Praise for Work

Praise for the work of the Australian Comforts Fund is contained in letters from General MacArthur and General Sir Thomas Blamey to the Fund Commissioner (Mr. H. C. Gibbons).

General MacArthur's letter, quoted in the January circular of the Queensland A.C.F. division said:—

"Thank you for the amount of assistance your splendid and generous organisation has rendered the American forces during the last six months.

"I am grateful indeed, and I but reflect the sentiment of thousands of American soldiers who have shared your comforts.

"It has added another link in the strong chain of fellowship which binds together our two great nations."

BLAMEY'S GRATITUDE.

In his letter General Blamey, who commands the Allied land forces in the South-west Pacific, says:—

"Thank you very much indeed for the list of comforts supplied by plane to troops in the forward areas, and also for goods supplied by the Y.M.C.A. and Salvation Army.

"These comforts supplied to the troops who have carried out such strenuous fighting, have been greatly appreciated, and I am most grateful for your vigorous effort to supply their needs."

The commissioner at a front line station reports that he is sure every man in the forces in his area received a Christmas hamper.

Small boats took them to forward spots, and others were dropped by plane.

He received many expressions of praise for the manner in which the hampers were packed, and the excellence of the contents.

BIG COMFORTS LIST.

During the six months ended December 31 the A.C.F. distributed to the fighting forces 15½ million sheets of writing paper, nearly 6 million envelopes, 163 wireless sets, 60,100 pairs of socks, 41,000 miscellaneous articles, 40,100 woollen shirts, shorts, and pyjamas, as well as many thousands of pens, pencils, packs of playing cards, books, magazines, and sets of games.

The A.C.F. also distributed nearly 1½ million ounces of tobacco, 360,200 packets of cigarettes, and large quantities of cigarette papers, tooth paste, soap, boot polish, chewing gum, sweets, biscuits, handkerchiefs, and washers.

The fund's circular says that the A.C.F. throughout Australia is responsible for the goods supplied and the finance required for Y.M.C.A. operations.

The A.C.F. is also responsible for 70 per cent of the war finance requirements of the Salvation Army. This 70 per cent is found by three Southern A.C.F. divisions.

The Queensland division does not participate in this arrangement, the Salvation Army finding the Queensland proportion of its Federal expenditure.

A PENNY A WEEK FOR THEIR COMRADES

THEY HELP BOTH WAYS. Doreen Armstrong, one of 300 women now employed on the works of B.H.P., Newcastle (thus releasing men for active service), ticks up a "Penny a Week" Red Cross poster, watched by Joe Waterman (left) and Ross Menzies. Workers at B.H.P. have been regular contributors to the Workers' Red Cross Industrial Fund for some six or seven months. With many B.H.P. men in the services, the thousands of employees are proud to make a weekly contribution to Red Cross Funds.

MORE MEN FOR ARMY

FROM PROTECTED UNDERTAKINGS

Immediate Comb Out

Plans for an immediate comb out of persons in less essential industry, particularly medically unfit men, and fit men, classes 1, 2 and 3 in protected undertakings, is contemplated by manpower authorities.

In the course of these surveys men will be withdrawn from protected industries for armed service and replaced by men and women from less essential industries.

This was stated by the Director General of Manpower (Mr. Wurth) at the conclusion of his three days' conference with Deputy Directors General.

Discussing the administration of the new man power regulations, he said that Deputy Directors General would, as in the past, work closely with trade unions and employers' organisations.

Mr. Wurth proposes, to delegate powers of direction under the new regulations, which involve almost a revolutionary approach to labour allocation problems, will be administered to secure fulfilment of national needs and to meet individual wishes to an extent not inconsistent with national needs.

COMPULSORY DIRECTION AS A LAST RESORT.

"The drive is on," announced the N.S.W. Director of Manpower (Mr. Bellemore) on his return from the Melbourne Manpower Conference.

He forecast intensive surveys from Sydney to Bourke, in which areas would be combed for every person suitable for national service.

Every effort would be made to use the policy of voluntary transfer rather than compulsory direction, because the voluntary system in manpower administration had been successful, he said.

An instruction had been given to manpower officers to use compulsory direction only as a last resort, Mr. Bellemore added.

Before you strike a light remember the needs of the armed forces. The demand for matches is enormous, but the output is adequate for all, provided matches are used sparingly. Some of the chemicals used to make matches have to be shared with the munitions industry. So adopt the slogan: Fewer matches, more munitions.

The price of SPENDING

IT is clear to all that there is a gap between the cost of the War to the Australian people, and what is being taken by the Government in Taxes and Loans to meet it.

The Nation is spending too much, and saving too little.

Saving money is nothing new for the members of the A.M.P. Society. They are accustomed to saving for the defence of their families, but they—and every man and woman—must now save harder for the defence of the Nation.

Every bullet fired by our troops, every bomb exploded, every plane or ship lost, has to be paid for by the Australian people. The more we pay cheerfully to-day in Taxes and Loans, the less we shall have to pay in bitterness when the day of reckoning comes.

The A.M.P. is putting £500,000 of its members' savings into the War Loans every month: already it has loaned £45,000,000 to the Commonwealth.

In war-time the price of spending is future distress.

BRITISH PRODUCTION

Vehicles of War

British production of vehicles for war provides some remarkable figures.

In March, 1942, Britain was producing twice as many tanks as in August, 1941, three times as many as in February, 1941, and five times as many as in July and August, 1940.

Some tanks have as many as 8000 different parts, many of them used more than once, and production of these components is divided up among 6000 firms.

In June, 1942, the production of tanks, jeeps, and other mechanical vehicles was at the rate of 257,000 a year. Taking armoured fighting vehicles as a whole, production in July, 1942, was nearly four times as great as in January, 1941.

In August, 1942, the British Army had 500,000 vehicles on charge, as compared with 45,000 at the beginning of the war.

Australia, too, is putting up records in tank construction, and a brief study of the British figures provides further incentive to those on the home front to put forth every effort to bring victory nearer.

BEAUFORT BOMBERS

Women Kept Them Flying

About May 1941, half a dozen women selected from organisations established for the training of women in ground engineering went into an aircraft factory as workers.

They were the advance guard, and on their performance rested the reputation of women in Australia as aircraft workers. They did their jobs so well that hundreds were called for by December of that year, and now 30 per cent of the workers engaged in aircraft production are women.

The original half-dozen are still "keeping 'em flying," and all of them are in key jobs.

Miss Freda Baker, supervisor of female labour, training, and welfare, is proud of her girls. She has guided the organisation as it has grownfrom the original six to the thousands now emp loyed. She has watched girls move through the training school, out to jobs, and then to positions of responsibility and trust. A glance at a chart in her room tells her the exact position of the trainees. Coloured pins indicate how many are ready for jobs, how many are moving on through the course, and how many are static and perhaps needs a different type of work.

Among the original six is Miss Laurie McLeod, of N.S.W., now female employment officer for aircraft workers in Melbourne; Mrs. Sheila Clark, who had qualified as a solicitor before the war, but who had never practised, is also a member of the "pioneer" group. She is now controller of a gauge room in a gun turret annexe.

Miss Esme Hilditch is now assistant to Miss Baker. "Australian girls are now doing all sorts of jobs in aircraft factories," Miss Baker said. "Thousands are employed, and they may be doing anything from laboratory work to riveting, and they're doing their particular jobs very well.

"They've every right to be proud when they read of our bombers pasting Japanese bases. They're the girls that keep 'em flying."

HANDLING CARGOES

Quick Turn-Around

From the New York office of the International Transport Workers' Federation comes a pat on the back for the New Zealand maritime record of work efficiency during the past year, when workers lost less than one half of 1 per cent of the total working hours.

Valuable time has also been saved by the speeding up of the loading and unloading of vital cargoes. Representatives of the Government, the employers and employees studied the need for the shortening of time spent in port, and succeeded in cutting the average time from 35.7 days to 15.4 days.

About seven of these days were saved by reducing the ports of call. Another eight were saved by instituting a 24-hour working day on the wharves, and five by the installation of new speed-up methods for handling the cargoes.

The I.T.F. also handed a bouquet to the wharf labourers at the Russian port of Murmansk, where the average cargo handled by each man had risen to nine tons a day. At the beginning of the year the average was three tons a day.

PACT AGAINST GERMANY

Knew Real Enemy

The spirit of the majority of Frenchmen was illustrated by the remark of the French engineer quoted in a talk from Radio Paris on January 13.

The broadcaster explained how difficult it was to make Frenchmen realise that their only chance lay in collaboration with Germany.

He cited the case of a "Frenchman from our own country, a Parisian industrialist, to whom I did my best to prove the threat to civilisation that Bolshevik victory would signify.

The engineer replied: "I don't care: I am ready for anything. I will sign a pact against Germany with the devil if necessary."

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

MIDDLE EAST TROOPS

Full Share of Comforts

A report this month on the A.C.F. and Y.M.C.A. activities in the Middle East shows that no matter where our troops are congregated, comforts of every description are made available to them.

In Palestine, wherever our troops are in camp, a well lighted hut is provided and equipped with a good radio, tables and chairs, writing paper, envelopes, ink, pens, etc., table tennis equipment, a portable billiard set, electric iron and ironing table, library, and a plentiful supply of games of all sorts.

Some idea of the way these huts are catering for the boys is shown by the fact that during September 8600 cups of tea with cigarette and biscuit were served free at one beach hut. The number of meals served at the Australian Soldiers' Club in the same area during September was 14,890, and the total beds provided 5594.

Men in the desert are not forgotten, and four mobile units make constant trips to all centres. These mobile units serve coffee and biscuits, and supply writing paper, envedopes, etc. Each spends five days in the desert before returning to Alexandria to replenish supplies.

Each is equipped with a good radio, together with gramophone and pick-up with modern records. Each also has a powerful 6-burner primus stove for heating coffee, together with urn and drums for carrying sufficient water. One truck recently served 2800 cups of coffee in five days, all of these comforts being supplied by the A.C.F.

DON'T TALK

What Togo Wants to Know

"Yes, the whole outfit has gone to Blankville. Wonder why they're sending them there?"

"He's with the Second Umpteenth, isn't he? They're up at so-and-so now."

"Just a line. The old town's starting to hum with all the Americans about. They're putting in an aerodrome down by Skinner's."

Friendly gossip in trains and trams, over bars, in cafes, casual lines in letters, chatter over the telephone. Harmless enough, you may think. They are not harmless; they may be deadly to our cause. Remarks like these are just what General Togo wants to hear, and he will hear them if you make them. Your own loved ones in uniform may pay with their lives for your careless talk. Remember:

If you know don't talk;
If you don't know, don't ask.

ENEMY SPY RING

OPERATING IN AUSTRALIA

Another Warning

Recently Dr. Evatt disclosed that there was a highly organised enemy spy ring operating in Australia. This announcement produced little public comment. It was almost as though someone had said, "There are a lot of kangaroos in Australia."

Dr. Evatt is a busy man. When he says that "There is a highly organised spy ring operating in Australia" he is not endeavouring to amuse the public.

In his announcement he drew a picture of sinister outline. He spoke of a mobile radio transmitter in a van and driven from place to place for the purpose of sending messages to the enemy without the risk of being discovered by the radio-location experts. He spoke also of enemy submarines creeping up to a lonely spot on the coast and landing the master spy, or receiving messages flashed by signal lamps from the shore.

It is only a few days since a merchant vessel was torpedoed off the Australian coast.

THE DANGER IS REAL.

Can it be that we have read too much of this sort of thing in novels? That we have seen too many epics from Hollywood? Have we come to accept such tales as part and parcel of the world of make-believe, that they now have no more substance with us than our old friend Jack of beanstalk fame?

Dr. Evatt may well be a source of wide-eyed wonder to the children of his acquaintance; but his story of the spyring in Australia is not for children—it is for us.

The mysterious van flying across the countryside; the staccato clicking of the key as signals flash to the enemy; the long, black sinister shape of the submarine rolling slowly in the night swell; the spy being rowed silently ashore. These are no entertaining elements from the imagination of Hollywool film producers; they are dreadful, dangerous facts, disclosed by a responsible Minister of our Commonwealth Government.

And these facts affect you; they affect all of us. These spies are among us, in our own cities and towns. They are drawing information from our community and sapping our fighting strength. They forewarn their masters—our enemies— and in doing this, forearm them; they are the fifth column in Australia.

The extent and method of their operations is, of course, known only to themselves, but Dr. Evatt went so far as to suggest that the recent sinking of a merchant ship near Sydney might have been a positive result of their activities on the mainland.

PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY.

We cannot treat the warning lightly. Let us rather pause and reflect upon the help that we, as individuals, may have given to this spy ring.

Let us remember the times when we have spoken in the streets, in shops, in bars and public places, of matters that would give these people information for their use and our confusion.

Consider the occasions upon which we have spoken of the whereabouts of sons and husbands in the fighting forces; of the rumours of new aerodromes and installations; of the movements of ships and the manufacture of new armaments. And, remembering these things, let us think again of the man coming from the submarine, of the man with the secret radio, and of the ship sank off our coasts.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

BRITISH FOOD MISSION

Evolving Basis of Co-operation

Preliminary discussions have taken place between Mr. F. W. Bulcock, Director General of Agriculture, and Mr. W. Bankes Amery, representing the British Food Mission to Australia.

While no results have been disclosed, it is clear that many difficulties will have to be surmounted before the problems facing the two countries will be solved.

Mr. Amery's mission will, however, serve a useful purpose because it is quite certain that whatever degree of co-operation is possible will be achieved.

Since the outbreak of war Australia has made every effort to satisfy the urgent needs of Great Britain, but as Britain's requirements are subject to continual change it would appear that a necessary first step is a more or less fixed programme to which Australian farmers can work.

A changeover from one branch of agricultural production to another involves not only expense, but requires time. This was clearly shown when cheese priorities were increased. Farmers who make the change naturally want to see an assured market ahead for a stated period, and at predetermined prices.

On the other hand, the needs of the United Kingdom are conditioned by the exigencies of war, and fluctuate widely both in the kind and the volume of requirements.

Further complications must arise from the production changes rendered necessary for the feeding of Allied troops in the South-West Pacific, many involving a large increase of particular kinds of foodstuffs of which but limited experience so far has been gained.

Messrs. Bulcock and Amery will continue their talks, and it is expected that a useful basis of co-operation will be evolved.

CURRENT TOPICS

COMMUNITY CONCERT.

A community concert in aid of the Patriotic and Comforts Fund will be held in the Town Hall on Sunday, February 14, commencing at 8.45 p.m. An excellent programme has been arranged, and the admission charge is the modest shilling. Particulars are advertised in to-day's issue.

COURT OF PETTY SESSIONS.

In the Court of Petty Sessions on Thursday, before the acting S.M. (Mr. J. Donovan), William Densil McCosker was charged with having in his possession liquor in the vicinity of a public hall. Defendant pleaded guilty by letter, and was convicted and fined £2, costs of court 6/-, in default 14 days in the Gladstone Lock-up.

FINES OF £7.

In the Court of Summary Jurisdiction on Thursday, before the acting S.M. (Mr. J. Donovan), Livingstone James Lindley and George Harold Harnett were charged with committing breaches of the Defence Acts—failing to enroll for military service. Both pleaded guilty, and fines of £7 each were inflicted, costs of court 6/-, in default two months imprisonment in the Brisbane Gaol.

AMBULANCE DANCE.

A most successful dance was held at the Trocadero last Friday night, and was again largely attended. The music was in the hands of Miss G. Ward's orchestra, and the duties of M.C. were carried out by Hon. Bearer A. R. Barker and Mr. Geo. Curran. The spot waltz was won by Mrs. Wells and Pat Crow, and the Monte Carlo by Mr. and Mrs. N. Gibbon. The next dance in aid of the Ambulance will be held at the Trocadero next Friday night, February 19.

CORPORAL "BOB" PHILLIPS.

Corporal "Bob" Phillips is spending 14 days sick leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Phillips, Auckland Street. The young Gladstonite went through the Middle East campaign, being taken prisoner in Syria. However, the success of the allied drive there later resulted in his release. Last September he went to New Guinea, and was in the thick of the fighting over the Owen Stanley Range, his unit being the first to enter Kokoda. Later at Buna he contracted malaria and was flown to base hospital. A second attack necessitated his removal to other base hospitals, and he was eventually invalided home.

JAP. PRISONERS SURLY.

L.A.C. Erle Baxter, serving with a dive bombing squadron somewhere in New Guinea, writes a very interesting letter to his father, Warrant Officer Harry Baxter. Erle says they had been in the front line for 4½ weeks, and hadn't time to write. Sixteen Jap. bombers caught them in the open the first day they arrived at camp. With no time to run for shelter the Aussies just had to watch the bombs drop some 400 yards away. The boys reckon jungle fighting tougher than that of the desert. He had seen many Jap prisoners, looking for the most part subdued and surly. The Americans had done wonderful work with their field hospitals. Erle being in one with an attack of fever.

GIRLS, PLEASE NOTE

ASSIST THE WAR EFFORT

W.A.A.A.F. To Visit Gladstone

Recruiting officers of the Women's Auxiliary Australian Air Force will arrive in Gladstone on Thursday, February 18, and will remain until Monday, February 22, and they will be in attendance daily at the Grand Hotel buildings.

Girls are asked to help the men who fly by joining the W.A.A.A.F., and all information will be gladly given as to the various musterings to those who desire to enlist.

A number of new musterings have been added to the long list already published that should keenly interest the young women of the Gladstone district.

The W.A.A.A.F. requires one thousand women, and it is the desire of the Gladstone Recruiting Committee that this town should be well represented in the number of girls required.

The R.A.A.A.F. Committee has opened offices in the Grand Hotel buildings, and any applicants who desire to enlist are asked to call between the hours of 5 p.m. and 9 p.m.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mrs. E. D. Streeter, of Calliope, accompanied by her daughters, Daisy, Iris and Rose, and Mrs. W. J. Mylne and children, have left for Kepple Sands for a few weeks holiday at the seaside.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND GUILD.

The next Church of England Guild street stall will be held in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, February 26, and donations of produce, cakes, sweets, etc., will be much appreciated. The secretary is Miss Butterworth, Auckland Hill, Gladstone.

HOSPITAL PRECEPTS.

A hint that hospital precepts levied on local authorities might be reduced in the next financial year was given by Ald. Moon, a member of the Finance Committee of the Brisbane City Council, and one of its representatives on the Brisbane and South Coast Hospitals Board.

CALL UP OF ENEMY ALIENS.

Every alien called up for Allied works is manpowered before his name is given to the Allied Works Council to ensure that an alien engaged in essential primary production is diverted to other work. At times, however, Security Services give the name of enemy aliens to Allied Works Council and ask for their call up. In these cases the man concerned is not manpowered. Prisoners of war under guard are being used on some farming work, but the guarding of these prisoners uses a considerable amount of manpower, and plans are now being discussed for placing prisoners of war in specified farming districts without guards.

HOTEL STAFFS.

Representations have been made to the Director General of Man Power bringing under notice the difficulties being experienced by hotels in maintaining their accommodation servies owing to domestic staff shortages. Mr. Wurth has now decided to grant protection in respect of female staffs to boarding houses and hotels certified by the Deputy Director General to be essential for meeting public needs. In the case of hotels protection will be given only in respect of the accommodation sections; that is, dining room, bedrooms, and kitchen. It is emphasised, however, that protection will not be given unless all action possible has been taken to replace young women by older women.

TRADERS WARNED.

A warning to traders to arrange for their employees to examine ration coupons closely before completing a transaction has been issued by the Queensland Acting Deputy Director of Rationing (Mr. G. S. Ross). The warning follows the discovery of five forged coupons by a Pittsworth firm. Examination of the coupons by Rationing Commission and Government Printing Office officials established that they were forgeries, printed on an inferior type of ungiazed white paper. Although only a small number of coupons is involved in this case, it is thought that an attempt may be made to negotiate other forged coupons.

HARBOUR BOARD

NEW GOVERNMENT MEMBER

Mr. Donovan Welcomed

The monthly meeting of the Board was held yesterday. Present: The Chairman (Mr. A. W. Drewe) and Messrs W. R. Golding, J. F. Donovan, E. W. Crow, C. W. Macfarlan, R. S. Wilson, and the Secretary (Mr. A. D. Hopper).

An apology for non-attendance was received from Mr. C. S. Schache, who was granted leave of absence from the meeting.

WELCOME EXTENDED.

The Chairman extended a hearty welcome to Mr. Donovan as a representative of the Government on the Board, and hoped that Mr. Donovan would have a long stay with them.

Mr. Donovan stated that the Board would have his loyal assistance and co-operation, and he would at all times endeavour to advance the interests of the port.

AT BARNEY POINT.

The Marine Board asked for additional plans in connection with the proposal of the Port Curtis Co-operative Dairy Association Ltd. to lay pipe lines across tidal lands and to instal a pumping unit at Barney Point.—Referred to the Association for attention.

CIVIL DEFENCE.

The Treasury Department forwarded a cheque for £54/6/8, being a further subsidy on civil defence expenditure.

FINANCE.

Payments amounting to £157/10/1 were confirmed, and accounts amounting to £257/15/3 were passed for payment.

GENERAL.

It was decided to make a further remittance of £1000 to the Treasury Department on account of interest and redemption.

COMFORTS FUND

MONTHLY STREET STALL

Donations Asked For

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the joint A.C.F. and Patriotic Appeal Fund will be conducted in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, February 19.

The convenors (Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen) would much appreciate donations of jam, fruit, cakes, vegetables, sweets, or any other home manufacture or articles for sale on this date.

Donations may be left with the convenors, or at Gladstone Cash and Carry.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS

Gladstone Passes

Mr. P. M. Jones, secretary Trinity College of music, London, has received the results of the theory examination held last November. The following passed:—

Preparatory Division.—Shirley Michel (Mrs. G. E. Wilson) 97 hons., Sylvia Willey (Mrs. G. E. Wilson) 88 hons.

Junior Division.—Doreen Downie (Mrs. G. E. Wilson) 90 hons.

Advanced Junior.—Esme June Albury (Mrs. G. E. Wilson) 88 hons.

"BRITISH IMPERIALISM" AND CAPITALISM.

Sir,—Ever since the visit of Sir Stafford Cripps to India in 1942, the phrase "British Imperialism" has been bandied about without much thought as to its correctness, and to such an extent and in such a loose and vague manner that an explanation of this stage of capitalism is not out of place.

From a Marxist-Leninist point of view, Imperialism represents the stage of development into which capitalism passed towards the end of the 19th century, and is distinguished by five features of great importance from a political economy viewpoint.

(1) The amalgamation of bank capital and industrial capital to form finance capital. The early functions of the banks was to collect money and place it at the disposal of the capitalists. Naturally, knowing the financial position of the various enterprises, they were able to exercise a vast influence by enlarging or restricting credits (loans).

By the banking directors also being on the directorates of big industrial enterprises we have the personal contact between the two. In Australian banking, out of the 58 banks which have operated from time to time, now only 11 remain, and in reality only seven dominate the position.

The twelve directors of the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney and the Bank of New South Wales direct 25 other companies, which include C.S.R., Tooth & Co., British Tobacco, Toohey's, Associated Newspapers, Goldsborough Mort, Shipping and Trustee Companies.

The National Bank of Australia, Melbourne, has seven directors, who control 14 companies, including B.H.P., Imperial Chemical Industries, Aust. Consolidated Industries (to whom the Menzies-Fadden crowd granted a monopoly of motor car manufacture in Australia, but were forced to withdraw same under public pressure), Mt. Lyell Mining and Railway, Melbourne Steamships, Australian Iron and Steel (subsidiary of B.H.P.), Metropolitan Gas, and Dalgety & Co., Ltd.

In Adelaide the directors of the Bank of Adelaide control 17 companies, and so on right throughout Australia.

Australian banks have their London boards of advice, so that we can clearly see, not only Australian bank capital linked with Australian industrial capital to form Australian finance capital, but Australian finance capital linked up through London with the whole international finance.

The second feature is the rise of monopolies which exercise a tremendous influence on the whole economic structure, and thus also control the whole political life of the community or country.

There are three main reasons for the growth of monopolies, and to give them briefly they are:—

(1) It is much easier for few large enterprises to reach agreement on price, control of production, etc., than it is for many smaller ones, because under control of production the old contradiction of capitalist versus capitalist comes to the surface, and the small progressive capitalist sees the opportunity to extend his business by the simple method of breaking the agreement, as witness the bread war in Brisbane a few years ago, when the master bakers decided on a zoning system. Some of the bakers decided to operate outside their allotted zones, and thus was Marx's thesis of this contradiction within the system borne out.

(2) The struggle for the domination of the markets by expansion of production causes an overflow or glut of the market, and to stop this competition the smaller producers are eliminated by the stronger withholding supplies of raw material from the weaker, and their use of their connection with baning to restrict credit or loans.

(3) New large enterprises take much capital to launch, and thus it is cheaper to buy out smaller concerns who have been forced to sell.

The third feature of the Imperialist stage is the export of capital rather than the export of goods.

Capital cannot lie idle if it is to serve the purpose of producing profits, and as investment at home eventually leads to gluts on the home market, with the inevitable crises which always accompany expansion of development of capitalist production.

The solution of the problem is investment in colonial enterprises. It is not only necessary, but also attractive and desirable, because in those colonies capital is scarce, material cheap, and wages low, as witness British exploitation of India and the Argentine, the Dutch exploitation of Java and the East Indies, Germany and America in the Pacific, and Australia in the islands ruled under mandate, and the investments in Malayan tin and rubber.

During the present century Britain's profits from foreign investments were five times her profits from foreign trade.

Export of capital also increases export of goods. Between 1902 and 1928 China floated 17 loans for the purpose of building railways, but the proviso was always attached to the loan that all possible materials be purchased from the lenders. In 1923 the Under Secretary for India stated that 95 per cent of all loans made to India were expended in the purchase of British goods.

Even out of the £10,000,000 raised for the construction of the North Shore bridge in Sydney, a big part of the money was spent in purchase of material from Dorman Long & Co., of England.

The fourth feature shows that monopolies have begun shuting out the world's markets.

In 1907 the A.L.G. Electrical Company of Germany and the G. Electric Company of America reached an agreement defining their respective spheres of influence in which they would not compete with each other.

The German company was to have all Europe as its markets, while the American concern was to have U.S.A. and the American continent.

In the struggle for oil the American Standard (John Rockfeller) and the British Shell have parcelled out the world. The Standard prevails in U.S. and most of the American continent, while British Shell dominates in Dutch East Indies, Egypt, India and Roumania. Also international monopolies are formed one against the other—American Oil against British Oil.

Again in 1939, just one week before Hitler's fascist hordes marched into Prague, Sir Oliver Stanley (British Board of Trade), and Hudson (Parliamentary Secretary for Overseas Trade) went to Germany for conversations about an industrial agreement, which could have been aimed at only one country—U.S.A. At the same time French and German Steel Trusts formed an agreement which was aimed at breaking the power of British industrialists.

The final feature was the completion of the territorial division of the world among the few great powers.

In the 25 years ending 1900 both Africa and Polynesia, the remaining two countries were divided up as colonies. Prior to this time only 10.8 per cent of Africa had been so controlled, but in this 25 years the percentage had increased to 90 per cent, and in Polynesia the increase was from 56 to 99 per cent. This meant not only the final partition of these two places, but also the final partition of the world, so that only repartition or division was possible for the future, and this can be brought about only by war, for the voluntary surrender of colonies means giving up voluntarily vast profits by the capitalists concerned, and to expect any capitalist to make this sacrifice is a pipe dream.

From 1913-1929 production in various countries rose as under:—Japan 197 per cent, U.S.A. 70, Italy 70, France 38, and Germany 13.

While in England production declined 1 per cent, so that we see that the existing territorial boundaries, through the creation of trade and tariff restrictions (with consequent stifling of capitalist expansion) becomes more and more impossible, and thus war is inevitable.—Yours, etc.,

LEO FUNK.

COMFORTS FUND

Shorter Socks for Soldiers

New measurements are to be introduced so that one ounce of wool can be saved on every two pairs of socks for men of the fighting forces.

The 16-inch socks at present being made required 4 ounces of wool per pair, and a reduction in the length of the ribbed welt, and in the leg, will save time and conserve wool.

The measure was proposed by the N.S.W. Division of the Australian Comforts Fund, at the recent conference in Sydney. A suggestion by the Victorian delegation that socks should be made to reach only two inches above the boot was regarded as too extreme.

The Queensland representatives at the conference were the Lord Mayor (Ald. Chandler), the chairman of the A.C.F. (Mr. J. W. Fletcher), and the hon. secretary (Miss W. Brennan).

GLADSTONE GIRLS

HELP THE MEN WHO FLY

Unit To Visit Gladstone

It is announced that the W.A.A.A.F. is to be given the chance to do work on aircraft. In the picture on this page of a Queensland R.A.A.F. station an aircraftswoman is being given a working "try-out."

"It was grand," she says. "It's a great thrill to be in a hangar where real work of this nature is being done and to feel that you are playing a vital part in the nation's war effort.

"Lots of girls think that they would not like to live in barracks. But once you have you would not like to live out. It is all comfortable, and you feel part of the show."

Gladstone girls will be given the opportunity to join the W.A.A.A.F. when Section Officer Lilias Dow, the W.A.A.A.F. recruiting officer, arrives here on Thursday, February 18, and departs on Monday, February 22, and can be interviewed at the Grand Hotel buildings.

A special appeal is being made for girls to join or train as clerks, stenographers, typists, cooks and trainee cooks, dental orderlies, sick quarter attendants, teleprinter and telephone operators and drill instructresses.

"The W.A.A.A.F. will welcome skilled or unskilled," says Section Officer Dow. "All we ask is for them to join up while freedom of action still remains. This is the nation's fight, and everyone must be in it until victory is won."

SAVING MOTOR SPIRIT

Permits for Gas Units

All car and truck owners receiving more than ten gallons of petrol a month may now obtain permits to fit producer gas units.

This has been announced by the Assistant Minister for Supply and Shipping (Senator Fraser).

All applications, he said, would be dealt with by State Liquid Fuel Control Boards. The object was to make further savings in motor spirit.

In widening the field of fitment the Government emphasised that in addition to saving petrol it was essential for every user to conserve tyres to the utmost, and thus save rubber, the shortage of which was one of the United Nations' gravest problems.

Owners who fitted gas producer units should keep their running down to the absolute minimum, because there could be no guarantee regarding replacement of tyres.

AIR RAID SHELTERS.

Toowoomba City Council received from the Civil Defence Organisation a reply to the council's offer to pay a quarter of the cost of air raid shelters built in Toowoomba. The letter stated that Federal assistance had been limited to £156,000, and this had been expended, consequently the cost of shelters in Toowoomba had to be borne equally by the State and the local authority. Ald. A. A. Griffiths said the letter did not state where or how the Federal money had been spent. The council decided to forward a statement of its civil defence expenditure.

JOIN THE W.A.A.A.F. ... GIRLS TRY OUT ON AN AEROPLANE.

THE DAIRYING INDUSTRY

SUBSIDY BASIS

Statement by Mr. Williams

"While the price increases of 3½d per lb for butter and 2d per lb. for cheese were recommended by the Export Committee appointed by the Federal Government, it must, in fairness, be emphasised that these figures, in their opinion, provided for award rates and conditions in the dairying industry," said Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., in commenting on a press statement of the committee's report.

"Actually there is no such award operating in this State, and in the absence of the full text of the committee's report I am not aware of the wage basis on which this was calculated. However, apart from these factors, I have never been favourably disposed to the subsidy basis for price increases to the industry, notwithstanding the many reasons which have been advanced in its support.

"The industry in this State to-day is dependent upon the child and female labour that has replaced the man power, which has either left or been taken from the industry.

"Any price increase suggested should, in the first place, be based on the increased costs of farm operation and living. Whether the committee provided a figure in its report I do not know, but from Queensland's point of view this figure is of very material concern, and probably of greater moment than the figures quoted.

"I can see no reason why the dairying industry should be singled out and denied an adjustment of prices based on the increased cost of living."

DAIRY ENGINEERING SURVEY.

The need for the conservation of refrigerating materials and fuels in the dairying industry was never greater, said the Minister for Agriculture, Mr. T. L. Williams).

"In order to provide for the most efficient utilisation of refrigerants and fuels, I have arranged for the conduct of a survey of dairy plants by a chemical engineer attached to the dairy research laboratory staff.

"I feel sure that dairy directorates and managements will appreciate this move and will extend every assistance to the department in its endeavour to provide a further service to the industry in these difficult times.

"The maintenance of low temperatures to effectively treat dairy products means costly refrigeration, and anything that can be done to render refrigeration more effective, to reduce costs, and to conserve refrigerating materials, should be done.

The same applies with equal force to the power or heat requirements in butter and cheese production. Not only must the source of power be conserved, but also its distribution and utilisation along the most efficient lines.

"While these are the major matters of immediate importance," said Mr. Williams, "it is hoped that these activities will in the future be extended to cover all factors relating to dairy engineering efficiency."

BOWLING

DISTRICT SINGLES

Dennis Defeats Wilson

Interest at the week-end centred in the district singles, some very keen games being played. G. G. Dennis had a good win over the championship runner-up, G. E. Wilson, the margin being 31 to 22.

Joe Hogan put paid to the account of Lionel Johnston, and ran out a comfortable winner 30 to 15.

Jack Comino showed a glimpse of his old form by beating the 1942 title holder Alan Sly. There was never any doubt about the result, the final scores being 31-17.

Arthur Greasley defeated Peter Duff 33-21 after an interesting game.

Other matches resulted:—

Joyner-Loveday v. Drewe-Johnston 19-18.

Dr. Friend, Browne, Dennis, P. Friend v. Ferris, Smith, Hickey, Golding 21-30.

A. Friend, Griffen, Archay, Matthews v. Schmidt, Sionee, Weiske, Wilson 30-18.

McPherson, Menzies, Jenkinson, Busteed v. Henery, Newey, Chapman, Humphries 25-24.

Browne, Chapman, Busteed v. Seaton, Drewe, P. Friend 28-20.

Joyner, Busteed, Jenkinson, Loveday v. Ferris, Smith, Blake, S. Wilson 47-10.

HOSPITAL FINANCE

COMPULSORY PLAN

Payment During Health

Suggestions for a compulsory contributory medical plan, with payment made during health, to solve the problems of hospital maintenance, have been made.

The sponsor of the plan was the Superintendent of the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital, Sydney (Dr. A. B. Lilley), who gave evidence before the Parliamentary Social Services Committee.

All hospitals, he said, should be brought into such a plan, and it should be run by an aggregation of hospitals. He envisaged a plan which would cost no more, in most cases, than the price of a newspaper a day.

This, said Dr. Lilley, would meet the essential needs of hospital services, enable patients to avoid debt because of sickness, and retain their self-respect, yield an income to hospitals, preserve the independent practice of medicine, enable doctors to collect fees more readily, and lessen the financial burden of sickness.

LIVING AND DYING

"Costs Too Much"

It costs too much to be born, too much to aspire to normal health, and too much to die," the Superintendent of the Canberra Community Hospital (Dr. L. W. Nott) said in evidence before the Parliamentary Social Security Committee.

Under the present system, he added, sickness always meant an embarrassing charity or a financial tragedy, too often the forerunner of domestic discord and unhappiness.

Dr. Nott urged nationalisation of medicine as an imperative part of a social reconstruction plan. The country, he said, should be zoned on a basis, having an absolute relation to sickness hazards and density of population. Under the present hospital system there was an inequitable distribution of medical and specialist services.

The Secretary of the Hospital Commission of N.S.W. (Mr. H. R. Digby) said that there was a serious shortage of public and many types of special hospital accommodation in New South Wales. The closing of private hospitals, because of staff and equipment difficulties, was increasing the burden on public hospitals.

INFECTIOUS DISEASES PATIENTS.

The Health Inspector (Mr. V. R. Warneminde) reported to the Bungil Shire Council that the Joint Health Board had approved of an agreement providing for treatment for infectious diseases patients to be paid for by the local authority in whose area the patient was a resident, and not the authority in whose area the disease was diagnosed.

1943 COTTON CROP

DEPEND ON WOMEN

Land Army Camps

As harvesting of the 1943 cotton crop will largely depend on the Women's Land Army, the Cotton Board is asking its members to indicate the amount of labour required, and to suggest location of Land Army camps.

The Board's general manager (Mr. Young) said that members of the Land Army did excellent work in harvesting the cotton in the Lower Burdekin Valley in the latter part of 1942.

This year it was proposed to establish camps in available buildings in towns or to set up tent camps at convenient sites adjacent to cotton areas. These would each consist of 30 or more members of the Land Army.

The camps would be in charge of responsible officers. Members of the Land Army would have to be transported from camps to cotton fields and returned each day. Provision would also have to be made for a supply of water and food commodities.

An alternative scheme to the establishment of central camps was the billeting of Land Army members in growers' homes. So far, however, indications were that not many growers could do this, as accommodation was not generally available.

The women would harvest cotton under the ordinary award rate of pay, and where located at central camps growers would have to pay 6d per 100 lbs. in lieu of accommodation.

The price of SPENDING

IT is clear to all that there is a gap between the cost of the War to the Australian people, and what is being taken by the Government in Taxes and Loans to meet it.

The Nation is spending too much, and saving too little.

Saving money is nothing new for the members of the A.M.P. Society. They are accustomed to saving for the defence of their families, but they—and every man and woman—must now save harder for the defence of the Nation.

Every bullet fired by our troops, every bomb exploded, every plane or ship lost, has to be paid for by the Australian people. The more we pay cheerfully to-day in Taxes and Loans, the less we shall have to pay in bitterness when the day of reckoning comes.

The A.M.P. is putting £500,000 of its members' savings into the War Loans every month: already it has loaned £45,000,000 to the Commonwealth.

In war-time the price of spending is future distress.

NURSES AND HOSPITAL STAFF

To be Controlled

As the result of conferences between the Director General of Man Power, the Director General of Medical Services, the Director General of Health, and the Central Medical Co-ordination Committee, arrangements have been virtually concluded under which the Man Power Directorate will assume full responsibility for the control of all nurses and hospital staff.

In future no female who holds such qualifications as would entitle her to be registered as a general nurse, midwifery nurse, midwife, infants' nurse, or mothercraft nurse under any relevant Act of Parliament of any State, or who shall become so qualified, and no pupil nurse shall be permitted to engage in any occupation where her nursing skill or qualifications will not be used to full advantage.

In this connection the requirements of day nurseries, creches and industrial first aid or ambulance stations will not be overlooked.

A pupil nurse is definied as a female who has completed her professional period and is still continuing, but has not completed her period of training at a hospital officially recognised as a training centre for nurses.

LEND-LEASE

Assisting America

With American and British aid Australia has been able to develop a notable munitions output, and at the same time put a relatively large army into the field. Nevertheless, much of Australia's great strength still lies in her agriculture.

Discussing lend-lease arrangements between America and Australia, Dr. E. R. Walker, chief economic adviser to the Department of War Organisation of Industry, points out that, although specialised machines and materials such as tinplate, cotton, motor vehicles, petrol and lubricating oil sent us by America had greatly assisted our war production, we have been able to provide American forces in this part of the world with large supplies of foodstuffs. Thereby America has been enabled to fill her ships with fighting equipment instead of having to reserve space for food and similar stores.

REVERSE LEND-LEASE.

When American troops began to reach Australia, the Commonwealth Government advised the American Government that we would be happy to provide goods that America needed under reverse lend-lease. Subsequently a mutual aid agreement, similar to that then existing between America and Britain, was made between America and Australia.

Direction in which Australia has been able to aid America are many and diverse. We have been able to help her navy in many practical ways. In addition to other forms of assistance, we provide under lend-lease all port charges and stevedoring for her navy transports and other ships under American Government control. Australia has also developed a large ship repairing industry.

GOODS AND SERVICES.

For her army in Australia we provide rations, camp accommodation and stores. For this purpose we have built special camps and depots. We have provided hospital buildings and accommodation in Australian hospitals, and military and dental stores.

Our airfields and airforce establishments have naturally been placed at the disposal of the Americans, but in addition we have carried out a large constructional programme of new airfields, assembly and repair depots. Facilities for servicing of aircraft are also being provided.

The whole of the transportation of American forces and stores in Australia by land, sea and air is provided under lend-lease. The same applies to telephones and telegraphs.

Portion of our manufacturing equipment has been adjusted to supply certain types of munitions to American specifications, and among other equipment manufactured locally supplied to the American forces are motor tyres and uniforms.

As Dr. Walker mentions, the money value of American lend-lease aid to us is still well ahead of that of ours to America, but it shows this country is not merely on the receiving end of the lend-lease line.

Admittedly Australia has important reasons for striving to assist America in this way. There would be no sense in wasting much valuable space in bringing here things that can be supplied locally, and the vital desire of Australia is for more of the equipment needed to push on to Tokio.

CAN YOU HELP?

Books, magazines and old clean newspapers are urgently needed by the Gladstone branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. If you have any old newspapers, books, or magazines, kindly leave same at Gladstone Cash and Carry, where they will be collected regularly and despatched to the troops in camp. The camps in the outlying centres are much in need of reading matter and indoor games, such as playing cards, etc. See what you can do.

Before you strike a light remember the needs of the armed forces. The demand for matches is enormous, but the output is adequate for all, provided matches are used sparingly. Some of the chemicals used to make matches have to be shared with the munitions industry. So adopt the slogan: Fewer matches, more munitions.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

SAVE IT... for Australia...

REDUCE personal spending — that means more tanks, aeroplanes, ships, munitions, equipment, to be used by our men for our defence.

Here is a vital war-time job for you — to see that not a single penny is wastefully or unnecessarily spent, and that every penny so saved goes into the total war effort. Until Victory is won, the Government needs all your savings, not only the money you have now but all that you can put aside.

Electric Static Air Cleaner

Recently an operation was held up in Bourke for three days because the operating theatre could not be kept clean during a raging storm of red dust. Tanks have been choked to a standstill in a few hundred yards in dust storms sweeping across the Egyptian desert.

Both these conditions could be overcome by the installation of his electro-static air cleaner, claims Mr. Leo Parer, of Sydney, who has been working on the cleaner for the past six months at the request of the Army, who have already tested it successfully in Melbourne.

"The principle of the cleaner is well known, explained Mr. Parer, "but this is the first time it has been applied to cleaning air for vehicles.

The Board of Health have also inspected the apparatus, which will cleanse the air of all germs (hence its value in operating theatres) and all smoke from smoke stacks.

There is no doubt that some time in the future all smoke stacks will have to be fitted with an electro-static cleaner, but it takes a generation for a new idea to sink in, though war conditions speed up their acceptance in some cases."

The cleaner, which embodies magnetised wire screens and glass plates, magnetises all matter in the air—including gasses—and these particles are attracted to the glass plates, where they form a deposit. There is no restriction of air flow with this electrostatic cleaner, which could be adapted for many purposes, including the cleaning of gas producers.

With tungsten ores so vital to Australian and Allied production of hard steel, it is interesting to recall that it was Leo Parer's father who discovered one of the principal scheelite mines on King Island. This little island, lying between Tasmania and the Australian mainland, is notorious for the 40 wrecks strewn along its coast by south-west gales. Here Leo Parer and his eight brothers and sisters spent their childhood.

The Parer scheelite mine was first developed during the last war, and now contributes towards making King Island one of Australia's principal sources of this ore, which between 1932 and 1937 rose in value from £3 to £16 per cwt.

Tungsten makes the hardest steel known, and without our extensive ore deposits (sheelite and wolfram) neither our own steelworks at Newcastle nor a number of steelworks in the States would be able to manufacture the high speed steels for the manufacture of machine cutting tools.

So Australia not only manufactures the cheapest steel in the world, but makes a valuable contribution to the Allied pool of resources by exporting tungsten and tungsten ores to both England and the United States.

FAMOUS "Q" SHIPS

Story of a Spry

One of the most exciting stories of the last war was that of the famous "Q" ships. Britain's answer to the submarine menace.

As in this war, Germany hoped to starve Britain into submission by the large scale use of submarines that hunted merchant ships with concentrated and relentless ferocity.

Week artef week the toll of shipping losses mounted with steady rapidity, while in Britain food became more and more scarce.

To say that the authorities in London were worried is an under statement; the situation bordered perilously upon a national calamity of the greatest magnitude.

Food rations got smaller as queues stretched longer along the shopping streets. England was definitely being starved.

Then the Admiralty evolved its "mystery ships." Heavily armed vessels disguised as harmless merchant ships patrolled the sea lanes inviting attack.

Nobody nkew of them except a few high officials and the men who prepared and manned them. It was one of the closest secrets of the war.

Then one day a letter found its way into the censor's office in London. It was written by a girl who lived in a certain coastal town.

In her letter she wrote that she was extremely happy because her fiancee was now working in the same town. She went on to say that he was engaged in some very secret work concerned with the arming of some special ships. She didn't know much about it, as the whole matter was one of extra special secrecy.

Now, the man who dealt with this letter in the censor's office was a spy, and a very clever one, otherwise he could never have wormed his way into the service of the government.

He realised the importance of the clues contained in the letter, and decided to follow them up without delay. The first thing he did was to pay a visit to the girl and point out to her, in his official capacity as a censor that she had committed a grave breach of the Security Regulations and had endangered many lives besides upsetting the carefully laid plans of the government.

Naturally, the girl was extremely distressed and an easy subject for further interrogation by the spy in his guise of censor. She told him all she knew, and so opened up further avenues of investigation for him, and it was not long before the secret of the "Q" ships was laid on the table in Berlin.

From then on no submarines came within gun-fire range of their victims until the ships were sunk. The British answer to the U-boat menace was negatived within a few weeks, and the power of Germany strengthened by uncinsidered gossip.

The story is true, and its moral applies equally to-day as then. It is not altogether a chance or isolated incident.

Idle chatter continues to be dangerous to the nation and to the fighting men.

There have been many examples in this war, but the time is not opportune to publish them. Nevertheless, the danger is real and ever present. They can be real waknsses. Don't let your weakness give strength to the enemy.

LEASE-LEND HELP

Position of Australia

Though most publicity regarding the lend-lease arrangement between the United States and other members of the United Nations has covered America's end of the bargain, Americans themselves are the first to acknowledge that they have received considerable aid as well as giving it.

In a list recently published in the States, some British services to the United States are mentioned as including the supply of corvettes and crews for anti-submarine work in American waters; transport ships for United States troops; repairs for warships and the merchant navy; fighter planes and aerodromes for the planes to use; barrage balloons and anti-aircraft guns for the American coastline, military inventions, tools, and even "a complete factory or two."

America herself announced recently that the Douglas Oil Refinery in Los Angeles would be shipped to Russia, as well as a Ford tyre plant, and a power plant.

Australia has not yet shifted any of her factories bodily, but she has exchanged data on inventions and technical investigations and experiments. Tungsten ores are now exported from Australia to the States.

The B.H.P. works in Newcastle are manufacturing tungsten carbide products for the first time in Australia's history, but the United States returns refined Australian tungsten to Australia for radio valve making, as the small amount needed—only a few hundred pounds annually—is not sufficient to justify the establishment of special refineries. The same system of import and export applies to tantalite (returned as tantalum), and molybdenite (returned as molybdenum). All three of these metals are most expensive, and are returned to Australia mostly in radio work in the form of parts, rods, and wire.

"Lease-lend help which U.S.A. is giving Australia is considerable," said the Minister for Supply and shipping (Mr. Beasley) last week, "and I know that United States representatives in Australia appreciate our efforts to advance the common cause. Australia is pooling her resources in munition production and food production, and though greater size, more manpower and more bountiful resources have weighted the lend-lease agreement in America's favour, the lending and leasing has not by any means been all one way."

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

CURRENT TOPICS

COMMUNITY CONCERT.

A community concert in aid of the Patriotic and Comforts Fund will be held in the Town Hall on Sunday, February 21, commencing at 8.45 p.m. An excellent programme has been arranged, and the admission charge is the modest shilling. Particulars are advertised in to-day's issue.

ACCIDENT.

On Monday afternoon Arnold and Bernard Wolff, twin brothers, aged 5 years respectively, and sons of Mr. Arnold Wolff, were struck by a motor car driven by Mr. Jack Calligeros, of Gladstone, opposite the Town Hall. Bernard sustained serious injuries, a gash on the head, a broken thigh, shock and concussion. The injuries received by Arnold were not serious. The children have been living with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bern Wolff, Glenlyon Street.

FARMERS MAY HELP EACH OTHER.

A spirit of co-operation, of mutual help, has developed among farmers to a remarkable degree, but there are still many farmers who hesitate to undertake work outside their own farms because they fear that this may lead to cancellation of the exemption from call-up they now have because they are engaged in rural industry. The Director General of Manpower (Mr. Wurth) emphasises that there is no manpower objection to farmers engaging in other seasonal work. The attitude of the directorate is quite the opposite. Co-operation between farmers is encouraged to the highest degree, and farmers when not occupied on their own farms may engage in any form of seasonal rural industry, or may work in any seasonal secondary industry, as, for example, canning factories, meat works, and so on, without forfeiting their exemption from call-up.

MISSING MAN FOUND

IN TARGINNIE BAY

Lived on Small Fish

Samuel Walker, a coloured man, and a native of Jamaica, aged 74 years, who had been missing from his farm on the Calliope River for over a week, was found on Monday evening by Constable Holley and Mr. Whatcott sitting in his rowing boat in a weak condition at Friends Point in Targinnie Bay.

Walker told Constable Holley he had been living on small fish that he had caught.

Last week Walker was rowing towards Gladstone, when the prevailing high wind and heavy seas carried his boat to Curtis Island, where he received food from Mrs. Byrne, who has a farm on the island.

Subsequently Walker again left for Gladstone in the face of exceptionally strong winds and rough seas, but, as was to be expected, made no progress against the elements, and was eventually discovered in Targinnie Bay as stated above.

Walker was conveyed to Gladstone and transported by the Ambulance to the General Hospital, where he is a patient at present, and his condition is satisfactory.

Walker is well known in Gladstone as a hawker of fruit and vegetables.

OBITUARY

MR. E. J. LAWRENCE.

A grand old man in the person of Mr. Edward J. (Ted) Lawrence passed away in Brisbane last week at the age of 90.

Deceased, who resided in Gladstone for many years, was well and favourably known as a member of the clerical staff of the old Gladstone Meat Works Company. He retired when the Meat Works was taken over by the present owners, and went to Brisbane to reside.

The late Mr. Lawrence was born in England, and for a period followed a seafaring life, visiting many parts of the world before finally settling in Gladstone. He had enjoyed good health until the past five months, which he had spent in a Brisbane Hospital.

Deceased leaves a widow and grown-up family of two sons and two daughters.

BOYNE WATER SCHEME

NO FINALITY REACHED

Interesting and Puzzling Situation

A special meeting of the Council was held on Friday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen M. A. Busteed, W. R. Golding, R. E. Smith, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

The business of the meeting was to discuss with Engineer Fenwick matters appertaining to the Boyne River water scheme.

"COMMONWEALTH AUTHORITIES URGED."

A letter from the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams) was read to the effect that on February 8 he had urged on the Commonwealth authorities to grant an even higher priority for the Gladstone water supply scheme in order to further the proposal. He promised to support this application in person when in Canberra.

A "B" PRIORITY.

Mr. Williams asked Mr. Kemp (Deputy Director-General of Allied Works) to support him in the request that the water scheme in question be placed in an "A2" priority in place of the "B" priority, the "A1" priority being what is known as . . . . (words deleted here means important national undertakings).

Mr. Williams passed this information on to the Council so that further action might be taken to secure an early commencement of the job.

INTERESTING AND PUZZLING.

In view of the foregoing, it is interesting to note but decidedly puzzling to the ratepayers that the Army Minister (Mr. F. M. Forde) forwarded a telegram to the Council in which he stated that he had interviews in Brisbane with the Premier (Mr. Cooper), the Minister for Agriculture, and Mr. Kemp, Co-ordinator General of Works, and went on to say that he had since made representations to the Defence Committee in Melbourne that the work be given an "A1" priority.

In face of the latest information received from Mr. Williams it would appear that the Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) has not been successful in securing an "A1" priority for Gladstone's important water scheme, but talk is still going on among the politicians about handing out a "B" priority.

LIKE A FOOTBALL.

Where is this all leading to, and when will finality be reached?

The ratepayers of Gladstone are just like a football, being kicked all over the field.

Of course, this is nothing new for Gladstone.

All Gladstone wants is an "A1" priority, as asked for by Mr. Forde, so that the Boyne water scheme can be started in the national interests and completed at the earliest possible date, and not overlooking the fact that the citizens of Gladstone should not be called on to bear the extra cost of the scheme brought about by the war.

A resolution to this effect was moved and carried at a special meeting of the Council, held on Tuesday, February 2, and forwarded to Mr. Forde, but up to the present no reply has been received.

The people of Gladstone are indeed a patient people.

In the meantime, however, a beneficent Providence has blessed the people of Gladstone.

TRACTOR.

On the motion of Ald. Tudman, seconded by Ald. Smith, it was resolved to make application to the Allied Works Council for the release of a tractor from Coney Island, or from other sources, for the carrying out of the excavation.—Carried

COMMENCEMENT OF WORK.

Moved by Alderman Golding, seconded by Alderman Smith, that the scheme be proceeded with immediately, and that Mr. Tait make application to the Manpower Officer for the necessary labour.—Carried.

STORAGE SHED.

Moved by Alderman Golding, seconded by Alderman Busteed, that a storage shed be erected, and that Engineer Fenwick be authorised to place an order for cement.

"BLACK LABOUR" MARKET.

The N.S.W. Director of Manpower (Mr. Bellemore) has issued a warning against employers who were operating on the "black labour" market. He said many employers were still engaging labour other than through the National Service Office. This was in direct conflict with National Security Regulations, and could not be permitted.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

SUCCESSFUL PADDY'S MARKET

Total Receipts £38/10/9

The monthly Paddy's market, held at the Red Cross hut, proved very successful, the total receipts being £38/10/9. The convenor (Mrs. A. H. Mrs. Mackay 12lbs. sugar, Mrs. Elliott tin coffee, Mrs. Schneider tin of cocoa, Galloway Plains jar of cream, Mr. Sam Waddell wood.

During the month the following ladies sold jam they had made:—Mrs. Hall, Mrs. L. Johnstone, Mrs. Bennedict, Clark, Golding, and A. Friend.

Donations of fruit or sugar to any of the above would be much appreciated, also wood for jam and sweet making.

Next Paddy's market will be held on March 12, when a handsome shopping bag (donated by Mrs. W. McDonald) will be raffled. It is now displayed in Friends (Pty.) Ltd. window.

FIGHTING SERVICES

73 Per Cent Volunteers

Amplifying his statement to Parliament the Army Minister (Mr. Forde) said that 73 per cent of the A1 men in all fighting services—the A.I.F., C.M.F., R.A.N. and R.A.A.F.—had volunteered and been accepted for service in any part of the world.

Mr. Forde was clearing up misunderstanding of his statement, which was due, he suggested, to doubts about the definition of physically fit men in the services.

He added that 23 per cent of the Militia would not be used overseas because they were medically unfit for combatant service.

Further explaining his figures, Mr. Forde said that men, in the C.M.F. between 18 and 19 were not eligible to join the A.I.F., and even in the militia men of this age were not to be sent out of Australia. An Army order to this effect was issued some time ago.

The percentage of class A1 men in the Air Force and Navy was higher than in the Army.

Although a number of cases of scurvy, several of them fatal, have occurred in New South Wales, no similar cases have been reported in Queensland. The disease is caused by a deficiency of vitamin C in the diet.

GLADSTONE DISTRICT

ORGANISING AGRICULTURE

Formation of Committees

In accordance with arrangements made with the Commonwealth Government action has been taken to set up war agricultural committees in Queensland. Up to the present time 37 district war agricultural committees have been formed in Queensland.

The scheme of war agricultural committees is to be administered by the State Departments of Agriculture, and is to consist of district committees and local sub-committees. The district war agricultural committees, to which the local sub-committees will be advisory, are to consist of three persons, including an officer of the Department of Agriculture and Stock (or other State department) as chairman, with a representative of the rural industries and an urban representative.

The purpose of the scheme will be broadly to assist in the decentralising of wartime administration of agricultural interests. The district war agricultural committees may be called upon to make recommendations in regard to manpower matters, such as: Call-ups by the Army, the Civil Construction Corps, exemption from service, etc., to organise the available labour in the district for the purpose of ploughing or harvesting of crops, to organise full use of agricultural machinery, such as tractors, ploughs, harvesting implements, etc., and their co-operative use by farmers in local areas; to advise in regard to the utilisation in agriculture of women, both women of the district and members of the Women's Land Army.

It would be the duty of the district committees to take such steps as may be necessary for the accommodation, employment and transport of women in their respective districts. The committee may also be required to advise and assist in many other matters, including compilation of a rural seasonal worker's register in the district, and the making of a general survey of available labour and mechanical labour-saving appliances, as well as other questions, including such matters as supplies of spare parts, and tyres for motor cars, spare parts and repairs for implements, allocation of supplies of wire and wire netting.

While power now exists under National Security Regulations for the requisitioning of agricultural machinery, it is not the wish of the Commonwealth Government to use this power, as it is thought that farmers will co-operate between themselves.

This co-operation and full use of available agricultural machinery and implements is most necessary to overcome the labour shortage and assist in reaching the food production goals set by the Commonwealth Government.

The Gladstone District War Agricultural Committee consists of Mr. P. McCallum (chairman), Mr. S. C. Wilson (urban representative), and Mr. E. Liddell (rural representative).

CORRESPONDENCE

REPLY TO MR. FUNK.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—I have read with interest Mr. Funk's letter on "Imperialism," especially the portion referring to "monopolies."

It seems to me to be rather rash to assume that all collection of private capital is undesirable.

It must be remembered that all our great industrial enterprises have come into being as the direct result of the enterprise of discerning men, who individually would not have been able to cope with the vastness of some of their projects, and therefore took the only feasible course of combining capital into a group, capable of carrying these schemes through to the stage of successful production, incidentally employing thousands of workers, both directly and indirectly.

Remove these capitalists, and who will take their place? The "State," you answer. Very well then, how will the "State" obtain the finance to float these vast schemes?

You have gone far, Mr. Funk, but not far enough.

An explanation of these points will be interesting, and yes, even necessary if your ideas of imperialism are to be carried to a conclusion.—Yours, etc.,

"SUCKER."

B.V. PATRIOTIC FUND

ANNUAL MEETING

President, Mrs. W. E. Muspratt

At the annual meeting of the Boyne Valley Patriotic Fund the President (Mrs. W. E. Muspratt) submitted the following report of the year's work.

ANNUAL REPORT.

I have much pleasure in presenting my report for the 12 months just closed. Our activities throughout the year have not been on a very large scale, for as you know, mostly our boys were returned to Australia, and are still on home service, which reduced our monthly canteen orders considerably, so we were able to maintain our financial position with just a few dances.

DETERMINED EFFORT.

I feel sure we will have to make a very determined effort in the coming year to augment our funds, as we have committed ourselves to assist as much as possible with the Prisoners of War Fund, besides the possibility of the A.M.F. becoming eligible for our patronage.

ENLISTMENT ROLL.

We now have 60 names on our enlistment roll. Formerly we presented each with a small gift when on final leave, but latterly we have posted these parcels to them as they were accepted for the services.

MISSING BOYS.

It is with regret I record that we have four boys missing in the Malayan campaign, and no news has been released regarding them. Two more were wounded. One has since returned to duty, and we have not heard of the other, but we trust he is well again. Two more have been on the sick list for some time, one eventually being discharged and the other is still receiving treatment. Quite recently we received word that another is reported missing.

To all these families we offer our sincere sympathy, and hope all will receive good news soon.

THANKS EXPRESSED.

It is most gratifying to receive so many letters from our boys, expressing their thanks for our efforts in keeping them supplied with canteen orders whilst on active service, and we trust to be able to keep up this good work, and to do this we must have your wholehearted support and do as Mr. Curtin said: "Give, give, give until it hurts, not merely with money, but with your time and energy—it counts as well."

GOODWILL TO ALL.

In conclusion, I wish to thank my office-bearers, committee, the musicians, and all who have helped in any way through the year, and may the coming year bring peace and goodwill to all.

ROLL OF HONOUR.

Since our meeting we have had word of two of our boys having been killed in action. This is indeed very sad news to us all, and to their dear ones we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

The report was adopted.

BALANCE SHEET.

The Treasurer (Mr. E. H. C. Steel) submitted the following balance sheet for the year 1942:—

Receipts, balance 1st July, £340/17/1, donations £19/18/6, memberships £1/14/-, proceeds of dance £81/9/11, total £443/19/6.

Expenditure, change £10/-/-, petty cash £1, hall rental £8/8/-, dance expenses £3/2/5, materials £24/5/9, canteen orders £29/8/1, war savings certificate £100, presentation account £2/2/-, total £178/6/3, credit balance £265/13/3.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The election of officers resulted:—

President, Mrs. W. E. Muspratt; vice-president, Mrs. V. A. Macartney; treasurer, Mr. E. H. C. Steel; secretary, Miss D. Muspratt; auditor, Mr. V. A. Macartney; committee, Mesdames M. Russell, H. C. Dougall, A. R. Wagner, J. A. Wedge, W. Streeter, A. Stapleton, F. G. Clarke, and Miss J. Davies, Messrs. J. J. Wengert, W. West, E. Steel, J. Drynan, R. Waite, J. Broadfoot, H. M. and W. E. Muspratt, H. Duckham, R. Bailey, W. Harman.

The following members were added to the committee:—Mrs. S. Davies, Mrs. V. Johns, Mr. V. L. C. Clarke, and Mr. N. Stevenson.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

COMFORTS FUND

CALLIOPE BRANCH

Xmas Hampers Appreciated

To make Christmas happier for the boys at the front the Calliope branch of the Australian Comforts Fund sent 10/- and cake to each recruit from the Calliope district. Boys from other districts also participated in the Christmas cheer sent, as the following appreciative letters addressed to the Hon. Secretary of the branch testify:

"New Guinea, 23rd Dec., 1942.

"I am writing to thank you for the Christmas hamper, which I received a couple of days ago, and to tell you how much it was appreciated. Up here we don't get very many comforts, and believe me those we do get are very much appreciated. It will make Christmas a little more like Christmas too. That is, if there is any of the hamper left by then.

"Most of us, I think, have been sampling the contents, but nearly everyone is keeping something to have a beano on our Christmas day. Tobacco and cigarettes are our greatest need up here, as the only times we get any are the Comforts Fund issue, there being no canteen. Sometimes we get some in parcels from home, but apparently smokes are nearly as hard to get down south as they are here.

"If I might make a suggestion, chocolate would be a more suitable item than caramels in this climate, as caramel usually melts, and in most cases has to be licked off the wrapping, whereas the solid block of chocolate does not seem to melt at all if suitably packed.

"Personally I'm afraid I don't know where Calliope is, but I presume it is somewhere in Queensland. I come from the far north-west of N.S. Wales myself. But, anyway, thank you again very much for helping to make our Christmas a little brighter, and hoping that by next Christmas this show will all be over, yours sincerely, Sergt. V. J. Williamson, N.X. 49423.

"New Guinea, 24th Dec., 1942.

"This is to thank you most sincerely for the A.C.F. Xmas hampers that have come to our hands up here in these mountainous regions. I can assure you that the contents are just some of the things badly needed by the troops. I might point out two things that are ever in demand, and they are tobacco and chocolate. Toffee is quite nice, but not suitable for this climate, which is hot and humid. However, the hamper is greatly appreciated, and I offer my thanks for the trouble your branch has taken to make our existence here a little more pleasant.—Yours sincerely, Cpl. S. F. Burns, N.G. 2331.

"New Guinea, Dec. 27, 1942.

"I wish to express my sincere appreciation and extend my many thanks to yourself and the members of your branch for the very fine Christmas parcel I was so fortunate to receive. If only you could witness the pleasure and great cheer your parcels bring to the troops I am sure you would all feel fully rewarded for your great work and sacrifices in providing comforts for the soldiers of Australia.

'I have fought on many fronts in this war, but none can compare with the ordeal of the New Guinea campaign. Our troops have proved themselves capable of overcoming the great difficulties of Nature, and also the 'yellow vermin' who at present are fully aware of the great fighting qualities of the Australian soldier.

"Once again I thank you, and extend my greetings and best wishes for Christmas and the New Year.—Sincerely yours, Norman L. Fleay, lieut. colonel, W.X. 361.

"Calliope, Nov. 13, 1942.

"Many thanks for your gift of cash and Xmas cake. I won't even try and guess where I will be on Xmas day, but I will try and keep your cake and enjoy it on that day. I'll be thinking of my many good friends at Calliope at Xmas time, and will write to you and thank you again then, after I have feasted on your good cooking. With best wishes, cheerio and good luck, Ted Ullman.

"Airforce House, Australia.

"I would like to thank you very much for the 10/- postal note and the beautiful cake. I received both of them in good time for Xmas, and can well assure you they were much appreciated.—Yours faithfully, Bert McFarlane, No. 426957.

"Cairns, Dec. 21, 1942.

"I have received your letter containing the postal note. It was very acceptable indeed, and may I say thank you very much. We have just had 15 inches of rain here, and the mosquitoes thrive very well in the pools, etc. They are particularly bad to-night. Xmas celebrations in Cairns will be quite a change from the spread I had last Xmas at a southern station, but it's all good experience. I will conclude now, wishing your branch every success in 1943.—Yours sincerely, Kevin Coase, 43887.

"Many thanks for postal note, also cake, which arrived a few days ago. The cake did make it seem a bit more like Christmas. Anyway, the boys thought so, as we used to have a piece for morning tea. I would like to wish all members of the Calliope Comforts Fund the very best in the New Year.—Driver W. Bennedick.

"Ballarat, Dec. 29, 1942.

"I hope you will excuse my taking so long to answer your note. I have been away from the unit for over six weeks, and returned only yesterday. Please convey my sincere thanks to the ladies of the Calliope branch for their kind wishes, and to yourself personally.

"Of all the chaps in the mess whom I know, I'm sure I was the only one who received Xmas greetings and a present from any branch like yours.

"It was also very nice to know that although I have been away from home for so long I was not forgotten by the old home town. I expect to be up home very soon, when I will be able to thank you personally. In the meantime, as I'm a bit late for Xmas, I wish the branch the success it deserves, and a prosperous New Year to all its members.—Gratefully yours, Jim Sidey, Sergt. 24781.

The following members of the forces received parcels and postal notes:—

BOYNE VALLEY

PATRIOTIC FUND

Dance and Donations

£67/11/6

A dance held in the Ubobo Hall in aid of the Boyne Valley Patriotic Fund on Saturday night, January 23, proved a great success. Excellent music was supplied by Mrs. H. C. Dougall and Mr. L. Pownall. The duties of M.C. were carried out by Mr. R. H. Waite.

The main attraction of the night was a waltzing competition, the judges being Mesdames Beresford, N. Stevenson, and Kajewski. There were a goodly number of entrants in the competition.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Christie were judged the winners, and each received a handsome trophy.

Mrs. L. A. Pownall donated the ladies' prize for the waltzing competition, and the gents by Mrs. H. C. Dougall and Mrs. W. E. Muspratt.

The Monte Carlo waltz was won by Master Ron Christie and partner, the prizes being donated by Mrs. A. C. McLachlan.

The novelty waltz was won by Mr. Jim Kelly, the prize being donated by Mrs. C. N. Cannan.

A ham, which the committee raffled, was won by Miss M. Young.

The dance proceeds amounted to £23/12/6, and in addition the following donations were received:—

B.V. Sawmilling Co.	£10	10	0
W. V. Childs	10	0	0
S. C. Bull	5	0	0
J. S. Clewley	5	0	0
Cannan Bros.	1	1	0

Mrs. J. Vallis		3	0
Mrs. M. Sewell		2	0
Miss J. Davies		2	0
60 membership fees at 2/- per member	6	0	0

This made a grand total of £67/11/6 for this effort.

The Patriotic Fund intends to run a dance the Saturday nearest the full moon each month for the coming year.

W.A.A.A.F. UNIT

TO VISIT GLADSTONE

Recruits Wanted

Section Officer Lilias Dow, W.A.A.A.F. recruiting officer, will be in Gladstone next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

She is making a special visit to the district for recruits for the Women's Auxiliary Australian Air Force. Several thousand women and girls between the ages of 18 and 40 are required by the Royal Australian Air Force this year, and a strong appeal is made to Queensland.

"We have found the Queensland country girls particularly adaptable," says Section Officer Dow. "That is why we are looking for more and still more of them.

"New jobs within the Air Force are opening up to women, such as work on aircraft and in photography; but we need numbers of new recruits for Air Force messes, trainee telegraphists, cooks, and trainee cooks, dental orderlies, signal, pay, general and stores clerks, telephone operators, cypher assistants, office orderlies, sickquarter attendants, telephone operators, drill instructors, and transport drivers.

"No girl need feel that she couldn't do the job. There are fifty-three types of work for W.A.A.A.F. members, and among them there is something useful for all to do.

SECTION OFFICER LILIAS DOW

"There is a 'Rookie' course for all, just as there is for men, and when the girls come through it they are posted out to their stations. Every girl in the W.A.A.A.F. means that a man can be released for front line service. A girl joining the W.A.A.A.F. can therefore feel that she is doing a national job and palying a vital part national job and playing a vital part

Section Officer Dow will arrive in Gladstone on Thursday at 7 p.m. in the W.A.A.A.F. mobile recruiting unit. She will bring with her a 13½-minute film called "Airwomen," showing the life of the W.A.A.A.F. This will be screened at the Embassy Theatre on Friday, February 19.

Section Officer Dow's headquarters while in Gladstone will be at the Grand Hotel buildings.

With two assistants she will be ready to answer all questions and take names of prospective recruits to forward to headquarters.

Recruits will then be called to Brisbane for further interviews, and will return home to await the call-up. Cost of travel is provided by the R.A.A.F.

Arrangements have been made by the Gladstone R.A.A.F. Recruiting Committee for Section Officer Dow to address the audience at the Embassy and Town Hall on Saturday night, February 20.

Section Officer Dow will be in attendance at the R.A.A.F. offices, Grand Hotel buildings, on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday next to receive and attend to all applicants who wish information and particulars of musterings for enlistment.

£3,000,000 IN TWO MONTHS.

"Defence money pouring into Queensland is not only providing a safeguard against invasion; it will prove a lasting asset when the Japanese have finally been defeated," said Senator J. S. Collings, Commonwealth Minister for the Interior and Leader of the Government in the Senate, in Canberra recently. Senator Collings said that in the space of eight weeks contracts totalling £700,000 had been let by his department, and approval had been granted for the expenditure of a further £2,400,000. The money was going into roads, aerodromes, military camps, and other vital defence works. Most of the work is being performed under the control of the Allied Works Council.

COMFORTS FUND

MONTHLY STREET STALL

Donations Asked For

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the joint A.C.F. and Patriotic Appeal Fund will be conducted in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, February 19.

The convenors (Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen) would much appreciate donations of jam, fruit, cakes, vegetables, sweets, or any other home manufacture or articles for sale on this date.

Donations may be left with the convenors, or at Gladstone Cash and Carry.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

Before you strike a light remember the needs of the armed forces. The demand for matches is enormous, but the output is adequate for all, provided matches are used sparingly. Some of the chemicals used to make matches have to be shared with the munitions industry. So adopt the slogan: Fewer matches, more munitions.

RESCUE AND DEMOLITION SQUAD.

A MEETING of the Rescue and Demolition Squad will be held in the Basement of the Town Hall on Thursday Night, 18th inst., at 7.30 p.m., and a full attendance is requested.

R. TAIT, Officer in Charge.

The price of SPENDING

IT is clear to all that there is a gap between the cost of the War to the Australian people, and what is being taken by the Government in Taxes and Loans to meet it.

The Nation is spending too much, and saving too little.

Saving money is nothing new for the members of the A.M.P. Society. They are accustomed to saving for the defence of their families, but they—and every man and woman—must now save harder for the defence of the Nation.

Every bullet fired by our troops, every bomb exploded, every plane or ship lost, has to be paid for by the Australian people. The more we pay cheerfully to-day in Taxes and Loans, the less we shall have to pay in bitterness when the day of reckoning comes.

The A.M.P. is putting £500,000 of its members' savings into the War Loans every month: already it has loaned £45,000,000 to the Commonwealth.

In war-time the price of spending is future distress.

HOME FRONT

Care of Stockings

If you still have some stockings left, now is the time to do a bit of stocktaking. Maybe you will be able to save them up for special occasions if you have managed to acquire a coat of suntan over the holidays.

But if you find you have to wear stockings, don't expect delicate threads of rayon to stand up to ordinary laundry treatment. They're just about the consistency of spider web, and their fragility must be respected.

An application of soap straight on the stocking is enough to make its threads dissolve before your eyes.

Never wear stockings more than once without laundering. They may be effectively washed in luke warm sudsy water. Rinse them in water of the same temperature.

Don't dare squeeze them to get the water out. Roll them lovingly in a towel and let it soak out for a few minutes. Then hang them up to dry in the shade. They can't stand the sun. When they are quite dry (this usually takes two days) they are wearable.

If you tut them on before they are really dry, then the acid in your feet will do much more damage.

But for coupon saving stick to natural suntan.

MOTHERS AND BABIES

Special Issue of Coupons

The rationing year ends on June 15, and the Rationing Commission issues the reminder that the present coupon books will be of no further use after that date. The only coupons that will have a purchasing value after June 15 will be the special issues made to cover births.

In pointing out that layette coupons and coupons issued to expectant mothers lwil not expire in June, Mr. Coles, the chairman of the Rationing Commission, advised that the Rationing Commission took the view that expectant mothers should not be put to the extra inconvenience of having to obtain a new issue of special coupons at the same time as coupons in the ordinary ration book expire, because babies' layette books provide for clothes for six months after birth. Special issues of coupons for mothers and babies are clearly distinguishable from "G" and "H" clothing coupons now current.

Mr. Coles said he felt it necessary to give ample warning to people who really needed clothing so that they could plan their purchases for the remaining five months of the ration period.

"At the same time," said Mr. Coles, "I appeal to those people who do not need clothing to refrain from buying. This will help to conserve material, the result of which will be a saving in manpower, too."

Books containing unused coupons may be handed back to the Commission. This has been the practice in the United Kingdom. Recently the President of the British Board of Trade (Mr. Hugh Dalton) said that many patriotic Britishers have returned unused coupons, thus helping the war effort by saving precious shipping space, material and labour. It is hoped that many Australians will do the same, said Mr. Coles.

SEAWEED

Stocks and Underwear

The introduction of seaweed into Japanese Army emergency rations, as mentioned in a recent "Industrial News" letter, emphasises the fact that Japan, before the war, was the principal world supplier of agar, which is extracted from seaweed and used for bacteriological work, in the manufacture of medicinal preparations and by the meat canning industry.

Experiments carried out recently in New Zealand have proved that agar seaweed found along the east coast of the North Island produced a considerably higher grade agar than that produced by Japan.

The Dominions Internal Marketing Division has arranged for the installation of a plant for the treatment of agar seaweed. This plant will treat one ton a week, and will be extended as soon as greater supplies of weed are available. At present Maoris are making good money collecting the weed at 1/- a lb., and already there is enough on hand to supply British hospital requirements for a year.

Britain, too, has been experimenting with seaweed, and some 400,000 tons collected in the Hebrides have been used for the manufacture of rayon for stockings and underwear.

And speaking of Japan and rayon, Japanese silk was formerly used almost exclusively to insulate wire. When Japan entered the war, a substitute had to be found, and an American invented mica-coated or varnished rayon tape has been found thoroughly satisfactory. The tape measures less than two thousandths of an inch in thickness before it is processed, yet it provides a firm, enduring wire insulation that can be applied to the wires of telephones, radios, and motors.

A FISH STORY.

A considerable number of men engaged in seasonal undertakings, such as canecutting and shearing, claim that in the off season they are occupied as professional fishermen. Conversely some professional fishermen claim that for some months of the year they are engaged in seasonal occupations. The Director General of Man Power said that if these men are doing a worthwhile job in both activities they constitute valuable community units, and should be "pegged" to these occupations. No doubts are cast upon the veracity of the professional fisherman, but as details of each man's catch are available to the Man Power Directorate, corroboration can be secured, so that his value to the fishing industry can be ascertained.

SAFETY AT SEA

Building for the Future

Two men of every five who attended an exhibition of "safety at sea" devices in New York recently had been torpedoed at least once.

Seamen themselves suggested some of the equipment now being included in life boats. Now they are asking for sulfa powder to be included in first aid kits, as few men escape from a war sinking without open wounds.

Among the exhibits which appealed particularly to the men were new rubber-kapok life suits and sealed tins of drinking water. Men who have spent days drinking foul water from kegs think highly of this innovation.

With the estimated strength of the German submarine fleet as 400, and with new construction averaging 30 a month, Hitler is expected to launch an all-out submarine war in the coming spring, similar to the April-May offensive of 1917.

The average sinkings of German submarines is 15 a month.

In spite of the tremendous output from American and British shipyards during the last year, sinkings during the last few months exceeded new buildings.

It was advocated in Sydney recently that a chair of naval architecture should be established at Sydney University as the first step towards ensuring the permanency of the shipbuilding industry in Australia.

In England a course in naval architecture takes eight years, and covers both technical and practical training.

Subjects include, hydrodynamics, physics, chemistry, stability and oscillation of ships, theory of waves and propulsion of ships, strength of materials, steam and oil engine design and calculation, ship design and calculation.

In Australia advanced diplo courses at Technical Schools are all that is available, and these courses do not fit young men for other than subordinate jobs.

As Australia produces the cheapest steel in the world, and has already proved that she can build good stout ships, the establishment of a chair of naval architecture would seem a first essential if Australia is not to waste this tremendous economic asset.

Australian-built merchant and naval ships, including the new Tribal-class destroyer Arunta, have proved that Australian ship construction is sound.

The tremendous shipping losses which will have to be made good after the war will mean steady work for Australian shipyards if Australia is awake to her opportunities.

Not only allied shipping losses (and they reached 7,000,000 tons in 1942 alone) will have to be replaced, but ships of neutral and Axis countries too, before the normal trade of the world can be resumed.

LEND-LEASE ASSISTANCE

Strengthened Australia's Resistance

It is helpful to realise that, when some foodstuffs are in short supply because of Service needs, we are making a direct contribution to the war effort and enabling Australia to play her part in two-way lend-lease arrangements.

The quantities of foodstuffs supplied by way of reciprocal lend-lease to American forces here, so that United States ships in the Pacific can be filled with munitions and equipment instead of bulky foodstuffs, are very large.

Discussing the lend-lease arrangement between this country and America, Dr. E. R. Walker, chief economic adviser, Department of War Organisation of Industry, points out that to find the quantities of foodstuffs required it has been necessary to strip the civilian market bare of many types of goods and eat into our stock piles. At the same time we have had to extend our production plans and tighter up still further war-time controls over agriculture and industry.

MAN POWER PROBLEM.

With our limited population, manpower is naturally a major problem. To provide man-power for the war production programme as a whole it has been necessary to prohibit a large number of non-essential manufactures, and rationalisations plans for other industries are in progress to release still more labour for urgent war tasks.

There is only one way to measure lend-lease; that is by weighing its effects upon joint Australian and United States military strength in the struggle against Japan. While, in existing circumstances, Australia and America are contributing the greatest amount of mutual assistance possible, both have some distance still to go before they are fully organised for maximum efforts.

Giving full effect to dehydration and national vegetable production plans are means by which Australia will be enabled to make a greater contribution. But still further demands on our manpower resources must be made to cope with requirements on both the industrial and primary production fronts.

HEAVY DEMAND.

We have already been promised still heavier taxation.

No easy task confronts us as the Pacific war progresses. There will be tough fighting as the Allied troops move further north towards Japan. And there will be a heavy demand on our industries and man power, as we have to supply the food and materials needed by the fighting forces. Indeed, further civilian shortages and restrictions must be anticipated.

Australians should be glad to know that they are helping in this way. It assists us in the realisation that as civilians we also have a part to play in backing up our fighting men. And we have the satisfaction of knowing that the people of the United States are making comparable sacrifices for their fighting men.

Lend-lease has done more than strengthen Australia's resistance to the invader in the Pacific. It has laid the foundation for co-operation between the two Pacific nations which will outlast the years of war.

JAPS WILL NEVER CRACK

Views of Mr. Grew

Since his return to the United States, Mr. Joseph Grew, former Ambassador in Tokio, has continually warned people of the United States of the formidable task that lies ahead in finally defeating Japan. This is Mr. Grew's comment on the easy assumption that after Germany is defeated we can "mop up" the Japs:—

"I know Germany; I lived there for nearly ten years. I know the Germans well—truculent and bullying and domineering when on the crest of the wave; demoralised in defeat. The Germans cracked in 1918. I have steadfastly believed, and I believe to-day, that when the tide of battle runs against them, as it assuredly will turn, they will crack again.

"I know Japan; I lived there for ten years. I know the Japanese intimately. The Japanese will not crack. They will not crack morally or psychologically, or economically, even when eventual defeat stares them in the face. They will pull their belts another notch, reduce their rations from a bowl to half a bowl of rice, and fight to the the bitter end. Only by utter physical destruction or utter exhaustion of their men and materials can they be defeated. That is the difference between the Germans and th Japanese. That is what we are up against in fighting Japan."

And Mr. Grew wrote this before the fall of Buna and Sanananda!

WAR TO DEATH

Only Victory Can Bring Peace

This is no war in which the two sides can come to a compromise settlement—a peace by negotiation. By words and deeds alike, our enemies have made it clear that it is war to the death—our way of life or theirs.

And it is going to take every ounce we have got to knock them out.

There are no non-combatants in this grim, urgent business. It is everybody's war.

So it is up to everybody to put some searching questions to himself:—

"Do I deserve victory? If everybody else behaved as I am behaving, should we get victory? Am I doing everything that could be expected of me in the common cause"

Victory will look our way only when each one of us can answer an energetic "Yes."

The annual meeting of the Gladstone branch of the Women's National Emergency Legion Youth Movement will be held in the Legion rooms, Grand Hotel buildings, on Monday, March 1, at 8 p.m. The hon. secretary is Miss E. L. Bunning, Gladstone.

COMMUNITY CONCERT.

A community concert in aid of the Patriotic and Comforts Fund will be held in the Town Hall on Sunday, February 21, commencing at 8.45 p.m. An excellent programme has been arranged, and the admission charge is the modest shilling. Particulars are advertised in to-day's issue.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND GUILD.

The next Church of England Guild street stall will be held in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, February 26, and donations of produce, cakes, sweets, etc., will be much appreciated. The secretary is Miss Butterworth, Auckland Hill, Gladstone.

YARWUN AGENCY.

As a war measure the visits to the Yarwun agency of the Bank of New South Wales will be discontinued after Saturday, March 6. However, from Wednesday, March 17, the agency will be open for business on alternate Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. Particulars are advertised in to-day's issue.

MISS DAPHNE FARNSWORTH.

At the theory examination of the Trinity College of Music, held in November, Miss Daphne Farnsworth, in the intermediate division, secured honours, gaining 98 per cent. Daphne was formerly a pupil of Mrs. G. E. Wilson, of Gladstone, but for the past year has been taught by the Sisters of Mercy, Warwick.

AUCTION SALE.

As advertised, Mr. Lance R. Weiske has been favoured with instructions to sell the furnishings and contents at the home of the Rev. W. E. Boyldew, who is leaving Gladstone on military service. The sale will take place at the Rectory, in Auckland Street, next Saturday afternoon, February 27, commencing at 2.15 p.m.

MISS JESSICA GRIFFITHS.

Miss Jessica Griffiths, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Griffiths, who gained an important scholarship at the Melbourne Conservatorium of Music two years ago, has won further success. It was announced recently that the young Gladstone singer had been awarded a special J. C. Williamson scholarship at Melbourne, where she was continuing her studies. Mr. and Mrs. Griffiths, who left Gladstone some months ago, are now residing in Melbourne with their daughter. Miss Griffiths won the J. C. Williamson scholarship for 1943, and this entails a full year's special study in opera and kindred subjects at the Melbourne Conservatorium of Music with the specific object of joining the company at the end of the period.

CHRISTMAS FAIR £196

Presentation to Mrs. Watt

At the monthly meeting of the Gladstone branch of the A.C.F., held in the Diggers' Hall on Friday, February 12, there were present: Mesdames A. Hopper (hon. treas.), J. Worthington, C. Chapman, Henriksen, Watt, Gordon, Cross, and the hon. secretary (Mrs. J. Garrett). Apologies were received from Mesdames W. Beale, C. W. Macfarlan, and R. Barker.

Owing to the unavoidable absence of the president (Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan), who is indisposed, Mrs. C. Chapman occupied the chair.

ACCOUNTS PASSED.

Accounts amounting to £39/8/9 were presented and passed for payment.

KNITTING AND SEWING CIRCLE.

The convenor of the Knitting and Sewing Circle (Mrs. J. Worthington) submitted the following report to February 2, 1943:—

31 calico mess bags, 183 handkerchiefs, 6 suits pyjamas, and 12 pairs socks.

A case of comforts was packed and dispatched to headquarters on January 1, 1943, containing 240 calico mess bags, 397 handkerchiefs, 13 pairs pyjamas, 45 pair socks, and a further case was packed and dispatched on February 9, 1943, containing 223 calico mess bags, 267 handkerchiefs, 19 pairs pyjamas, 1 pullover, 57 pairs socks, and 1 case of books and magazines.

ASSISTANT CONVENOR.

Mrs. G. Gordon was appointed to the position of assistant convenor of the Sewing and Knitting Circle, the position being vacant owing to Mrs. Watt's departure for the south.

COMFORTS FOR TROOPS.

During the month of January cakes and fruit was supplied to Australian soldiers, 30 doz. soft drinks to Allied troops, and a primus stove to a patrol vessel.

CHRISTMAS FAIR.

The financial result of the Christmas Fair was £196. Members take the opportunity to thank everyone who helped to make this function such an outstanding success.

A PRESENTATION.

During the afternoon Mrs. Watt, who has now left for Brisbane, was presented with a pyrex dish as a small token in recognition of the valued services rendered to the Fund during her stay in Gladstone.

The President and members wished Mrs. Watt the best of health and happiness in her new home.

Mrs. Watt suitably acknowledged the presentation.

CALL-UP OF WOMEN.

A special Bill for the compulsory service for women in the auxiliaries of the three armed forces will be introduced by the Federal Government. It has not yet been decided whether women compelled to service will be required to serve outside Australia or whether service will be confined to the Australian mainland.

MR. JIM O'SULLIVAN.

Mr. Jim O'Sullivan, of Gladstone, who enlisted recently in the R.A.A.F., has received his call-up, and left to join a unit in the south. Prior to his departure friends and members of the Gladstone branch of the Waterside Workers assembled to bid him farewell. He was vice-president of the local branch for many years, and officials took advantage of the opportunity to wish him the best of luck and a safe return.

BOWLED VICTOR TRUMPER.

Memories of the late Victor Trumper and his magnificent batting were brought back by a visitor to Gladstone, Mr. Ray Broomfield, who is in the claims section of the railway department. Mr. Broomfield had the distinction of taking the immortal Victor's wicket when his New South Wales XI. tried conclusions with a central team on the Rockhampton Oval in the good old days. Picking up one of the express deliveries Trumper hit it to the boundary, where it was beautifully taken by another good cricketer, McLaughlin. Broomfield played for the old Albert Club, and one of his opponents in those days was G. E. Wilson, of Gladstone, then a dashing bat for the C.Y.M.S. Broomfield had a splendid record as a fast bowler. To-day he looks fit and well enough to trouble batsmen on present day wickets.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

ANNUAL MEETING

Progress Reported

The annual meeting of St. Andrew's congregation was held in the Watt Memorial Hall on Monday night, the chair being occupied by the minister (Rev. H. MacNeil Saunders, M.A.), who opened the meeting with a brief devotional session.

A feature of the meeting was the rendering of vocal items interspersed between the various reports, for which members appreciated. These items were rendered by Mrs. C. N. Joseph, Miss Esme MacTaggart, Mrs. E. W. Dodge, and Miss Ruth Hunter.

The retiring committee reported hopefully upon the church's work during 1942, despite a vacancy of eight months in the pastorate and the disturbance created by evacuation.

The finances had made a sound recovery, enabling normal activities to be carried on, and improvements to be made to the manse. A small but increased credit balance was disclosed in the balance sheet.

Reference was made to the Flower Show, which reflected credit on the committee, under the direction of Mr. A. D. Hopper and numerous helpers. The St. Andrew's Day concert was also featured in the report.

The envelope system of voluntary contribution, recently reorganised by Mr. R. J. Mackay (the new registrar), was attracting gratifying support.

ELECTION OF COMMITTEE. SESSION REPORT.

The election of the committee was conducted by a ballot of sealed lists, and the result of the election was declared as follows:—Messrs. A. D. Hopper, C. Cooper, H. Mason, A. Evans, J. Fisher, R. J. Mackay, C. Sanders, A. Young, W. J. Garrett, and R. Tait.

The session report showed that the membership was strengthened by transfers from other charges. Attendance at public worship had increased and was increasing. Religious instruction in the State Schools and the ordinances of the Gospel in town and country had been maintained. The Sunday School was in a flourishing condition, both in attendance and finance, and the Women's Guild was able to render a pleasing account of its various activities.

A new report, which was received with much pleasure, came from the Bible study group of the Presbyterian Fellowship of Australia, a youth organisation working with strength and enthusiasm among the young people of the church.

GENERAL.

The minister pointed out that this year is the seventy-sixth anniversary of the founding of the church in Gladstone, and on his suggestion a special committee was appointed to arrange for the appropriate celebration of this event during the month of May.

Mr. C. N. Joseph and Mr. C. W. Macfarlan were elected as auditors for 1943.

The members dispersed with feelings of hope and gratitule for the good work accomplished in the past and planned for the future.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mrs. W. H. McCray, of Gladstone, has returned home after leaving her daughter Shirley at All Hallowes Convent, Brisbane, where she will continue her schooling.

SNAKE AT AMBULANCE STATION.

The Superintendent of the Gladstone Ambulance, Mr. W. V. Coase, has had many unique calls for first aid, but it is extremely doubtful if bearers had ever opened the doors to a stranger visitor than one which arrived at 10.30 p.m. on Tuesday night. When Bearer P. Hutcheon swung his main door open in answer to a call he was astonished to see a 4ft. brown snake enter and wriggle on the concrete near the car. Picking up a piece of wood his first shot was a bull's eye, and it broke the snake's back. Hurrying down, the Superintendent was relieved to find that he was too late to render first aid. This is the first patient the Ambulance have lost for a long time. The snake is still on view at the Brigade headquarters, the bearer having preserved and put it in a bottle for first-aid lessons. The reptile must have come right across the footpath in the main street, and was probably walked over by many perestrians that night.

BOYNE WATER SUPPLY SCHEME!

MR FORDE OBTAINS A PRIORITY FOR THE WORK

COMMONWEALTH GOVERNMENT GRANT ASKED FOR

Considerable energy has been expended by the Town Council, assisted by other local bodies, in emphasising time and again the importance of the Boyne River water supply scheme, both from a Gladstone and national point of view, and everything possible had been done to obtain an "A1" priority, which would ensure the Council obtaining the necessary supplies of materials and manpower to start the work and complete it at the earliest possible date.

PATIENCE OF THE PEOPLE.

As everyone knows, there has been never ending delays to get the authorities to view the scheme as one of outstanding urgency, and recently the patience of the people of Gladstone was strained to breaking point as finality in the securing of a priority seemed as far off as ever—just the usual outlook towards Gladstone and its port as the cinderella of the Queensland coast.

NECESSARY WORKS.

The facts disclose that the Army Minister (Mr. F. M. Forde), replying to a letter from the Agriculture Minister (Mr. T. L. Williams), dated December 24, stated he was writing to the Premier (Mr. F. A. Cooper) in regard to the Boyne water scheme with a view to having it listed as one of the necessary works to be carried out, but it had to be understood that the Federal Government did not undertake water schemes for the various towns throughout Australia.

"NO USE MISLEADING"

Mr. Forde pointed out that while he was anxious to help the people of Gladstone in every way possible, it was no use misleading them into thinking that the Commonwealth Government was about to put down water supply schemes throughout the various municipalities of Australia, because this had always been primarily the responsibility of the local authorities and the State Government.

MR. FORDE ASKS FOR "A1" PRIORITY.

Subsequently Mr. Forde informed the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson) that he was doing everything possible to expedite the provision of an adequate water supply for Gladstone, had interviews in Brisbane with the Premier (Mr. Cooper), the Agriculture Minister (Mr. Williams), Mr. Kemp (Deputy Director General of Allied Works), and had made representations to the Defence Committee, Melbourne, that the work be given an "A1" priority.

"COURSE OF ACTION."

A letter from Mr. Forde to the Gladstone branch of the A.L.P. stated: "I have your letter of the 14th January, concerning the desire of your organisation that the Boyne water scheme should be completed as soon as possible. I discussed the matter with the Premier (Mr. Cooper) yesterday, and we decided to follow a 'course of action' we hope will have the desired effect."

"STILL IN THE DARK."

In giving the facts it might be mentioned that the "course of action" taken has never been conveyed to the Council, as the governing body of the town, and the ratepayers are still in the dark as to what took place at the interview.

HIGHER PRIORITY ASKED FOR.

Proceeding a step further, Mr. Williams informed the Council at its special meeting, held on February 12, that he had urged on the Commonwealth authorities to grant an even higher priority for the Gladstone water supply scheme in order to further the proposal, and he (Mr. Williams) promised to support his application in person when in Canberra.

"A2" AND "B" PRIORITIES.

Mr. Williams went further in his desire to assist the Council, and asked Mr. Kemp (Deputy Director General of Allied Works) to support him in the request that the scheme be placed on an "A2" priority in place of the "B" priority.

PUZZLING POSITION.

As stated in our last issue, this information was most interesting, but decidedly puzzling to the ratepayers in view of the fact that the Army Minister (Mr. Forde) had made representations to the Defence Committee Melbourne, that the work be given an "A1" priority.

MR. FORDE'S WORDS.

Mr. Forde, being conversant with the fact that large quantities of water were being taken at short notice in the national interests, no doubt stressed on the Defence Committee, Melbourne, the necessity of granting an "A1" priority. He must have done so, for here are Mr. Forde's words: "Have since made representations to the Defence Committee, Melbourne, that the work be given an "A1" priority."

TELEGRAM FROM MR. FORDE.

On Thursday we received the following telegram from Mr. Forde:—

"Referring to previous correspondence in regard to priority for the Gladstone water scheme, this matter has now been considered by the Defence Priorities Committee, consisting of chiefs of staff and works officials, and a priority has been allotted which will ensure that the work will be taken in hand, but the fighting services and operational projects will take precedence. Have advised the Premier of Queensland and Mr. Williams accordingly, and have asked the Premier to confer with Mr. Kemp, Co-ordinator of Works, with a view to expediting the work."

NEWS WELCOMED.

This news has been welcomed by all sections of the community, and it can be taken for granted in view of Mr. Forde's representations to the Defence Committee, Melbourne, that the priority is a high one. Mr. Forde is to be commended for his action in the interests of Gladstone and its port.

WHAT IT MEANS.

Of course, it must be remembered that the granting of a priority does not mean that the scheme has been taken over by the Commonwealth Government or the Allied Works Council, as such an undertaking is the responsibility of the Council and the State Government. It simply means, in plain English, another step forward, assuring the Council that the supply of materials and manpower will now be made available for the job.

COST OF THE SCHEME.

The next point of interest is the cost of the scheme to the ratepayers, and at a special meeting of the Council, held recently, it was decided on the motion of Ald. W. R. Golding, seconded by the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis) to bring under the notice of Mr. Forde the following outstanding points:—

That the port is taking a prominent part in a co-ordinated plan for the conduct of the war, for which water in quantity is so vital and urgent.

That many industries engaged exclusively on war work in this area are dependent on a good water supply.

That in view of the urgency of the whole scheme, and the necessity for its early completion, it should not be expected that the citizens of Gladstone should be called upon to bear the extra cost of the scheme brought about by the war.

That the whole question be reviewed with a view to the Federal Government granting a subsidy on the scheme.

That the scheme be declared of sufficient national importance to have it declared an "A1" priority job.

COMMONWEALTH GRANT.

The citizens of Gladstone should not be called upon to bear the extra cost of the scheme brought about by the war, and it is earnestly hoped that Mr. Forde will continue his good work by obtaining a Commonwealth grant, as the work to be carried out is of national importance.

GLADSTONE GIRLS

Join the W.A.A.A.F.

Gladstone girls are now given the opportunity to join the W.A.A.A.F. Section Officer Lilias Dow, the W.A.A.A.F. recruiting officer, arrived in Gladstone on Thursday, and will depart on Monday. She can be interviewed at the Grand Hotel buildings.

A special appeal is being made for girls to join or train as clerks, stenographers, typists, cooks and trainee cooks, dental orderlies, sick quarter attendants, teleprinter and telephone operators and drill instructresses.

"The W.A.A.A.F. will welcome skilled or unskilled," says Section Officer Dow. "All we ask is for them to join up while freedom of action still remains. This is the nation's fight, and everyone must be in it until victory is won."

CALLIOPE SHIRE COUNCIL

ROADS TO BE CONSTRUCTED BY WORKS COUNCIL

FERRY SERVICE CONTINUED UNDER NEW TIMETABLE

At the last monthly meeting of the Council there were present: The Chairman (Cr. W. Beak), and Councillors, S. J. A. Creed, J. H. Cummings, R. W. Hunt, H. NeillBallantine, J. M. Campbell, G. H. Potter, W. C. Dickinson, J. F. Drynan, E. H. C. Steel, the Shire Clerk (Mr. H. H. Whittle), and the Health Inspector (Mr. P. F. Browne).

REDUCTION APPRECIATED.

The Main Roads Commission advised of the reduced apportionment of maintenance works owing to flood damage for the year ended 30th June, 1942, on the Biloela-Gladstone Road from 50 to 25 per cent, and from 30 to 15 per cent on the Hut Creek-Raglan section of the Northern Highway. The reduction in the apportionments represented a saving of £46/14/1 to the Council.

It was resolved that the Commissioner be thanked for the reduction.

FERRY SERVICE.

Mr. H. B. Randall advised he was prepared to continue the ferry service at the reduced price of £10 per annum under the revised timetable as submitted by the Council.—Received.

COMPLAINTS.

Messrs. E. F. Byrne & Dan Day lodged separate written complaints regarding the unsatisfactory delivery of cream cans to their respective landings.

It was decided to deliver a letter to the ferryman asking for an explanation in writing so as the complaints could be further dealt with at a later stage of the meeting.

Mr. Randall, during the afternoon, attended the meeting and tendered a verbal explanation, which was considered satisfactory. The complainants to be informed accordingly, and the Port Curtis Co-operative Dairy Association to be asked to deliver any empty cream cans to O'Connell Wharf before 5 p.m. on Thursday, so as they would be in good time for the ferry leaving at 6 p.m.

MARYBOROUGH-GLADSTONE ROAD.

Gladstone Town Council advised it would support any representations the Calliope Shire Council might decide to make to have the section of the Maryborough-Gladstone highway from the Boyne River to the end of the completed section, near the Town Council boundary, constructed.

It was decided that the Town Council be thanked for its offer of support, and informed that representation was being made to have the work carried out at the earliest date possible.

ROAD CLASSIFICATION.

The Main Roads Commission notified the classification of the undermentioned main roads had been altered to that of the Callide-Port Curtis State Highway No. 34.

(a) The Gladstone-Calliope main road from Police Creek to the overbridge in Calliope.

(b) The section of the Calliope-Glassford Creek main road from the over railway bridge in Calliape to the Barmundu turn-off.

(c) The Biloela-Gladstone road from the over railway bridge in Calliope to the turn-off into Calliope Station.

It was resolved to thank the Commissioner for the change in classification.

GLADSTONE-CALLIOPE ROAD.

Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., and the District Engineer advised of the construction of section of the Gladstone-Calliope Road from Briffney Creek to opposite Mr. John Renton's property, including a bridge over the creek opposite the above mentioned property. The work, estimated to cost £12,197/1/3, to be carried out by the Allied Works Council without cost to the shire.

It was resolved to thank Mr. Williams and the Commissioner for Main Roads through the District Engineer for the information.

BILOELA-GLADSTONE ROAD.

Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., and District Engineer advised of the construction of a section of the Biloela-Gladstone main road from Scrubby Creek to the Calliope Station turn-off, and two sections of the Port Curtis-Callide highway. The jobs, estimated to cost £20,207/8/6, are to be carried out by the Allied Works Council without cost to this Council.

It was resolved that Mr. Williams and the Commissioner for Main Roads be thanked through the District Engineer for the information.

CALLIOPE CLEANSING SERVICE.

Mr. J. S. Baker advised of his intention to surrender his contract for the Calliope cleansing service as from 15th February, 1943, owing to the shortage of man power.

A certificate was tendered from Dr. Yum, stating that Mr. Roy Wright was, owing to health reasons, unable to continue in the employment of Mr. Baker to assist with the service.

It was decided:—

(1) To retain the £25 lodged by Mr. Baker for the due performance of the contract.

(2) The deposit of £25 to be withdrawn from the Trust Account and paid to the credit of the Calliope Cleansing Fund.

(3) The purchase of the undermentioned plant to be made from Mr. Baker at the price agreed upon with the Health Inspector:—

120 sanitary pans complete with lids at 2/- each, £12; half drum of tar at £1, and a quantity of disinfectant at 5/-, total £13/5/-.

CATFISH SCRUB.

The Central Graziers' Association notified that the construction of a section of the Port Curtis-Callide highway by the Allied Works Council in the Catfish Scrub would encroach upon the old track used by travelling stock, and asked that a fresh track be brushed for the use of stock.

It was resolved that a copy of the letter be forwarded to the District Engineer with a request that he be good enough to have the request attended to.

TRAVELLING STOCK.

The Central Coastal Graziers' Association asked the Council to have a by-law made imposing a levy of one penny per head on all travelling stock camping in the Burua yards. Arrangements to be made for Messrs. Swift Australian Co. (Pty.) Ltd., Gladstone, to deduct the levy from the proceeds for the purchase of stock, and to be expended in the repairs and maintenance of the camping yards at Burua and the stock route leading thereto, and thence to the Meatworks at Gladstone by Messrs. Swift Australian Co. (Pty.) Ltd.

SPECIAL MEETING.

It was decided to call a special meeting at 2.15 p.m. on Friday, April 9, 1943, for the purpose of passing a by-law to give effect to the wishes of the Association.

OLD MINING SHAFT.

To and from the Mining Warden, Gladstone, regarding the cost of protecting the mouth of the old mining shaft on water reserve R222, town of Calliope, against danger to the public. The Warden stated that it was the duty of the Council to protect the public from possible danger. He asked that details of the estimated cost be submitted and would then make a recommendation that portion of the cost be borne by the Department of Mines.

It was resolved that the request of the Warden be given effect to.

LEASE TO BE TERMINATED.

The Land Agent advised that the Ubobo Sawmilling Company had applied for the suspension of the conditions covering the fencing of portion of Hawke Street, Ubobo, held under special lease for the purpose of a site for a well, on the grunds that the fencing would retard the progress of operations at the mill.

It was agreed to inform the Land Agent that as a suitably supply of water was not located on the portion of the street leased, the well be filled in and the lease terminated.

WAR DAMAGE ASSESSMENTS.

The War Damage Commission advised that the allowance of 1/3d. per assessment had been agreed upon to cover cost of clerical services, postage, envelopes and audit fees for the current year.

It was resolved that as the Shire Clerk did not wish to participate in any surplus of the allowance, after paying for the cost of postage, envelopes and audit fees, it be first paid into the Shire Fund, and then to Misses Barker and Worthington in equal proportions.

ACCOUNTS ALLOWED.

The Auditor General notified that the accounts for the year ended 30th June, 1942, had been allowed after the Clerk had furnished the information required by the Auditor General.—Received.

AUDITOR'S FEE.

The Director Local Authority Affairs advised the local auditor's fee had been increased from £28 to £35 for the financial years 1941-42 and 1942-43.—Received.

HOSPITAL PRECEPTS.

The Secretary Gladstone Hospitals Board advised the undermentioned precepts had been levied for the year ending 30th June, 1943:—

Gladstone Town Council £437/13/2, Shire of Calliope £1449/15/10, Shire of Miriam Vale £1078/19/-, total £2966/8/.

The Council's precept for the previous year was £1619/19/3.—Received.

TRIENNIAL ELECTION.

The Director of Local Authority Affairs advised the "Local Government Act of 1934" provided for the triennial election to be held on May 1, and that preferential voting had been abolished.—Received.

PROPOSAL FAVOURED.

The Director of Local Authority Affairs notified that in view of man power and plant not being available for road works owing to war conditions, it would be desirable for the Government to modify the provisions of "The Local Government Acts 1936-43," which prohibited the building up of a reserve fund for such a purpose and made provisions for the surplus at the close of the financial year being transferred to a reserve fund, which could be expended on the restoration of roads and other works, when man power and plant became available.

It was decided to reply stating the Council favoured the proposal.

BUDGET PROGRESS REPORT.

The Director Local Authority Affairs asked for a copy of the progress report on the budget at 31st March next, also the anticipated position of the budget at the close of the financial year, which had to be submitted to the Council by the Clerk under section 29 (1) of "The Local Government Acts."

It was resolved that the Clerk furnish the information required.

RESERVE FUND.

The Director Local Authority Affairs forwarded a summary of the provisions of "The Local Government Amendment Act of 1942," which provided that moneys received for plant requisitioned, compulsorily acquired, or acquired by purchase of the Allied Works Council may, by resolution, be applied in payment of the redemption of the loan liability and the creation of a reserve fund for the purchase of plant when available.

It was resolved that the Clerk furnish at the next meeting a statement showing the position of the plant hire and loan accounts.

POPPY WREATHS.

The Returned Soldiers' Association advised that poppy wreaths for Anzac Day would be available for Anzac Day.—It was resolved that five be ordered.

ACT OF BRAVERY.

Hon. Secretary, Corporal Jack French, V.C. Memorial Fund Committee, solicited donations towards the establishment of a suitable memorial to Corporal Jack French, of Crow's Nest, who won the first Victoria Cross awarded to an Australian for bravery on Australian soil (Papua).

The Chairman stated that while wishing to assist in perpetuating the memory of the late Corporal Jack French, V.C., for the act of bravery which cost him his life, he did not wish to be a party to vote shire funds for the purpose, and moved that a contribution be made by himself and fellow members.

The Chairman, members, Clerk, staff and Health Inspector contributed 30/-.

APPROVED.

Payment of car mileage of £8/1/6 to the Chairman under By-law No. 28 was approved.

LANTANA.

Mr. A. W. Noe complained of the lantana on the road leading to his property.—Received.

WHEN PLANT AVAILABLE.

Mrs. W. Thorogood asked that the road be repaired to her property.

It was decided to advise that the request would receive attention when the plant was next in the vicinity.

TO BE INSPECTED.

Mr. S. Day asked that the last mile and a half of the road leading to his property be repaired.—The request was left to Mr. R. E. Brown for inspection and report.

Mr. W. G. Day asked that several sections of the road leading to his property be drained and gravelled. The writer stated he was prepared to remove the few trees and fallen timber on the road between his gate and the creek without cost to the Council so as the grader could be used to form the road.

The request was referred to Mr. R. E. Brown for inspection and report.

REQUEST APPROVED.

Mrs. E. L. Martin offered to repair the road to her property from about opposite Mr. O. Christensen's residence for £2.—The request was approved subject to the work being carried out to the satisfaction of a representative of the Council.

NAGOORIN-NORTON ROAD.

Mr. C. R. Cave asked for repairs to the section of the road between Nagoorin and Norton.—It was decided to advise that an inspection would be made by the divisional members and report furnished to the Council.

REPAIRS WANTED.

Mr. J. J. O'Sullivan asked that repairs to his road be effected.—It was decided to advise that an inspection would be made by the divisional members as soon as possible.

REQUEST NOTED.

Mrs. T. Tighe asked that provision be made for pedestrians to cross the creek in the Many Peaks township without having to wade through the water.—It was decided to note the request.

FINANCE.

Accounts amounting to £4219/0/7 were passed for payment.

TENDERS.

The only tender received for the Calliope cleansing service was that of Mr. V. A. Davis.

On the motion of Crs. Ballantine and Campbell it was decided:—

(1) Not to accept the tender as the prices were too high.

(2) The matter of arranging for the temporary continuance of the service be left in the hands of the Chairman and members for Division 2 and the Health Inspector.

(3) Fresh tenders be called in June next or sooner if there were prospects of a suitable tender being lodged.

GENERAL.

Payment of £1 to Mr. W. H. Hunt for road repairs was approved.

It was decided to ask the District Engineer to have visibility discs erected on the Hut Creek-Raglan highway, particularly on the section where the big cuttings and fills were situated.

It was resolved that final notice requesting the destruction of noxious weeds be served by registered letter to four ratepayers.

It was decided on the recommendation of the Health Inspector to purchase certain cleansing service plant from Mr. J. S. Barker for £13/5/-.

GLADSTONE HOSPITAL.

APPLICATIONS are invited from Girls with the necessary qualifications for positions as Trainee Nurses at the Gladstone Hospital.

One vacancy is to be filled immediately.

IT is clear to all that there is a gap between the cost of the War to the Australian people, and what is being taken by the Government in Taxes and Loans to meet it.

The Nation is spending too much, and saving too little.

Saving money is nothing new for the members of the A.M.P. Society. They are accustomed to saving for the defence of their families, but they—and every man and woman—must now save harder for the defence of the Nation.

Every bullet fired by our troops, every bomb exploded, every plane or ship lost, has to be paid for by the Australian people. The more we pay cheerfully to-day in Taxes and Loans, the less we shall have to pay in bitterness when the day of reckoning comes.

The A.M.P. is putting £500,000 of its members' savings into the War Loans every month: already it has loaned £45,000,000 to the Commonwealth.

In war-time the price of spending is future distress.

CAN YOU HELP?

Books, magazines and old clean newspapers are urgently needed by the Gladstone branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. If you have any old newspapers, books, or magazines, kindly leave same at Gladstone Cash and Carry, where they will be collected regularly and despatched to the troops in camp. The camps in the outlying centres are much in need of reading matter and indoor games, such as playing cards, etc. See what you can do.

FOOD FACTS

NUMBER 3A

Nature's Perfect Food is

MILK

Providing more nutrition than any other single food, Milk contains the vital vitamins and minerals needed to protect against illness, ensure good digestion, build healthy tissues, strong bones and teeth.

It aids normal growth, develops energy, and protects against ill-health.

Children up to 16 years should have 1¼ pints of milk daily—either to drink, or in soups, sauces, custards or puddings.

★ ★ ★ ★

In country areas where fresh cow's milk is not plentiful, full cream powdered milk is an excellent substitute—providing the same benefits almost completely.

MAKING BETTER AUSTRALIANS

A WAR OF LIBERATION

Building a Happier Peace

"This is, in reality, a people's war of liberation; we have fought as comrades, irrespective of class and creed, and as comrades we will build up a happier peace."

These words were spoken by Sir Stafford Cripps little more than a year ago, and they crystallise very thoroughly the hopes and aspirations of the vast majority of all British peoples.

But if these brave words are to be more than the expression of a pious hope, they must be the creed by which the future is inspired and upon which it is built.

Nothing can be clearer than that the shape of things to come will be determined by the attitude of the people. If they sit down after the war, too wearied by the years of combat to continue marching on, then the most they can hope for is a refurbishing of an old order, bearing within itself the seeds of greater wars and more catastrophic depressions. This prospect is one which progressive minds are striving to eliminate.

A NEW CITIZENSHIP.

A stimulating sign in Australia is the work of the Army Education Service, which emphasises among its most important aims that of raising "the standard of citizenship and culture among the men and women in the army" as a necessary prelude to post-war reconstruction.

To-day there are full-time education officers with every field formation down to brigades, and most of the camps have their educational section through which the facilities of the service are made available to the troops.

The details of the service are numerous and widely varied. They include lectures on subjects as divergent as "Australian Fauna and Flora" and "The Principles of Socialisation." There are film shows, debates, instruction in handicrafts, correspondence courses in almost any subject possible of teaching by this method, and, more importantly, the arrangement of facilities for general discussion on all question of social and political importance.

This is a notable sign of vigorous mental development within the army, and it leads naturally to the thought of what is happening among the civilian population.

NOTE OF WARNING.

In England Sir Stafford Cripps said recently: "Signs are not wanting that selfish interests are preparing to cast the future in the mould of the past, yet this development does not seem to bring any reaction from those who were formerly so confident about the future."

Noting this tendency, he warns all progressive elements to unitedly resist the "soothing call of rest."

We civilians in Australia should note this warning. It is for us to keep step with the services in preparing ourselves for the "building of the happier peace," so that we may stand beside the men and women of the services in the tasks that will confront us after the guns are silenced.

That responsibility cannot be discharged merely by casting a vote when the elections come around. It calls to each one of us for careful thought and study, and an honest endeavour to do what lies within our power to ensure that those who have defended our liberties shall not have fought in vain. And no contribution, however modest, will be insignificant in determining the shape of things to come.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

NEW USES FOR OILS

An Important Discovery

A new use for detoluated benzol (obtained from India's toluene industry) as a solvent in processing rubber has re-routed oil of her oilfields from rubber factories to aero engine carburettors.

The importance of this discovery lies in the fact that every gallon of solvent oil drawn from the oilfields decreases production by two potential gallons of aviation spirit.

Increasing new uses for cocoanut oil as a substitute for sperm oil in certain operations connected with munitions manufacture have also been found. Thus a means has been discovered of replacing about 9000 gallons of sperm oil, all of which India needed to import.

Australia, under the dictate of war, is rebalancing her economy also. Especially in the oil- consuming elements of industry and transport radical new proceedia have had to be adopted.

Some motorists, finding the petrol ration insufficient, have taken to gas producers. Others have taken to substitute fuels. More and more of these drivehs, realising that a car being freely driven without a gas producer can make them suspect of using "black market" petrol, are now increasingly displaying a sign on the front bumper bar, reading in black letters on yellow: "This vehicle is runing on substitute fuel."

One equivalent of petrol is being extracted from our shale deposits. The future of this operation has been so well viewed by American interests that they have approached the Government for a decision about terms which will justify them in putting about £5,000,000 into the development of the industry.

Another type of motor fuel, benzol, has been made by the Newcastle Steelworks for many years. The vast quantity of gas made during the conversion of 26,000 tons of coal to coke each week, contains many "impurities" which have become the basis for new industries.

Ammonia is fed to the refrigeration industry. Tar goes to road makers. Solvent naptha is used by dope manufacturers for airplanes. Toluol is wanted by the explosives industry, and benzol, besides helping in other ways, keeps many cars and trucks on Australian roads which otherwise would be laid up.

From every ton of coal treated in the B.H.P. coke ovens a little more than three gallons of benzol is gained for motorists. Without it we would be denied about 500,000 gallons of substitute fuel a year.

SHIRE COASTAL AREA

INFESTED WITH MOSQUITOES

Report by Mr. Browne

At the last meeting of the Calliope Shire Council, the Health Inspector (Mr. P. F. Browne) reported that the usual inspections had been made at all the principal towns in the area.

GOOD STANDARD.

The general sanitary conditions prevailing in the shire, the report stated, could be said to be of a reasonably good standard. Complaints when received usually were of a minor nature, and dealt mostly with the individual, and such complaints had reached him concerning the deterioration of the present cleansing service for Calliope.

COVERING MATERIAL.

It appears that no covering material had been left in the receptacles for the past month. As covering material was essential in maintaining a clean and hygienic service, it was hard to understand this oversight on the part of the contractor, as there is ample sawdust available at Calliope.

BOYNE ISLAND SERVICE.

The contractor for Boyne Island carried out the work entrusted to him in a very satisfactory manner. All the sanitary and garbage was collected and removed daily. No lime was used on the island, sawdust being substituted, and proved most effective. The other cleansing services in the area are working to the satisfaction of the community, and few, if any, would return to the old method of backyard burial, with all its attendant evils.

IMMUNISATION.

Efforts were being made to organise immunisation drives in the Mt. Larcom district, and when members were available arrangements would be made for the doctor to visit the centre. Already some inquiries have come to hand.

MOSQUITOES

The coastal area of the shire is heavily infested with mosquitoes, and any attempt at eradication would cost a lot of money. The two most important groups of mosquitoes are the Anophe lines and Culicines, the former spreading malaria, and the latter dengue and filaria.

The Anipheles mosquito is the transmitter of malaria, and is easily distinguishable by its peculiar habit of standing on its head. All other kinds of mosquitoes when at rest stand parallel to the surface. Malaria is generally more or less connected with swampy conditions.

The two principal mosquitoes in the shire appear to be the dengue fever carrier (which breeds in clean water, such as rainwater tanks, and is a domestic mosquito), and the other the night biter, which transmits filaria and breeds in all kinds of stagnant water, side grips, and odd collections of water.

The report was adopted.

WAR-TIME RESTRICTIONS

Privileges Taken Away

"The way people throughout Australia have accepted the necessary war-time restrictions of their privileges has been wonderful, but we should remember that it's very hard to recover privileges once they have been taken away. Societies such as yours should see that these privileges are restored as soon as the necessity for their imposition has passed," said the new Lord Mayor of Sydney (Ald. Bartley), speaking at the British Empire Union's luncheon in Sydney last week.

Alderman Bartley, who was speaking on the unity between the fighting forces and the civilians in Australia, paid a tribute to the work done throughout the Commonwealth for the Australian Comforts Fund.

CURIOSITY KILLS OTHERS

CUT OUT IDLE TALK

Brings Fatal Results

Human beings, we are told, are the highest form of life because they are able to think for themselves.

In other words, they have the faculty of reason.

On the other hand, the animals are governed by instinct. There are, however, some animals that are drawn irresistibly by a force stronger than instinct to an object waved at them from cover. That force is curiosity, and it very often results in their death at the hands of a hunter.

So it is with many Australians today. Their curiosity about military moves, dispositions, etc., overcomes their reason, and they ask questions. Not content with asking questions, they repeat what they have been told, and the enemy in cover hears some vital information about our troops. But, in this case, it is not the curious one who meets his death. It is perhaps, hundreds of soldiers who are risking their lives to keep him safe.

If people would only stop and think would use their reason to overcome their curiosity, then the enemy would be denied much valuable information that he is now gaining by the simple process of listening to ordinary people talking about the movements of their friends in the fighting forces.

It is useless to think that, because this is Australia there are no enemy agents here. It is a fact that they are here, and curiosity and idle talk by the public are making their jobs 100 per cent easier.

It is when the agent is denied easy means of gaining military information that he has to take risks, and when he begins to take risks his chances of remaining undiscovered become much slimmer.

The fact that some members of the public know that the North Division is at Blank, and that there are ten anti-aircraft guns at Blink is not going to help our war effort, but it is certainly going to help the enemy's. So it is up to the public as a whole to use its power of reasoning to overcome its curiosity and to cut out the idle talk that so often brings fatal results to the troops.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

GLADSTONE TOWN COUNCIL

ALD. GOLDING MOVES IMPORTANT RESOLUTION

RUMOURS SCORCHED - "LIE DIRECT" FLUNG BACK

The fortnightly meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen J. Deveney, M. A. Busteed, W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. E. Smith, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

ELECTIONS.

Department of Local Authority Affairs, Brisbane, notified that the elections would be held on Saturday, May 1.—Received.

WASTE PAPER.

Department of Health and Home Affairs, Brisbane, advised that the price of waste paper had been increased to £1 per ton free on rail at place of consignment.—Received.

DRAINAGE.

Mr. G. Mylne, Montville, wrote regarding the drainage of allotment 19, Scenery Street, and also mentioned that allotment 20 was also effected by storm water from Bayne Street, and asked to be advised if the Council intended to correct this nuisance.—Referred to the Works Overseer for attention.

LANE WATER.

Mr. C. Chapman, Gladstone, asked the Council to open the drain at the back of his private house to prevent the lane water from going over on to his cottages. He hoped the Council would give the matter early consideration.—Referred to the Works Overseer for attention.

REPAIRS TO FOOTPATH.

Mr. A. A. Lowe, Gladstone, again asked that repairs to his footpath be carried out.—Referred to the Works Overseer for attention.

WASTE WATER.

Mr. T. T. Brunton, Gladstone, complained of waste water lying at the bottom of his property, and asked that same be attended to, as it was a natural breeding ground for mosquitoes.—Referred to the Works Overseer for attention.

In connection with the foregoing works, it was decided on the motion of Ald. Golding that application be made to obtain the loan of a tractor and scoop from Coney Island to carry out the work, and any other additional work required.

CLEANSING THE BATHS.

Mr. J. H. Scheskie, Public Baths, wrote in connection with the cleansing of the baths, and asked to be supplied with power kerosene or petrol, the cost of which he would bear.—To be informed the Council would make an effort to obtain the kerosene.

CONTROL OF MOSQUITOES.

Department of Health and Home Affairs, Brisbane, notified that in order that the State contribute its maximum share to the war effort, the Cabinet, on the representation of the Minister for Health and Home Affairs, had decided to request each local authority to plan its health work for the year 1943. With this end in view, Cabinet had decided to subsidise local authorities by 50 per cent subsidy in carrying out approved schemes for the control and eradication of mosquitoes in their area.

With a view to the control and eradication of mosquitoes, it was decided on the motion of Ald. Anderson that the Health Inspector (Mr. Browne) make a house to house inspection, and that a report be submitted to the Council.

CONVENT SCHOOL.

Department of Health, Brisbane, furnished a copy of a report from School Sister K. Bowder, of the State Health Services branch, concerning a medical inspection of the Convent School. It was found that the lavatories were in a bad condition and prejudicial to the health of the children. She stressed the urgency of having the insanitary condition rectified as soon as possible in the best interests of the children and that of the community generally, and suggested that measures be taken to have this work instituted without delay.

The matter was referred to the Health Inspector (Mr. Browne) to make an inspection and report, and Ald. Anderson remarked that it upheld his contention to carry out a house to house inspection.

MARYBOROUGH-GLADSTONE

Calliope Shire Council thanked the Council for its offer to support any representation made for the early construction of the Northern Highway, Maryborough-Gladstone section, from the Boyne River, and advised that representation was being made through Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., asking that the work be carried out at the earliest possible date.—Received.

TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL.

Trades and Labour Council (Gladstone branch) again requested that a public convenience be erected on a suitable position, as it was long overdue. Other matters that came up for discussion was the mosquito menace, and the state of hotel and industrial lavatories.

Dealing with the mosquito menace, it was requested that the Council fall into line with other councils in trying to exterminate this pest, and were of the opinion if the reservoir in Gondoon Street was drained it would assist in keeping down mosquitoes, for at present it was considered the reservoir was only a breeding ground, and was serving no useful purpose.

It was also requested that the Council inquire into the state of hotel and industrial lavatories, and see that they were kept in a hygienic condition.

HOUSE TO HOMSE INSPECTION.

In regard to hote: and industrial lavatories, it was decided on the motion of Ald. Anderson that the Trades and Labour Council be informed that the Health Inspector (Mr. Browne) had been instructed to carry out a house to house inspection.

NOT OVERLOOKED.

In referring to the public convenience, the Mayor (Ald. Dennis) stated it had been a longfelt want, but the matter had not been overlooked by the Council; the question was one of obtaining a suitable piece of land centrally situated, and a loan to carry out the work.

OBJECTION RAISED.

Ald. Golding said he had spoken recently to Mr. A. H. Friend in regard to the land situated opposite his firm's premises, and he (Mr. Friend) had raised an objection, pointing out that lavatories all round the town were a disgrace, being misused by the public, and there was no doubt that this contention was correct. It would require someone to be in constant attendance, or else it would become a nuisance to the health of the town. Such a convenience could, no doubt, become self supporting, the erection of a rest room with showers, with a nominal charge to be made for the service, but the Council could not get a loan for such a purpose at the present time.

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) supported the remarks of Ald. Golding.

It was decided on the motion of Ald. Golding, seconded by the Mayor (Ald. Dennis), that the Trades and Labour Council be informed that the Council was fully aware of the necessity of a public convenience, but it was necessary to secure a suitable block of land, and that no loan could be obtained from the Government at the present time.

"EATEN BY THE EELS."

It was also decided to notify the Trades and Labour Council that no mosquitoes could breed in the dam, as the larvae was all eaten by the eels.

HEALTH REPORT.

DECISION.

As important matters were contained in Mr. Browne's report, it was decided that it be held over for his attendance.

WORKS REPORT.

It was decided that the Works Committee make an inspection of Lord Street.

GENERAL.

It was decided on the motion of Ald. Smith that the Shell Co. be asked to carry out certain work to facilitate motor traffic on the road.

It was decided to write to the Department of Local Government, Brisbane, stressing the necessity to complete the bylaws, more especially the water section.

Accounts amounting to £1670/3/5 were passed for payment.

Water Authority

TELEGRAMS FROM MR. FORDE.

The following telegram was read from the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde):—

"I am doing everything possible to expedite provision of an adequate water supply for Gladstone.

"Have had interviews in Brisbane on this matter with the Premier, the Minister for Agriculture, and Mr. Kemp, Co-ordinator General of Works, and have since made representations to the Defence Committee, Melbourne, that the work be given an A1 priority.

"If this is done the Allied Works Council could be asked to make available the necessary labour if local labour is not available.

"Will write you further later."

Another telegram was read from Mr. Forde as follows:—

"Referring to previous correspondence in regard to priority for the Gladstone water scheme, this matter has now been considered by the Defence Priorities Committee, consisting of chiefs of staff and works officials, and a priority has been allotted which will ensure that the work will be taken in hand, but the fighting services and operational projects will take precedence. Have advised the Premier of Queensland and Mr. Williams accordingly, and have asked the Premier to confer with Mr. Kemp, Co-ordinator of Works, with a view to expediting the work."

HIGHER PRIORITY WANTED.

The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams) advised the Council by telegram:—

"Have urged the Commonwealth authorities to grant an even higher priority for the Gladstone water supply scheme in order to further the proposal. Will support same in person while in Canberra next week."

WHAT PRIORITY?

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) said nothing further could be done until they had received a confirming letter from Mr. Forde in regard to a priority being granted. Up to the present the Council did not know what priority had been arranged.

APPRECIATED.

Gladstone Harbour Board wrote relative to the supply of fresh water to the port, and the Board expressed appreciation for the co-operation received from the Council and its officers, especially the action taken to cut off practically the whole of the town so as to give increased pressure at the jetty.—Received.

TRACTOR FROM CONEY ISLAND.

Mr. W. J. Reinhold, consulting engineer, Brisbane, advised that he had arranged with a firm to expedite deliveries of castings for the Boyne River water scheme. He was in touch with the Allied Works officials in an endeavour to obtain the use of a tractor.—Received, and the Town Clerk (Mr. Grayson) reported that Mr. Reinhold had obtained a tractor from Coney Island.

EXTENSION GRANTED.

Mr. G. Parsloe, Gladstone, asked to be granted an extension of time for carting the water pipes owing to the shortage of labour and time lost through rain.—It was decided that Mr. Parsloe be granted three weeks extension.

WATER FOR RAILWAYS.

General Manager, Central Queensland Railways, advised that he had instructed the loco. foreman at Gladstone that he was permitted to take up to 50,000 gallons of water per day for seven days a week until further notice from the Council, and when the position arose that the Council would have to reduce this quantity the department asked for ample notice.—Received, and the Mayor (Ald. Dennis) remarked that the department would be given sufficient notice.

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

The Engineer (Mr. E. W. Phillips) reported that since last meeting he had pumped for 672 hours, using 12,768 units.—The report was adopted.

A START MADE.

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) said although they had made a start on the first section of the Boyne water supply scheme, their troubles were far from over.

LOAN OF £80,000.

Ald. Golding Moved:—

"That formal application be made to the Treasury Department for a loan of £80,000 to complete the second section of the Boyne River water supply scheme. The motion was seconded by Ald. Smith and carried unanimously.

ALD. GOLDING HITS OUT.

"It is freely rumoured around the town," said Ald. Golding, "that some aldermen did not want the Boyne water scheme, as no effort had yet been made to complete the debenture loan.

"I would like to point out to these people," continued Ald. Golding, "that the Council did not have the power to request the completion of these debentures until such time as certain conditions asked for by the Minister for Local Authority Affairs (Mr. H. Bruce) had been complied with."

Ald. Golding went on to say that these conditions were that manpower must be available to complete the scheme within three months, the whole of the pipes to be on the job, with a qualified engineer to undertake the work.

As every ratepayer now knew, the Council had only last week been placed in a position to give the necessary assurances as asked for by Mr. Bruce through the telegram received from Mr. Forde. His statement should now be sufficient to completely contradict the rumours deliberately circulated with the one intention of injuring the Council in the eyes of the ratepayers.

"LIE DIRECT."

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis), in endorsing the remarks of Ald. Golding, stated it had been freely rumoured in town that certain aldermen did not want the Boyne water scheme, and he had great pleasure in giving the lie direct. The scheme had never been held up by the Council, and would be pushed forward until it was completed.

Ald. Deveney said he had never at any time heard an alderman say he was not in favour of the scheme.

PROTECTION WANTED.

Ald. Golding then moved:—

"That the Council make application to the Director General of Manpower for the complete protection of the men employed on the Boyne River water supply scheme.

The motion was seconded by the Mayor (Ald. Dennis) and carried unanimously.

WATERSIDE LABOUR.

Ald. Smith said he had been in touch with the Port Committee, and as a member, he thought they would be able to get some watersiders to take the work on.

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) assured Ald. Smith that during the work, if an overseas vessel visited Gladstone the Council would be quite prepared to release the men for work on the water front.

Ald. Smith said they could get six good waterside workers to take the work on.

LOAN OF £15,000.

Ald. Golding moved:—

"That the Council write to the manager of the State Government Insurance Office, notifying that all preliminaries in connection with the debenture loan of £15,000 had been completed, and asking him to proceed with the preparation of the debentures.

The motion was seconded by the Mayor (Ald. Dennis) and carried unanimously.

"PIG IN THE POKE."

Ald. Anderson said they seemed to be in a fog all round as to whether the scheme was to be worked by the Allied Works Council or whether it was to be a defence job undertaken by the Defence Committee, Melbourne. The telegram received from Mr. Forde, he said, was very vague, although it was satisfactory in many ways. He strongly urged that they should go to Brisbane and find out what the Council had really got in the way of a priority. They could then explain the position to the Treasurer (Mr. Cooper). As it was at present, "it is a pig in the poke," added Ald. Anderson.

DEFINITE STATEMENT WANTED.

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis): What we are waiting for is a confirming letter from Mr. Forde—a definite statement in regard to the priority.

Ald. Golding said he agreed with Ald. Anderson, and the Council was ahead of itself in starting the job.

Ald. Tudman: Mr. Forde is a busy man, and no doubt he will follow up his telegram with a letter explaining the position.

Ald. Anderson moved that if no letter was received from Mr. Forde within a week a special meeting of the Council be called to discuss the matter.—Seconded by Ald. Smith and carried.

ACCOUNTS.

Accounts amounting to £302/12/6 were passed for payment.

Electric Light Authority

LOAN OF £1000.

State Government Insurance Office wrote relative to the debenture loan of £1000 for the interconnection scheme between the Electric Authority and the Port Curtis Dairy Association Ltd., and forwarded for signature debentures in triplicate, together with interest and interest and redemption coupons.—It was decided that the documents be signed and forwarded to Brisbane.

PRICED AT £450.

Mr. A. E. Axon, consulting engineer, Brisbane, advised that a proposal had been submitted to Longreach that they should purchase the generator at a price of £450 as it stood at Gladstone. This proposal was being examined by the State Electricity Commission and the Controller of Electricity Supply, and it was expected that a decision would be reached shortly. Mr. Axon considered that the price for the plant was reasonable under present conditions.—Received.

DAMAGE TO WIRELESS.

Mr. S. C. Wilson, Gladstone, notified that owing to over voltage on the mains on December 5 that his wireless set was badly damaged. He was not able to assess the damage, and the set had been sent to Brisbane, and so far had not been returned. However, when the account for the damage came to hand he would communicate further with the Council. It was decided to hold the matter over for further investigation.

STREET LIGHTS.

State Electricity Commission advised that the Civil Defence Organisation, Brisbane, had directed that all street lights in Queensland be reinstated as soon as practicable. However, lights near the seaboard must be screened. It was mentioned that the cost of the work involved in restating the streets lights in the case of local authorities would be borne 50 per cent by the Civil Defence Organisation by way of subsidy and 50 per cent by the local authorities, suitable loans being made available for the purpose.

It was decided to hand the letter over to Engineer Phillips for attention.

THIRD WIRE WANTED.

Mr. H. P. Tweed, Gladstone, informed the Authority that he intended to remove his electric motor from the garage to his private home for the purpose of driving a saw bench, and made application to have a third wire installed.—The matter was referred to Engineer Phillips for report at next meeting.

GENERAL.

On the motion of Ald. Golding, seconded by Ald. Smith, it was decided to obtain a legal opinion as to the length of time the Authority could entertain claims for damage to wireless sets.

Accounts amounting to £913/12/5 were passed for payment.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

PRISONERS OF WAR SCHEME

Street Adoption Campaign

A feature of the Prisoners of War street adoption campaign last week was the splendid support given by the Boy Scouts, members of the 2nd and 3rd Gladstone Groups.

The ladies in charge of the scheme were loud in their praise of the excellent work performed by these boys. Not only did they collect in many streets already canvassed by Mesdames Elliot, Watson, Ricketts, Hartley, Tait and Coppin, but they actually volunteered to do some new streets. In this they were very successful.

New streets opened up by the Scouts include William Street, Glenlyon Street, and part of Auckland Street. The ladies mentioned above were greatly impressed with bearing, dress and intelligence of the Scouts, and wish to extend their thanks to the officers in charge of the Gladstone groups.

Mrs. Watson continues to make progress in and around Auckland Hill, where she is being assisted in collections by Mrs. Lodder. Several short streets and lanes, including Lord Street, will be finished this week.

Mrs. Elliot was thrilled with the assistance the Boy Scouts gave her in Yaroon, Auckland, Glenlyon and Rolla streets. Mrs. Mervyn Tait had just arranged to do William Street, and here again the Scouts came to her assistance.

The organiser of the scheme, Mrs. Coppin, had the Scouts on collections in Roseberry Street, and has arranged to open up new streets this week. Her return should be of great assistance to the scheme.

Mrs. Ricketts had her scouts collecting at Fowler Estate and Fisher Street, and she canvassed the area in and around the Bowling Club yesterday.

Mrs. Frank Johnstone continues to do good work at Barney Point, which she has completed.

The co-organisers (Messrs. V. A. Summers and D. J. Connellan) keep supplies of literature, house tags, and street signs, etc., up to the ladies canvassing. Regular calls are made to give official receipts and all possible assistance is made available. The organisation is now working well.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Private Pat Breslin, A.I.F., is at present home on leave from the south.

Miss Peggy Friend, of the Bank of N.S. Wales, left for Casino on Saturday on her annual holidays. After visiting relatives (the K. W. Middletons) at Casino she will spend the remainder of her vacation at Toowoomba.

The Rev. W. E. Boyldew, of St. Saviour's Anglican Church, has enlisted as a chaplain in the A..F., and will leave the parish at an early date. During his term as rector he won the esteem and respect of all sections of the community. He will be greatly missed by allied servicemen, who appreciated the entertainment and hospitality various units received during the past 18 months.

CURRENT TOPICS

CHURCH OF ENGLAND GUILD.

The next Church of England Guild street stall will be held in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, February 26, and donations of produce, cakes, sweets, etc., will be much appreciated. The secretary is Miss Butterworth, Auckland Hill, Gladstone.

INTEREST FREE LOAN.

The Manager of the Gladstone branch of the Commonwealth Bank (Mr. W. H. Hall) advises that the sum of £100 has been received from Mrs. M. H. P. Crow, of Auckland Hill, Gladstone, as an interest -free loan to the Commonwealth Government.

AMBULANCE DANCE.

A very large crowd attended the Ambulance dance, held at the Trocadero last Friday night. Miss Gertie Ward's orchestra supplied the music. Mr. W. Ross acted as M.C., assisted by Mr. Geo. Curran. The spot waltz was won by Miss Hope Gunders and partner (Mr. Stan Hampson), while the Monte Carlo went to Miss Lexie Hill and partner (Mr. A. Trevers). The next Ambulance dance will be held at the Trocadero on Friday night, March 5.

SCOUT MOVEMENT

Citizens Should Assist

Appropriately enough this week is Boy Scout week throughout Queensland, and the Executive of the Association has issued a leaflet giving a few facts concerning the activities of the organisation.

Many people were under the impression that the Scouts Association receives a grant from the State or Federal Governments.

This is not the case. The Association relies mainly on public donation. Scout headquarters safeguards and fosters the movement, arranges training camps for scoutmasters, and in addition sends out thousands of letters, training material, etc.

It thus returns actual service for income received.

Special identity cards are given to all members of the Association on active service so that wherever a Scout or Scouter may be sent he will always be sure of a welcome at any Scout gathering.

Autograph leaflets are available from the local scoutmasters, and well wishers of the movement can sign their autographs and pay 1/- for each signature, half of the collection will be used for the local Scout funds and half to Scout headquarters.

When the war is over and scoutmasters return it will indeed be gratifying to them to realise that local residents stood solidly behind the movement during their absence.

The Gladstone groups have a splendid war record, members showing the value of their early Scout training.

Local Scouts have been called on to perform many tasks of civic and national worth, collection of waste, scrap rubber, etc, and in all cases the jobs have been carried out with a high degree of efficiency. Therefore, all citizens should get behind the appeal and assist the Scout movement.

CALLIOPE

AMBULANCE DANCE AND EUCHRE.

A large crowd attended the dance and euchre held at Calliope last Saturday night, despite adverse weather conditions. Motor cars from the top end of the district could not get down on account of the heavy rains.

Dancing was kept going in full swing until midnight by Miss M. Archay's orchestra, and extras were played by Miss B. Rideout, Miss G. McFarlane, Miss M. Moran, and Mr. R. Michel (piano-accordeon).

Hon. Bearer A. R. Barker again carried out the duties of M.C.

Mr. Geo. Curran and Mr. Frank Farmer were ticket sellers, and Mr. Jim Ironmonger had charge of the door.

The spot one step was won by Mr. and Mrs. T. Michel, and the Monte Carlo by Miss Joyce Renton and Colin McKean.

The euchre was again in charge of Mr. Sam Dickenson, and the ladies' prize was won by Mrs. J. Wright, and the gents' by Mr. Tom McMahon.

Groceries (raffled) was won by Mrs. A. Hugher, French Street, Gladstone, with ticket No. 3160, and the 1d raffle by R. Michel, Beecher, with ticket No. C2129.

The next Ambulance dance will be held at Calliope on Saturday night, March 20.

WEDDING BELLS

GRIFFITHS.WORRALL.

The marriage took place at St. Saviour's Church of England on February 1 of Josephine, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Worrall, Gladstone, and Stanley Vivian, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Griffiths, Melbourne. The Rev. W. E. Boyldew officiated, and Mrs. Boyldew presided at the organ.

Decorations of the church were carried out by friends of the bride.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white chantilly lace over bridal satin, featuring a full gored skirt and bishop sleeves. The bodice was buttoned at the back by tiny satin buttons, and the front featured a cowl front completed by a sprig of orange blossom and a string of pearls. The gown was made by Mrs. P. Lynch. The embroidered tulle veil fell in neat folds, and was finished by a band of orange blossom. The bouquet was of white arum and eucharist lillies.

The bridesmaid (Miss Daphne Pender) wore pink self-figured organdi, made on full lines. The neckline, puff sleeves and waist were trimmed with pink velvet. With this she displayed a shoulder length pink tulle veil with a topknot of pink roses, also pink mittens. Her bouquet consisted of pink gladioli and gerberas. The dress was made by Mrs. Pender, mother of the maid.

The duties of best man were carried out by Mr. Frank Busteed.

The bride's mother wore a mauve silk cordite frock with black accessories. The neckline was finished with a shaded mauve orchid. She carried a bouquet of mauve tinted zinnias and gold gerberas.

The reception was held at the Geisha Cafe. Decorations were in pink and white, and the main feature was the three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother and iced by Mr. Dow.

The bride's travelling dress was brown autumn tinted floral morocain with brown accessories.

Later the happy couple departed for their honeymoon, which was spent at Yeppoon.

The bride's gift to the groom was a set of black and silver military brushes, and the groom's gift to the bride a crystal salad bowl with silver servers.

CLARKE-KIRKWOOD.

Town and country interest was associated with the wedding of Esme Constance, third daughter of Mrs. C. Kirkwood, of Beecher, and the late Mr. J. E. Kirkwood, to Private Edward John Clarke, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clarke, Park Avenue, which was celebrated at St. Joseph's Cathedral, Rockhampton, on Wednesday. The Rev. Father Tiernan officiated.

The bride was given away by Mr. G. Westacott, and was attended by Miss Lois Kirkwood, as bridesmaid.

Major T. L. Taylor was best man.

White daisy patterned lace fashioned the bride's dainty and becoming gown, which was worn over satin and trimmed with tulle ruching and blue forget-me-nots. Her finer tulle veil was arranged with a circlet of frangipanni and stephanotis, and she carried a bouquet of white dahlias, gladioli tied with satin ribbon. Small groups of pale pink and blue forget-me-nots finished the pretty frock of shell pink ninon sheer and lace worn by the bridesmaid, and pink dahlias and gladioli completed her shoulder-length veil of pink tulle. She carried a bouquet of pink dahlias and gladioli tied with blue ribbon.

Mrs. C. Kirkwood, the bride's mother, added brown accessories to her frock of rose romain.

The wedding breakfast, which followed the ceremony, was held at Stewart's Cafe. The wedding cake was made by the bride's sister, and decorated by Mrs. Jackson, of Gladstone.

When leaving to spend the honeymoon in Bundaberg the bride wore a smart terracotta riptide frock with navy accessories.

CAN YOU HELP?

Books, magazines and old clean newspapers are urgently needed by the Gladstone branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. If you have any old newspapers, books, or magazines, kindly leave same at Gladstone Cash and Carry, where they will be collected regularly and despatched to the troops in camp. The camps in the outlying centres are much in need of reading matter and indoor games, such as playing cards, etc. See what you can do.

BOYNE WATER SCHEME.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—I do hope you will publish this letter, as I want to make myself clear to all concerned.

I am in receipt of a letter from Mr. T. L. Williams, Minister of Agriculture and Stock, dated 8/2/43, wherein he states my statement appearing in the "Observer," dated 27/1/43, was more or less vague and indefinite. Insofar as my statement read "that the delays in the Boyne water scheme occurred in Brisbane," and if I have any knowledge that this is so.

It is my bounden duty to make the information in my possession known to the people of Gladstone, including Mr. Williams.

Furthermore, Mr. Williams goes on to say, "most people can only guess what I meant when I made such a statement." That being the case, I will endeavour, to the best of my ability, to enlarge on my statement, so as he can get on with the cause in the delays.

First of all I want to explain to Mr. Williams and the people of Gladstone how it came about and the facts leading up to my statement, published in the "Observer" dated January 27.

At the Town Council meeting on Monday, January 18, there was a lot of business to transact, and we had a late sitting that night, and one of the important items dealt with was the Boyne water scheme. So as to go into the scheme thoroughly Ald. Anderson moved that we have a special meeting called for Friday night, January 22, to deal with the manpower, pipes, and to proceed with the first section. As most people are aware that meeting lapsed through want of a quorum. Through unforeseen circumstances I was unable to attend.

It was explained later by Alderman Golding on January 25 that the special meeting should not have been called for that night, as it was known that several aldermen would be unable to attend. That being the case, you will see if that meeting had not been called I would not have made that statement.

At the meeting three nights after the special meeting lapsed there were a few remarks passed that we were holding up the Boyne water scheme, because we had not dealt with a letter from Brisbane dealing with the scheme. However, it was only my opinion that I was quite truthful in my remarks that as a few aldermen could not possibly attend we were not holding up the Boyne water scheme —(the aldermen), and secondly the people of Gladstone were not, as I was reported as saying "there was no lack of agitation in Gladstone for the Boyne scheme." So you can see by that I meant that the aldermen and public were behind the scheme.

That being the case, I thought I was quite justified in my remarks that the delays did not occur here in Gladstone. I have listened carefully at the Council meetings, and I am quite satisfied that the Mayor and aldermen are doing their best in every way to get the Boyne scheme completed; also I have heard the public of Gladstone agitating in every way possible to further the scheme.

So the ratepayers can see that the hold-up with the scheme cannot possibly be in Gladstone, and that was why I made the statement that the delays occurred in Brisbane.

Perhaps I made a mistake to a certain extent, insofar as I should have said the hold-up occurred outside of Gladstone.

I do hope I have explained fully my remarks, and hope the public of Gladstone did not read my statement the vague way I said it.

I want to explain that I in no way meant Mr. Williams was holding up the scheme. The public may misconstrue my statement, but I do hope Mr. Williams understands what was really meant, and the events leading up to my statement.

As I know, and Mr. Williams also knows how difficult it has been to get to the first stages of the scheme.

I hope I have made myself clear to Mr. Williams and the people of Gladstone.

Trusting my letter meets with the approval of all concerned. If I can enlarge on it in any way, if asked, I will gladly do so.—Yours, etc.,

JACK DEVENEY.

A New York message states that Mrs. Roy G. Foster, aged 12 years and 11 months, who was married at the age of 10, has given birth to a normal baby. Her husband is a soldier aged 21.

BOWLING

DISTRICT SINGLES

Jack Comino advanced a further stage in the district singles on Saturday, when he defeated E. W. Barker 31-12 after an interesting match.

Social games resulted:—

Garrett, Jenkinson, Drewe and Busteed v. A. Friend, Dennis, Wilson, Cooper 33-14.

Sly, Cameron, Humphries and P. Friend v. Mackay, Chapman, Johnston and Loveday 26-21.

Pring, Smyth and Jackson v. Ferris Seaton and Golding 38-12.

Barker, Henery and Ogg v. Buettel, Browne and Weiske 31-18.

Comino, Hobbs, Browne and Johnston v. Menzies, Dennis, Smith and Jackson 27-21.

Sly, Cameron, Humphries, P. Friend v. Hogan, Jenskinson, Haigh and Busteed 25-18.

Friend, Archay, Wilson and Cooper v. Henery, Chapman, Golding and Loveday 33-11.

Garrett, Schmidt, Bycroft and L. Weiske v. Ferris, Witty, Barker and Drewe 32-14.

SPORTING

CRICKET.

The international cricketer, W. J. O'Reilly, is having a wonderful season in Sydney club cricket. With something like 90 wickets to his credit, he was well on the spot on Saturday for St. George against Manly, taking seven wickets for 15 runs.

• • • •

BOXING.

Les Sloane (10st. 7½lbs.) knocked out Laurie Petersen (10st. 8½lb.) in the first round on Saturday night at the Melbourne Stadium. For half the round Petersen did well, and surprised Sloane two or three times with his left. However, with less than a minute to go Sloane hit Petersen with a perfect right to the chin, and the Queenslander sank to the canvas and was counted out.

Younger in years, but much taller and heavier than his brother Lionel, Terry Orreal is making good in the boxing ring in Brisbane. On his first appearance last Friday week he k.o'd. his opponent in the first round. He repeated the performance on Friday night by winning on a t.k.o. in the first round. Terry has been selected to represent the Australian Army against the Australian Airforce team at Brisbane Stadium next Friday night in a series of elimination tests to pick representatives of Australia against American boxers on Saturday night.

DRIED EGG POWDER

800,000 Eggs a Day

Cellophane is now being used in the United States to replace the metal containers into which 30 lbs. of eggs were poured for freezing and storing. The tin cans required 2 lbs. of metal each. The cellophane containers will take no metal at all, except for a small amount of stitching in some cases. They will be strengthened by outer containers of cardboard.

Australia used to have sufficient cold storage to care for her egg crop awaiting shipment overseas and future domestic demands. But war caused increased demand on storage space.

The problem was solved by erecting the first egg drying plant in Australia on a swamp near Sydney. At full throttle this plant can turn 800,000 eggs a day into dried egg powder. Other plants have been and are being erected throughout the Commonwealth.

"Pay-as-you-go"

ABOUT one family in every two in the Commonwealth enjoys some measure of A.M.P. protection and, as the Society belongs entirely to its members, they should know why their Directors are putting £500,000 a month (out of the Society's day-by-day income) into the War Loans.

The Directors believe that to avoid grave financial disturbance now, and during post-war recovery, the War must be financed, as far as possible, out of current earnings and savings.

The largest possible part of the War expenditure should be met by taxation. Since, however, it is not practicable to cover the entire cost by taxes, resort must be had to borrowing.

To the largest extent possible such borrowing must be from the current income of the people: the income that would otherwise be spent with inflationary results because of the ever increasing shortage of goods and services.

If these two methods be pursued with vigour, the Nation can avoid the evil of expanded Bank Credit. To play its part in avoiding the calamitous effect of this evil, the Society is putting £500,000 a month of its current income into the War Loans.

It is to be hoped that every citizen will put all he can into the War Loans to the same end: to preserve the financial health of the Nation.

ARMS AND THE MAN

BULLET-PROOF STEEL

An All-Australian Gun

The weapons of war which Australian factories manufacture from her own steel are mostly grim affairs—anti-aircraft guns, machine guns, shell forgings, armoured cars, tanks, ammunition, and a dozen other necessities.

But the romance of arms and armour did not perish with the Three Musketeers. Something of their spirit is abroad in the world to-day in the commandos and the guerilla fighters, and Australian research officers and technicians have proved that Ned Kelly wasn't the only Australian with good ideas on armour.

Bullet-proof steels is a modern form of armour which has caught the public imagination ever since Chicago gangsters used it for their motor cars, and dictator gangsters hid behind it in their railway carriage conference room in the Brenner Pass.

The production of bullet-proof steel in Australia was before the war dependent on the importation of certain alloys, expensive to buy and difficult to procure. Technicians at the B.H.P. works in Newcastle, however, evolved a secret process for the making of bullet-proof steel, which proved so successful that the formula has been turned over to Britain and the United States.

Steel from Newcastle was used for some types of air raid shelters installed during the height of the London blitz, and it is quite on the cards that the B.H.P. formula for bullet-proof steel may be used for the forging of the body armour for troops with which the British War Office is now carrying out experiments. Weighing 2lbs., the armour is designed to be proof against sub-machine guns and to give protection against bomb splinters and glancing bullets.

Research officers of the same company also mastered the secret of a certain type of steel armoured plate which could be welded. This plating was unprocurable from overseas, and the secret of its manufacture was not known, but B.H.P. solved the problem, and is now supplying the Government with armoured plating at one-sixth of the price formerly paid, calling forth a commendation for their work from the Minister for Munitions (Mr. Makin).

PROVED IN ACTION.

Australians in New Guinea and the Allied commandos in Timor are fighting with the all-Australian gun invented by young Evelyn Owen, of Wollongong, who said last week that following the success of the gun in the New Guinea campaign, production has risen and is now well above the promised figures.

"The success of the gun in New Guinea is proof of what I claimed the gun could do," said Owen, adding, "soldiers who have used it assure me it's the best light automatic gun in the world."

The story of this gun and the continual disappointments and set-backs over which the young inventor finally triumphed is one of the "human interest" stories of Australia at war. The scientific research work carried out by the young men at B.H.P. is another.

Meanwhile, while the whole immense organisation of such an enterprise as B.H.P. is working out on war production, small enterprises are doing their bit as well in Australia as in England. Small factories have been switched over from the production of, say, jewellers' tools to precision instruments.

DEADLY WEAPONS.

In England, too, the same re-organisation to produce the greatest war output has been carried out.

An 80-year-old sword maker, Tom Beasley, who forged the sword presented by the Indian Princess to Queen Victoria on her diamond jubilee, is now passing on his skill to younger men, fashioning the deadly knives used by British commando and parachute troops.

The day of the sword and the knife has been reborn, and much of the skill of the early swordmakers is going into the manufacture of these weapons for the swift and silent killing taught every shock troop.

The factory where Tom Beasley has worked for the past 50 years formerly supplied swords to the military and police forces throughout the Empire as well as in South America, Abyssinia and Egypt, but now, like so many Australian factories, they have turned over their machinery to war production.

Commando knives and their scabbards are only two of their manufactures. Others are anti-tank ammunition and automatic fire extinguishers. Like B.H.P., they have pioneered new ideas, for they were the first steel forgers to take up the safety razor.

WOMEN'S SERVICES

Important Changes

Important changes affecting the two women's services of the Australian Army—the A.W.A.S. and the A.A.M.W.S.—has been announced by the Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde).

Mr. Forde said that in conformity with the growing strength of the Australian Women's Army Service, the Controller (Lieut. Col. Sybil Irwing) had been promoted to the rank of colonel.

A further change, said Mr. Forde, was the appointment of Lieut. Col. Kathleen Best, formerly controller of the Australian Army Medical Women's Service, as Assistant Adjt.-General of Women's Services on the staff of the Adjutant General. Lieut. Col. Best would have two deputies—one each from the A.W.A.S. and the A.A.M.W.S.

"The creation of a special branch of the A.G.'s department to adminster the two women's services will not in any way affect the direct control of the A.W.A.S. or the A.A.M.W.S.," said Mr. Forde. "However, it is felt that women are quite competent and in many ways specially squipped to carry out on the A.G.'s staff the administrative work associated with women's services. It will release male members of the A.G.'s staff for other duties."

No successor to Lieut. Col. Best as controller of the A.A.M.W.S. has yet been appointed, the Minister added. An announcement regarding this appointment would be made later.

Mr. Forde made it clear that the changes would not affect the Australian Army Nursing Service, which would remain under the control of the Director General of Medical Services.

CAREERS OF NEW APPOINTEES.

Col. Sybil Irving was for 16 years secretary of the Girl Guides in Victoria. She was assistant secretary of the Victorian branch of the Australian Red Cross for a number of years. She was appointed controller of the A.W.A.S. on October 6, 1941, as lieut. colonel.

Lieut. Colonel Kathleen Best served overseas with the A.I.F. as matron of the 5th A.I.F. general hospital. She served in Palestine, Greece and Eritrea, and arrived back in Australia a few months ago. She has been awarded the Royal Red Cross.

TEA RATIONING

HOSPITAL PATIENTS

Position Being Revised

"One thing that rationing has done," said the Minister for Trade and Customs (Senator Keane), "has been to eliminate waste. The old idea that it was necessary to throw in one teaspoon for the pot has been discarded, and the quality of the tea has not been affected. The economical use of tea is a national necessity, as every pound of tea which can be saved as a result of proper usage represents a saving in shipping."

With the improved tea stock position it is now possible also to liberalise the arrangements in connection with industrial canteens. Furthermore, the burden of tea rationing in respect to hospital patients will also be eased.

Patients will not be required to surrender tea coupons for the first four weeks of their stay in hospital, and in the case of patients remaining for a longer period, they will surrender a coupon for each additional week in hospital.

This new arrangement will represent a considerable saving in the administrative work of hospital staffs who are now working at exceedingly high pressure.

The basis is also being revised to ensure that each person will be able to retain sufficient coupons to meet his requirements for meals consumed away from hospital.

All tese modifications indicate that it is the aim of the Rationing Commission to make tea available in reasonable quantities where it is legitimately needed, and when the supply position will permit.

Referring to sugar rationing, the Minister stated that the stock position in the Southern States had temporarily improved. Arrangements have now been made to provide sugar for Kindergartens throughout the Commonwealth.

In order to meet the desires of the retail trade the Rationing Commission has decided that in future two fortnightly coupons will be made available at the one time instead of one fortnightly coupon as at present. This will reduce the work of the retailers by enabling sugar to be sold in larger quantities.

In order to simplify further the sale of rationed foodstuffs, it has been decided that both sugar and tea coupons will, in future, become available at the same date and for the same period.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

CHURCHILL

"GREAT ENGLISH GENTLEMAN"

America Accepts His Word

From time to time there have been warnings of the possible use on a large scale by the Axis of disease germs as a weapon. Of all the weapons employed by the Axis against us in this war, however, none has been more deadly or more insidious than the oily voice of Axis propaganda filled with the virus of moral poisoning.

The enemy has wielded this weapon with skill, knowing that the greatest enemy that can be opposed to an all-out united effort by the Allied Nations is doubt, springing from the venomous seed of Axis lies and innuendo.

Efforts have been made on our part to kill this growth with truth; to stifle it with plain facts; but the tactics have been largely those of defence; and defence, as has been so often proved during these years of total war, wins no victories.

DISPELLING DOUBT.

But a weapon has been found to deal with doubt. It is trust—a weapon wielded in faith by President Roosevelt. These are the words he used to kill doubt, words that are an axe laid at the roots of the strangling growth: "The American people will accept the word of a great English gentleman."

This is perhaps one of the greatest things done and said during the war; one of the finest gestures made between nations at any itme.

America, at a time when perhaps the greatest decisions in all history have been taken, does not ask for a signed treaty that will guarantee the help of Britain in the task of crushing Japan; she does not say, "Give us a bond that we may be sure of your total aid when Germany is beaten."

Instead, America says, through its elected head and commander-in-chief, "Churchill has declared that England will join us in an out-and-out final attack on Japan if Germany falls first, and we, the American people, will accept his word."

Not since Munich has so clear an evidence of true international understanding broken through the clouds of war, nor so sure a stone laid for the foundation of lasting peace.

President Roosevelt's words point to the dawn of an age in which there will be no more tearing up of treaties; no more scraps of paper to be tossed aside without regard to conscience; an age in which it may be possible for the word of nations to be accepted as a sure evidence of true intent, and not a subterfuge to mask the real aims of treachery.

APPLICATION TO ASTRALIA.

In the meantime there is a more cogent significance for Australia in the "gentlemen's agreement" pledged between the leaders of Britain and America.

It is the expressed assurance that the whole great strength of their joint nationhood will be directed towards the waging of the Pacific war as soon as Germany is disposed of. Not only does this mean that we shall have that added strength to supplement our present force, but that the still potential might of China will be rebuilt to join with us in an overwhelming weight of arms against te common enemy.

And for this promise there is evidence from China itself, not only of the material, but of the moral readiness, in the statement published in a Chungking newspaper:—

"From the lessons of history some people looked with reservations on a future British total attack on Japan. Such scepticism can now be dismissed."

This is the first fruits of international trust, and from it can flow not only victory in war, but a faith and understanding between nations that will establish peace on a sure foundation.

FREEDOM

Undismayed Switzerland

With the hot breath of Europe's ravening wolf at her doors, Switzerland has afforded the world an example of courage and adherence to democratic principles in the face of threats and dangers.

Bigger nations have been conquered by Nazi rapacity for much less. Although the largest "language" group in Switzerland is the German speaking population, Switzerland has remained unassailably liberal. She has long been the home of internationalism, and was the birthplace of the Red Cross.

When the Nazis occupied all France her one link with the world outside Axis control disappeared, and with the orbit of European strategy extending towards the Mediterranean, Switzerland geographically at least was guilty of the unpardonable crime of being in Hitler's way.

At the same time the German press, radio propaganda, and the Swiss Nazi paper "Die Front" have been directing attacks against Switzerland, many of them reminiscent of comment which preceded previous Nazi swoops on smaller neutral neighbours.

Countries less sturdily independent would have fallen long ago. In the face of these threats and the changed geographic situation, with its imminent possibilities of armed invasion or economic starvation, the Swiss democratic paper "Volksrecht" had this to say:—

"It is of the greatest importance that we leave no doubt in anybody's mind that not even the most hopeless situation will make us capitulate voluntarily, and before we can be commanded we have got to be beaten."

The words have a definite meaning for Germany, too. In the first place, invasion or economic blockade would mean that Germany would lose, for a period at least, valuable supplies of precision instruments.

Furthermore, Switzerland is in a position effectively to cut off vital railroads between Germany and Italy by the simple expedient of blowing up the tunnels through the Alps. She has left Germany in no doubt that this will be carried into effect in the event of trouble.

Finally, the Swiss Army of 600,000 men would undoubtedly offer stiff resistance. It has a well prepared plan for retreat into the difficult Alpine country, where resistance could be prolonged for several months.

The Swiss public hailed the film "Mrs. Miniver," which was described by one critic as a "touching document of democratic courage."

To a charge by the Nazi Press Chief Dietrich that Switzerland was abandoning "spiritual neutrality," the Swiss newspaper "Volksrecht" made this reply:—

"We reject spiritual eunuchry. Away with mental castration which goes by the name of spiritual neutrality! Statesmen of great powers should have learned by now that neither love nor liking can be ordered."

Before you strike a light remember the needs of the armed forces. The demand for matches is enormous, but the output is adequate for all, provided matches are used sparingly. Some of the chemicals used to make matches have to be shared with the munitions industry. So adopt the slogan: Fewer matches, more munitions.

66 UNITS OF VITAMIN "B1" FOR BREAKFAST!

Professor Priestley, of the Sydney University, writes in the "Australasian Baker" of July, 1942:—

"With respect to their vitamin B1 content, breakfast foods may be divided into two groups: Those that are wholly pre-cooked ready to eat and those not pre-cooked, or only partially pre-cooked during the process of manufacture.

"With few exceptions all members of the former group are extremely low in vitamin B1.

"Members of the second group retain the greater part of the vitamin B1 present in the original cereal grain from which the breakfast food was prepared.

"Thus, a plate of a pre-cooked ready-to-eat breakfast food without the milk, gave 2 units of vitamin B1, while a plate of porridge of rolled oats gave 66 units—33 times as much."

Here is further convincing proof of the wonderful food value of Uncle Toby's Oats — the cleanest, freshest and highest quality rolled oats obtainable. Remember, a breakfast of Uncle Toby's Oats provides 66 units of Vitamin B1 — serve it regularly throughout the year. Sold by grocers everywhere

WINNERS OF RAFFLES.

The winners of the raffles of the Women's Auxiliary of the R.S.S.A.I.L.A. stall, held this month, were:—Iced cake, won by Mrs. Heymar, with ticket No. 59A, and box of sweets by Master Bruce Collins, with ticket No. 59B.

CALLIOPE CLEANSING SERVICES.

Fresh tenders are invited by the Calliope Shire Council by advertisement in this issue for the cleansing and garbage services at Calliope. Further particulars may be obtained from the Shire Clerk, Mr. H. H. Whittle.

POWER OF SILENCE.

Have the Japanese evolved a new secret weapon? It is impossible to say, because we may be sure that if they have it will be kept secret until the time comes to use it. Secrecy is one of the most potent weapons of warfare, and one of the most vulnerable. We need everything we have got to win the war. We canot afford to "give away" anything.

NAZI KULTUR.

What Germany thinks of Poland is shown by this extract from a speech on January 27 by the gauleiter of Upper Silesia:—"The criminal inclinations of the Poles will be fought without mercy. It is a point of honour to wipe out such creatures quickly and completely. The only way to deal with such elements is death, as a warning to those who are still living."

SHELTER TAX DEDUCTION.

Expenditure incurred in the erection of an air raid shelter by a landlord for a tenant or tenants, if it is not of enduring benefit, will be allowed as a Federal tax deduction for the income year ended June 30, 1942. This will be provided in an amendment to the Income Tax Assessment Acts, to be introduced soon, according to the secretary of the Taxpayers' Association of Queensland (Mr. W. M. Hall).

DROP IN MOTOR REGISTRATIONS.

Queensland motor vehicle registrations on January 31 totalled 112,739, a decline of 6016 compared with figures for the previous 12 months. However, there was a net increase of 250 during last month. This is shown in a return issued by the Works Minister (Mr. Bruce). Last month's increase included 203 motor cars and 117 utility vehicles, and small increases in others, but there was a decrease of 80 in the number of motor cycles. Net revenue from motor vehicle collections in January totalled £39,050.

£3 EXEMPTION URGED.

The A.C.T.U. Federal Executive has decided to ask the Federal Government not to lower the overall tax exemption from £3 to £2 a week as proposed. It will also request that tax instalment refunds should not be refused after March 31, that social service benefits should operate as soon as extra taxation to finance them is imposed, and that the A.C.T.U. be consulted about such social service schemes. The Executive decided to seek the help of the A.L.P. Federal Executive in having the Federal franchise age reduced to include all people of 18 and over.

ROLL OF HONOUR

PRIVATE K. A. CURRIE.

The management of Swift Australian Co. (Pty.) Ltd. has received the sad news of the death, killed in action, of Private Kenneth Allan Currie, serving with the A.I.F. in New Guinea.

Ken Currie was a member of the Meatworks office staff, and came to Gladstone from the company's Brisbane office in March, 1937. He enlisted in the A.I.F. in April, 1941, and served in the Middle East for sixteen months, returning to Australia at the latter part of last year. Shortly after his return he was drafted to New Guinea.

Of a quiet and retiring disposition, Ken was very well liked by all his colleagues and associates. He was highly respected for his clean living and conscientious work, and did not make a bad friend or enemy in Gladstone, and now that he has given his life for his country, all who knew him will always respect his memory, with deep sympathy for his parents and family in their great loss.

As a tribute to his passing, the flag at the Meat Works was flown at half-mast on Monday.

OBITUARY

MRS. E. J. MACKAY.

The death ccurred at the General Hospital on Thursday of an old Calliope resident in the person of Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Mackay. Her husband, Angus Mackay, predeceased her two years ago.

The deceased, who had been ailing for some time, was a member of a pioneer family, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dan Kietley, of Calliope. She is survived by a family of ten: Mesdames A. Mathiesen (Banana Station), A. Holder (Rannes), Mrs. C. Stibbs (Brisbane), H. Soppa (Gladstone), Mrs. D. Ibbotsen (Biloela), and Messrs. William (postmaster Calliope), Dan (Winton), Jack (Gladstone), George (Yeppoon), and Jim (Calliope Station).

The funeral took place on Thursday afternoon at Calliope, the Rev. H. MacNeil Saunders officiating at the graveside.

BOYNE RIVER BRIDGE.

Recent hold-ups in traffic on the main Bundaberg-Gladstone road at the Boyne River bridge has shown the necessity of having a modern high-level bridge on this important thoroughfare. The present structure, which was built about 10 years ago, was a toll bridge until recently, and has certainly outlived its usefulness under present traffic conditions. The present bridge only crosses part of the river bed, and when a fresh occurs traffic is held up on the Benaraby side, vehicles being unable to get to the bridge proper. The bridge has been covered on three occasions during the past two months. Considering the number of all-weather bridges constructed over other rivers during the past decade, Gladstone has a good case for a high-level structure to be put over the Boyne on the main Northern Highway. Construction of the bridge may also bring about the completion of the missing link on the same highway from the Boyne River to the bitumin road four miles from Gladstone.

BOYNE WATER SCHEME.

Sir,—Knowing that the Council had a meeting on Monday last, I looked forward with expectation to see how the water scheme was progressing.

The "Observer" further raised my hopes with the large headings, such as "Alderman Golding Moves Important Resolution," "Rumours Scorched," "Lie Direct," etc., but like many others, no doubt, I was sadly disappointed when on reading the report the most I could see in a progressive direction was that several aldermen stated they were in favour of the water scheme.

"The important resolution" was that formal application be made for the loan of £80,000, etc.

Now, Mr. Editor, about fifteen months ago, before Japan came into the war, Alderman Golding appeased us at the public meeting called by the Trades and Labour Council by stating that he had been advised a few hours before that the first part of the scheme involving £15,000 had been approved, and I cannot understand why this important resolution covering the estimated cost of the whole scheme has only just been moved.

Representatives of the various public bodies, unions, etc., a few weeks ago waited outside the Council office until 9 o'clock one evening for the purpose of asking the Council, which was holding a special meeting, whether it required any assistance from them. These delegates were informed that there was nothing that they could do, but if anything of importance turned up they would be informed and their assistance sought.

The Mayor, at least, must have known then that the debentures had not been signed (I have yet to learn whether they have been prepared), and as Alderman Golding stated, the Council did not have the power to request the completion of the debentures because of certain unusual conditions, yet nothing, according to what the delegates were told, of importance at that time was standing in the way.

The assistance of these bodies is still being ignored by the Council, and the report does not reveal any effort by it to remove the obstacles in the way of the completion of the debentures.

As I see the position, Mr. Editor, the water scheme is begging the Council to commence it, and as I have to accept the aldermen's assurances that they favour it, all that is required is a little bit of enterprise.—Yours, etc.,

J. BURROWS.

SOCIALIST FINANCE AND THE BOYNE SCHEME.

Sir,—Your correspondent in last Wednesday's issue raised a question, which has no doubt given thought to quite a numbe of people—socialist finance.

Socialist finance differs from capitalist finance insimuch as capitalist finance is based on a gold standard, whilst socialist finance is based on a goods currency, i.e., based on the amount of goods produced over a given period.

Under capitalism the amount of gold or its financial equivalent (credit) that the individual can command reflects his individual standing in society, whereas under socialism the standing of the individual is based on his use to the community.

Under socialism the only value gold has is for what is can be manufactured into—jewellery, etc.

In Soviet Russia gold is mined because the outside capitalist world, both in finance and society, is based and built up on the worship of gold. Russia, needing no gold to stabilise her currency, is in the glorious position of being able to pay for anything she buys from outside countries with gold—a commodity which internally has no value.

Again, under Socialism, the people are the owners of the means of production (ships and ship building yards, mines, factories, farms, etc.), and as no profit motive enters into socialist production, the only problem is to divide amongst the people the goods they produce. Each industry sets up a committee which co-ordinates the labour of the workers, and by a careful system of checking it is able to calculate within a very narrow margin just what quantity of goods each industry will produce.

Contrary to general belief, under socialism banks do exist, but how different are their functions from those of a capitalist bank.

Under capitalism the banks exercise their influence and knowledge of peoples' private affairs to gain control of industry by the simple expedient of granting or restricting credits as they please. The capitalist source of credit is deposits from small investors, plus profits from previous investments.

The part socialist banks play is to issue the money necessary for carrying out works, and act merely as distributing houses, the source of the credit they are able to issue being the goods produced plus the peoples' deposits.

After checking of requirements by the Planning Commission, the banks issue more money that is required to purchase the goods produced, and thus is demand kept in excess of supply, and the incentive to greater efforts of production is maintained.

Under socialism, unemployment vanishes, because there being no motive for profit, the workers productive powers can be used to the full, and factories, mines, etc., worked to capacity without any fear of glut on the market.

If there is a tendency to overproduce a certain commodity, it is quite simple, where the people own everything, to transfer production to some other commodity in which production is not so far advanced.

The workers, knowing they have continuous work, which means continuous wages, adequate provision during periods of illness, and a bountiful pension on retiring from active work, have no need to hoard their wages, and thus are continually demanding more goods for consumption, and can safely spend to the limit of their income.

What family (I mean workers' family) could not use another pound of butter each week? What family could not use more fruit? What family could not and would not like to buy better class wearing apparel? But we must not forget that our wages in Gladstone, and in not only Australia, but right throughout all capitalist countries, are regulated not on the amount of goods we could produce, not on the amount of money we could spend, but on the smallest amount necessary to maintain ability to work and produce a new generation of wage slaves.

With the limited purchasing power under capitalism, crises are inevitable, and consequently so are wars. For when production goes ahead the power to consume is restricted by the amount paid in wages, and warehouses become stocked with goods which no one can buy, the result being a wholesale reduction in wages and staff, and conditions are brought down to near starvation.

Increased production under a planned socialist system means a reduction in the cost of goods, and a reduction in the hours of labour necessary, which again means more leisure for the workers, and so more contentment and better health, and a desire to further advance the aims of such a system.

To bring home to everyone the difference between socialist and capitalist finance, let us consider our projected Boyne water scheme.

It is recognised that the scheme has some national importance, but despite the efforts of not only the Gladstone Town Council, but also other local bodies, many months elapsed before the Government could be forced to lay aside its political goggles and view the scheme in its true perspective.

After these irritating delays, and the attempts by the Government to sidetrack the issue, after months of "passing the buck," we have been promised something.

Since the scheme was originally put forward, costs, due to the profit motive dominating our war effort, have risen, and where the scheme was originally to cost £80,000, it is now anticipated that the cost will be in the vicinity of £100,000. The period of the loan is 30 years.

In the "Observer," under date January 30, it was reported that the Treasurer had given his word to grant a remission of one-third interest and redemption, which would mean a saving to the ratepayers of £25,000 on an estimated scheme of £90,000.

If one third remission means a saving of £25,000, then it naturally follows that the amount to be found by the ratepayers during that 15 years is £50,000. After the 15 years the ratepayers, through the Council, will be called upon to pay the full amount, no remission having been promised after that period.

So with £50,000 to pay during the first 15 years it can be quite easily imagined what the commitments will be during the second 15 years, so it can be seen that under a capitalist system of finance the Boyne scheme may be summarised as under:—

Gladstone gets a water scheme and will have incurred a tremendous debt to the bondholders, some of which will be paid to the workers in wages direct, some goes to the employees of the firms supplying material, while quite a considerable portion goes to the money lenders for interest, and these eventually get from the small storekeepers, with whom the workers deal for foodstuffs, etc., the money originally paid out in wages.

Under a socialist system, once the merit of the scheme was agreed upon, the money would be advanced by the banks to meet wages and materials. The job would be debited with the amount, while on completion the job would be credited as a national asset, and the debit would thus be balanced.

We would have our water scheme, no yearly instalments to pay, no increase in rates or taxes, and the money back in the vaults of the banks. Some will say it is too simple. Yes, so simple it works.—Yours, etc.,

AT THE POWER HOUSE

REPAIRS TO MAINS EFFECTED

A Transformer Damaged

At the last meeting of the Electric Authority Mr. C. B. Connolly reported that he was in charge of the Power House during the absence of Mr. Phillips on his annual leave from January 25 to February 13.

The plant had run well, and the supply had been continuous, the only repairs necessary being the replacement of a 3-inch overflow pipe from the Crossley engines.

On January 30 considerable damage was done to the mains and services by a heavy wind storm, and repairs were effected without delay.

One new consumer with a total of six points was connected.

The transformer for the Butter Factory interconnection schemt had arrived from Emerald in a damaged condition. He was given to understand that the transformer arrived at the station on about January 21, and they were not notified until January 25.

When Mr. Connolly went to the Railway Station he found the transformer had been damaged, and he notified the Stationmaster, and accepted it under protest.

As near as can be ascertained without a further test, the damage appeared to be six broken insulators, and maybe one cracked insulator, six broken down flanges, and all the transformer oil.

It was reported that the General Manager of Railways had been notified of the damage, also the insurance company.

SCOUT NEWS

Second Gladstone Group

(By "Wonga.")

In common with other groups throughout Australia, the above group is busy raising funds to assist their State headquarters.

By doing this they are also helping themselves. The Boy Scouts Association does not receive any grants or subsidies from the Government, and is run solely on funds raised by their own efforts, plus assistance from groups. The ways in which the association helps groups are innumerable.

Last Monday, February 22, was the birthday of the founder of the movement, the late Lord Baden-Powell, of Gilwell. The best monument that can be erected to him is a successful and flourishing movement. Towards that end a drive for funds is being made.

The Second Gladstone Group held a very successful children's party last Saturday afternoon as part of their programme. They have also nearly completed their drive for autographs. Any Scout will allow you to autograph his folder for 1/-, half the proceeds going to the group concerned and the other half to headquarters.

This group has fifty folders, one per member, and there are still a few spaces left. To-day (Saturday) the Second Gladstone Group will hold a stall in Gondoon Street, the proceeds of which will also go to the same cause. The ladies' committee and scouts have been very busy preparing for this. Lollies will be one of the main items.

The Group has had visits from Rover Bob Phillips and Rover Joe Schneider, who are home on leave.

Scout Frank Liddicoat, R.A.A.F., is also home on leave, and Scout Vic. Brushe, who is home for a week from Brisbane, also paid us a visit.

One last word, don't forget the Scout jumble stall to-day (Saturday), and thus help us to help the movement.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Miss Joyce Shandley, of Gladstone, has returned home after spending a holiday in Gympie.

Driver E. G. B. Shandley, A.I.F., has returned to his unit in the south, after spending leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Shandley, Auckland Street, Gladstone.

GROW VEGETABLES.

People could help the nation by growing vegetables in their home gardens, said the director of the plant division of the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research (Dr. B. T. Dickson. They should think of the home garden as their immediate home front, and do their bit to defeat the enemy, he said.

BEER AND PUBLIC ORDER

BRAWL AT BONDI

1500 Men Involved

One of the essentials in the maintenance of an adequate war effort is the existence of public order. If affairs in any particular public way get out of hand there is dislocation of the united effort.

Much of the disorder which has been of considerable concern to many people who have had the best interests of the nation at heart have been induced by the excessive drinking of beer. As an instance of this we have the recent brawl at Bondi (Sydney), in which more than 1500 men were involved, one man being pushed under a tram and several others trampled on or cut with glass.

The hotel Astra, in and around which the trouble occurred, was one of the few hotels in the suburbs of Sydney which continued to serve beer late in the afternoon of the Saturday in question. There were more men than usual wanting beer, because it was a raceless Saturday, which according to Mr. Heffron is given to allow racegoers to do N.E.S. work or home gardening.

Between 5.15 and 6 p.m. the bars were crowded with men struggling to get near the counters. Seven men were arrested on various charges, including resisting arrest, riotous behaviour, and indecent language. Many others were proceeded against by summons.

The trouble started when the crowd in the bars, including many soldiers, became too large for the attendants to serve with beer. Police and detectives went to restore order. The crowd became hostile, and empty glasses were hurled at the police.

After a struggle the police cleared the bar, the floor of which, according to official reports, was strewn with broken glass. The gold wristlet watch of one of the detectives was torn off and lost. One of the constables lost his uniform cap, which, it is believed, was torn to shreds.

Outside the hotel the fight continued, and the police had to use great tact to prevent serious bloodshed. Several men were knocked down, and several of them were trampled on.

Those whom the police believed to be the most belligerent were lifted into a side-car of a police motor cycle and taken to the Bondi Police Station.

During the fight a tram attempted to pass through the crowd, and a man was pushed under the tram. The safety bars caught his body and he was pushed by the bars along the road before the driver knew what had happened.

The crowd rushed the tram and threatened to lift it off the rails to release the man who was under it. Men were knocked down and trampled on, and the police had to leave the brawling crowds in the other parts of the street. They formed a cordon round the tram and threatened to arrest any man who attempted to break through. Then the man under the tram was released and taken to hospital for treatment.

The cause of such disorder needs to be dealt with in a way in which it has not up to the present been dealt with. At any time beer is an enemy of order, and is more so than ever in war time.

MENACE OF DINGOES

Farmers' Rifles

Commenting on a statement that farmers whose rifles had been impressed by the Army were finding it difficult to control the menace of dingoes and other pests, the Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) said that farmers who made official application to the Army could have their cases considered.

Every case would receive prompt and thorough investigation, and applications should be made to the impressment officers in the various lines of communication headquarters.

In genuine cases the Army would return the rifle if possible. If this could not be done arrangements would be made to provide a substitute weapon.

"It is Army policy to minimise the inevitable inconvenience caused to farmers by the impressment of their rifles for defence purposes," said Mr. Forde.

RUSSIA PASSES TEST

MASTERLY STRATEGY

Germany's Losses Terrific

The successive German summer and Russian winter offensives have created an impression in some quarters that fighting on the gigantic eastern front has been in the nature of a stupendous see-saw struggle, with the Russians winning back in the winter what the Germans won in the previous summer.

This, it has been felt, might go on for an almost indefinite period. But keener observers have felt that the test for the Russians this northern winter would be their ability to break through the German permanent winter line.

That they have succeeded in doing this proves that their present offensive has greater drive and staying power than that of a year ago. Their onslaught must have carried them farther than the Germans thought possible, and German radio reports indicate a considerable German concern for the stability of their eastern line and the security of their armies in Russia.

German losses have been terrific, and there are more terrific losses for them yet to face. The strategy of the Russians has been masterly. To have held their reserves of men and materials while the enemy stormed and entered the gates of Stalingrad indicates a patience almost beyond imagining. It was only when the Germans seemed to have their objective within their grasp that the Russians struck back and drove the Germans from their advanced positions.

It is not to be overlooked that Russian losses in the fierce fighting in which they have been engaged have been appalling. The question now is how long this Russian pressure over an extended front can be maintained, and whether the Germans, despite their great losses of men and material, can regroup their forces for a counter offensive in the coming summer.

No one is now in a position to say what the answer to this question is, and time alone will tell. This may be said, however: If the Russians succeed in taking Smolensk before their winter offensive is over, there can be no doubt that the Germans will have suffered a reverse from which they are not likely to recover quickly, if they recover at all.

In the event of the Russians falling short of this objective, the Germans will probably be in a position to attempt another forward push when the Russian winter is over. All this is without account of any diversionary move or moves the United Nations may initiate in the west.

The North African campaign has been a help to Russia, though it is not probable that it has involved the withdrawal of any considerable armed strength from the eastern front. If, however, any large scale invasion of Europe is attempted, and German forces have to be withdrawn from the east, the present Russian offensive may be carried to the very frontier of Germany, but there can be no doubt that the Russians would rather destroy the German army in Russia than drive it back into Germany.

HOTELS AND BOARDING HOUSES

"BED ONLY" FACILITIES

Little Consideration Be Shown

Basis upon which labour protection will be given to hotels and boarding houses was decided at a conference between the War Organisation of Industry Department and the manpower authorities.

The honorary advisory officer of the department, Mr. Bruce Pie, M.L.A., said afterwards that it was agreed that those hotels and boarding houses already providing and willing to provide full accommodation should be protected, but the department must be convinced that present and further manpower allocations would be utilised fully.

It was felt that this action would encourage hotels and boarding houses to make full boarding and accommodation facilities available again immediately, thus relieving the present demands on cafes and restaurants.

Little consideration, it was decided, could be shown to those lessees and proprietors who would make available "bed only" facilities, and to those hotels which did not wish to provide any accommodation facilities.

KITCHEN FRONT

Breakfast Is Important

Do you "eat as you run." No time for breakfast; or do you consider the first meal of the day to be unimportant? Whatever the cause, let us make the situation quite clear.

Firstly, breakfast as a meal is most important.

The taking of food first thing in the morning has a very definite effect upon digestive activity, and stimulates the wave-like movements of the whole of the digestive tract, thus maintaining muscular tone and aiding regular elimination.

What food should be taken for breakfast?

Fresh fruit, whole or as juice, or stewed to provide some minerals and vitamins, those important protective foods. The acid flavour of fruit first thing in the morning is refreshing and helps to prepare the appetite for foods to follow.

"Oh, well," some of you may say, "fruit is all I eat for breakfast. I don't want anything else."

Eating is so largely a matter of habit, and no doubt you have trained yourself to think this way. But I would like to ask: "What about the 'empty' feeling that overcomes you at 10.30 or 11 a.m.?"

Fruit contains a large amount of water and a comparatively small amount of solid requiring digestion so that the stomach dealth with it in a very short space of time, and then the "hollow" feeling comes along, or you feel faint.

So, if we add some cereal which is usually served with milk and, preferably an egg with wholemeal toast, butter and marmalade, with tea, coffee or cocoa to drink, then we have an adequate breakfast.

The proteins represented by egg and milk take much longer to digest, and prevent the onset of hunger. The cereal, bread and marmalade provide heat and energy for the morning's work, and there are minerals and vitamins A, B, and C, represented, too. So, why not give yourself a chance to start the day well? You are able to do a more efficient job of work and will have all the energy you need left for play.

But, you will say: "That's a large breakfast: my weight will increase!"

On the contrary, if you take such a breakfast as this: eat a light lunch of cheese with fruit or vegetable salad, bread, butter and milk, and the usual type of evening meal, consisting of soup (if you wish), meat with potatoes, and two other vegetables, you will not increase your weight if you are engaged in a moderately active routine. But, note, there's no mention of morning or afternoon teas. It is the food taken then, usually of a starchy nature, that causes the trouble. Drink if you like, but refrain from eating if you wish to retain a slim silhouette.

When colder weather comes along foods that have a higher energy value find a place in your luncheon or dinner menu, but the breakfast can remain the same, or you may have porridge instead of prepared cereal if you wish.

"Pay-as-you-go"

ABOUT one family in every two in the Commonwealth enjoys some measure of A.M.P. protection and, as the Society belongs entirely to its members, they should know why their Directors are putting £500,000 a month (out of the Society's day-by-day income) into the War Loans.

The Directors believe that to avoid grave financial disturbance now, and during post-war recovery, the War must be financed, as far as possible, out of current earnings and savings.

The largest possible part of the War expenditure should be met by taxation. Since, however, it is not practicable to cover the entire cost by taxes, resort must be had to borrowing.

To the largest extent possible such borrowing must be from the current income of the people: the income that would otherwise be spent with inflationary results because of the ever increasing shortage of goods and services.

If these two methods be pursued with vigour, the Nation can avoid the evil of expanded Bank Credit. To play its part in avoiding the calamitous effect of this evil, the Society is putting £500,000 a month of its current income into the War Loans.

It is to be hoped that every citizen will put all he can into the War Loans to the same end: to preserve the financial health of the Nation.

MOTHER AND CHILD

BABY'S HEALTH

Sleep and Rest Essential

The poets from Shakespeace downwards have sung the virtues of sleep, and some of the world's most beautiful songs are lullabies. Who has not felt the appeal of a picture of a young mother hushing her baby to rest with a window open to the setting sun as a background, or even, in spite of our modern upbringing, the mother knitting as she sings a lullaby and rocks the old wooden cradle with her foot.

Mothers nowadays do not rock their babies to sleep: they would tell us they have not the time, even if they had not been advised that a constant swinging movement is not really a good thing. Mother in pre-war days, and even sometimes now, alas, was found rushing off to tennis or the movies taking baby with her, when he should have been lying quietly in his cot.

Many mothers nowadays realise the importance of feeding babies correctly, but not so many realise the importance to the baby of sufficient sleep and rest.

While he is awake baby is very active, and it is during sleep that growth takes place and nature has time to repair the worn out parts. When one considers that baby doubles an average birth weight in five or six months, it will be realised that he needs a maximum of sleep for this important work.

I have known a case where a baby failed to gain weight for weeks until the time when the mother was ill in bed, and then miraculously baby baby gained a normal amount of weight. We found then that mother, when well, took him to the movies two or three times a week, thus depriving him of the quiet sleep he needed during which to grow.

BABY'S RIGHTS.

One recognises that a mother's life nowadays is beset with difficulties. Perhaps she is trying to bring up her baby without the help of his daddy, who is away at the war, or she feels that she should be helping with one or other forms of voluntary war work, and so baby's life is necessarily disarranged.

We would like mother to realise that the most important war work these days is the care and nurture of the next generation—the babies who must take the place of the young men whose lives are being lost in this world upheaval.

So, if possible, you mothers with babies, let the women who have no children, or whose families are grown up to nursery-school age and beyond, do the full day's work in the war organisations, and you concentrate on giving baby his rights in the matter of rest and sleep and food. That will be your best contribution to the war effort.

Many babies are cross and difficult to feed, and will not settle down because they are over tired.

AMOUNT OF SLEEP REQUIRED.

During the early weeks of life baby should sleep nearly all the time between his feeds. After the first month or so he remains awake longer because he is beginning to be aware of his power of movement and to use his arms and legs. As time goes on a baby can enjoy himself for quite a while crowing and kicking and exercising his various faculties, but even when he reaches the age of a year he should have as much as three hours sleep each day as well as his twelve at night.

AVOID EXCITEMENT.

Any kind of over stimulations or excitement is injurious to a baby, but particularly to the restless, highly strung type. A baby may be made very sleepless and irritable, and the seeds of a neurosis may be sown by his being kept up late. The condition is further aggravated by taking him amongst noise and bright lights, or by playing with him just at bedtime.

Think again of the picture of a mother hushing her baby to rest with a lullaby, and remember that whatever may be one's views about the wisdom of rocking a baby to sleep, our mothers and grandmothers had the knowledge which in these unsettled days we are liable to lose sight of, that to be fit and well a baby must have all the sleep he needs, and to obtain this he should go to bed surrounded by an atmosphere of peace, love and security, whether in his mother's arms or in his cot.

Questions in this and any other subject concerning maternal and child welfare will be answered by communicating personally with the Maternal and Child Welfare Information Bureau, 184 St. Paul's Terrace, Brisbane, or by addressing letters, Baby Clinic, Brisbane. These letters need not be stamped.

GIVEN FROM THE HEART

Papuans £400 For War Effort

"We have collected some money—one hundred pounds; we give it from the heart."

This is from a speech by Councillor Piki, of the Papuan village of Hua. The occasion was the handing over of one hundred pounds subscribed by the villagers to buy War Savings certificates.

Piki means what he said. Papuan natives have been able to buy War Savings certificates for a little over three months, but in that period they have spent £400 on them.

The whole thing is voluntary. There is not even a hint of coercion. The villagers collect the money among themselves and their headmen hand it over to the District Officer. When the certificates are available he gives them to the village council for safe keeping.

It is impossible to say how many individuals have helped subscribe the £400 so far invested by the Papuans. Many of the young men are away most of the time, so it can be presumed that the money comes from those who stay at home, the old men and women. As Papuan village life is fully communal, it is likely that everybody, even the smallest children, would own a share in the certificates.

In this way the Papuans have found a satisfactory method of disposing of their surplus money until the coming of peace brings once again an abundance of the trade goods they like to buy. But there is more in it than this. In his speech Councillor Piki said: "We can do little to fight. The white men fight with aeroplanes and big guns. We do not understand these things, but we want to do something to help win the war."

COTTON PICKING PROBLEM

MR. FORDE AND MAN-POWER SHORTAGE

Statement by Mr. Williams

In view of the fact that the Army Minister (Mr. F. M. Forde) told cotton growers in Rockhampton recently that he could not hold out any hope of men being released from the Army to relieve the manpower shortage for picking the cotton harvest, it is obvious that steps must be taken without delay to make available the necessary labour required for picking the crop, said the Agriculture Minister (Mr. T. L. Williams).

The Queensland Cotton Board considers that there is an avenue from which labour can be diverted for picking cotton. The Board suggests that labour be not made available for the falling, burning, or fencing of virgin scrub land in Queensland during the present war conditions, as such work is considered quite unessential, seeing that its primary object is only the bringing of land under grass.

It is pointed out by the Board that approximately only 30 per cent of the yield of seed cotton per acre is obtained from cotton grown on such scrub land as compared with crops grown on cultivated land, and that the labour utilised in falling virgin scrub and sowing cotton seed after a burn could be used with far greater benefit to Australia's war effort if it were used for the growing of cotton on cultivated land. In that event more cotton would be produced and extra labour might be then available for picking.

Taking the acreage of burnt scrub planted to cotton and brought to the harvesting stage in 1942, the Board estimates that this would represent at least 300 workers employed for a period of from three to four months, this being labour utilised only on the falling, burning, and fencing of the scrub land.

It is further mentioned that last year a great part of the fencing wire which was released to the Board was used to protect these virgin scrub blocks, and as it is only the first crop of cotton that can be grown on such land, it would have been better if this fencing wire had been allotted where cotton is being grown on cultivated land, and which produces four or five crops of cotton on the same land.

"It is clearly essential that the best use be made of the labour resources on account of the acute shortage of manpower," said Mr. Williams. "It would appear that the Cotton Board has therefore made out a strong case for the adoption of its recommendation that as only one crop of cotton is produced on such land the system of scrub planting is uneconomic.

"It is of vital importance that the cotton crop be harvested when it is ready for picking, and the diversion of the men who are engaged for a period on work that is not considered so essential to the war effort appears to be justified."

WOMEN IN WAR WORK

WHEN CONFLICT IS OVER

Must Not Be "Dumped"

There was a representative gathering of women in Sydney last week when Mrs. Jessie Street, acting president of the United Associations of Women and president of the Medical Aid to Russia Fund convened a meeting of members of the newly-formed Council for Women in War Work.

"The present job of the Council," said Mrs. Street, "is to develop the ability of women to the greatest extent and to see that this ability is used for a maximum war effort. Its future job is to see that women in the defence forces and in war industries are not just 'dumped' when the war is over. In other words, the Council for Women in War Work will work so that freedom from want and freedom from fear shall apply to women as well as men when the war is over."

One of the most interesting speakers at the meeting was Mrs. Elsa Booth, mother of nine young Australians, who is working in an arms factory near Sydney. She and the girls under her are "plugging along solidly" on a precision job—the first of its kind in Australia.

"There are a lot of headaches in the job still," said Mrs. Booth, "but one of the first completed examples has been passed as a 100 per cent job by an army inspector. There are 195 girls in the shop with me, and I tell them we must have unity — among ourselves, behind Prime Minister Curtin, and in the family too, if we want to do a real job for the war effort. I have a big family, and I'm proud of it, and the only way I can do a job at this arms factory is that I have taught my youngsters the meaning of unity. We all help each other, even the little ones."

The meeting was a rally to encourage women to enlist in the services and to join munition factories.

At the conclusion of the speeches, which were given by a number of union and factory representatives, two films were shown, one showing volunteer work done by women under blitz conditions in England, and women munition workers, parachute nurses and guerilla fighters in Ruhsia.

One girl in Sydney who is doing a particularly interesting job is Miss Ann Hannah, believed to be the first woman in Australia to gain her aeronautical investigation directorate's welder's ticket. She joined an aircraft factory ten months ago as a tea girl, and became fascinated with the welders' work when she took tea round to the men at their benches. She was so genuinely interested, in fact, that the men taught her welding in their spare time, and three months ago she had achieved sufficient skill to apply to the A.I.D. to sit for her welder's ticket. Now she has her ticket Miss Hannah is able to carry out the same welding jobs as the men, and has become the first woman in the Commonwealth capable of undertaking fuselage "stress" welding.

Before the war Miss Hannah was a nurse on the staff of the Far West Children's Home at Manly.

CAN YOU HELP?

Books, magazines and old clean newspapers are urgently needed by the Gladstone branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. If you have any old newspapers, books, or magazines, kindly leave same at Gladstone Cash and Carry, where they will be collected regularly and despatched to the troops in camp. The camps in the outlying centres are much in need of reading matter and indoor games, such as playing cards, etc. See what you can do.

FOR MERCHANT NAVY

Signal is "Girls Ahoy"

"First customer" (as he signed himself) at the new Merchant Navy Club in Sydney, was John North, one of the crew of a B.H.P. ship. Since then there have been dozens of signatures from men of all nationalities, all of them most appreciative of this club and very proud of the fact that it is their own.

Until a few weeks ago the club was an old and shabby garage. Now it has been transformed into a first-rate club, with its own shower rooms, billiard room, food bar, two wireless sets, writing tables, panatrope, magazines and information bureau.

The food bar, built in a long L-shape, provides real honest-to-goodness home cooked meals for a maximum price of 1/3. Over the bar is a striped red and white awning, and behind it are attractive voluntary helpers in red and white striped aprons to match.

The principal decoration on the walls is a mural of Sydney Harbour, designed and painted by Lieutenant Commander Ingleton, of Garden Island.

Near South Head is a whale looking at a signal flown from South Head itself, which reads, "Scram." A merchant ship nearing the Heads is flying the signal, "Girls ahoy!"

Mrs. W. P. Dunlop, who was in charge of the catering at the New Zealand Forces Club in London, is in charge of the voluntary helpers at the Merchant Navy Club, which is organised and financed by members of the Bundles for Britain committee in Sydney. The committee have been very gratified at the generous donations seamen visiting the club have dropped into the donations box. One American sailor gave thirty dollars.

NO COWS

At Battle Stations

There are no cows at battle stations in New Guinea and Northern Australia, and although the milkman does not call, troops must have an adequate supply of butter fat in their diet.

The only way they can get this is by the maintenance of plentiful supplies of powdered milk. "Dinah" arrives at forward areas in a tin.

Land Army girls milking cows on dairy farms start the milk on its way.

This is just one angle of the work which the Land Army is doing to ensure that food supplies will move steadily forward to the services. Most important job of all at present is vegetable growing. Dehydrated vegetables provide essential vitamins in service diets, necessarily restricted because of transport problems. So important is this work considered that it has first priority in Land Army jobs.

66 UNITS OF VITAMIN "B1" FOR BREAKFAST!

Professor Priestley, of the Sydney University, writes in the "Australasian Baker" of July, 1942:—

"With respect to their vitamin B1 content, breakfast foods may be divided into two groups: Those that are wholly pre-cooked ready to eat and those not pre-cooked, or only partially pre-cooked during the process of manufacture.

"With few exceptions all members of the former group are extremely low in vitamin B1.

"Members of the second group retain the greater part of the vitamin B1 present in the original cereal grain from which the breakfast food was prepared.

"Thus, a plate of a pre-cooked ready-to-eat breakfast food without the milk, gave 2 units of vitamin B1, while a plate of porridge of rolled oats gave 66 units—33 times as much."

Here is further convincing proof of the wonderful food value of Uncle Toby's Oats — the cleanest, freshest and highest quality rolled oats obtainable. Remember, a breakfast of Uncle Toby's Oats provides 66 units of Vitamin B1 — serve it regularly throughout the year. Sold by grocers everywhere

HOME NURSING PASSES.

The following who recently sat for their home nursing examination, passed with credit:—Miss Kathleen Farmer, Miss Nita Anson, Miss Jean Brown, Miss Marjorie Anson, and Miss Moira Christine Dwyer.

AIR RAID WARDENS.

Sergt. S. Coxon advises that a meeting of air raid wardens will be held to-morrow night (Thursday) in the basement of the Town Hall, when a lecture will be delivered by Mr. A. Kennedy, of Brisbane. A large attendance is requested.

DONATION APPRECIATED.

Two school children, Ruth Hunter and Myra Watson, recently called on the Secretary of the Red Cross Society (Mr. V. A. Summers) and handed him a donation of six shillings and sevenpence for the prisoners of war adoption scheme. The donation was much appreciated, and the thanks of the branch extended the youthful donors.

MR. H. P. HALLAM.

Mr. H. P. Hallam, who recently resigned as hon. secretary of the Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society owing to pressure of duties, has been made a member of the Society's executive. This tribute to Mr. Hallam's work under difficult conditions will be appreciated by all well wishers of the branch. The fact that his services will still be available to the Red Cross in an advisory capacity will also be appreciated.

PRIVATE "MICK" BUSTEED.

Private "Mick" Busteed, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Busteed, is at present spending a fortnight's leave with his parents prior to returning to his unit in the south. After seeing service with the A.I.F. at Milne Bay young "Mick" contracted malaria and was invalided to Australia for treatment. After recuperating at Warwick he was transferred to a southern base, where he is now attached to his unit. His many friends in town and district will be pleased to learn of his recovery, and join in wishing him every good fortune and a safe return once again to his home town. He is at present spending a few days with his dad at the Boyne.

SALVATION ARMY

Red Shield Mobile Canteen

A scheme, planned by several residents to meet the needs of the civil population of Gladstone in the event of air raids, was happily consummated recently in the arrival of a mobile service unit for local use.

The widespread service of the Red Shield mobile units covered not only the battle areas of New Guinea and the Middle East, but also Australian cities and towns, a work which has won the endorsement of the Governments.

The mobile canteen, which has been purchased by voluntary contributions from Gladstone residents, has already done valuable service on a recent date when Allied troops were served with refreshments from the canteen. This act of kindness was greatly appreciated by officers and men alike.

The canteen is now fully equipped ready to render service wherever required.

The Red Shield Committee wish to thank all kind donors who contributed towards the purchase of the canteen.

PRICES OF MEAT.

The Commonwealth's decision to peg meat prices at last Friday's level will bring additional classes of meat under price control in Queensland.

Control in Queensland previously was limited to beef and mutton, but now prices for lamb, pork and veal will be limited.

The Commonwealth order says that butchers must not exceed the prices they charged individually on Friday.

TOWN COUNCIL

BOYNE WATER SCHEME

Commonwealth Subsidy Asked For

A special meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen J. Deveney, W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

Apologies were tendered for the unavoidable absence of Aldermen Smith and Busteed.

The business of the meeting was to deal with matters appertaining to the Boyne water scheme.

B PRIORITY.

The Deputy Co-ordinator General of Public Works (Mr. J. R. Kemp) advised the Council, through the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams) as follows:—

"Further to previous correspondence relative to the Boyne River water supply scheme, I have to inform you that advice has now been received from the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) that this project has been allotted a B priority, which means that only fighting services operational projects will take precedence. I have taken the matter up with the Loan Council Co-ordinator of Works, whose agreement to the full scheme proceeding in the current financial year is necessary in accordance with the Loan Council co-ordination plan."

MUST HAVE SIR HARRY BROWN'S APPROVAL.

The Mayor: We must wait until we get word from the Co-ordinator General (Sir Harry Brown) as to whether we can proceed with the full scheme, as it must have his approval.

KEEP IN TOUCH WITH COUNCIL.

The Mayor moved that the Agriculture Minister (Mr. T. L. Williams) be written to asking him to keep in touch with the Council and advise from time to time the latest information in connection with the Boyne River water scheme.

Seconded by Ald. Tudman and carried.

IMPORTANT MOTION.

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) moved:—

"That application be made to the Commonwealth Government, through the Army Minister (Mr. F. M. Forde), for a subsidy of £20,000 on the whole of the Boyne River water scheme.

GRANTING A SUBSIDY.

Ald. Golding, in seconding the motion, said Mr. Forde, subsequently to getting in touch with the Town Clerk (Mr. Grayson), must have been reading the "Observer," as he (Ald. Golding) had dealt fully with the matter of a subsidy at a special meeting of the Council, held on Tuesday, February 2, when he requested that the whole question be reviewed with a view to the Commonwealth Government granting a subsidy on the scheme.

NATIONAL IMPORTANCE.

Ald. Golding went on to say that at this particular meeting he had stressed the urgency for the early completion of the scheme, as many industries drawing on their supply were engaged exclusively on war work, that large quantities of water were being taken at short notice in the national interests, that the citizens of Gladstone should not be called upon to bear the extra cost of the scheme brought about by the war, and that the scheme be declared of sufficient national importance to have it declared an A1 priority job.

SUBSTANTIAL SUBSIDY.

In conclusion, Ald. Golding felt the action he had taken was fully justified, and it was only right that the Commonwealth Government should grant a substantial subsidy.

PLEASED WITH MR. FORDE'S EFFORT.

Ald. Anderson said he was pleased with the efforts of Mr. Forde, and if they could get a subsidy round about £20,000 it would bring back the expenditure to about the cost of the original scheme, which he considered could be met by the ratepayers.

MOTION CARRIED.

The motion was then put and carried.

MEETING ADJOURNED.

At this stage the meeting was adjourned, pending the laying on the table of correspondence received a few years ago.

WOMEN IN BUTCHERS' SHOPS.

Application has been made to the Women's Employment Board for permission to employ women as wrappers, counter servers, and minor cutting hands in butchers' shops. This is to offset the acute shortage of male butchers called up for military service.

BOWLING

PENNANT MATCHES

Win For Gladstone

At the Gladstone Bowling Green on Saturday local representative pennant teams scored a meritorious win over strong rinks from the Rockhampton Bowling Club.

Although the visitors did not arrive until late in the afternoon, the matches were finished in daylight under good bowling conditions. The President (Mr. M. A. Busteed) welcomed the Rockhampton players, and Mr. C. Sturgess (president of the R.B.C.) suitably responded.

The improved standard of Gladstone bowling was reflected in the 3-1 win of the local representatives. The visitors sportingly commented on the excellent condition of the rinks, and admitted that on the day Gladstone bowlers were the better players. This is the first occasion Gladstone has defeated Rockhampton, and the 1943 pennants have opened auspiciously for the local club.

The ladies entertained the visitors and served afternoon tea at the club house. The Rockhampton players were unable to obtain accommodation overnight, and left again at 9 p.m. for Rockhampton.

PENNANT RESULTS.

Graham, Donald, Oxenham, Gatward (R.B.C.) v. Joyner, Chapman, Golding, Loveday (G.) 31-27.

MR. V. A. SUMMERS

Secretary, Red Cross

Members and supporters of the Red Cross Society will be pleased to learn that Mr. V. A. Summers has again taken over the secretaryship of the branch. His splendid work in this position over a long term when Mrs. Walker was president is well known, and there were many expressions of regret when he advised last year that increasing calls on his business prevented him continuing in office. However, when Mr. Hallam advised recently that he would be tendering his resignation several officers and members approached Mr. Summer and asked him if he could assist by again being secretary.

Mr. Summers is one of the leading accountants in the town, and his special knowledge and qualifications were of great value to the branch when he organised the secretarial position previously. In addition members regard him as one of the best organisers the Society has. His work in connection with the prisoners of war street adoption scheme has already proved this.

Mrs. Phil Browne has generously agreed to assist Mr. Summers by attending to the correspondence, and Mr. A. W. Drew and other executive members are seeking to relieve him of extra work in connection with other details.

The clerical work in connection with the local branch has grown until today it is nearly a full-time job. It is, therefore, pleasing to note the co-operation of members in keeping an efficient secretary.

SOLDIERS' LEAGUE.

The Wide Bay and Burnett District Conference of the Returned Soldiers' League decided to recommend to the State Congress that every effort be made to fill all Government, or even semi-Government positions which were now vacant, or which might become vacant, with men who had enlisted for service in the forces.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

KNITTING AND SEWING CIRCLE

P.O.W. Adoption Scheme

Mrs. H. V. Phillips (president) occupied the chair at the monthly meeting of the Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society, there being seventeen members present.

BENARABY SUB-BRANCH.

Miss D. M. Colyer (secretary Benaraby sub-branch) advised of the activities of her members, and forwarded £15/5/11.

SEWING CIRCLE.

Mrs. J. W. Rigby (convenor of the Sewing Circle) reported that work had proceeded smoothly during the month. New members had attended, and progress was satisfactory.

KNITTING CIRCLE.

Mrs. D. Connellan (convenor of the Knitting Circle) advised that 83 skeins of wool had been given out to make 19 pairs of socks and one sleeveless pullover.

The following were thanked for articles sent in:—Mrs. D. Norris, Misses R. Stirratt and J. O'Neil, 4 prs. socks each; Mrs. Grenfell 3 prs., Miss Liddicoat one pair; Mesdames Upton and Grenfell one chest protector each; Mrs. Wheeler (Calliope), one sleeveless cardigan.

Probably due to the holidays, there had not been a great amount of knitting taken out, and an appeal was made for knitters to make white cotton socks, which were needed for hospital cases.

HOSPITAL COMMITTEE FORMED.

Mrs. Gollnick reported that a visiting hospital committee had been formed, and two members visited allied patients on Monday and Thursday of one week in each month. Cigarettes, tobacco, watches, writing material, books, magazines and fruit, also if necessary, shaving cream, tooth paste and tooth brushes are given to the servicemen. Twenty-two men had been visited in February. Permission had been given to instal a cupboard to hold writing materials and books, so that they would be available to the patients at any time.

Mr. Roulston was thanked for conveying committee members free to the hospital in his 'bus.

The small library now totalled 28 books, and more were required.

P.O.W. ADOPTION SCHEME.

Messrs. Summers and Connellan reported that the P.O.W. street adoption scheme had been satisfactorily organised. It was found that the comparatively slow progress in the first two months was due to lack of organisation and workers. As the fund had been listed by headquarters as most urgent, efforts were made to speed up canvassing of streets. December collections amounted to £10/8/-, January £12/11/6, and February had totalled over £60, showing the improvement to date.

Mrs. Elliot had completed Yaroon and part of Auckland Street, and with the assistance of the Scouts had done William and Glenlyon Street. Miss Margaret Hill was assisting with collections. Mrs. Watson, after completing Auckland Hill and Marine Parade with 33 contributors, did Bramston Street (21) and Herbert Street. She is now doing Lord Street and other small lanes in and around Auckland Hill.

Two of Mrs. Watson's contributors are old age pensioners, who insisted on being in the scheme. Another of her contributors has three sons, one a prisoner of war in Malaya, another in the Middle East, and a third is serving in Australia.

The ex-secretary of the branch (Mr. H. P. Hallam) is proud of the fact that his wife initiated the first three streets in Gladstone, and she has continued to collect from View, Ormonde and Scenery streets.

Mrs. Frank Johnston, who was given Barney Point by the organiser (Mrs. Coppin) has sent in four weeks' collections.

Mrs. Hartley, who took over Roseberry Street from Mrs. Clyde Smith, is now changing over to her own street (Bramston).

Mrs. R. Ricketts has proved another successful canvasser. She completed Fowler Estate, then Fisher Street, and the area around the Bowling Club, and is now to do Tank Street. Here again Boy Scouts have helped with collections.

Mrs. Clyde Smith, who did Roseberry Street, has left, and her services have been lost for the present.

The organiser, Mrs. K. Coppin, has returned from holidays, and is now doing Gondoon Street with Mrs. Watson, and has also undertaken to do Parson's Point.

It was early apparent that the valuable services of our best canvassers were being delayed by increasing collections. We, therefore, made an effort to get some of the junior Red Cross girls to follow Mesdames Watson, Elliot, Smith, Ricketts, Hartley, etc., just to collect the amounts. However, though approaches were made by your President (Mrs. Phillips) and other officers, there seemed to be many difficulties, and we had no success in this direction.

An appeal, however, to the Scoutmasters in charge of the 2nd and 3rd Gladstone Boy Scouts had better results, and a number of willing and enthusiastic Scouts were immediately placed at the services of the ladies.

Receipts, gate tags, street signs, literature, etc., have been given regularly to canvassers, and weekly calls made to assist them.

The scheme is now a success, and canvassers are even being asked by residents in streets not yet done for tags, etc. However, there is still a large area to be organised, and there is plenty of room for further assistance from ladies willing to canvass or collect.

To save collections many residents have given monthly amounts, and one (Mrs. Golding) gave a year's contribution, £2/2/-.

VALUABLE SERVICE APPRECIATED.

In thanking the branch for its valuable service, the Commissioner (Mr. D. W. Garland) discussed the difficulties of servicing, and the failure to notify the branch in time. The work of the Gladstone ladies was highly appreciated, and every effort would be made to improve the system of advising when assistance was required. The writer also apologised at not being able to visit Gladstone, recent heavy rains having forced a return to Brisbane when he was nearing Miriam Vale.

MESSAGE OF SYMPATHY.

Mrs. J. W. Rigby acknowledged a message of sympathy from members in connection with the recent death of her daughter, Lindy Beatrice, who was of great assistance to the branch.

WITH THANKS.

Headquarters acknowledged with thanks receipt of £159/8/4 for the prisoners of war adoption scheme, and £12/18/-, proceeds of sale Xmas Art Union cards.

A GALLANT SON.

The Secretary, Red Cross Bureau (Miss K. Weller) advised that a report was given to one of the Red Cross searchers recently, concerning Lieut. R. A. Patrick, who was reported killed in action last year.

It was decided to forward the report to Mr. C. D. Patrick, with the sympathy of members on the loss of his gallant son.

"REQUIRED CLARIFICATION."

It was decided to write the Red Cross Field Commissioner (Mr. D. W. Garland), regretting that he had been unable to visit Gladstone on account of road conditions. There were still many matters concerning servicing, etc., that required clarification.

RESIGNED.

Mrs. E. M. Joseph submitted her resignation as Commandant of the V.A. Detachment, and her valuable services were placed on record.

"ACCEPTED WITH REGRET."

The resignation of the secretary, held over from the previous meeting, was re-submitted, and Mrs. Phillips moved and Mr. Drewe seconded that Mr. Hallam's resignation be accepted with regret.

Mr. Summers agreed to take over the secretaryship if he could get someone to assist with the correspondence, and after some discussion Mrs. P. F. Browne agreed to undertake this part of the work.

Mr. Summers was then elected secretary, officials and members confirming his splendid work when he held the position last year.

Mrs. Browne was appointed to assist Mr. Summers.

Mr. Hallam was appointed to the executive vice Mr. Summers.

It was agreed that the executive meet at an early date to draw up a scheme to divide the secretarial work up as much as possible.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Private F. Brown is at present spending a few days leave with his parents at Calliope.

Miss Ethel Neumann, of Gladstone, left by Monday's mail train to spend a week's holiday in Bundaberg. She intends spending the latter week of her holidays with friends in the country.

SOCIALISTIC RUSSIA

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME

Reply to Mr. Leo Funk

(By "Democrat.")

A glowing picture of the Soviet socialistic system has been painted by Mr. Funk during recent issues of the "Observer," but that writer's views have only been conveyed in a general sense. This is a definite advantage in illustrating a new order, as defects can easily be glossed over by the insertion of sugar-coated words and phrases.

As an example, I would like Mr. Funk to explain more fully the terms "continuous work" and "continuous wages," "adequate provision during periods of illness," and "a bountiful pension on retiring from work."

These are classical examples of generalisation, and convey nothing to the ordinary mind. State the weekly wages paid to the Soviet workers, the sick benefits, the nature and amount of the pension, Mr. Funk, and the ordinary worker will then be able to make a comparison between Australian and Soviet conditions.

NOT 100 PER CENT EFFICIENT.

I have the greatest admiration for the Russian people, as their magnificent fighting qualities and indominatible will have already been proved, and there are many points in their socialistic system that are excellent creations. However, admiration for a nation, as a whole, and agreement on certain reform principles does not necessarily imply that the prevailing system in that particular country is 100 per cent efficient.

The present system in Soviet Russia might function fairly smoothly in that country, and be unworkable in a democracy. This may appear paradoxical, but in a revolutionary change over the characteristics of the people and their adaptibility to the new order must first be assessed.

EXPECTED A MESSIAH.

I am not casting a reflection on the Russian people when I state that prior to the October revolution chaotic conditions existed in that country; in fact, the shackles of serfdom had not been removed from the people. The position of the Russian people at the time was remarkably like the Jews of the Old Testament; they expected a Messiah and received one in the person of Nikolai Lenin.

GRASPING A STRAW

Speaking generally, the Russian is a slow thinker with a strong mixture of Mongol blood in his veins, and when the new order was introduced the masses readily accepted the change as a drowning man would grasp a straw. To enforce the new order mass executions were carried out (called purges in Russia), and many ambitious and enterprising comrades faced the firing squad.

In a democratic country the people have their redress through the ballot box. The Soviet and democratic modes of living are dissimilar in many respects. In the Soviet Union women perform many manual duties that are not according to our democratic Hoyle, such as the tilling of the soil, unloading of boats, the segregation of the wood pile, etc.

In Australia we provide our women folk with a light axe. The comparison is not meant to convey satire, and is just an enlargement on previous remarks on the installation of a new system. There is an old saying that "one man's meat is another man's poison."

CAPITALISM BOGEY.

Capitalism must be Mr. Funk's pet aversion, as this bogey has again been resurrected, and the big bad wolf of high finance occupies pride of place in Mr. Funk's articles.

If capitalism was abolished trade unionism would vanish over night, for the boss and the worker would have nothing to scrap about. Capitalism so far as the worker is concerned, is the means to an end; or a short cut to the Arbitration Court.

A MISNOMER.

Is there a slave or wage plug yet born who has not at some time or other had capitalistic aspirations? Unfortunately, Messrs. McCarthy and Chifley have cut the ground from under our feet.

Mr. Funk and myself have both made mention of the word "slave," but this term as applied to our present standard of living is a misnomer.

There is a vast difference between obedience and servility. Lenin (the greatest Roman of them all, and presently described as "the saint in the icebox") always addressed his countrymen as comrades.

ALL "HOOEY."

Mr. Funk's remarks on gold are illuminating. It is many years since gold was withdrawn from our currency and after the thorough house to house canvass carried out by the "three ball" brigade anyone displaying a gold watch and chain at the present time would immediately be dubbed a capitalist.

On Mr. Funk's own admission gold is a negotiable instrument, and any commodity that is the medium of exchange has a definite value.

To my mind the statement that in Soviet Russia the people own the means of production and transport is all "hooey."

We have been told that we own our railways, but just try and "jump the rattler," and you will quickly explode that myth.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

Banking systems and monetary reforms are very debatable subjects, and one could fill many newspapers, and would then only be warming up to the job.

Mr. Funk states that in the Soviet "demand is kept in excess of supply," and later on it is mentioned "if there is a tendency to overproduce a certain commodity." How can there be over production when the supply is less than the demand?

OUR WAGES "PEELED OFF."

I can now understand why there is continuous work in the Soviet Union. It would be an eternal job to bridge the gap between production and consumption.

The much criticised democratic standard is based on supply and demand and the capacity to pay. The Soviet workers "have no need to hoard their wages," states Mr. Funk. We Australians never get the chance; it is "peeled off" us at the source.

BARTER SYSTEM.

We could all do with an extra pound of butter and more fruit, but not under the barter system, for we have adopted the "pay as you go" slogan.

When Captain Cook landed in Australia the barter system went out, and its reintroduction at this juncture would be a retrograde step.

Crises and wars are inevitable in all countries, but the democratic structure does not collapse under the first impact of war. It is a recognised fact that there is more money in circulation to-day than ever before; the capacity to pay far exceeding the production output.

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME.

The financing of the Boyne River water scheme, as illustrated by Mr. Funk, is very ingenious, and I would like to see Premier Frank Cooper's face when approached for a loan of £100,000 and told to charge the cost to the Gladstone Water Works or posterity. When in Rome do as Rome does, Mr. Funk, for the people of Gladstone have been waiting a long time for this new water scheme, and do not want their fingers burned by "fiddling" at this stage.

To use an Australianism, "it is the dough that counts."

DEMOCRATIC SYSTEM.

I am still of the opinion that with a few alterations our own democratic system is the finest in the world, for it has stood the test, and it seems fairly certain that the winning of the present conflict and the ultimate peace discussions will rest largely with the democracies.

I am more interested at the present time in how to administer a K.O. to Hitler and Togo, and should we be unsuccessful in that crusade the only "ism" known in this country would be "Shintoism."

ANOTHER LEO.

We have read quite a lot about the Soviet from Mr. Leo Funk, and I will now quote an article from another Leo or Leon bearing the surname of Trotsky.

This chap Trotsky was a big shot in the Soviet until deposed by honest Joe, and he (Trotsky) had to flee the country in a mighty big hurry to avoid the firing squad. I quote Trotsky:—

"The official art of the Soviet Union—and there is no other over there—resembles totalitarian justice; that is to say, it is based on lies and deceit. The goal of this justice as of art, is to exalt the leader; to fabricate an heroic myth. Human history has never seen anything to equal this in scope and impudence."

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

CO-OPERATIVE FARMING

SUCCESSFUL AUSTRALIAN EXPERIMENT

Producing Rice Commercially

A great deal has been heard about co-operative farming in Russia, and the growing kinship between Russia and Australia gives added interest to the co-operative farming of rice, which is carried on successfully in Australia.

So far the Murrumbidgee irrigation area has been the only part of Australia producing rice commercially, and all questions regarding current demand, the areas to be planted, and estimates of suitable carryovers, are discussed at an annual meeting of rice growers and representatives of the Rice Marketing Board, the Department of Agriculture, and the Water Conservation and Irrigation Commission. All information is pooled and the coming year's activities planned for the good of the whole. Before the war there were about 350 growers, and their holdings were restricted to 80 acres. This restriction has now been lifted to meet the requirements developing out of the war.

"Rice growing is already an important, though small industry in Australia," said Mr. W. H. Poggendorf, B.Sc.Agr., of the N.S.W. Department of Agriculture. "The production of rice in the Commonwealth is well organised and well managed, so controlled that it cannot become top heavy. It is a good example of what can be done here on the co-operative basis."

INCREASED CULTIVATION.

Rice has been grown on a commercial scale in N.S. Wales only since 1924, when 157 acres were put under crop in the Murrumbidgee irrigation area. Since then the area under cultivation in this district has steadily increased. In 1940 the yield of paddy rice was 34,251 tons from 24,263 acres.

"In normal years," said Mr. Poggendorf, "Australia can supply rice enough for our own needs, and probably an equal quantity for export, but before the cultivation of rice in the Murrumbidgee irrigation Area we imported about 25,000 tons annually. Now we are growing enough to cover the needs of the services and for islanders in the Pacific, whose supply formerly came from Burma."

Rotational cropping of rice with wheat, oats and other cereals is practised as a means of increasing soil productivity. Rice growing has also been instrumental in promoting pasture development and fat lamb raising through the irrigation area.

OVERSEAS VARIETIES.

Australia owes little to other countries in her rice industry. The problem of labour is practically non-existent, as the grower is his own chief labourer for the greater part of the year, and only at harvesting time are extra hands needed. The principal contribution to the industry from other countries has been through the introduction of varieties already successfully grown in the temperate and sub-tropical regions of the United States, Italy and Spain. One of Australia's most promising varieties is the Caloro, which was developed in California from stock which came originally from Japan.

Australia manufactures her own machinery for rice cultivation, as she does for her other agricultural undertakings. The machinery needed for the cultivation of rice is comparatively simple, though the reversible extension steel delver used for constructing the check banks and channels on the rice flats needs the use of six horses.

AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY.

The manufacture of agricultural machinery is now an important industry in Australia, developing year by year since the middle of last century, when John Ridley, of Adelaide, invented his stripper harvester. Agricultural machintry specially suited to, or adapted for Australian conditions has naturally been developed primarily, but nevertheless Australian drill cultivators and grain binders have been exported in considerable numbers to help cope with the increased war time production of the British Isles.

SELF-CONTAINED INDUSTRY.

A new export from Australia to Great Britain is discs for disc ploughs and cultivators, manufactured here only since the outbreak of war cut off the supply of the highly specialised steel necessary to stand up to such tough work. After experiments a suitable substitute was manufactured at the Newcastle Steelworks, which also supplies the iron and steel for the manufacture of other Australian agricultural implements. In fact, the manufacturers of agricultural machinery in the Commonwealth is an almost "self-contained" industry, as not only is the steel manufactured locally, but also the timber comes from the hardwood forests of Western Australia and from the softwood forests of Queensland and N.S. Wales.

The Department of War Organisation of Industry announced in Melbourne recently that an inter-departmental committee will be formed to ensure an adequate supply of agricultural machinery and spare parts to assist Australia's food production plans. The Director General of Agriculture (Mr. F. W. Bulcock) will be chairman of the committee.

WIRELESS PESTS.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—I am like most people, as I like to get the latest war news over the air, hear good music, or get the latest price of produce. But when Mr. so-and-so comes on I get a pain where I put my last glass of beer.

When a man buys a wireless set it is his own property, or should be. He pays a tax to get the latest information, so why has he to put up with people who like to hear themselves talking into a mike, or be smoked out of his house by some member of Parliament with a lot of political dope? If you want to have forty winks or make love to the cook you have to go out and camp on the lawn, or go bush, or turn the wireless off.

I am fed up, and am selling mine in the morning, and will go Waltzing Matilda out West.—Yours, etc.,

J. CAMPBELL.

MR. A. G. M. MITCHELL

His Worth to the Navy

"Mitchell is worth more to the Navy than a million pounds in the bank," said the senior Engineer Admiral of the British Navy, speaking recently at Birmingham.

Mr. A. G. M. Mitchell, master of civil engineering at Melbourne University, has been awarded the James Watt international medal, the highest award the Council of the Institute of Mechanical Engineers can bestow. The medal is awarded every two years for the most outstanding contribution to mechanical engineering in any country. The previous two winners before Mr. Mitchell were Henry Ford of the United States and Dr. Strodola, the famour Swiss mechanical engineer.

Sir Henry Barraclough, Emeritus Professor of Engineering of Sydney University, said: "We feel that Mr. Mitchell is a rightful and natural recipient of the James Watt medal. The magnitude and universality of his genius is similar in so many ways to that of James Watt himself."

Mr. Mitchell, who is also a renowned mathematician, is an expert on lubrication, bearings, and the reduction of friction in machinery. His main contribution to mechanical engineering is the Mitchell Thrust block, which is used extensively in marine work to reduce the frictional effect in the propellor shafting of large ships. Before his development of this type of block there was always difficulty in transmitting the full power of the engines to the propellor.

Both Mr. Mitchell and James Watt, the 18th century engineer in whose memory the award is made, were members of the Royal Society, a rare and coveted honour in the world of engineering.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

I, ELLEN WALKER, apologise to my husband, G. N. Walker, for damage I have caused him and his work. I have been untruthful and dishonest with money.

In future I intend to lead a good life.

IN pursuance of provisions of "The Local Government Acts 1936-43" and "The Harbour Board Acts 1892-1941," notice is hereby given that Saturday, 20th day of March, 1943, has been appointed nomination day, and that nominations for the undermentioned offices shall be delivered to the Returning Officer before noon on that day at the Shire Office, Yaroon Street, Gladstone, which is hereby appointed as the place of nomination:—

(a) For Chairman of the Shire of Calliope.
(b) For three Members for Division 1
(c) For three Members for Division 2
(d) For three Members for Division 3
(e) For two members of the Gladstone Harbour Board.

Nominations for the office of Chairman and Members of the Gladstone Harbour Board must be signed by not less than six electors of the area of the Shire of Calliope, and for the office of Member of the Council by not less than six electors of the division for which the candidate is nominated.

Each nomination shall be accompanied by a deposit of £5 in cash or by a cheque drawn by a bank upon itself for that amount.

Nomination Forms can be obtained from the undersigned.

If the number of candidates so nominated exceeds the number required to be elected a poll by postal ballot will be taken on Saturday, the first day of May, 1943, closing at 1 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the Post Office, Gladstone.

Voting is compulsory.

By order,
H. H. WHITTLE,
Returning Officer.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

"Pay-as-you-go"

ABOUT one family in every two in the Commonwealth enjoys some measure of A.M.P. protection and, as the Society belongs entirely to its members, they should know why their Directors are putting £500,000 a month (out of the Society's day-by-day income) into the War Loans.

The Directors believe that to avoid grave financial disturbance now, and during post-war recovery, the War must be financed, as far as possible, out of current earnings and savings.

The largest possible part of the War expenditure should be met by taxation. Since, however, it is not practicable to cover the entire cost by taxes, resort must be had to borrowing.

To the largest extent possible such borrowing must be from the current income of the people: the income that would otherwise be spent with inflationary results because of the ever increasing shortage of goods and services.

If these two methods be pursued with vigour, the Nation can avoid the evil of expanded Bank Credit. To play its part in avoiding the calamitous effect of this evil, the Society is putting £500,000 a month of its current income into the War Loans.

It is to be hoped that every citizen will put all he can into the War Loans to the same end: to preserve the financial health of the Nation.

CHINESE NEIGHBOUR

IMPORTANCE TO AUSTRALIA

Friendship Should be Strengthened

Many people make the mistake of considering the Chinese and Japanese together as belonging vaguely to the same race and culture. Actually, the Chinese differ from the Japanese at least as much as a Frenchman, say, differs from a Russian.

Not only are the two peoples very different physically, but they differ very widely in the way they think and in their general outlook upon life. The Japanese lack the poise, charm, tolerance and sense of humour which are so characteristic of the Chinese people.

This poise and tolerance may, perhaps, be attributed partly to the fact that the Chinese civilisation is the oldest in the world. The Chinese have existed uninterruptedly as a political and cultural entity for about 4000 years. They had reached a stage of mature development and were producing philosophers like Confucius when the inhabitants of Japan were still in a primitive state.

Then, too, considered in terms of the old Chinese Empire, China is the largest country in the world. Counting in Tibet, Chinese Turkestan and Mongolia, it is no less than 4,000,000 square miles as against 3,800,000 in the whole of Europe. And China's population, which is estimated at somewhere between 400 million and 450 million, comprises about one-fourth of the entire human race.

DEMOCRATIC TRADITION.

Feudalism was abolished in China 2000 years ago, and during the intervening centuries the Chinese have maintained, on the whole, a strong democratic tradition with a marked tendency to despise military prowess.

Japan, on the other hand, has continued to be largely feudal in outlook, with power concentrated in the hands of a small governing class, and with a disproportionate emphasis upon the glorification of martial valour.

This important difference between the two countries is one answer to the question whether a strong China would be a menace to Australia's security.

A second reason is that for at least a generation after the war, the Chinese will find themselves fully occupied with the tremendous task of rehabilitating the vast areas ravaged by the Japanese. In the course of the war with Japan, about 50 million refugees have fled into the interior from the coastal provinces. They will have to be provided with homes and opportunities for employment.

Then again, if Chinese aspirations are fulfilled and Manchuria is returned to her, she is likely to find herself fully occupied with the job of taking over the administration of this vast territory, with its area of 300,000 square miles and its population of 40,000,000. There will be little time to spare for external adventures.

HOW CHINA IS HELPING.

At present, there are two ways in which China is making an important contribution to the total war effort, and hence to Australian security.

In the first place, she is immobilising a large Japanese force, estimated by Chinese military experts at between 500,000 and 750,000 men, which might otherwise be thrown into the struggle, either against Russia or against Australia.

Secondly, by holding on to the central portion of their North-South railway system, the Chinese are preventing the Japanese from establishing a railway connection from their industrial bases in Korea and Manchuria right down to Canton and through there to Indo-China, Thailand and Malaya.

It has been estimated that if they could achieve this it would amount to adding one million or more tons to the Japanese merchant fleet.

So much for the present. China is of importance to Australia, too, from the standpoint of the postwar future. It is almost certain that, but for the outbreak of war in 1937 China would by now be importing large quantities of Australian wool. Foreign experts who have investigated the matter feel that it is quite likely that after the war China will become an even better customer for Australian wool than was Japan.

There are sound reasons, therefore, why the basis of mutual regard between Australians and Chinese should be strengthened by promoting mutual understanding of each other's countries, characteristics, and customs.

HUN CONCENTRATION CAMP

Brutal Tortures

An escaped prisoner, speaking in a B.B.C. radio newsreel on a German concentration camp, said:—

"I was in a German concentration camp for thirteen months. I'm really quite young you know—thirty-one. My grey hair deceives. That's one of my souvenirs. It's useful too. Every time I look in a mirror I remember. That's what I want to do.

That boy at my camp—Josef was his name. He was twenty-one when I met him at the camp. He had been there ever since Hitler came to power. They took him when he was fifteen and a-half.

The Storm Troopers had paralysed his right arm, and he was suffering from consumption—undernourished. They had broken him. I mean mentally and spiritually. There was nothing left; no fear, that's true, but no will to live either.

That journalist who survived the most brutal tortures and became hard. That is, he was quite mild to talk to, but when you were in trouble he seemed to have an unlimited resource of strength and vitality.

In all those thirteen months I'd never known him despair one moment. I must leave it to you to imagine how these people got broken or stalled as they were; it's too obscene to be told. There are millions willing to die in German Europe, but the very idea of a concentration camp holds many of the bravest in unspeakable terror.

Concentration camp, where men pray for the hour of their death and are not allowed to die!"

ITALY

ALLIED LANDING SIGNAL

Would Bring Revolt

Italy has been made a subject for much wishful thinking, says "Salt," the Army education journal.

When Eisenhower's men landed in North Africa it was noised abroad that Italy was for it, that Mussolini might grovel by Christmas, 1942.

Such comfortable predictions were foolish. Italy is tired, war-spent, but not ready to throw off the Fascist yoke. Yet most Italians surely must be doing some hard, rueful thinking.

Smooth references to imminent revolt in Italy are not yet justified by facts. Hatred of Fascists (German and Italian) becomes more intense. Revolt within sight of Gestapo, O.V.R.A. and 200,000 German rifles is not an easy prospect. Only the powder flash of an Allied landing might cause the people to break their shackles.

But the powers behind Il Duce are not happy about the feeling of the people. Senator Bevione, one of Italy's most powerful financers and President of the Senate's Finance Committee, recently said he was bewildered by "the alarming strength of levelling tendencies in Italy."

The temper of factory workers can be judged by a recent decree placing them under military jurisdiction; they are to be shot if they desert their machines in air raids—a contrast with British and Russian workers, who often refuse to take shelter.

Bombing of the great industrial towns of Milan, Genoa and Turin is good political, as well as military tactics. Fascism is strongest among southern peasants—the North may blame the South for the R.A.F.

IF MUSSOLINI DIES.

Hitler would like to Petainise Italy should Mussolini die. Il Duce is said to have serious stomach ulcers, and few of his family have lived beyond 60. He is now 59. But the Italian people would be no more friendly to an old Petain or a young Ciano than to Mussolini.

Fascist propaganda has become even more confused in attempting to explain Axis reverses than Berlin. It still puffs about the stern resolution of Italians, but soldiers don't reflect it. For Italy there would be no victory in victory—only hope in defeat.

WOMEN'S LAND ARMY

Handling Farm Animals

Getting acquainted with horses, cows, and sheep after working hours has been one of the first steps in the life of members of the Women's Land Army in one Australian centre.

Some city girls who have been attending preliminary Land Army classes arranged by officers at a military camp have become most proficient in handling farm animals.

A few weeks ago they did not know where to stand when yarding sheep, or how to separate ewes from wethers.

Having mastered these preliminaries and gained at least a nodding acquaintance with Dinah and Dobbin, they feel more confident about handling their prototypes down on the farm, and are eagerly waiting for their call-up for the Land Army.

As one girl said: "If a 7-stone friend of mine can drive a team of four horses and plough, why can't I do something like that?" And the answer is that there is no reason why.

JAPANESE THREAT

BASE FOR INVASION

A Real Menace

Curved in a great arc across our near north, New Guinea has long been called Australia's umbrella abainst invasion. So it has proved in the east, thanks to the Australians and Americans who have fought there, says "Salt," an Army education journal.

But the fact that the Japs have crawled under the west end of our umbrella, using the Dutch island groups (Tanimbar, Kei and Aru) in the Arafura Sea as stepping stones, means that much of the shelter from our umbrella has gone with the wind.

Japanese strategy seems to have run thus: Industrious consolidation of their gains in the Dutch East Indies, during a drive to cut the sea lanes from Australia to America.

The odds are that before Tojo is finally eliminated Australian soldiers will tread Dutch New Guinea's soil. When they get there they will find a country much like the Papua they already know, but even lonelier, wilder, and less touched by the white man. Hard to believe, but ask men who have sampled both territories.

This coast and its swampy inland plain offers little good ground for all-weather air strips. Bombers tend to bog down on anything but a first-class hard runway in the wet. But the Japanese may try to solve this problem by using float planes. They have, in fact, used them extensively for reconnaissance. They can duck down into small hide-outs in the river mouths, independent of runway conditions; refueling from scattered dumps hidden in the coastal scrub, their shallow draught allows them to use rivers, lagoons and lakes, where a larger craft would strike trouble.

C.M.F. MAY SERVE.

One point should be noted: all Dutch New Guinea; in fact, all the territory shown in the map on page 25, falls within the area in which the Commonwealth Government has proposed that the C.M.F. may be called on to serve. Under the Defence Act (as at February 12) militiamen could not be called on to serve outside Australia and Papua.

In 1942 the Coral Sea sympolised for Australia the threat of imminent invasion. So to-day the Arafura (and the Timor Sea) represent a menace.

Before you strike a light remember the needs of the armed forces. The demand for matches is enormous, but the output is adequate for all, provided matches are used sparingly. Some of the chemicals used to make matches have to be shared with the munitions industry. So adopt the slogan: Fewer matches, more munitions.

JAPAN

SHIPPING PROBLEMS

Heavy Blows Still Necessary

Mr. Joseph C. Grew, former U.S. Ambassador to Tokyo, has done, and is still doing, much to awaken Americans to the grim task that faces the Allied Nations in defeating Japan, which, he has asserted, is potentially a stronger military power than the United States. However, Mr. Grew has made one point on which there is agreement by British, U.S. and Netherlands East Indies authorities, viz., Japan's shipping difficulties.

Even here Mr. Grew is not led into facile optimism, but he has indicated one important direction in which it is possible to greatly weaken Japan's hold on the wide areas which she has occupied in the Pacific.

"It is a weakness," he says, "that Japan's communications and transport must largely be by water, and as we have seen in America, there are always extremely vulnerable. Japan is not a country able to replace shipping losses easily, and this may well prove a big factor in her ultimate defeat."

Mr. Grew adds this note of warning: "I emphasise that such weaknesses will not, of themselves, cause Japan's defeat, unless they are exploited by determined and aggressive Allied action."

On the subject of shipping, Japanese leaders, too, have had something to say which tends to support considered Allied opinion.

JAPAN IS AN ISLAND.

"Shipping remains the main problem for Japan," said the Japanese Minister for Communications, speaking in the Lower House on February 7, 1943. Japan is an island, and all of her conquests are divided from her and each other by water. Japan is forced to import coal, metal and textiles.

DEMANDS ON SHIPPING.

Japan in 1939 had 5,600,000 tons of shipping of 100 gross tons and over. Now, owing to sinkings and tonnage laid up in repair yards, she is estimated to have only about 3,800,000 tons.

Since the outbreak of the China war she has averaged 1,000,000 tons of shipping tied up by troop transport on this front alone; 2,500,000 tons would be a conservative estimate for supplying other battle fronts. The least tonnage she would require to continue military operations would be 3,580,000.

She has, therefore, only 300,000 tons for the transport of goods and raw materials. In normal prewar times fourteen times this amount of shipping was used for trading, within the so-called co-prosperity sphere.

Japan realises the significance of the problem. Speaking on the 25th anniversary of the Japanese Navy League, Tojo said:—

"It is absolutely necessary for Japan to retain control of the seas."

Suzuki, chief of the Planning Board, was reported by Tokyo radio as saying: "Transportation by sea is the most important and urgent problem to be solved in Greater East Asia."

Japan is building ships as fast as she can at home, in Hong Kong, and in the N.E.I. She is launching wooden ships (which are, of course, built far more quickly), salvaging sunken and allied ships, and even building bamboo rafts for transporting troops, in order to cope with her problem at high speed.

It is obviously a vital necessity that the Allied air and submarine attacks should widen the gap between Japan's new construction and her shipping losses, and should destroy her lines of communication in time to strike at the industrial heart of the whole country.

Already Japanese shipping has been pounded to the North of Australia from the air and by U.S. ships and planes off Guadalcanal. The task ahead calls for unrelenting pressure and heavy blows.

CURRENT TOPICS

A.R.P. PICTURES.

Sergt. S. Coxon advises that on Monday night, at the Embassy Theatre, a series of A.R.P. pictures will be screened. Admission is free, and it was hoped that the various Gladstone services would be well represented.

INTEREST FREE LOAN.

The Manager of the Gladstone branch of the Commonwealth Bank (Mr. W. H. Hall) has notified that the sum of £332 has been received from the Port Curtis Co-operative Association Ltd., Gladstone, as an interest free loan to the Commonwealth Government.

MR. M. JANSON.

Mr. M. Janson has been spending a holiday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Janson, of "Clinton," Gladstone. Mr. Janson was successful in obtaining a pass in the entrance examination of the Presbyterian Church, and thus is entitled to enter the Theological College. He left Gladstone by Friday's mail train for an appointment to a Brisbane charge.

HIGH PRICES PAID.

Prices paid at an auction sale last week-end instanced the exceptionally keen demand for anything in the electrical line. A 4-year-old electric refrigerator topped the century, the final bid being £105. An electric iron, which originally cost £1/10/-, brought £4/10/-. Similarly high prices were paid for an electric fan, toasters, etc. On the other hand, an electric radiator of well-known make in new order brought only £1/10/-, this being due to the fact, no doubt, that the winter is so mild that heaters are hardly necessary. In nearly every instance electrical units brought far more than their original cost, notwithstanding the fact that the articles were in use for several years at time of sale.

RED CROSS PADDY'S MARKET.

The Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society relies to a great extent on its monthly Paddy's markets for funds for the general account, which is expended in assisting the sick and wounded, purchasing supplies, servicing hospital cases and evacuees passing through Gladstone, and buying materials for its sewing and knitting circles, etc. It is, therefore, very necessary to keep these functions fully organised to secure a maximum return. The convenor Mrs. A. H. Friend, and her committee are now hard at work arranging supplies for the Paddy's market which takes place next Friday, the 12th inst. Town and country supporters are again requested to forward their donations of fruit, vegetables, flowers, cakes, jams, sweets and home manufactures to Friends (Pty.) Ltd. in good time for the stalls that day. A special attraction will be the raffle of the beautiful string shopping bag kindly made and donated by Mrs. W. A. F. McDonald. It is on view in Friends window, where tickets may be obtained.

RED CROSS ARRANGEMENTS.

Mr. V. A. Summers advises that the organisation of the secretarial part of the local branch of the Red Cross is now complete. Mrs. H. Browne, of William Street, joint honorary secretary with Mr. Summers, will receive and attend all correspondence, including receipt of moneys and issue of receipts. Mr. D. J. Connellan, 'phone 174, street scheme organiser, will attend to the prisoner of war street scheme inquiries, and generally assist the many canvassers and collectors now operating. Mr. Connellan holds the street scheme official receipt book, and collectors are requested to account to him direct. Other inquiries concerning the actual operation of the P.O.W. convass may be directed to Mrs. Keith Coppin, who has again resumed her duties with Mesdames R. Elliott, A. Watson, R. Ricketts, M. Tait, F. Johnstone, G. Hartley, the ladies in charge of the scheme. Authorised collectors include Mrs. Lodder, Miss M. Hill, and members of the 2nd and 3rd Troup Gladstone Boy Scouts kindly assigned to this duty by the scoutmasters in charge.

TOWN COUNCIL

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME

State Subsidy

The adjourned special meeting of the Council was held on Tuesday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen J. Deveney, W. R. Golding, H. Andersen, R. H. Smith, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

The Mayor moved that a letter be written to the Agriculture Minister (Mr. T. L. Williams), asking him to ascertain from the Treasurer what subsidy the State Government was prepared to grant on the cost of the balance of the Boyne River water scheme.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Deveney.

Ald. Smith moved an amendment that the Council send a representative to Brisbane to ascertain the exact position of the water scheme. Seconded by Ald. Anderson.

Various aldermen were of the opinion that it was useless approaching the Treasurer at this juncture, as the matter would have to go before the Loan Council, Canberra.

On a vote being taken the amendment was lost, and the motion carried.

P.O.W. SCHEME.

Mesdames K. Coppin and A. J. Watson were very pleased with the result of their canvass of the main business street for the P.O.W. street adoption scheme yesterday. They had to secure an additional book at lunch time. Mesdames R. Elliott and M. Tait were busy yesterday canvassing Auckland Street and Oaka Lane. They reported a very successful canvass. The scheme is growing rapidly, and now promises to be a highlight in Red Cross activities.

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME.

What must be a record was established by the Town Council this week when aldermen were called upon to attend three special meetings to deal with urgent matters appertaining to the Boyne River scheme, and added to this was a deputation yesterday morning to the Premier (Mr. F. Cooper) at the Railway Station on the same question. The zeal and energy displayed by the local city fathers must commend itself to the citizens for the fight they have put up for a first-class water scheme for Gladstone.

PRISONER OF WAR.

Lance Corporal T. J. Dwyer, who is a prisoner of war at Stammlager (Germany) has advised his mother, Mrs. M. E. Dwyer, of Gladstone, that at the time of writing he was in good health and the weather was keeping fine. They had no snow yet, but had it fairly deep this time last year. He would like to see Frank and Chris. in the snow, as they were always a pair of cold frogs. He hoped to bring home with him for Dad a long German pipe. He asked that his Christmas greetings be given to all at home.

BLACK MARKET BREACHES.

There have been many complaints concerning the high prices charged for wine, spirits and bottled beer, and a State wide campaign is now being instituted to bring offenders to book. In addition to the sly grog penalties under the State law for those who trade illegally, anyone who sells liquor at exorbitant prices commits a breach of the black marketing provisions of the National Security Regulations. This was stated by an official of the Prices Commissioner's office, who warned hotelkeepers and merchants, and added that a gaol sentence could be imposed if the case was proved.

AT THE PARISH HALL.

An excellent entertainment will be staged on Saturday, March 13, in the Parish Hall, Gladstone, commencing at 2.15 p.m., in aid of the mobile canteen fund of the Salvation Army. The promotor is Mr. Norman Jones, Mysto, and a well balanced programme of magic in wonderland, supported by six local artistes, will be submitted. All the latest mysteries will be staged, and there will be a lucky door number for the boys and girls, also free competitions, and prizes will be awarded. Residents should support this entertainment, as it is in aid of a worthy cause. The prices of admission are: Adults 1/-, and children 6d.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

REV. W. E. BOYLDEW

CHAPLAIN IN A.I.F.

Farewelled at Gladstone

Following the evening service at St. Saviour's Church of England last Sunday, parishioners met to farewell their rector (Rev. W. E. Boyldew), who has enlisted as a chaplain in the A.I.F.

In presenting the rector with a wallet of notes, the people's warden (Mr. H. V. Loveday) said that all members of the congregation felt deep regret at his departure, and joined in wishing him every good fortune and a safe return.

In thanking those present for their kind expression of regard, Rev. Boyldew said that the function came as a complete surprise, and had he known anything of it he would have had Mrs. Boyldew there. He appreciated the many acts of kindness paid to him during his three years in Gladstone. He was still their rector, but chaplains were so short overseas that he had felt it his duty to go with the A.I.F. and do what he could. He gave them all his blessing, and looked forward to the day when peace would return to a troubled world.

The Rev. Boyldew and Mrs. Boyldew have left for the south, where the rev. gentleman will be attached to an oversea unit.

Special thanks is due to Mr. A. H. Malpass for his work in connection with the function.

The Anglican rector will be remembered in Gladstone and district for his cheery outlook, his charity to the people, and his magnificent work in making the lot of the Allied serviceman more comfortable and contented. During the past 18 months Rev. Boyldew worked hard to see that members of the Allied forces were given reasonable recreation and entertainment. Members of his congregation were asked to take servicemen to dinner each week-end, and many social functions for their reception were organised. In this splendid work he had the able assistance of his good wife. Hundreds of letters and messages from the battlefront and overseas bear silent tribute to the gratitude of the men in Allied units.

OBITUARY

MRS. J. H. BELL.

The death is announced at her residence, "Bewua," Cavendish Road, Coorparoo, of Mrs. Jane Hill Bell, relict of the late Mr. Robert Bell.

She was the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Stirrat, of "Mt. Alma," early pioneers of the Calliope Valley, but all her married life was spent in Brisbane.

A keen worker for the Red Cross since its inception till failing health caused her retirement from active work, but a great knitter, doing good work to the last.

Deceased leaves a family of four daughters, the Misses G. and L. Bell, of Brisbane, Mrs. C. Thomas, whose husband is manager of the Commonwealth Bank, Mackay, Mrs. F. Parkinson, Sunnybank, and three sons, two of whom fought in the last war, Stuart, who resides in the Calliope Valley, Graham, of "Melmoth," Dingo, Campbell, of Colensoe.

The late Mrs. Bell also leave three sisters, the Misses E. and L. Stirrat, Mt. Alma, Mrs. Farmer, Barney Point, and a brother, Mr. James D. Stirrat, of Carinya.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mrs. M. Soppa, Auckland Street, has returned to Gladstone, after having spent a pleasant holiday in Bundaberg and Maryborough.

Miss End Parsloe, A.T., State School, Mt. Isa, has been transferred as head teacher, Nanango, Kingaroy line. Miss Parsloe is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Parsloe, Rocky Glen.

Private Pat Breslin, who has been spending 10 days leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. P. Breslin, West Gladstone, left by yesterday's southern mail to rejoin his unit.

Mrs. M. E. Dwyer, of Gladstone, has received word that her nephew, Captain Bernard Crabbe, of the Auxiliary Fire Service, Newcastle-on-Tyne, has been awarded the M.B.E. for services rendered.

A/C 1 J. C. "Cliff" Stitt has returned home on a short period of leave. He returns to his unit in the south next week. Cliff, who was secretary of the Gladstone Band for many years, has kept in form by playing his euphonium in some of the crack Airforce bands in the south.

"BATTLE OF PRIORITIES"

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME

Now an "A-2" Priority

The object in getting in touch with the Army Minister (Mr. F. M. Forde) in regard to the Boyne water supply scheme was to enlist his sympathy, co-operation, and influence in furthering it by way of obtaining an "A-1" priority, which would enable the Council to secure manpower and the necessary machinery and plant, and the full use of the harbour (undoubtedly one of the finest gifts that a beneficent Providence has ever bestowed upon any country), through an ample supply of first-class fresh water.

POLITICS RESPONSIBLE.

Mr. Forde is well aware of the fact that no other town throughout the length and breadth of the Empire has had so many knock backs and disappointments—nothing to equal the hard luck which has, like some evil spirit, haunted Gladstone for over three score years. And politics has been mainly responsible.

AN OUTSTANDING HARBOUR.

Mr. Forde also knows that originally Gladstone was intended to be the capital of Queensland, but before more than the preliminary work was done the site was changed and Brisbane was chosen. And ever since then Gladstone has never been given a ghost of a show in its fuller development. Only a few crumbs from the table—despite the fact that the harbour has been admitted time and again by competent authorities to be one of the best three in the world.

STILL A SMALL TOWN.

Gladstone is still a small town, and will remain a small town until such time as "politics" as we know it today is a thing of the past. When that day arrives Gladstone will certainly come into its own.

COMIC OPERA STAGE.

The position over obtaining a priority for the Boyne River scheme had reached the comic opera stage, and it appeared from the cold facts that Gladstone had received another setback, one more entry to be made in the ledger—"another disappointment."

A-1 PRIORITY ASKED FOR.

Mr. Forde, in replying to a letter from the Agriculture Minister (Mr. T. L. Williams), dated December 24, among other things, stated he had made representations to the Defence Committee, Melbourne, that the work be given an "A-1" priority. The people of Gladstone will note with interest that Mr. Forde asked for an "A-1" priority.

A BIT PUZZLING.

On February 8 Mr. Williams urged on the Commonwealth authorities (according to his letter to the Council) to grant an even higher priority for the Gladstone water supply scheme in order to further the proposal, and he promised to support this application in person when in Canberra. He also asked Mr. Kemp (Director General of Allied Works) to support him in the request that the scheme be placed in an "A-2" priority.

"B" PRIORITY GRANTED.

Here we have a direct conflict in representations made regarding the issue of a priority, and at this stage it appeared that despite Mr. Forde's representation for an "A-1" priority, a "B" priority had been granted.

DEFINITE ASSURANCE.

In face of the information received from Mr. Williams, the only conclusion to arrive at on the evidence submitted was that the Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) had failed to secure an "A-1" priority, despite his definite assurance that he had made representations to the Defence Committee, Melbourne, for such a priority. For here are Mr. Forde's exact words: "Have since made representations to the Defence Committee, Melbourne, that the work be given an "A-1" priority.

BATTLE OF PRIORITIES.

Gladstone will be able to make another entry in the ledger, "Battle of Priorities" still being fought out, while the extended entry will disclose that the small army of voters residing on the shores of Port Curtis had been outflanked and had been compelled to fall back according to plan—"another disappointment." However, as the Gladstone forces were taking up new positions, but before they could be consolidated another high explosive shell was dropped on a vulnerable spot through the flashing of the information from the Deputy Co-ordinator General of Allied Works (Mr. J. R. Kemp) through the Agriculture Minister (Mr. Williams) "that advice had been received from the Army Minister (Mr. Forde) that the Boyne scheme project had been allotted a "B" priority.

DEPUTATION TO PREMIER

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME

Premier Most Sympathetic

A deputation, consisting of the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Ald. W. R. Golding, R. E. Smith, and H. Anderson, waited on the Premier (Mr. F. Cooper) at the Railway Station yesterday to discuss with him the prospect of obtaining the necessary money for the completion of the Boyne River scheme.

VICINITY OF £40,000.

It was pointed out by speakers that the burden over and above peace time conditions would be in the vicinity of £40,000, and the urgent national importance of the whole scheme made it imperative that it be completed at the earliest possible moment, and that other sources should contribute to the cost of the scheme because of this.

CITIZENS RATIONED.

Railway, shipping, and other industrial requirements were enormous, and the Council was rationing the citizens so as to provide for these demands. It was possible that Federal assistance would be forthcoming, but not sufficient to compensate for the added costs. The State Government had also an obligation towards this scheme which it must be prepared to shoulder.

COUNCIL LOOKED TO PREMIER.

Given a good water supply, the progress that Gladstone had made would be maintained, and the Council looked to the Premier, as head of the State to assist the people of Gladstone to put in a water supply that would be equal to every demand placed upon it.

FIGHTING FOR THE SCHEME.

The Premier (Mr. Cooper), in reply, stated the people of Gladstone had, or seemed to be fighting for this scheme since Captain Cook visited Australia, and he sincerely trusted that it would soon be completed, which would be one less worry off his shoulders, even if it meant leaving room for one more worry for him. No town, he said, had made as much progress over the last few years as Gladstone had done, and those who were responsible for its progress were hardly likely to let it down when peace was restored.

"WOULD GET THE SCHEME"

Mr. Cooper was sympathetic towards the Boyne scheme, and had rung up Mr. Curtin, and advised him of the urgent necessity for its early completion. He assured the aldermen that it had not been lost sight of, and as soon as the Federal Government made a decision as to what subsidy it would grant the better the position he would be in to consider their request. They could take it for granted, however, that the Council would get the scheme, and with as little delay as possible.

Mayor Dennis thanked Mr. Cooper for his sympathetic hearing and his assurance of his support for the Boyne River scheme.

NOW A "A-2" PRIORITY.

Of course, it is the last battle that counts, and the Gladstone forces being encouraged by Mr. Forde's assurance early in the campaign that he was anxious to help the people of Gladstone, girdled up their loins, and in a determined counter attack good news was flashed on Thursday to the "Observer" Office. Here is Mr. Forde's communique:—

"Pleased to inform you that as a result of my further personal representations to the chiefs of staffs, Priorities Committee, I have been successful in raising the priority of the Gladstone water supply from a "B" to a "A-2" priority, which should expedite the commencement of the work and place it next in importance to very urgent operational work for the fighting services. Have communicated with Premier of Queensland (Mr. Cooper), Agriculture Minister (Mr. Williams), Mr. Kemp (Deputy Director General of Allied Works), Secretary Gladstone Harbour Board, and the Secretary of the A.L.P., Gladstone."

PEACEFUL PENETRATION.

Let us now hope that the "battle of priorities" is over—it was a most puzzling one—and that a peaceful penetration will continue, the commencing of the scheme in a large way and the carrying it out to a successful issue.

The foregoing discloses that Gladstone has to fight, and fight hard, to obtain her just rights.

A GRANT ESSENTIAL.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Forde's next communique from Canberra will announce that a substantial grant had been made by the Commonwealth Government towards a scheme of national importance.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT.

It is now up to Mr. Forde, and the prospects at present are indeed bright.

SOCIALISM

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME

Reply to "Democrat"

In his reply to "Democrat" Mr. Leo Funk writes as follows:—

Oh, Democracy, what tripe is written in thy name!

It is hard to believe that the puerile prattle put up by "Democrat" was done by a grown person, but as it is always my practice to be charitable towards everyone, I will criticise the errors in "Democrat's" article paragraph at a time, and then give a summing up on the whole article.

DEMOCRATIC SYSTEM.

First he accuses me of giving my views only in a general sense, yet towards the end of his article he says, "with a few alterations our own democratic system is the finest in the world." Not one jot of evidence in support; not one word of mention of anything done for the benefit of the workers under his democratic system, which cannot and will not be surpassed under socialism.

WAGES VARY.

He asks what do I mean by continuity of work, and yet later on he says he understands why there is continuity of work under a socialistic system! He asks me to state the weekly wages paid to Soviet workers. I could counter by asking him to state the weekly wages paid under democratic conditions, and to answer either would take more than one full issue of the "Observer," because under socialism and democracy rates of wages vary.

GOODS PURCHASED.

Again, it is not the amount of weekly wages paid which matters, but the amount of goods which can be purchased for that amount, and naturally where there is no profit motive it only stands to reason that a £1 would go further than would a £1 under our system, where everyone is endeavouring to exploit the other.

As Soviet wages are paid according to production, and those who produce the goods consume them, "Democrat" can rest assured that there will be sufficient wages made available to purchase the goods produced.

SOVIET COINAGE.

Yet still due to fact that Soviet coinage is in roubles, and it is not quoted on the capitalist Stock Exchanges, it is almost impossible to strike any comparison; and still again, does "Democrat" know that there is a difference between real wages and relative wages? If "Democrat" really wants to learn and become educated I can recommend for his guidance: "Soviet Finance," "How the Soviet State is Run," "Soviet Trade Unions," "Monopoly," "Soviet Farming," and last but not least, "Health in the Soviet Union." He will find all the answers there.

MASS EXECUTIONS.

"Democrat" deliberately lies when he says that mass executions were carried out to enforce the new order of socialism in Russia. Executions were carried out, and rightly so, against those found guilty of counter-revolutionary work. You make no mention, "Democrat," of the mass murders carried out during the regime of Tzar Nicholas, especially that of January 9, 1905, when 140,000 workers with their wives and children marched to the palace chanting hymns and carrying church banners and pictures of the Tzar, and pleading for some amelioration of conditions. You have made no mention of the fact that the streets literally ran with the blood of these workers, their wives and children; or is that in accord with your idea of democracy?

BALLOT BOX.

You say under democracy we have our redress through the ballot box. Disabuse your mind, old chap. The only privilege you have on election day is not who is going to represent you, but who is going to represent the boss class.

WORK ON FARMS.

You say, according to Democratic Hoyle women do not perform manual tasks. You have apparently never travelled; not even to the farming areas round Mt. Larcom, Bracewell, and Ambrose. Do so and you will find the women and children literally slaving on the farms. You will see the children (your democrats of the future, and what a future!) up at 4 a.m. milking before going to school, which is almost always two to three miles away, and then again after school straight into the cow yard until about 8 p.m., then supper if they do not fall asleep before, and to bed for a few hours rest before starting another day of drudgery. What a childhood! What a future, according to the Democratic Hoyle you boast about.

ARBITRATION COURT.

Apparently the only reason you can put forward for the continuation of capitalism is to have someone for the trade unions to fight with. If that is the limit of your thinking ability the rest of your article explains itself.

Don't delude yourself about the value of the Arbitration Court. History proves that concessions and adjustments are granted not according to merit, but according to the strength of the union concerned, and the degree of organisation within it.

"WAGE SLAVE"

I have never made use of the word "slave" as a synonym for worker, but I did, and do still claim that the worker is a "wage-slave," and challenge you to prove me wrong.

GOLD STANDARD AND EXCHANGE.

You say it is many years since we went off the gold tsandard. Yes, quite so, and immediately we did our exchange rate suffered until it reached the all high of 30 per cent. and even now is 25 per cent. In England our £1 is worth 16/: the same in New Zealand, while the American dollar, which at par would be worth 4/2, is at present worth 6/1, and when the exchange rate was fixed at 30 per cent. who fixed it? The Commonwealth Bank? No. The Bank of New South Wales, a private trading bank. Now, who controls the financial destiny of Australia?

JUMPING THE RATTLER.

Your statement about jumping the rattler is childish, but it does give point to the fact that where it is necessary to do this because of lack of means to pay the necessary fare under capitalism, under a properly planned socialist system there would be no need for anyone to "jump the rattler."

OVER PRODUCTION.

I did say that if there was the tendency to over produce a certain commodity, and I offer no apologies for having done so, under socialism the incentive to produce more is stimulated by the prospects of increased wages and lowered costs, shortened hours of toil, and thus more leisure hours, so that through production may have been planned to reach a certain figure, once industry became established and it was found that a five years' plan could be fulfilled in four years, and yes, even less. So by continuing with the production, after planning, had been exceeded, could tend to cause over production, which would be corrected by transferring production to some other commodity. Is that clear now, "Democrat?"

WAGES "PEELED OFF."

For once you are right when you say we Australians get no chance to hoard our wages, because it is "peeled off us at the source," and this under a democracy, which you say is based on our capacity to pay—our capacity to pay interest to the bondholders. Do you know, "Democrat," that away back in 1888 the N.S. Wales Government borrowed £16,000,000 for railways, redeemable in 1924, and by that year we had paid £30,000,000 in interest, and the loan was then converted to mature in 1950, by which time we will have paid £50,000,000 in interest, and still owe the original £16,000,000. This is no isolated instance, "Democrat." Do you want to hear some more?

BARTER SYSTEM.

Your confusion is really heart-rending. You admit wages are paid under a socialist system, and then you express the view (fortunately only your own) that socialism operates under a barter system. Poor misguided "Democrat," who could do not only with an extra pound of butter, but also a very elementary lesson in consistency and another in political economy.

CRISES.

Yes, crises and wars are inevitable under any capitalist system, and as capitalism advances towards its final disintegration these crises which lead to war become more frequent and more acute. (See my article on imperialism.)

BOYNE SCHEME

You say that Premier Cooper would have some peculiar look on his face if asked to charge the Boyne water scheme to posterity. What else, I ask you, is he going to do? The loan is supposed to be for 30 years, which means that posterity is going to pay, the same as it is paying to-day for the present scheme, which was put into operation many years ago, and on which there is, I understand, still some £20,000 owing.

ORGANISE YOUTH.

There are others equally as anxious as you to see Tojo defeated, but they do not descend to the mock heroics you have indulged in. There is before us, not only the immediate task of defeating Fascism, but of accomplishing it to such good effect that it can never again raise its ugly head. To achieve this we must make sure that the youth of to-day do not fall into the hands of the Australian Fascists, as did the youth of Germany fall to Hitler, and the Italian breed to Mussolini. The only safe and sane way to avoid this is to organise the youth to look forward to and work for a better future than up to the present they have had handed to them by the representatives of the money bags. Organise your youth, and the future will take care of itself, but only if they are organised on a socialistic basis, wherein their souls will not be embittered by exploitation, which starts at the cradle and ends only at the grave.

Your reference to Trotsky was unfortunate for you. You admit Trotsky had to flee because he was found out by honest Joe Stalin, and the words are yours. If Trotsky was honest he would not have had to flee, and yet you quote one who even you recognise as being a traitor to his country, and you quote something written whilst he was in exile, embittered at being found out! Do you know the full story of Trotsky and his machinations? If not I can give it to you "Democrat." For the present just one point about Trotsky. Immediately prior to his expulsion from the U.S.S.R. he was a convicted agent of Germany, using his inside knowledge to sell the very people who had raised him to a position of influence.

The final summing up of your article needs only this comment: Leave press work to those who know their subject and are sincere, and stick to playing with your kindergarten toys.

DOING THEIR BIT

GLADSTONE BOYS OVERSEAS

George Medal Awarded

Recent oversea advices give news of the exploits of young Jack Ryalls, of Monto, who is now a rear gunner in one of the large bombers which fly over Germany. He is the son of Mr. Tom Ryalls, of Monto, and resided in Gladstone until he joined the R.A.A.F.

His many friends in both towns will be pleased to learn of his success, and wish him continued good fortune.

Another Gladstonite to win fame recently is Pilot Officer Arthur G. ("Boy") Richmond, who is a member of a Sunderland aircraft operating overseas. When it crashed in the sea he saw another member of the crew, the wireless operator gunner, surrounded by a pool of burning petrol, and unable to swim because of a broken leg.

Although suffering lacerations, Richmond brought his comrade through the flames to safety, and eventually got him on a semi-inflated rubber dinghy.

Until it became certain that no other survivors were in the vicinity, Richmond did not abandon the search until he boarded the rescue boat. He has been awarded the Georgemedal, advice of this award having been received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Richmond, from the Air Board.

"Boy" was the younger son of the Richmond family, who lived at Boyne Island. He is 28 years of age, and was on the staff of the Vacuum Oil Coy., Brisbane, when he enlisted in the R.A.A.F. He left Australia in February, 1941, and served in the Middle East, being attached to the R.A.F. He is the grandson of the late Dr. H. R. Symes, who practised in Gladstone in the early days.

The elder brother, George, is serving with an allied naval unit, and has already gained the rank of captain in charge of small craft on important duty on the Australian and far north coasts.

AUCTION PRICES CONTROLLED

Lots Drawn at Sale

It is not generally known that prices for articles of goods at auction are controlled to the extent that no bids exceeding the prices originally paid for the new articles may be accepted.

At Canberra last Saturday a representative of the Commonwealth Prices Commission drew lots at a household auction. A prices inspector attended the sale and told the auctioneer (Mr. R. McKillop) that he could not accept bids exceeding prices for new articles.

Bidders were prepared to pay considerably more than the new price for two lengths of hose.

The auctioneer asked the prices official to place a value on the hoses. The names of those bidding were then put in a waste paper basket and drawn by the official at the request of the auctioneer.

MR. AND MRS. H. O'SING

VISIT TOOWOOMBA

Win at Golf

That golf in Gladstone is of a high standard was shown by Mr. and Mrs. Harold O'Sing, who are at present spending a holiday at Toowoomba. Mr. and Mrs. O'Sing are the best mixed foursome pair in the local club, having won many events from scratch on the Gladstone links.

In their first competitive attempt on the Middle Ridge Links they had a near win over a strong field. With two 39's off the stick the Gladstone pair scored 42 points in the mixed four-ball stapleford, and were the best cards returned until the last four came in to register 43 and 44 points respectively. The par of the course is 74, and the 78 gross returned by Mr. and Mrs. O'Sing was one of the best efforts by visitors for a long time, and stamped them as a really high-class pair. Some of the associate competitors in the event received as many as 24 strokes, so that the O'Sing's off their low handicap had to give away big starts. Local golfers will join in congratulating them on their splendid play.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Sing are staying at the Imperial Hotel, which is conducted by another old Gladstonite, in the person of Mr. Arthur King, and they expect to see many centres in the Downs before they return home.

ABOUT one family in every two in the Commonwealth enjoys some measure of A.M.P. protection and, as the Society belongs entirely to its members, they should know why their Directors are putting £500,000 a month (out of the Society's day-by-day income) into the War Loans.

The Directors believe that to avoid grave financial disturbance now, and during post-war recovery, the War must be financed, as far as possible, out of current earnings and savings.

The largest possible part of the War expenditure should be met by taxation. Since, however, it is not practicable to cover the entire cost by taxes, resort must be had to borrowing.

To the largest extent possible such borrowing must be from the current income of the people: the income that would otherwise be spent with inflationary results because of the ever increasing shortage of goods and services.

If these two methods be pursued with vigour, the Nation can avoid the evil of expanded Bank Credit. To play its part in avoiding the calamitous effect of this evil, the Society is putting £500,000 a month of its current income into the War Loans.

It is to be hoped that every citizen will put all he can into the War Loans to the same end: to preserve the financial health of the Nation.

AXIS POWERS

PEACE NOT POSSIBLE

Without Complete Victory

Whatever may be said by well meaning and anxious critics about the organisation and planning of global war strategy, there cannot be the slightest doubt about the common aims of the United Nations.

The definite reaffirmation at Casablanca of the Allied intention to completely defeat the Axis in battle, was more recently echoed by Josef Stalin when he said that the Red Army had one objective—the complete annihilation of the enemy.

In these statements there is more than a realisation that total victory on the battlefield is a necessary prelude to peace. There is also the clear perception that the total destruction of the Axis war machine and the absolute elimination of Axis war ideology is essential to lasting peace, and a foundation for the building of that new social structure that is the eventual prize of this great conflict.

These aims are well founded on a logical analysis of the causes of this war, and there is no doubt that the theory must be entirely accepted by the people of the United Nations, however much they are inclined to shrink in natural revulsion from so cold and merciless a postulation.

COMPLETE VICTORY ESSENTIAL.

It is essential, therefore, that we order our thinking and our way of life in accordance with these aims, which apply equally to Germany and Japan.

The longer we refuse to believe utterly that we are up against enemies who can be brought to earth only by a complete physical defeat, the longer will we be forced to maintain the battle against them.

It is useless flirting with the belief that economic hardship or physical suffering will break their morale, or that a realisation of inevitable defeat will weaken their struggles to avert it.

They have struck at us with all the strength at their command, leaving themselves no road for retreat, and they will continue to fight with all their strength until they are battered into impotency.

From this cold logic there comes only one immediate conclusion, and that is, that nothing less than the maximum exertion of our capacities, individually and collectively, will attain our end.

In considering such an aspect it is more than difficult to ignore the example of the Russians—it is impossible.

In praising Russia there is no desire to belittle our own great contribution to the common cause. It cannot be said that our fighting men stand second to any. But as a nation, embracing the total population, we may well be inspired by the unity of thought and action that has so moved the Russians to throw every ounce of weight into the conflict.

ALL OUR STRENGTH.

We do not like war, because we are a civilised people, but we dare not afford to forget that unless we pursue war to the limit of its ruthlessness we shall fall, and bring our civilisation down with us.

Those who know the Japanese tell us, earnestly and urgently, that the sons of Nippon will not cease to fight until they are rendered impotent; that peace is not possible without complete and utter victory. Such a warning is well heeded in these days, when local victories tend to brighten the immediate foreground of the whole vast scene of war.

Peace will come when we have beaten the enemy, and to beat him we must fight every minute without rest and with all our strength; and "all our strength" means all the strength of everybody in Australia, as well as in China and America, plus whatever weight our other Allies may be able to throw into the scales. Peace will come when we have earned it—not before.

TEA RATIONING

OUT-OF-DATE COUPONS

Should Be Destroyed

Persons whose ration books contain out-of-date unused tea coupons should destroy them, said the Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. S. F. Cochran).

No good purpose could be served by keeping any out of date tea coupons. Retailers did not wish to be harassed by people asking them to accept these coupons after the date on which they expired. Both traders and the public would be saved from the temptation to be dishonest if these coupons were destroyed after they were no longer valid.

Cases have been known, said Mr. Cochran, of grocers accepting out of date tea coupons from customers. This was a serious offence against the Rationing Regulations for both the grocer and the customer.

The tea coupons current at the moment are "C" 7 to 10 inclusive, and these will become out of date on March 7 next.

RED CROSS

Supplies Arrive in Malta

A cable has been received advising that the supplies sent by the Australian Red Cross to Malta for the relief of war sufferers have arrived without loss, and that further urgent requirements are being supplied from the Society's stocks in the Middle East. A cable of appreciation for these provisions has been received from Mr. Scicluna, Red Cross Deputy Commissioner, Malta.

The shipment sent from Australia to the Middle East and subsequently to Malta was valued at £13,700, and included 1000 cases of coffee and milk, 261 cases of ration chocolate, 1481 cases of foodstuffs, 371 cases new and second-hand civilian clothing.

In a recent report from Miss Larke the following reference is made to the Red Cross supplies for Malta: "In Cairo I learned of the wonderfully generous way in which the Australian Red Cross is helping the people of Malta.

"Through the Malta representative in Cairo some supplies will be shipped immediately, and the heavier commodities forwarded at the earliest opportunity.

"The following day I saw these cases of foodstuffs and clothing for men, women and children stocked on the wharf. I was truly amazed at the quantity and equally impressed with the accuracy with which these cases were numbered and listed, thus enabling unhesitating selection of the cases needed for immediate delivery."

The Australian Red Cross had previously supplied £1366 worth of relief in the way of food and clothing for Malta. The total of the Society's gifts to Malta is thus £15,066.

SAVE CLOTHING

Warning Issued

Attempts by some employers to compel employees to maintain pre-war clothing standards despite clothes rationing, had been brought before the notice of the Rationing Commission, said the acting Director of Rationing (Mr. S. F. Cochran).

Any such compulsion was an offence under the National Security Regulations.

The clothing supply position was serious, and stocks were sufficient to allow only bare necessities to each person. Every conceivable method of saving clothing and restricting purchases should be practised.

Although most sections of the community had co-operated whole heartedly with the Commission, there were apparently still a few persons clinging to pre-war standards of clothing and prejudices, Mr. Cochran declared. Their attitude could only serve to increase Australia's clothing supply problems and hinder the war effort.

Garments forming an unessential part of a special uniform should be dispensed with, or replaced by more everyday clothing. Where ordinary street wear garments are just as serviceable as the prescribed garment, they should be worn in preference, and vital savings effected.

CHINA

PLANNING ENLIGHTMENT

Adults Taught by Children

It is not every country that would submit to being taught by its children, but this is the case in China, particularly in the north-west, where the "Little Teacher" method of education has met with much success. Under this system children attending school impart their knowledge to adults who have not been to school.

Discussing China's post-war reconstruction plans in recent lectures, Mr. H. J. Timperley, an Australian authority on China, says that the Chungking Government is seized with the fact that good citizenship and real improvements are almost impossible without literacy. Several schemes are in progress for tackling this important problem.

About 80 per cent of China's 450,000,000 people are illiterate.

One plan aims to establish, within the next five years, one school to every 100 families. In this way 140,000,000 illiterates between 15 and 35 years will be taught to read.

PLEA FOR EDUCATION.

The desire for learning is deeply rooted in the Chinese people. Factory girls, after working a 12-hour day, will scorn suggestions for recreation and games in their clubs, and ask whether they cannot be taught to read instead. Grandmothers will attend the schools in the country districts and return home proudly carrying a "certificuate of education" tied up in a cotton handkerchief.

It is not the desire for prestige conferred by literacy that spurs them on. Even the poorest Chinese value learning for itself, apart from its utilitarian value.

In the "Little Teacher" method childrtn, for example, in the first grade at school have to impart their knowledge to four other people in their homes before they can earn a star and pass on to the next stage.

WORK OF UNIVERSITIES.

Paradoxically, perhaps, education is one activity that will benefit by war.

This springs from the fact that practically all universities and middle schools had to move to small towns in the interior as a result of invasion. These enforced transfers have effected a beneficial change in both the spirit and content of China's education.

Though universities had to leave behind most of their equipment and are operating in makeshift buildings, some of their loss in technical efficiency is offset by the effect of the war, which has developed among teachers and students a deeper seriousness and a more realistic approach to education.

Laboratory and field work on actual problems of industry and agriculture take the place of examples described in European text books.

Mr. Timperley says that the very real suffering and danger which students have experienced, as well as the hardships and difficulties under which they are obliged to live in the interior, are transforming their patriotism, formerly more vociferous than real, into a deep desire for service.

Never has China had more than 40,000 university students. This small proportion of the great population of China has made it necessary to discourage students from joining the army. They have been urged, instead, to continue their studies.

These students have found much to do in rural education and sanitation, in the co-operatives, in the care of the wounded, and in many other activities.

HEADACHES IN STEEL

Australia Doubles Her Output

Steel rationing is a new problem in the United States, as nobody knows how much steel should be reserved for war production. Sugar rationing is easy to estimate, as supply and demand are known to the last pound. But no one can foresee the actual steel needs of industry, where the importance of certain necessities varies almost daily. Steel rationing affects food rationing too, as though there is more than enough food in certain districts in the States, it has to "stay put" because the steel rails have to be conserved for more vital traffic.

Steel has naturally been rationed in Australia, too, and supplies for house construction and domestic use were cut off early in the war. The steel industry here is in the happy position of being self-contained and almost entirely independent of supplies from overseas, but the enormous demand for war production has meant the absorption of all steel produced, even though the output is more than double the 1935 figures.

This enormous demand caused headaches in steel for Australia too.

In 1935 the limiting factor to steel production was the amount of coke available for the blast furnaces. This bottleneck was overcome by installing new coke ovens at the Newcastle Steelworks and at Port Kembla. As more coke became available, new blast furnaces were built to convert more iron ore into pig iron. Then three new open hearth furnaces at both Newcastle and Kembla were installed to convert the greatly increased pig iron supply into steel.

Now the main headaches have been overcome, and Australia is producing so much that our output is equal per capita to the output of Great Britain.

CAN YOU HELP?

Books, magazines and old clean newspapers are urgently needed by the Gladstone branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. If you have any old newspapers, books, or magazines, kindly leave same at Gladstone Cash and Carry, where they will be collected regularly and despatched to the troops in camp. The camps in the outlying centres are much in need of reading matter and indoor games, such as playing cards, etc. See what you can do.

"Peace is something to be built up by our exertions and maintained by still greater exertions; something for which we must provide a practical and effective organisation and the means to defend it. We did not do that last time."—Mr. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary.

DOROTHY THOMPSON, in English Journey—

"Therefore, and in very truth, Britain's fight is a fight for "World Liberation. In the darkest days that you have suffered, "and the dark ones that I fear will come again, this thought "must sustain you. That you are truly, in this hour of history, "the Hope of the World. And Mr. Churchill must have real-"ised this fully when he cried, 'This is Britain's greatest hour!'

. . . . . .

"And so I go home to my people to continue to write about "the nature of this epochal struggle, about the greatness of "the British people and the British cause, and about the gran-"deur of a destiny that puts the Sword of Liberation into the "hands of the English-speaking peoples of the World."

WINSTON CHURCHILL—

It is good to hear things of the British Prime Minister, Mr. Winston Churchill. Archdeacon Hancock, of Victoria, has made available a letter from his son, Professor W. K. Hancock, who is in England, which gives a cheering view of the War Leader in the land of "the little grey mother of nations in the Northern Seas." He says:—

"You ask me about my impressions of the Prime Minister. "I find them hard to put into words. The more he is encom-"passed about with disappointments and calamities the more "am I impressed with his greatness. I look upon him with a "sort of awe. Sometimes I think of him as Job, rising above "all afflictions; sometimes as Samson, carrying away the "pillars of Gaza. Such fortitude, constancy and strength! They "are on a level of nobility far above the common range of ex-"periences. He bears so many of other people's burdens be-"sides his own, with never a word of excuse or complaint, "even when they would be justified. He has carried at times "the weight almost of the whole world on his shoulders; he "has propped up, and will prop up, the falling sky. When we "can look back on all this, when all the little noisy men are "forgotten, our respect for him and our gratitude to him "will be beyond measure."

The Gladstone Observer

SATURDAY, MARCH 13, 1943.

AN EXPLANATION.

The Minister of State for Defence (Mr. John Curtin) has empowered the Censor, among other things, to prohibit the publication of certain matter under the National Security (General) Regulations.

A function was recently held, the specific object of which is known to us, but a report of the function cannot be published, for it definitely comes within "prohibited matter."

If a report was published it would be a violation of the National Security Regulations. The law must be obeyed by every citizen, and rightly so too. The courts of the British Empire and America have held that ignorance of the law is no excuse.

On February 26 we received certain instructions which must be carried out, and subsequently further instructions again definitely prohibited "direct or indirect" reference to such matters, but the latest instructions also exclude many other items, including advertisements.

It will be gleaned from the foregoing that the matter is definitely dangerous, and there is no good ignoring the fact that responsible citizens must comply with the Government regulations and not endeavour to get round them.

No doubt the regulation dealing with the particular matter will be lifted, but till it is lifted the law must be upheld.

At the proper time and in the proper place full honour in a practical way will be bestowed publicly by the people of Gladstone.

CURRENT TOPICS

PUBLIC MEETING.

A public meeting will be held in the Town Hall on Wednesday, March 17, at 7.30 p.m., the object being to form an organising committee in connection with the third Liberty Loan.

AIR RAID WARDENS.

Sergt. S. Coxon advises that a meeting of air raid wardens will be held on Thursday night next in the new Court House. Mr. A. Kennedy, of Brisbane, will continue his lecture on "Life Saving and Artificial Respiration."

RED CROSS DANCES.

The fact that nearly £250 has been received by the Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society during the past three months from weekly dances run by the President (Mrs. H. V. Phillips) and her committee of ladies gives some indication of the great success these functions have been. The amount has been of inestimable value to the Prisoners of War Appeal Fund.

ST. PATRICK'S BALL.

Arrangements in connection with St. Patrick's ball have been finalised, and everything points to a record function this year. A dance band of four players has been engaged, and dancing will continue until the small hours of the morning. All novelties are free, including Monte Carlos and spot dances. The supper arrangements are in the hands of a capable ladies' committee, and every effort will be made to have a first-class supper served to all patrons. Messrs. Norris and Robinson will act as joint M.C.'s.

EMPLOYMENT EXCHANGE BOARD.

The election of a local authorities representative on the Gladstone district Employment Exchange Board has resulted in a win for Cr. H. Ballantine, the Calliope Shire nominee. He defeated Cr. Webb (Monto), and Ald. Golding and Smith (Gladstone Town Council) in the election held on Saturday last. Mr. C. D. Cooper, manager of Dalgetys Ltd., Gladstone, has been elected as the employers' representative, and Messrs. H. Anderson and J. Deveney (Gladstone) are the employees' representatives on the Board, which is now fully constituted.

POLICE COURT

TWO CHARGES OF STEALING

Meatworker Pleaded Guilty

In the Police Court on Wednesday, before the Acting S.M. (Mr. J. F. Donovan), Lawrence Victor Hickson, 19, meatworker, was charged with:—

(1) Stealing the sum of £2/10/-, the property of Frank Toms.

(2) Stealing one pair of trousers, valued at £2, the property of Frank Toms.

THE FACTS.

The facts disclosed that the complainant and defendant had secured board and lodgings at Bradley's boarding house, both occupying the same room and sharing the same wardrobe. Defendant left the boarding house on March 5, but subsequently found the money under the bed mattress. Hickson was located on the Railway Station just prior to his departure for Rockhampton, and on being questioned by Constable Gregg admitted committing the offence.

With respect to the second charge, defendant was questioned by Constable Gerber in respect to a pair of trousers found in his possession. Hickson admitted having sold the trousers to the complainant during the week for the sum of £2, and on leaving the boarding house stole them, stating he was only having a loan of them.

CONVICTED AND FINED.

Hickson pleaded guilty to both charges, and was convicted and fined £1, in default seven days imprisonment on each charge, sentence to be cumulative.

The fine was paid.

WIRELESS PROGRAMMES.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—"Lowbrow!" Never before have I seen a name which so aptly described the writer.

It appears that "Lowbrow" wants to be told off, but my charitable disposition will not permit me to deal as harshly with this class of person as he deserves, so subject to the limitations imposed by my gentle disposition, my rebuke must be mild.

"Lowbrow," the inside story of the letter written by Mr. Jim Campbell, and which you were so eager to deal with, is:—

Mr. Campbell is an old age pensioner of 70 years, with no family ties and no wireless set.

He made a small wager in Calliope that if he were to write a letter to the "Observer," no matter what the subject matter, there would be at least one mug who would rush in to answer. Mr. Campbell apparently had heard of you.

At the same time the quality of your letter explains why you find it necessary to write under a nom-de-plume.—Yours etc.,

AT THE PARISH HALL.

An excellent entertainment will be staged to-day (Saturday), March 13, in the Parish Hall, Gladstone, commencing at 2.15 p.m., in aid of the mobile canteen fund of the Salvation Army. The promotor is Mr. Norman Jones, Mysto, and a well balanced programme of magic in wonderland, supported by six local artistes, will be submitted. All the latest mysteries will be staged, and there will be a lucky door number for the boys and girls, also free competitions, and prizes will be awarded. Residents should support this entertainment, as it is in aid of a worthy cause. The prices of admission are: Adults 1/-, and children 6d.

ALL NURSES MUST REGISTER.

No phase of women's work is of more vital national significance at the moment than that of nurses. That is the reason it has been made obligatory for every woman right up to the age of 60 who has nursing qualifications and experience to furnish full details to the Deputy Director General of Manpower for Queensland, Primary Building, Creek Street, Brisbane, so that her skill and experience can be put to the most effective use. She is required to furnish particulars of residence, marital condition and number of children (if any), and present occupation. Failure to furnish the information may involve the person concerned in the penalties prescribed by the National Security Act.

A SERIOUS CHARGE

PLYING FOR HIRE WITHOUT LICENSE

Lindley Convicted and Fined

In the Court of Petty Sessions on Wednesday, before the Acting S.M. (Mr. J. F. Donovan), Lyial Cleave John Lindley was charged with committing a breach of the Traffic Act regulations, plying for hire without a license.

Sergt. S. Coxon prosecuted. Defendant did not appear, and the case was heard ex parte.

STATEMENTS TAKEN.

Constable James Oswald Holley stated he had heard the defendant's name called three times, and he did not appear. Witness interviewed Mrs. Sarah Sammuel Smith and Mrs. Edna Mary McMah, both of Rocky Glen, and Lloyd George Lee, of Tooloon Street, who was employed as a taxi driver by Clinton Arthur Janson, and took statements from them.

LINDLEY INTERVIEWED.

On January 15 the witness was in company with Constable Fells, and interviewed the defendant at Marine Parade. He said to the defendant: "I have been informed that you are using a motor vehicle as a taxi in the Gladstone traffic district."

In reply Lindley stated that he was not using the car as a taxi.

TAXI LICENSE.

In reply to further questions Lindley stated that he was not in possession of a taxi license, but had applied for one. When asked to whom he had applied, Lindley stated he was not prepared to tell.

"3/- FOR THE TRIP."

When Lindley was asked did he drive Mrs. Smith, Mrs McMah and their mother to Rocky Glen he stated that he did so as a favour, but he did not receive any payment for the trip. Witness then told defendant that he had interviewed the people in question, and they had told him they had paid 3/- for the trip. Lindley made no reply to this.

AT ROCKY GLEN.

Constable Holley then informed Lindley that he had obtained written statements from the two women, in which it was stated they paid 3/- for the trip.

In answer to this defendant said when they got out of the car at their home at Rocky Glen they asked him how much it was, and he told them he did not want anything.

In answer to further questions Lindley stated the women threw 3/- on the front seat and told him to put it in the kid's box.

ACCEPTED AS PAYMENT.

Lindley put the money in his pocket and accepted it as payment for the trip.

DO NOT TELL THE SERGEANT.

Edna Mary McMah stated that Lindley drove them to Rocky Glen and informed her the cost was 3/-. She paid 2/- and her sister 1/-. Lindley was talking to her mother for a while, but she did not hear what was said. Lindley told her not to tell the Sergeant that he was plying for hire, and he said this several times during the course of the trip. He did not offer to drive them home as a friend. They were not friendly, but she had no bad feelings whatever towards the defendant. Lindley was not correct when he stated that he drove them to Rocky Glen as a favour. He asked for the 3/- straight out, and put the money into his pocket. The question of the kiddies' money box was mentioned, but the defendant put the money into his pocket without much hesitation.

"DEFINITELY PAID 3/-."

Sarah Sammuel Smith stated that she knew Clive John Lindley, and he was paid 3/- for the trip to Rocky Glen, her sister paying 2/- and she paid 1/-. He asked her not to tell the police that his car was on hire. When she first approached Lindley he did say he would drive her home for nothing, but she told him she would rather walk than do this. They definitely paid 3/- between them for the trip, and that was the fare asked for by Lindley.

CONVICTED AND FINED.

Lindley was convicted and fined £2, and was ordered to pay 8/6 costs of court, witnesses expenses 10/-, in default 14 days in the Gladstone Lock-up.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

PATRIOTIC FUND

AIMS AND OBJECTS

Mr. W. R. Golding Explains

The Chairman of the Gladstone and District Patriotic Fund (Mr. W. R. Golding) writes as follows:—

"Unfortunately, at a function this week, opportunity was taken by a speaker to criticise the Gladstone and District Patriotic Fund, and myself in particular.

"The question of boys on furlough has occupied the minds of members of the Gladstone and District Patriotic Committee on more than one occasion, and it has been decided that such functions do not come within the scope of the constitution of the Patriotic Fund Act.

"The objects of which are:—

(a) To afford assistance to men and women who may serve in any capacity with or in connection with His Majesty's forces, or the forces of His Majesty's Allies on land, sea and air.

(b) To promote and conduct any institutions, societies, clubs or organisations for the benefit of such men and women.

(c) To assist the dependants of such men and women.

(d) To aid non-combatants who may be injured or who may suffer loss or damage to their property in the course of any operations in the present war.

"Being only the chairman of this Fund, and not the whole committee, I must abide by their decision. That I sometimes fail to live up to all that is expected of me is only human. Fewer mistakes, however, would be made if there was more co-operation, more helpful advice, and a greater desire to build up this Fund to make it worthy of our gallant lads in their hour of need, which will be after the war.

"My committee take the view that large sums of money will be needed when this conflict is over to put these lads back into civil life, and are working diligently to this end. The spectacle of the uncared for soldiers of the last war must not be repeated at the close of this one.

"This view has the support of all the patriotic bodies throughout Queensland, and is supported locally by the President of the R.S.S.I.L.A. (Mr. P. A. Friend) and other stalwart diggers, including Mr. C. D. Patrick, members of the Patriotic Committee.

"I trust that this explanation of the functions of this patriotic body will prevent a repetition of what to the average citizen must appear an unwarranted and uncalled for attack upon this patriotic body by an individual who is a member of the committee, and who should have known its aims and objects."

(Portions of the letter have been deleted so as to comply with the National Security Regulations. Ed. "Obs.")

MATERNAL AND CHILD WELFARE

GLADSTONE CENTRE

The following is the report of the Gladstone Maternal and Child Welfare Centre and sub-centres for the month ended February 28:—

Attendances during the month: Gladstone 165, Calliope 14, Miriam Vale 18, Mt. Larcom 51.

Number of newborns notified by registrar 22.

Number of babies visited in hospital, 11.

Number of subsequent visits paid, 10.

Number of new cases attending for the first time 21.

Number of children 2 to 5 years of age attending for advice, 40.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

The many friends of a highly respected resident in the person of Mr. Alf. Gent, who has been an inmate of the General Hospital for some time, will be pleased to learn that he has sufficiently recovered to leave the institution.

An old Gladstonite, well known in the town and district, Mr. Geoff Smith, spent a few days leave here looking into his business interests. Geoff is now Corporal Smith, attached to a unit in another State. He conducted the Koumala Hotel (near Mackay), the Royal Hotel, Mt. Larcom, and the Royal Hotel, Gladstone, during previous years. Looking fit and well, he renewed acquaintance with many old friends in town.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

STREET ADOPTION SCHEME

Total Collected £130

Highlight of Red Cross activities in Gladstone at present is the P.O.W. street adoption scheme, which is now working smoothly under very efficient organisation.

Of a total of £130 collected under this scheme over £50 is credited to the present month (March), thus showing the progress the organisers and collectors are making.

The drive to complete Gondoon Street was very successful, Mesdames Coppin and Watson securing nearly £6 from the first weekly canvass.

The two original canvassers, Mesdames R. Elliott and A. Watson, continue to open up new streets with splendid results. They have now completed Auckland, Lord, Yaroon and Glenlyon streets.

Mrs. Mortimer Tait completed William Street and then canvassed Oaka Lane.

Mrs. R. Ricketts, after completing Fowler Estate and Fisher Street, did the area around the Bowling Club, and has now canvassed Tank Street.

Mrs. H. P. Hallam, who opened the scheme with Side, View and Ormonde streets, is now canvassing Scenery Street and other parts of West Gladstone.

Mrs. Frank Johnstone put up a record at Barney Point, where she secured a maximum of 20 contributors from that number of residents there.

Miss Margaret Hill has now taken over portion of Auckland Street from Mrs. Elliott, and will in future collect this herself.

Mrs. G. Hartley has left town for a few weeks, and her collections in Bramston Street are being taken over by Scouts from No. 2 Troop, kindly arranged by the Scoutmaster.

Mrs. Lodder is now an authorised collector for Oaka Lane, and has done very well in that area.

Mesdames Elliott and Watson still lead in total collections.

The assistance of Scouts from Nos. 2 and 3 Troops is of marked assistance to the ladies, and is greatly appreciated by the branch.

The co-organisers (Messrs. Summers and Connellan) with Mrs. Coppin and the joint hon. secretary (Mrs. H. Browne) have put a lot of work into the organisation, and it is hoped to have the whole town completed during the present month.

BOWLING

DISTRICT SINGLES COMPETITION

Win for Loveday

After their splendid win in the pennants against the R.B.C. last week members settled down to social games, the green being in perfect order. Details:—

Ferris, Buetell, Mackay v. Schmidt, Pring, Browne 22-20.

Sly, Garrett, Johnstone, Ogg v. Henery, Chapman, Wilson, Busteed 26-13.

Duff, Hobbs, Coxon, Weiske v. Hixon, Quodling, Dennis, Mathews 27-15.

Comino, Joyner, Cameron v. A. Friend, Bycroft, Drewe 28-24.

The district singles competition was advanced a further stage when ex-president H. V. Loveday defeated Dr. H. B. Skinner 31-26 after 34 ends had been played. Dr. Skinner ran away to a good lead at one stage, being 16-4 on his opponent, but Loveday came at the right end to snatch victory.

COMFORTS FUND

MONTHLY STREET STALL

Donations Asked For

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the joint A.C.F. and Patriotic Appeal Fund will be conducted in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, March 19.

The convenors (Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen) would much appeciate donations of jam, fruit, cakes, vegetables, sweets, or any other home manufacture or articles for sale on that date.

Donations may be left with the convenors, or at Gladstone Cash and Carry.

SOCIALISM

POSITION SUMMED UP

"Democrat" Hits Back

Socialism in its primitive form was illustrated by Mr. Leo. Funk in last Saturday's "Observer," and no doubt his puny remarks and bombastic statements would cause some hilarity amongst his followers, but I cannot visualise a rush of recruits to his beloved cause. If his latest attempt is symbolic of the best Russian technique, then I am happy to be classed as a "decadent democrat." A tradesman having a slow selling or unattractive line on his hands, to deliver the goods would employ his best salesmen, for many a sale or venture has been marred by faulty salesmanship. This simile could also be applied to advocates of a new order.

FREE SPEECH.

I must admit that Mr. Funk makes full use of one of the most sacred planks in the democratic platform, namely, the right of free speech. Would a writer with democratic leanings be permitted to expand his or her views in a Soviet newspaper? Definitely not, for the teachings of the outside world are forbidden in that country. In the suppression of free speech, yes, and even thought, the masses are educated along a "one track mind system."

SHADOW OF THE OGPU

Suspicion and intrigue become rampant, and it is not a question of do as I do, but do as I say; the shadow of the Ogpu is forever hovering in the background. If you are feeling so charitable I am sure the many patriotic organisations in the town will be pleased to relieve your anxiety.

GENERALISING.

I did accuse you of generalising, and I am still awaiting your version of "adequate provision during periods of illness" and a "bountiful pension on retiring from active work." The pension position might be likened to our recent bountiful deluge—general in character.

"SIDE-STEPPER OF FACTS."

I also asked for the amount of wages paid to the Soviet workers, and the reply was a masterpiece of ambiguity. As a side-stepper of facts, you would gain a place in any international team. The rouble has been mentioned as the coinage of the Soviet Union, and its value is known only to the Russians. Would this coin be the gold rouble, the prewar value of which was quoted at 2/1½? Of course not, for "under socialism the only value that gold has is for what it can be manufactured into jewellery, etc.

SOVIET ROUBLE

Pardon my simplicity, Mr. Funk, but as the Soviet rouble is not quoted on the capitalistic stock exchange, and its outside value would therefore not be known, how would London Ambassador Maisky know whether he was being short weighted or not? Thanks, old chap, I can anticipate your reply. As a favour, I will learn and become educated, on one condition—that my tuition is carried out by a Democratic Maestro. The books suggested for my guidance sound alright to me, but as the choice is rather limited, and I have been accused of writing "puerile prattle," my thoughts would naturally lean towards the kindergarten. Any books dealing with the "child and the State" would satisfy my childish desires.

EXECUTIONS.

I have no apologies to offer regarding mass executions for the enforcement of the new order. Mr. Funk admits that "executions were carried out, and rightly so, against those found guilty of counter revolutionary work." Would any sane person suggest the deportation of Arty Fadden because his views did not coincide with those of Prime Minister, Mr. John Curtin?

BALLOT BOX.

Your interpretation of "redress through the ballot box is rather crude. In a democracy the right of a secret ballot belongs to the people, and the election is not a mockery; the votes are counted after and not before the poll. My mention of the democratic Mr. Hoyle appears to have caused some confusion, and for your edification Hoyle is not a diplomat. Hoyle is not a racehorse. Hoyle is a recognised authority on a card game, the rules of which state that it is not prudent to open a Jack Pot on a pair of sevens.

AROUND MT. LARCOM.

I did not mention the milking of cows in the list of manual duties carried out by the Soviet women, as the suggestion of any exertion of pressure on the female species (cows) was furthermost from my mind. You are right again, Mr. Funk; I have never travelled, but I am hoping that one day I will be able to visit the farming areas around Mt. Larcom, Bracewell, and Ambrose. Just a word of advice old man should you contemplate a visit to the places mentioned, it would be advisable for you to take a couple of our "commandos" with you just as a precautionary measure.

"ELUSIVE SHADOW."

The women and children on the farms round Mt. Larcom, Bracewell, and Ambrose do work hard, as most of their menfolk are away helping to protect you and I. Those self same women and children are descendants of the grand old pioneers who have made things so easy for you and I. They are not Utopians, and do not discard the substance for the elusive shadow.

ARBITRATION COURT.

I am not going to enter into a controversy regarding the virtues of the Arbitration Court. I presume that you are working under an award granted by the very court you so caustically criticise. I have the utmost confidence in the union leaders who present the workers case, and in the decisions of the tribunal. Arbitration is a plank in the platform of our own Australian Labour party.

"WAGE SLAVE."

My views have already been expressed regarding the word "slave," and the title "wage slave" is just another example of a "rose by any other name," etc.

EXCHANGE.

Your exchange quotations are very interesting,, but what do they convey? Mention of that old saying containing the words "fools, wisemen, and tread" would be amiss at this juncture. The average Australian worker is not interested in the New Zealand or English value of our £1, for it is the Australian value that counts. The exchange rate is regulated according to the trade relations between one country and another, and on the supply and demand basis. The financial destiny of Australia would be quite safe in the hands of either the Commonwealth Bank or the Bank of New South Wales. Remember what happened to the N.S. Wales State Savings Bank a few years ago, when one of your own masters of finance gained control. Fortunately for N.S. Wales and Australia, that gentleman's reign was of short duration.

"JUMPING THE RATTLER."

My statement about "jumping the rattler" may have appeared childish to you, but would it appear childish to those poor Russians souls who are taken on the long trek to Siberia and for whom there is no return ticket?

PRODUCTION.

I cannot tolerate your production theory for you blotted your socialistic "ekker" badly in your last article, and future reference to the subject would only add to your discomfit. I did not know that way back in 1888 the N.S. Wales Government borowed £16 million pounds for railways, and in 1950 £50 million pounds will have been paid in interest. Those were the bad old days when the Kellys rode the ranges. Still, it is rather a good advertisement for the capacity to pay, and it reminds one of the chap who borrowed money to save up. However, I do know that way back in the years 1914-16 the Russian Government borrowed some hundreds of millions from Britain, and the capacity (or should I say desire) to pay was not very great, as the amount is still owing.

CRISES AND WARS.

Yes, crises and wars are inevitable under the socialistic system, and when this conflict is ended and the readjustments have been carried out it would not be surprising to find a worldwide democratic system in operation.

The reference to mock heroics is quite in keeping with one whose burden of responsibility has outweighed his sense of proportion.

TROTSKY.

My reference to Trotsky was not in the least but unfortunate for me, but that gentleman's quotation certainly appears to have upset the equilibrium of the local socialistic champion. Trotsky was a victim of circumstances, and in the jockeying for the rails position in the Soviet Diplomatic Stakes, was off to a bad start, and instead of Trotsky being "insky" he was "outsky." I did not say that Trotsky was found out by Joe Stalin. I used the word deposed, and the meaning of this word can be found in any democratic dictionary.

The intrigue associated with Trotsky's forced departure from Russia is well known, and it is most convenient to brand him as a traitor, a person whose writings and knowledge has caused considerable embarrassment and anxiety to his "comrades." You cannot window dress the Trotsky incident, Mr. Funk.

"AMUSING."

The final summing up by the socialistic commentator is amusing, and with your permission, Mr. Editor, and the tolerance of the readers, I will postpone the discussion on "knowledge of the subject" and "sincerity of purpose" to a later date.

"Stick to playing with your kindergarten toys" is yet another assessment of my journalistic ability. If one omits the "puerile prattle," "uneducated," "untravelled," "liar" and "insincere" phrases bestowed upon me by Mr. Funk, that gentleman and myself appear to have got on very well together.

PARTING SHOT.

As a parting shot, nothing gives me greater pleasure than to wile away a few hours with the kiddies in the kindergarten, for the minds of the dear little mites have not, as yet, been polluted by any brand of "ism."

WAR LOAN COMMITTEE

EFFORTS APPRECIATED

Letter to the Mayor

The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis) has received the following letter from the Commonwealth Treasurer (Mr. J. B. Chifley):—

"I am anxious that you should know how much I appreciate, on behalf of the Commonwealth Government, the splendid work that your committee has done over such a long period in support of war loans and the national savings campaign.

"I know that these special war efforts represent a considerable tax on your time, and that of the members of your committee, and I am grateful for the unselfish way in which you put your private affairs on one side to concentrate on a matter of great national urgency. Results achieved for the Austerity Loan were undoubtedly due in great measure to the excellent work of district committees.

"There must, unfortunately, be more war loans. We must maintain our greatest efforts until the cause to which we all subscribe has been upheld.

"I am counting on you, therefore, to continue your valuable assistance in this way until victory is ours. You may be assured that there is no avenue of public service in which you could at the present time contribute more vitally to Australia's pressing needs.

"You see, Bob, whenever we think of you we want you back home. The place is never the same when you're away, though we never grudged you going, you know that.

"Well, the other night we got to talking about it. Your Mother got the idea. 'Dad,' she said, 'If Bob's to come home soon we must do something about it.'

"'What can we do?' sa'd I.

"'Dad,' she said, 'if Bob's to come home sooner he and all the rest of the boys have got to have all the fine equipment they need to beat the enemy quickly. We'll put our money into an advance subscription to the next War Loan and help buy the planes and tanks and guns that Bob and his mates need.'

"Well, that sounded sense to me and we did it. Now we're going to save every penny we can and buy more bonds still. It seems we're helping more to bring you home and there's nothing we want so much as to have you, a returned soldier, safe and well, with us."

MULTIPLYING the Nation's Wealth

THERE is a good deal of loose talk about Security in these days. Many people are beginning to think of Security as if it were the mainspring of life, whereas Opportunity, Enterprise, Energy and Courage are the qualities that make the world go round and provide such security as is good for us.

The A.M.P. Society exists solely to provide Security for its members—on an average it helps one family in every two in the Commonwealth to provide against the risks of life and death—but it knows that before there can be a general Security there must be a multiplying and conservation of the Nation's wealth, and not a dividing of it. Before there can be Security there must be Work and Production. The farmer does not succeed by eating his seed corn but by going out manfully to prepare the land for its increase.

To date the A.M.P. has put £50,000,000 of its members' conserved earnings into Commonwealth Loans. It is adding to this at the rate of £500,000 a month.

AFTER THE WAR

—o—

Nylon Stockings for Women

Paratroops will descend from the skies behind enemy lines on cast-off nylon stockings contributed by American women to the Government's scrap pile.

Millions of pairs of worn and not so worn stockings have been collected. The high pressure synthesis equipment which makes nylon chemicals from coal, air and water, was already taxed to capacity when it was decided to make the appeal.

New plant would have meant using large supplies of strategic equipment urgently needed for other purposes. So the synthesis process was put into reverse and discarded nylon stockings are being dissolved back into the two original chemicals from which nylon is made.

These pure chemicals, as good as new, are re-woven, not into new stockings, but into parachutes that will carry troops into the heart of enemy territory.

And not only are parachutes being made. Other products are obtained as a result of this sacrifice of feminine vanity, which will provide the enemy with some unpleasant surprises.

Parachute canopies made from scrap nylon stockings are as good as those made from Japanese silk, if not better; and tapes, shroud lines, and some of the harness webbing and belting is also made from this amazing source.

Rope made from nylon is superior to any for strength, it is claimed. It also has the great virtues of lightness and durability. As well, it has exceptional elasticity. For this reason it will be used for towing U.S. Army gliders picked up by aeroplanes. Gliders carry troops and vital supplies, so those stockings are doing a grand job in the front line.

The U.S. Government supervises the collection of all stockings. Silk ones contributed are made into powder bags. Only the nylons go to the du Pont Nylon Research Laboratory for reclaiming.

Few Australian women have possessed nylon stockings, which were coming generally on to the market in the U.S.A. when the war started. Travellers returning from the U.S.A. brought the new stockings with them, however, and it is difficult to realise the strength that lies in those fine threads.

Nylon stockings are something Australian women can look forward to after the war. In the meantime they are in the front line, along with our own stockings, as the silk formerly used for them is now being made into parachutes for Australian airmen.

BILLETING TROOPS

—o—

Increased Allowance

Householders who are billeting troops will receive 1/- a day increase for each soldier they are accommodating under the provisions of the Defence Quartering order said the Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde).

The necessary regulations authorising the increase had just been published in the "Commonwealth Gazette," and the increase would take effect immediately, the Minister added.

Under the old scale, said Mr. Forde, a payment of 3/6 per day for non-commissioned officers and men had been made. In future the rate would be 4/6 per day.

Similarly the rate of payment for officers, which under the old scale was 4/- a day, would now be 5/- a day.

SPEED IS WASTEFUL

—o—

Tyres National Assets

Fast driving is rarely justifiable, but in these war-time days of rationed petrol and very limited rubber stocks it is inexcusable and unpatriotic. The rate of tyre wear increases rapidly with higher speeds, and it is the duty of every motor user in Australia to keep this in mind.

As the Minister for Supply and Shipping (Mr. Beasley) has put it, every motor tyre in use to-day is a precious national asset and every motor user with a vehicle on the road is the custodian of a vital raw material. Cut your speed by half, and you will make your tyres last longer. This is very desirable in your own interests, as it may be a long time before you will be able to buy another set of tyres.

COUNTRY TELEPHONE EXCHANGES

—o—

Improved Services Promised

The efficiency of country telephone services will be greatly increased when the method of staffing country exchanges is revised this year, the Postmaster General (Senator Ashley) announced last week.

He explained that in July last the Government approved of a scheme submitted by him that permanent telephonists be employed at about 170 exchanges in Australia where junior operators had previously worked on a temporary footing.

The employment of temporary juniors was unsatisfactory because the volume of business handled was fairly appreciable, and the girls, who were designated exempt junior telephonists, were not retained in the service when they reached 20 years of age.

Senator Ashley announced that circumstances at the 250 additional exchanges where these girls are employed had been examined, and it had been decided to extend the scheme to embrace these exchanges.

The plan not only provides permanent employment for about 800 girls, who will be recruited by examinations to be held at each centre concerned, but it will greatly increase efficiency, with benefit to the Department and to telephone users generally.

The practice of releasing girls after a few years' service and forcing them to seek other jobs for which they were not trained by the Department was not in the best interests of the operators. Continual changes which took place in personnel under this scheme had an adverse effect on the quality of the service rendered.

The Commonwealth Public Service Board, with which the Minister has been in consultation, will arrange examinations to be held at each centre later in the year. Existing junior telephonists, those recently employed, and other candidates, will be given an opportunity to qualify for permanent appointments.

SCHOOLS IN FACTORIES

POST-WAR HAPPINESS

Building Up Understanding

The establishment of schools in factories for pupils of any age who might wish to join was advocated by Miss Winifred Taylor, recently appointed educational supervisor of the Y.W.C.A. in Sydney, and until January principal of the Retail Traders' Training Institute of N.S.W.

Miss Taylor, who has had much experience with problems of young workers, feels that the establishment by the unions of schools within the factories would overcome many material and psychological problems.

"Leaving school in the early 'teens is not the great tragedy many people think," said Miss Taylor in an exclusive interview with Industrial News Service. "In fact, staying at school until you're 20 is a far greater tragedy. But youngsters who leave school early to join factories or industries should have their education continued in the factory or industry. I can't understand why unions do not make the establishment of these schools part of their platform. Young workers go into their jobs with school children values. They are sometimes arrogant and intolerant, and though they will outgrow these tendencies, they will lose them far sooner and much less painfully to everyone concerned if there is a trained educational staff to help them over their hurdles.

"In Sydney last year, 48 firms sent their employees to the Retail Traders' Training Institute to learn salesmanship, design, window dressing, elementary psychology, and other subjects which would help them. But even more valuable was the personal help we were able to give the students.

"All youngsters in all factories and industries need this help. Very often they are given some small, monotonous job to do. Well, then, teach them how their small monotonous job fits into the whole, and half the monotny will be killed on the spot. Teach them something of the workings of other departments. Then they will know what the other man is up against. Teach them to widen their interests, and you will find that post-war re-adjustment will not be so tough a problem.

"But it's not only the young members of the staff who need this training. All members of the staff will benefit from it, particularly those who will in time be foremen. Foremen at present are chosen for their 'good skills.' But their 'good wills' and understanding of their fellow workers is every bit as important.

"There are at least the excellent trade training schools in Australia, a grocers' school in South Australia and a school for the training of hotel management in Melbourne. But every industry should have its trade school within the industry. As to the curriculum, that would widen automatically as the pupils' interests widen. I have found that they will suggest additional subjects themselves, for once they are given a lead and given encouragement they will want to tackle subjects to which they have barely given a thought before.

"Post-war happiness and peace can be built up only on understanding of other people's outlook and problems. Now is the time to build up that understanding."

JAPANESE SNIPERS

PICKING THEM OFF

Costs £11 Every 5 Minutes

"Picking off" Japanese snipers in New Guinea cost Australia £11 every five minutes. A tommy-gun firing for the same time used £7 of ammunition. A day's operation of the R.A.A.F. cost Australia £275,000.

These were some of the figures illustrating war costs given by Mr. Curtin when calling for subscriptions to the new Liberty Loan which the Government will launch on March 16.

The enormous cost of war production in the Commonwealth would be even higher if Australia did not produce the cheapest steel in the world, for iron and steel supply the basic metals necessary for the manufacture of essential war goods from tanks to surgical instruments.

Since the outbreak of war successful experiments have meant that Australia can now produce a wide range of steels, including tungsten high speed, bullet proof, and structural alloy steels for use in aircraft.

During a recent bomber attack against the Japanese, one Beaufort bomber costing £40,000 used £100 of fuel to attack a ship at Koepang with one torpedo costing £2000.

Before the war common building and rolling steels comprised the bulk of Australian steel output, but as a result of the development of the complex range of steel varieties Australia is now almost entirely independent of overseas supplies. To quote one example, Australia can now manufacture her own 3.7 anti-aircraft guns, in which no less than 47 different types of steel are used.

WOMEN CALLED UP

Voluntary Registration Still Open

Last week's compulsory call up of 300 women in Sydney to start work in canning factories at almost a day's notice is an indication that if women do not volunteer for national service in sufficient numbers to meet urgent requirements the Directorate will have no hesitation in exercising the far-reaching powers now held by the Director General of Manpower.

Mr. Wurth emphasises that as a matter of policy, powers of direction will be regarded as available for use only where voluntary response does not meet national needs. Every opportunity will be given both to men and women at present not engaged in essential employment to transfer voluntarily, but it is now only a question of weeks before men and women who do not avail themselves of the privilege of choosing employment from several categories will be directed to any specific job where they are required.

It is also stressed that in thousands of cases the Directorate already has the necessary information, and it does not follow therefore that a woman can afford to wait until she receives a questionaire form before making up her mind. Many will not get a questionaire, and the first intimation may be a specific call-up for work.

Wherever possible the Directorate will place both men and women close to their place of residence to avoid long hours of travel and to minimise transport and accommodation problems.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

NURSES MUST REGISTER

Last Day, March 24

On or before March 24 every nurse in Australia under 60 must get a questionnaire form (obtainable at any National Service Office), complete it, and either hand it in or post it to the Deputy Director General of the State in which she lives.

Failure to furnish the return involves penalties under the National Security Act.

Primarily, the return is required to ensure that every women with nursing skill and experience is being used to the best advantage. Many such women have retired. Many have transferred to other occupations. Some are acting as receptionists or secretaries. But the plight of hospitals, both public and private, is so desperate that it is now imperative in the interests of national health to fill the gaps in the nursing staffs.

In the second place it is essential that until every possible danger of invasion or bombing has passed, the whereabouts of every nurse must be known, no matter whether she is married or retired, so that in case of grave emergency — "it can happen here" — she can be located at once.

The "order" applies to all nurses except those in the fighting forces. It includes nurses in public or private hospitals, in private practice, in rest homes or other institutions, married or single, working or retired or engaged in other occupations, and trainees.

It applies to registered nurses, and to nurses with the qualifications for registration. It applies to nurses holding a certificate from a recognised authority as a general nurse, midwifery nurse, mental nurse, midwife, children's nurse, infants' health nurse, child welfare nurse, infants' nurse, or mothercraft nurse. It also applies to women who have had two years' experience in a hospital.

In the questionnaire provision is made for the nurse to state any reasons which prevent her from full-time service, from part-time service, or from service away from her present place of residence.

CAN YOU HELP?

Books, magazines and old clean newspapers are urgently needed by the Gladstone branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. If you have any old newspapers, books, or magazines, kindly leave same at Gladstone Cash and Carry, where they will be collected regularly and despatched to the troops in camp. The camps in the outlying centres are much in need of reading matter and indoor games, such as playing cards, etc. See what you can do.

You'll enjoy smoking much more if between smokes you chew Wrigley's healthful Chewing Gum. It instantly perks up the tired taste buds on your tongue so that they will register the full, fine flavour of the tobacco. The delicious flavour refreshes you thoroughly, and Wrigley's Chewing Gum helps keep your teeth bright and healthy besides aiding digestion. Three fragrant flavours from which to choose—P.K. (real peppermint) Spearmint (garden mint) and Juicy Fruit (lusciously sweet). Buy some today—keep a supply handy. AU28

DOROTHY THOMPSON, in English Journey—

"Therefore, and in very truth, Britain's fight is a fight for "World Liberation. In the darkest days that you have suffered, "and the dark ones that I fear will come again, this thought "must sustain you. That you are truly, in this hour of history, "the Hope of the World And Mr. Churchill must have real- "ised this fully when he cried, 'This is Britain's greatest hour!'

. . . . . .

"And so I go home to my people to continue to write about "the nature of this epochal struggle, about the greatness of "the British people and the British cause, and about the gran- "deur of a destiny that puts the Sword of Liberation into the "hands of the English-speaking peoples of the World."

WINSTON CHURCHILL—

It is good to hear things of the British Prime Minister. Mr. Winston Churchill. Archdeacon Hancock, of Victoria, has made available a letter from his son, Professor W. K. Hancock, who is in England, which gives a cheering view of the War Leader in the land of "the little grey mother of nations in the Northern Seas." He says:—

"You ask me about my impressions of the Prime Minister. "I find them hard to put into words. The more he is encom- "passed about with disappointments and calamities the more "am I impressed with his greatness. I look upon him with a "sort of awe. Sometimes I think of him as Job, rising above "all afflictions; sometimes as Samson, carrying away the "pillars of Gaza. Such fortitude, constancy and strength! They "are on a level of nobility far above the common range of ex- "periences. He bears so many of other people's burdens be- "sides his own, with never a word of excuse or complaint, "even when they would be justified. He has carried at times "the weight almost of the whole world on his shoulders; he "has propped up, and will prop up, the falling sky. When we "can look back on all this, when all the little noisy men are "forgotten, our respect for him and our gratitude to him "will be beyond measure."

CURRENT TOPICS

SOCIAL AND DANCE.

A social and dance will be held in the Town Hall to-morrow night (Thursday), under the auspices of the Trades and Labour Council. Admission is free.

TO VISIT GLADSTONE.

Mrs. A. M. Atkinson, deputy superintendent (Qld.) of the Australian Women's Land Army, will arrive in Gladstone on March 27, and during her stay here will give addresses on the work being done by this fourth auxiliary of the services. She will be at the office of the National Service Officer (Court House) to advise and enlist women for land work.

LODGE CONGRATULATED.

The Grand Primo, Sir George Calenekos, and the Grand Secretary, Ron Bell-Taylor, of the Queensland Grand Lodge, R.O.A.B., paid a visit to Gladstone recently, and were the guests of local members at a very happy function. The State officers congratulated the Coronation Lodge 64, G.L.E. on its rapid growth, and extended best wishes for the future.

FOR THE BOYS.

A dance, arranged at short notice by the Chairman of the Gladstone and District Patriotic Fund (Mr. W. R. Golding) and the President of the Comforts Fund (Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan), was held in the Trocadero on Friday night. An enjoyable time was spent, and approximately £12 will be added to the Patriotic Fund for the benefit of the boys.

FAREWELLED—PRACTICAL GIFTS.

On Monday and Tuesday the Chairman of the Patriotic Fund (Mr. W. R. Golding), the President of the Comforts Fund (Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan), and the Secretary (Mrs. J. W. Garrett), had a busy time farewelling boys, and presenting each with practical gifts on behalf of their respective organisations. Of course, this is nothing knew, as the three persons named have performed this service over a very long period.

ANOTHER GRIFFITHS SUCCESS.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Griffiths, of Melbourne, has advised that their daughter Marcia has won a scholarship given by the Principal of the Conservatorium of Music, Melbourne. The scholarship entitles Marcia to twelve months free tuition at the Conservatorium. Marcia is a sister of Miss Jessica Griffiths, who recently won a J. C. Williamson scholarship. Gladstone residents will be delighted to learn of her success.

DAIRY FARMERS.

Dairy farmers and personnel employed full time in butter, cheese and bacon factories have now been given indefinite deferment from call-up on the lines applicable to other rural industries. In localities where the manufacture of these commodities is only seasonal due regard will be paid to the manpower requirements in the peak periods, and a "seasonal register" will be kept to ensure that essential personnel who may be engaged in other work during the "off" season are readily available when required.

DENTISTS UNDER MANPOWER RULE.

In addition to controlling all nurses, the Director General of Manpower has now taken over control of dentists and dental mechanics, pharmacists, and pharmacy apprentices, who until now have been under the control of the Central Medical Co-ordination Committee. As in the case of other scientific manpower, dental and pharmaceutical advisory committees will be set up to advise the Director General on all cases of enlistment, call-up, transfer, or employment of all dentists and pharmacists.

COMPENSATION FOR DAMAGED HOMES.

Householders whose homes are damaged as a result of guns firing in practice from fixed fortifications do not normally receive compensation, the Minister for the Army, Mr. Forde, stated. If it could be shown in these instances that neglect on the part of the Army caused the damage, compensation would be paid. Owners of properties damaged by concussion from gunfire when troops in training were on the move would be compensated, said Mr. Forde. It was considered that in these circumstances it was the duty of the Army authorities concerned to see that they carried out their gun practice in areas where they would not cause damage to homes.

PADDY'S MARKET

RED CROSS SOCIETY

Total Receipts £35/14/-

The Red Cross Paddy's market, held at the Society's hut in Gondoon Street, was again very successful, the total receipts amounting to £35/14/0. The result was very gratifying to the convenor (Mrs. A. H. Friend) and her ladies' committee.

A well-known Red Cross official in Mrs. R. J. Cavil, who was for many years convenor of the Sewing Circle, won the beautiful shopping bag donated by Mrs. W. McDonald (Cluden). The winning ticket was 121.

The tin of coffee (donated by Mrs. R. Elliott) was won by Mrs. Chas. Barker.

The next Paddy's market will be held on Friday, April 9, when a turkey gobler for Easter (donated by Mrs. Doelle) will be raffled, also a doll donated by Mrs. A. Easterby.

DONATIONS.

Mrs. Friend wishes to thank the following for their kind donations:—

Mesdames A. V. Worthington 30/- (sale of dragons), Geo. Phillips 10/6 (sale of eggs), Wyatt senr. 10/-, A. Martin 7/-, R. Shaw 5/-, H. P. Hallam 5/-, P. A. Friend 5/-, J. Schneider 5/-, G. CORPORAL N. FERRIS

Invalided Home

Corporal Noel Ferris, second son of Mr. W. Ferris, of Gladstone, who left Australia two and a half years ago, has been invalided home, and is at present a patient in a military hospital in the south.

Noel, one of the famous "Tobruk rats," saw much service in the Middle East, and was eventually wounded in the big push at El Alamein on October 28 last. A smashed knee is the chief trouble.

The sporting fraternity will remember Noel as an all-round performer. One of the best centre three-quarter footballers of his day, his spectacular diving tackle won him much applause, and saved his side many points.

As a cricketer he has scored 1000 runs in a club cricket season, and holds cups for singles and doubles championships in district tennis. Bowls, however, will have to be his recreation in future.

His many friends will welcome him back.

A.R.P. WORK IN N.S.W.

Thousands of men and women and boys and girls over 15 in Sydney will be asked to enrol as fire guards in the national emergency services' fire fighting service now in process of formation. Wardens will begin this week to distribute to every householder a pamphlet setting out the objects of a fire guard, said the N.E.S. Minister (Mr. Heffron).

STOREMEN AND PACKERS' UNION

GLADSTONE BRANCH FORMED

Mr. J. Gosschalk President

A branch of the Federated Storemen and Packers' Union has been formed in Gladstone. Previously members have been covered from Rockhampton.

Permission having been obtained from the Central Executive to form a branch, a start was made, and at the first meeting 100 per cent attendance was recorded.

Mr. J. Gosschalk was elected president, Mr. R. Haack secretary, and Mr. E. Martin treasurer.

This action by the employees of the Shell Oil Co. marks a definite step forward on the industrial front in Gladstone. If this town is to fulfill its destiny it will assuredly become a large industrial centre, and an organised industrial front will be essential.

Rockhampton branch was not too pleased at Gladstone's independence, but it is one more sign that this town is beginning to assert its rights.

It remains for the citizens of Gladstone to make or mar their town, and the step taken is one more towards what should be the ambition of all—the completed edifice—the city of Gladstone.

TEN ACRES OF VEGETABLES

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA

Comforts For The Troops

The story of how the A.C.F. has provided comforts and cheer for men in the far flung areas of Northern and Central Australia was told by Capt. G. S. Slobom, A.C.F. Hon. Commissioner, who returned from a tour lasting nearly four months covering an area of 700 miles by 800 miles.

Many of these camps are very isolated. At one, which was 35 miles from anywhere, our boys in uniform had put their spare time to good use, and now have charge of ten acres of vegetables, which they are growing for the troops. They had been there for months and seldom saw anyone. Other lonely units are situated at artesian wells, where the duty of the men is to boil water for cups of tea for passing convoys.

Capt. Slobom said it gave him the greatest pleasure to be able to provide wireless sets, playing cards, and other cheery comforts for those lonely men who see no one but troops and representatives of the A.C.F. and its affiliated bodies, the Y.M.C.A. and Salvation Army.

The work of the A.C.F. spreads far and wide, and the following extracts from a letter received from a chaplain somewhere in New Guinea gives some idea of the way the comforts are appreciated. The Chaplain wrote:—

"My observations and investigations have convinced me that, under your able supervision the A.C.F. has functioned efficiently and well, and in a manner calculated to bring the greatest possible comfort to those brave lads who have earned the undying gratitude of all Australians.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Pilot Officer V. A. J. Byrne paid a brief visit to the town on Monday. He returned to rejoin his unit yesterday.

A.C.I. Arthur Radford, R.A.A.F., is spending his leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Radford, Fowler Street, Gladstone. Arthur leaves by Friday's train to rejoin his unit in the south.

Private Mervyn Boyle, of Yarwun, is spending his leave with his parents at "Kia-Ora," and will rejoin his unit in the south later in the month. His many friends are pleased to see him looking so fit and well.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND GUILD.

The next Church of England Guild street stall will be held in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, March 26, and donations of produce, cakes, sweets, etc., will be much appreciated. The secretary is Mrs. M. Brawn, the Rectory, Gladstone.

BOYNE VALLEY

PATRIOTIC FUND DANCE

Total Takings £25/18/-

Despite the inclement weather the usual monthly dance, held under the auspices of the Boyne Valley Patriotic Fund, was a great success, both financially and socially. The music was again provided by the ever popular orchestra, Mrs. Dougall (piano), Mr. L. Pownall (cornet), and youthful Brian Pownall playing the drums like a veteran drummer.

The Patriotic Fund is indeed grateful to these musicians, as they supply the music for all the patriotic dances free of charge.

A case of pineapples (donated by Mr. F. F. Lee) was raffled, Marion Ganter being the winner.

A whip (made and donated by Mr. Beresford) was raffled and won by Darcy Robertson.

Mr. E. Steel donated the chocolates for the chocolate waltz, which was won by Percy Whetter.

Mrs. Wengert donated the ladies' prize for the Monte Carlo, and Mr. Waite the gents' prize. Miss Muriel Lindley and Mr. P. Whetter were the winners.

The financial result was as follows:—door takings £8/8/-, raffle of pines £4/12/-, raffle of whip £3/0/6, chocolate waltz £1/5/-, and Monte Carlo 9/-.

Donations were:—J. N. Pownall £2/2/6, A. J. Cooke £1/6/-, M. M. Moran £1, W. H. Harman 5/-, A. R. Wagner 10/-, Miss J. Davies 2/-, Miss M. Gray 2/-, 26 memberships at 2/- each, £2/12/-.

The total takings for the night amounted to £25/18/-.

The donations include some regular donors towards the Red Cross P.O.W. adoption scheme.

THIRD LIBERTY LOAN

ALL-OUT EFFORT WANTED

£10 Bonds By Instalments

Increased quotas of cash and, in some cases, subscribers for the £100 million third Liberty Loan, officially opened by Mr. Curtin on Monday night, reflect the Government's confidence in the capacity of metropolitan and country towns to face up to the loan's challenge.

The money quotas are necessarily higher than those set for the record-breaking Austerity Loan, because the whole of the £100,000,000 required in the third Liberty Loan is new cash, whereas £22,000,000 of the £100,000,000 Austerity Loan was obtained by conversion.

The War Loans Campaign is convinced that, with the vigorous co-operation of loan committees, many of which have been strengthened for the occasion, the new quotas will be reached.

In the last loan, thanks to the unstinting work of committees and the magnificent response of country people, most towns created new records. Some of the outstanding per capita contributions came from some of the smallest places in Australia.

It is hoped to obtain at least 500,000 subscribers, and thus beat the record of 458,000 who over subscribed the £100,000,000 Austerity Loan by more than £4,000,000.

As in past loans, it will be possible for subscribers to the third Liberty Loan to obtain £10 bonds by instalments, these being as low as £1 down and £1 for nine months on each bond.

In an emergency, Government bonds can always be sold at market price, and the money obtained promptly. Any bank will arrange the sale of bonds for an owner at any time.

WIRELESS PROGRAMMES.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—I would be much obliged if you would publish these few lines to enlighten some of your readers that I am not the author of the outburst which appeared in a recent issue of the "Observer" regarding wireless programmes, and signed J. Campbell, Calliope.

If Mr. Jim Campbell carries out his promise, maybe Calliope will be more peaceful, though I sympathise with the cook.—Yours, etc.,

J. M. CAMPBELL.

BOWLING

ATHELSTANE CLUB VISIT

Win for Gladstone

Gladstone representative bowlers put up another good performance over the week-end when they met and defeated Athelstane Club, Rockhampton, in the second round of the pennant competition. The visitors were successful on only one rink, where McNeil's four beat Loveday's quartette 24 to 17. The other three rinks all ran away to comfortable wins for the home players.

Percy Friend's rink beat Johnston's, 29-17.

President Busteed's rink beat Leach's 25-13, and Cooper's men beat Baxter's 34 to 16.

Gladstone won by 105 points to 70.

The visitors were entertained at afternoon tea, which was provided by the ladies.

Details (Gladstone shown first):—

Comino, Joyner, Johnston, Loveday v. Green, Stumm, Shillam, McNeil 17-24.

Henery, Chapman, Drewe, Cooper v. Pembleton, Chapman, Edwards, Baxter 34-16.

Hogan, Archay, Greasley, Busteed v. Bryan, Fitzpatrick, Wilson, Leach 25-13.

Sly, Cameron, Humphries, P. Friend v. Jackson, Murray, A. Jackson, Johnston 29-17.

SINGLES.

Jack Comino had a good win in the singles when he beat H. V. Loveday 32-24. Although the scores were comparatively close, Comino did not look like losing at any stage.

Arthur Joyner went away to an early lead in his match with Lindsay Cameron, but the banker was too solid at the finish, and won 31-23.

HOGAN-BUSTEED WIN PAIRS.

A good combination in J. Hogan and M. Busteed had to fight all the way to defeat Bycroft and Humphries by a single point 19-18. The scores were level at the 20th end, but the business pair emerged victors.

SOCIAL MATCHES.

Friend, Dennis, Dr. Skinner, Edwards v. Mackay, Schmidt, Archay, Greasley 26-21.

Menzies, Barker, Ogg, Cooper v. Henery, Chapman, Drewe, Cooper 25-16.

Witty, Coxon, Duff, S. C. Wilson v. Lodder, Seaton, Buetell, G. Wilson 31-17.

Perry, Dr. Skinner, Weiske v. Hixon, Browne, Dennis 39-10.

Schmidt, A. Friend, Golding v. Ferris, Bycroft, Ogg 21-20.

Corones, Wilson, P. Friend v. Duff, Jackson, Weiske 25-17.

Witty, Browne, Golding v. Ferris, Garrett, Johnstone 27-25.

HARBOUR BOARD

Monthly Meeting

The ordinary monthly meeting of the Board was held on Friday. Present: Mr. A. W. Drewe (chairman), and Messrs. W. R. Golding, J. F. Donovan, E. W. Crow, C. S. Schache, R. S. Wilson, and A. D. Hopper (secretary). An apology was received from Mr. C. W. Macfarlan, who was granted leave of absence from the meeting.

UNABLE TO QUOTE.

Messrs. Parbury, Henty & Co. advised they were unable to quote for the supply of imported 2½-inch canvas fire hose, as all supplies had been taken over by the Commonwealth Government.

ELECTIONS.

The Treasury Department forwarded a copy of a letter to local authorities that the Harbour Board elections would be held on May 1 in conjunction with the local authority elections.

DONATION.

Gladstone Ambulance Brigade asked for a donation.—It was decided that the usual donation of £5/5/- be made.

FINANCIAL.

Payments amounting to £1178/14/11 were confirmed, and accounts amounting to £98/8/- were passed for payment.

GENERAL.

The Chairman (Mr. A. W. Drewe) and Messrs. J. F. Donovan and C. S. Schache were appointed a sub-committee to meet the Electric Light Committee of the Town Council to discuss charges for electric power supplied to the Board.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

KREMLIN AND PEOPLE

MUTUAL UNDERSTANDING

Essential to Post-War Reconstruction

Throughout the period preceding Russia's involvement in the war, she was greatly misunderstood abroad, and did little to dispel foreign misunderstanding. Many people have had to readjust their ideas of Russia to no small extent, and there can be no doubt that mutual understanding between Russia and her Allies is essential to post-war reconstruction.

For our knowledge of Russia we are dependent upon what we read in our daily papers and on books written by people who have lived in Russia, particularly members of the diplomatic corps and correspondents of the great newspapers.

Newspaper reports and books often bear conflicting testimony to the truth. Each reporter sees with his own eyes and seeks to interpret the facts with which he has been brought into contact. Discerning and even critical reading is therefore necessary if we are to get an accurate picture of what is happening in this most populous of European countries.

Many people who have a fair idea of what took place in Russia at the time of the Bolshevist revolution have little clear or accurate knowledge of what has happened there during the last ten years. Apart from an understanding of what has taken place in Russia throughout the last decade, there can be only inadequate or false estimation of the existing conditions of affairs there, and of the trend of events on which the future of Europe and the world must largely depend.

Mr. Walter Duranty is in a position to be able to provide us with much of the information about Russia, and he has so provided us in his book entitled "The Kremlin and the People."

Mr. Duranty was for many years correspondent in Russia for the "New York Times," and has been referred to by Mr. Bernard Shaw as "the king of reporters." It has been suggested that he might be described as the first and last man to see modern Russia, for he went to Russia in 1920, spent many long years there as a newspaper correspondent, and visited it again in the spring preceding Hitler's invasion.

The author points out the difficulty of any man compassing mighty Russia, where there are 79 different major languages and hundreds of minor dialects. Nevertheless, he goes on to say:—

"They act alike and think alike, and this goes for the Tsarist emigres as it goes for the Bolsheviks at home. Russians are always Russians, and every Russian is the same Russian—kind, cruel, hospitable, envious, suspicious, affectionate, generous; will shoot you as soon as look, and if he happens to miss, might kiss you the next minute on both cheeks."

We are reminded that in 1914 the will of the Tsar was law, and that there were then in Russia no Magna Charta, no process of habeas corpus, no freedom of press or speech, and that the whole country was run for the benefit of about five per cent of the population, "that only one out of five could read or write, that the top-dogs lived in luxury and splendour to make even Hollywood blink, and the others lived like pigs, in filth and disease and hunger."

He tells how it was that Lenin turned Bolshevik: "In one of the great moments of my life, on the day after Lenin died, I heard his widow tell why her husband became a Bolshevik. He had, it seems, a brother older than he, whom he loved. This brother was educated in St. Petersburg, and maintained, as any boy would—he was only twenty-one—friendship and correspondence with some of his classmates there. He wrote a letter to one of them, just the usual sort of letter about how are things with you, and I'm doing this and that, and let me hear from you soon, and what are your plans, and so on—an ordinary letter. But it seems the boy who received it was closely involved in the assassination of the Tsar, which happened about that time. So the Tsarist police hanged him, and for good measure hanged Lenin's brother as well, because he had written that letter."

When he went to Russia he thought that Bolsheviks were disgusting, but as he came to know them he felt compelled to revise his estimate. Stalin, he points out, has greater power over more people than any other man ever before him, save the peerless Alexander of Macedon, the lord of the then known world.

He regards the murder of Kirov as a very momentous event, because it "marked the end of a period of internal conciliation in the U.S.S.R. and drove the Kremlin to the fantastic 'treason trials' and the 'purge' which undermined the Soviet party abroad, and thus aided the machinations of Hitler and his friends in London Paris, and elsewhere. It is to be remembered, however, that is was by means of these events that Russia was freed from anything in the nature of fifth columnists, and is now able to face her enemies without any enemies in her own camp.

It now seems evident that the Russian traitors were tools in the hands of Hitler and his fellow Naxis, and that had Hitler succeeded in his intrigues the European situation would now be vastly different from what it is, and Russia would have gone the way of France.

The mater is well put in a statement made by a Frenchman:—

"Yes, it must have been awful, like a madness, as you call it. But don't forget, mon ami, that in Russia they shot the fifth columnists, and in France we made them cabinet ministers."

Mr. Duranty reports Sir Stafford Cripps as having made the most successful prophecy he had ever encountered, when he said at a press conference: "I am convinced that Hitler will attack Russia before the end of June. You think he will strike at England first, but I tell you he will launch an attack against Russia before the end of June." This prediction was made in February.

Hitler made the mistake of thinking the Russians would break as the French had done.

Despite the fact that, at the time of writing the Red Army had not launched its great winter counter-offensive, Mr. Duranty was convinced of the ability of the Russians to deal with the Germans, a conviction we are now able to see to have been well founded.

COMFORTS FUND

MONTHLY STREET STALL

Donations Asked For

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the joint A.C.F. and Patriotic Appeal Fund will be conducted in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, March 19.

The convenors (Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen) would much appeciate donations of jam, fruit, cakes, vegetables, sweets, or any other home manufacture or articles for sale on that date.

Donations may be left with the convenors, or at Gladstone Cash and Carry.

THE DAIRYING INDUSTRY

Proposed Award Opposed

Opposition to the application of an award to the dairy industry unless and until producers were assured of production costs plus any additional expense entailed by such an award, was expressed at a meeting of the State Executive of the Queensland Dairymen's Organisation.

The acting secretary of the organisation, Mr. F. A. Cushon, stated that a resolution to this effect had been forwarded to the Australian Dairy Farmers' Federation, which body is acting in conjunction with the Commonwealth Dairy Produce Equalisation Committee in submitting a fresh case for a price increase.

A report that the Labour Minister (Mr. Ward) intended taking immediate action to refer to the Arbitration Court the question of wages in the industry had caused much concern to the executive.

The Q.D.O. President (Mr. W. L. Osborne) said his organisation very much doubted whether the additional 3½d a lb. for butter and 2d a lb. for cheese, recommended by the Dairy Committee of Inquiry, would be sufficient to enable the industry to provide award wages and conditions for its employees.

In spite of any suggestions to the contrary, the Queensland Dairymen's Organisation had never advocated the introduction of an award for dairying where seasonal and other conditions would necessarily make its application a matter of considerable difficulty.

CURTIN GOVERNMENT.

SERIES OF BITTER DEFEATS

Five Times in Two Days

Senate Opposition Leader, George McLeay, the genial South Australian, is displaying qualities of real leadership at Canberra.

Last week he administered a series of sharp and bitter defeats to the Curtin Government, shocking it out of its Parliamentary complacency and reminding it that Nemesis awaits a Prime Minister who presumes on the early popularity of his Government.

During last week Senator McLeay

Forced the Government to authorise the Taxation Department to refund tax credits.

Compelled it to relieve soldiers' deferred pay of all taxation.

Induced the Senate to request elimination of the National Welfare Fund "tack" in the Income Tax Rates Bill.

Threw out the Government's motion to withdraw the request.

Refused to consider the National Welfare Fund Bill until the dispute between the two Houses on the "tack" issue was resolved.

To do this, he, with the help of a loyal united Opposition, defeated the Government five times in two days.

SECOND-HAND CARS

MANY INQUIRIES

Trade Brisk

Trade in second-hand cars in Brisbane is brisk, notwithstanding petrol problems, tyre shortage, and the difficulty of getting repairs done without a priority order.

An owner who advertised a 1938 model last week had the first 'phone call in reply at 6.30 a.m. By 8 a.m. the car had been inspected and sold.

A second-hand dealer said: "We get dozens of inquiries every week, but can't get the cars to supply the demand. If a car comes in it is snapped up immediately, irrespective of age or condition.

"Most of the buyers have never owned a car previously. They are earning more money now than ever before, and imagine a car is an investment, even though it might have to stand unused.

"I ask how they will manage for petrol, but they seem satisfied if they get enough for a night at the pictures occasionally.

"Not even the possibility of tyres being impressed is a deterrent. They have the money to spend, and want to spend it on something tangible."

THE YOUNG CHURCHILL

Peep at the Past

Clare Sheridan, speaking on the British Prime Minister in a B.B.C. radio newsreel, said:—

"I think the outstanding feature about Winston, as I look back over the years, is that from the earliest times he impressed everyone with a sense of his high destiny. As early as 1902, when I was a small girl in a French Convent, I treasured a letter from him for the sake, as I noted in my diary, of the autograph.

"Earlier still, when he was a schoolboy and I was in the nursery, I remember his tin armies, set out in battle array upon a huge trestle table. Whatever he does, he does with all his concentrated attention, be it painting, bricklaying, piloting, dictating.

"It is said that heredity often skips a generation. Winston certainly derives his chief traits from our American grandmother, Jerome, a noble personality. She had that same brooding, forceful thoughtfulness. Even her love of France has been transmitted to us. She was a great friend of the Empress Eugene, and lived for seventeen years in Paris with her three beautiful daughters. But for the war of 1870 they might never have come to England. It is said that she was magnificent in a crisis."

WARDER STABBED.

William Hogg, a warder, was stabbed in the neck three times with a knife at Parramatta Gaol on Saturday last. He is in hospital in a serious condition, but is expected to recover. A prisoner with whom Hogg was talking when he was attacked was gashed on the wrist by someone, but he has refused to make a statement.

AT TIMOR

FIGHTING BEHIND JAP LINES

Vivid Description

An Australian commando gives a personal account of the fighting behind Jap lines at Timor. Here are extracts from this vivid description:—

The Japs happened to arrive on the same night that the Portuguese troops were expected. When the Japs marched in singing, talking and laughing the population was dumbfounded; they had expected Portuguese.

There were only 20 Australians on the 'drome to meet the Japs. For six hours those men fought at least 500 Japs, but only three of them were lost, notwithstanding that they had only light Brens, Tommies, and rifles—no artillery or mortars.

About dawn the men blew up the 'drome, and under cover of the confusion escaped through Dilli into the hills, picking up a truck on the way. But the Japs had infiltrated, and they were ambushed.

Private Poynton, who had been on the 'drome, broke up the ambush with grenades and a Tommy. That earned him the D.C.M.

Believing that the rest of the Australians had been cleaned up, the little party moved on to Atomboia, and later joined the main force.

A COMMANDO BATTLE.

The whole company then moved off in the direction of the coast, not without having several tough brushes with the Japs. By then the men were reorganised for actual commando battle.

A few signallers had a grandstand view of the Jap landing. A few explosions were heard early in the morning by the four boys at the signal station. When they got up they saw the invasion fleet riding in the bay. Planes were giving cover while hundreds of men were being landed.

The main Australian company carried no food supplies, and the men were dependent on what they could gather from the wild country.

One of the signallers, Joe Loveless, began building a wireless set to contact Australia in the hope of securing supplies. Two months went by, full of heartaches and disappointment for the signallers, who worked desperately to make the transmitter. Finally they fixed up a set which contacted Darwin.

MAIL BUILDS MORALE.

Commando morale rose 1000 per cent when it became known that Australia had answered. Later we received quinine, boots and money from the mainland. Malaria was becoming bad, and the quinine was a God-send. But the mail packets were much better medicine.

The Japs were trailing us all the time. The men were split up into sections to cover the track leading from Dilli.

As the Japs rolled along the tracks in motor trucks they were attacked, and as they jumped off the trucks they were potted. These ambushes harried the Japs, and they withdrew to Dilli—a distinct victory for the Australian commandoes.

After a few months this type of warfare became more intricate. At first the Japs were easy targets, moving along open tracks, sitters for expert marksmen. The Japs were forced to adopt different methods, and resorted to their Malaya tactics—infiltrating through the bush.

DOGFIGHTS CHEER TROOPS.

In August the Japs organised a big drive. They struck from the north, south and west simultaneously, which forced the Aussies to hit and run for ten long days. They were tough days.

Bombing became very consistent, and dogfights provided excitement on many occasions. Those R.A.A.F. boys were game. Unlike the Japs, they had no fighter protection, but they reached their targets undaunted. The Flying Fortresses were crackerjacks: Dilli burned for five days after they had presented their compliments.

NEW MANPOWER MOVE.

The Prime Minister of New Zealand (Mr. Fraser) has told Parliament that the time had arrived to reconsider reallocation of the Dominion's manpower between the military forces and the urgent needs of industry. It might be possible, he said, to release from the army those in the 18-19 group, who desired to return to civil life. The War Cabinet was of opinion that the forces in the Middle East and the Pacific should be maintained at fighting strength although at the successful end of the Tunisian campaign the question of the future role of the Second Division would have to be reconsidered.

SIR ANDREW CUNNINGHAM

Tells a Good Story

Admiral of the Mediterranean Fleet, Sir Andrew Cunningham, told a good story in an interview last week. It may well join the history-book story of Sir Francis Drake and his game of bowls when the Spanish Armada was sighted. Here it is:

Asked how our intentions were masked immediately before the Battle of Matapan, in which the Italians learnt a lesson the Spaniards discovered nearly four centuries ago, Sir Andrew Cunningham said:

"As a screen I golfed in the afternoon before the fleet went to sea with the blunt end of the Axis—the Japanese Consul at Alexandria."

TAXI DRIVERS FINED.

Two taxi-drivers, Samuel Hamilton (25) and George Beake (37) were fined £17/10/- and £14/10/- respectively, for having 88 gallons of aviation petrol in their possession which had been stolen from an airforce station. Brisbane police stated that Beake poured 44 gallons down a sewer when he heard they were on the case. The accused obtained the petrol from an airforce corporal, each paying £11 for a 44-gallon drum.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

OWING to the increase in trading expenses I am compelled to raise the price of Sawmill Wood to 10/- a load as from Monday, March 15th, 1943.
W. McLEOD.

PUBLIC MEETING.

ALL Persons who are interested are invited to attend a Public Meeting to be held in the Town Hall to-night (Wednesday), March 17th, 1943, at 7.30 p.m., the object being to form an organising committee to support the Third Liberty Loan.

MULTIPLYING the Nation's Wealth

THERE is a good deal of loose talk about Security in these days. Many people are beginning to think of Security as if it were the mainspring of life, whereas Opportunity, Enterprise, Energy and Courage are the qualities that make the world go round and provide such security as is good for us.

The A.M.P. Society exists solely to provide Security for its members—on an average it helps one family in every two in the Commonwealth to provide against the risks of life and death—but it knows that before there can be a general Security there must be a multiplying and conservation of the Nation's wealth, and not a dividing of it. Before there can be Security there must be Work and Production. The farmer does not succeed by eating his seed corn but by going out manfully to prepare the land for its increase.

To date the A.M.P. has put £50,000,000 of its members' conserved earnings into Commonwealth Loans. It is adding to this at the rate of £500,000 a month.

MEAT A STAPLE FOOD

Cheap Cuts Valuable

Meat is one of our staple foods, and whilst it is really necessary at least once a day, there is no need for it to be served at all meals. Eggs for breakfast, salads for lunch, and for the heavier meal at night meat, of course, is the logical choice, though there is no need for the dish to be expensive.

Because all meat contains protein and is a muscle building food, housewives can get just as much nutritive value into the dinner menu by selecting cheap cuts, when it is a strain on the family purse always to buy the more expensive cuts. There is scarcely any difference in the amount of protein in meat selected from different parts of the animal, be it beef, veal, mutton, lamb, rabbit, poultry or pork.

Tougher cuts of meat have an excellent flavour as well as food value. Therefore it is in accordance with "austerity" to make the most of cheap cuts.

But while, when cooked, there is not much difference in flavour and nutritive value, there is certainly a difference in the way the cheaper cuts should be cooked.

The best dishes you can make from the poorer cuts of meat are stews and casseroles. Think of the extra food value when you add vegetables. It makes almost a meal in itself. Have you ever tried a hay box when cooking stews?

Shorter methods are satisfactory, too, if you carefully choose your cut and have the meat minced or ground.

This cuts up the tough fibres, and mixed with fresh breaderumbs and seasoning, can be made into many delightful dishes, such as rissoles, patties, or hamburgers.

An appetising way to make hamburgers is to grill them, or bake them in a hot oven. These are excellent served with bacon and vegetables.

If you have more time, mould the mixture into a meat loaf and bake it. Serve with gravy and baked vegetables like a joint. It cuts well when cold, too. There is no waste, and there is a difference in the cost.

Then there is always stewed mince and dumplings with vegetables for a cold day. When cooking the meat, add a little lemon juice or vinegar to the stock. This helps to make the meat tender.

And last, but not least, pound the steak with a rolling pin when preparing it. You will find that the tough fibres will wilt under this treatment. Use moist heat in cooking, but for a shorter time. This will give most satisfactory results.

VITAL RAW MATERIALS

A World Shortage

Every country in the world is suffering from shortages in some vital raw material, and ingenuity and necessity have built the war years into an age of substitutes.

Soybeans, corn, cottonseed and linseed are being used in America to produce rubber, which, though not suitable for tyre rubber, makes good insulating mats, hose linings, adhesive and belting.

Soybean rubber, called agripol, is produced from soybean oil, from which fatty oils have been extracted before being treated with ethylene glycol.

As tyres have never accounted for more than 50 per cent of American rubber consumption, agripol and similar substitutes will go a long way towards relieving the acute rubber shortage in the States.

Rubber has also been made from coal. Rubbery fibres found in lignite have been examined by chemists who consider that they are remains of rubber originally in the twigs of a type of shrub now found only in Africa.

A member of the American Chemical Society said, "The conversion of coal into rubber is no more fantastic than its conversion into beautiful dyestuffs, pharmaceutical chemicals, explosives, and plastics."

DIPHTHERIA IMMUNISATION

Campaign in N.S. Wales

In view of the appearance of an increased number of cases of diphtheria in New South Wales this year, the Health Department has launched another campaign in the interests of immunisation. Local municipal councils are urged to be as active as possible in the matter, and parents are urged to present their children for the necessary injections.

Science has now definitely established the value of immunisation. The percentage of immunised patients is very low, and practically none of the cases in which the patient has been immunised prove fatal. Some mistakes probably were made in the beginning, but the experimental stage is now over, and parents are very foolish if they do not afford their children the protection that is available for them.

The health of the community, as well as of the individual, is at stake. There is danger of an epidemic, and parents should think of the possibility of their children spreading the disease, as well as of the sorrow or even bereavement they themselves may suffer.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

China or Glass

Miss Joan Twynam, of "Riversdale," Goulburn, is the first country resident to send a donation to the Red Cross Special Appeal Auxiliary for their sale of china and glass which the Governor, Lord Wakehurst, will open in Sydney on May 18.

Miss Twynam's gift is a Rockingham tea set which has been in her family for 50 years. Old or new glass or china, useful or ornamental, is wanted for the sale, and everything in good condition will be welcome. So follow Miss Twynam's example, and send a donation to the Auxiliary, 39 Martin Place, Sydney.

WILL TO WIN

Challenge to the People

"If we think that, collectively and individually, we can continue to lead our normal lives, leaving the spirit of self-sacrifice to our soldiers and sailors, letting the intensification of our production programme take care of itself, we shall unquestionably risk the danger of a stalemate in our war with Japan."

These are not our words. They are the words of a man who spent ten years in Japan; who was in Tokio when Japanese bombs devastated Pearl Harbour.

He is Mr. Joseph C. Grew, former American Ambassador to Japan, who as early as 1941 cabled Washington that the Japanese were planning a surprise mass attack on American territory.

Australians, immediately threatened by the Japan Mr. Grew knows so intimately, should ponder his words during these days when we are called upon to face up to a vital challenge right here at home—the challenge of the £100,000,000 third Liberty Loan.

PERSONAL QUESTIONS.

We should ask ourselves, as individuals, what part we are playing with our fighting men to win the war; what sort of a partnership we have with those men offering their lives in the battle zones.

We should ask ourselves what we have sacrificed in order that the full sacrifice demanded of us all should not fall exclusively upon the men in uniform.

We should ask ourselves what we have done in past war loans to help to provide the money needed adequately to equip these men, and then decide quickly what share we propose to take in the third Liberty Loan.

THE LOAN MUST BE FILLED.

The loan must be filled so that our soldiers, sailors and airmen can be clothed and fed and supplied urgently with the vital things of war.

It must be filled so that we can achieve ascendancy over our enemies in every department of the war; so that we can maintain the tempo of victory set so magnificently by General MacArthur's men in the Bismarck Sea battle.

NO EASY PATH.

It becomes, therefore, the patriotic duty of every Australian to work as never before, to contribute without stint, to sacrifice to the utmost.

Some Australians may say that new taxation makes it difficult for them to put more money, voluntarily, into the war effort.

The answer is that until we give until it hurts we have not reached a stage of effort, let alone sacrifice, in any way commensurate with that being made by the fighting men depending upon us to stick to them until the job is done.

No country can hope to win a war the easy way. No country could ever win a war if it were composed entirely of peole determined to put into the struggle only what they were forced to put into it.

Those who invest in the Third Liberty Loan will be doubly repaid.

Not only will they have the satisfaction of knowing that their money is fighting for their own safety now and in the future; they will have the comfort of knowing that they have set something aside for themselves and their families—something that will enable them to readjust themselves to new conditions when peace comes, to buy things needed but cheerfully given up during the war, and generally to set themselves up for a happier and more prosperous future.

CONFIDENT APPROACH.

Recent reports from London tell us that the people there—those people who have undergone one of history's most dreadful ordeals—have entered into Britain's Wings for Victory campaign in a carnival spirit. The "most cheerful scenes of the whole war" have marked the campaign, in which the sale of Government bonds, certificates and stamps has reached a record.

It is in this spirit, a buoyant spirit bred of our determination to win, of our faith in our cause and in ourselves, that Australians should set out to fully subscribe the third Liberty Loan.

AUSTRALIAN TROOPS

Canada's Admiration

A special message to Australian troops from Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, who recently arrived here as High Commissioner for Canada, is released in the current issue of an Army educational journal.

The admiration and respect Canada feels for the forces guarding Australia and pushing the Japanese back are as warm as the sentiments Canadians hold for the valiant people who held Britain against terrific odds, writes Judge Davis.

Canada is relatively safe from invasion. This fact has enabled her to become one of the great arsenals of democracy, of the fighting forces of the United Nations in all theatres of war.

Canada shares Australia's pride in the magnificent achievements of Australian warriors in Africa, Greece, Crete, Syria, Malaya and New Guinea. Canada has treasured her sisterhood with Australia since Canadian and Australian troops fought side by side in the last war.

DISLIKE INACTION.

While thousands of your soldiers have already had their baptism of fire and steel, most of Canada's great Army has yet to come to grips with the enemy. Canadian troops have bled and died at Hong Kong and Dieppe, but inaction has been the greatest disappointment of most Canadian soldiers.

Canada has learned many lessons from this war. Our Prime Minister, Mr. MacKenzie King, recently said: "This war has shown us that the way of monopoly, of unrestricted power, whether political or economic, is the way that leads to destruction, desolation and death. The only path to prosperity and peace is the path of equality, of co-operation, and of human brotherhood. The hope of the future lies in the universal recognition of our own humanity."

Canada is giving her all for victory. She is certain peace soon will crown the sacrifices of those who fight for freedom. She recognises, in the announcement of her Mutual Aid Bill, that every soldier who fights for freedom, whether he be British, Russian, Chinese, American, South African or Anzac, is a defender of Canada.

FIGHT FOR EQUALITY.

Canada believes that the way of co-operation and mutual aid is not only the road to victory for the United Nations; it is also the path to freedom and equality for all. That is why Canada is fighting; that is why you are fighting; that is why you and the fighting men of Canada never have been closer in spirit than you are now.

This fraternal kinship, born in the last war, nourished with blood and sweat in this great struggle, will flourish through many generations.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

"MAGIC IN WONDERLAND"

An Enjoyable Programme

A very enjoyable programme was submitted by children and adults alike when Mr. N. Jones and his company presented "Magic in Wonderland" to an appreciative audience in the Parish Hall, which was kindly loaned for the occasion.

Much laughter was caused by Leon the clown, who convulsed the audience with his witty jokes.

The community singing was ably led by the musical vagabond, who also conducted the competition for the children, and played various instruments.

Miss Phyllis Harms did her part well at the piano.

Master Teddy Baynton's tap dancing was also greatly appreciated.

Master Neville Jones' singing, accompanied by the ukele, was a delightful item, as was the solo by Miss Gloria Jones.

Other artistes who helped were:—Joyce Jones, Terry Smith, and Ernie Hay.

Sweets (made by Mesdames Fry, Stewart and Fischer) met with a ready sale.

Mr. Hanson carried out the duties of doorkeeper.

The Red Shield Committee sincerely thanks all who took part, and who in any way helped to make the function a success.

WHY

£300,000 IS REQUIRED IN 1943 BY THE QUEENSLAND DIVISION

DISBURSEMENTS by the Queensland Division of the Red Cross Society must progressively increase in direct ratio to the need and demand for the service it provides. The following figures tell their own story:—

FOR TWELVE MONTHS from 1st July, 1941, to 30th June, 1942, Payments of £167,738 exceeded Receipts of £147,613 by £20,125. EXPENDITURE for 1941-42 averaged almost £14,000 per month. For July, August, September and October of 1942 the average was over £20,550 per month, and it is anticipated that this rate will be increased in 1943.

CURRENT TOPICS

INTEREST FREE LOAN.

The Manager of the Q.N. Bank notifies having received the sum of £200 as an interest free loan to the Commonwealth Government for the duration of the war. The doner wishes to remain anonymous.

BUNDABERG HON. DOCTORS.

Three of the four honorary doctors servicing the Lady Chelmsford Hospital have notified the Bundaberg Hospitals Board that they will not attend patients in the public wards until they receive a reply from the Director General of Medical Services (Dr. Cilento), whom they have approached for certain information.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY BALL.

St. Patrick's Day in Gladstone was celebrated with the usual grand ball, which was held in the Trocadero on Wednesday night. There was a huge crowd present, all previous records being broken. Needless to mention, the function was a huge financial success, and a most enjoyable time was spent, a real carnival spirit. The duties of master of ceremonies were carried out by Messrs. Bert Norris and M. Robinson, while excellent music was supplied by Mrs. W. Forbes' orchestra.

AT THE RAILWAY STATION.

Continuing their good work of farewelling the boys, the Chairman of the Patriotic Fund (Mr. W. R. Golding) and Mesdames C. W. Macfarlan (President of the Comforts Fund) and Mrs. J. W. Garrett (secretary), visited the Railway Station again yesterday afternoon, and on behalf of their respective organisations presented the usual practical gifts. This service has been in operation almost since the formation of the Funds, and the large number of letters received bear ample testimony of the splendid work carried out over a long period.

SOCIAL AND DANCE.

A largely attended social and dance, held under the auspices of the Trades and Labour Council, in the Town Hall on Thursday night, extended a welcome to servicemen. The function was most successful and enoyable, and the duties of M.C. were carried out by Mr. A. Higginson, while splendid music was rendered by Mrs. W. Forbes' orchestra, assisted by Mr. J. Busteed and Mr. Reg. Winters. The President of the Trades and Labour Council (Mr. Bert Heathwood) suitably extended a welcome to the boys, as also did the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Mr. C. Boles (secretary). Each serviceman present received a gift in the form of £2/10/-. The gifts were suitably acknowledged. An excellent supper was provided by the ladies' committee, and those concerned deserve a word of praise for the excellent service.

DRIVE FOR LAND ARMY GIRLS.

The shortage of labour in rural districts is becoming so noticeable that farmers are giving serious heed to the possibilities of our fourth auxiliary—the Australian Women's Land Army. Although there has been a fairly steady stream of recruits for this important service, many more are wanted, because the peak period of harvesting is upon us, and now more than ever before the services of the Land Army are being relied on. To further the recruiting camaign the Deputy Superintendent (Mrs. A. M. Atkinson) is conducting an intensive drive for new members, and is opening her recruiting campaign in Gladstone on Saturday, March 27. At public addresses to women and the Younger Set she will tell the story of the work of the Australian Women's Land Army. She can be interviewed at the National Service Office (Court House), and will give advice on any matters connected with this service.

PUBLIC MEETING

THIRD LIBERTY LOAN

Residents Asked to Invest

A public meeting was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday night, the object being to form an organising committee in connection with the Third Liberty Loan. There were present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), Mesrs. Thomson, J. Robinson, J. Burrows, H. Hall, W. R. Golding, C. W. Macfarlan, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

SUBSCRIBER GROUPS.

After the Mayor had explained the object of the meeting, it was decided that all present be formed into a committee with power to add.

The Mayor and Mr. Burrows were appointed a sub-committee to interview business men with a view to having subscriber groups formed at the respective establishments.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The following officers were elected: Chairman, Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis); secretary, Mr. H. Peters.

ASSISTANCE AND CO-OPERATION.

It was decided that every member of the committee be appointed a canvasser to further the interests of the loan.

With a view to obtaining the assistance and co-operation of local bodies and the various unions, it was decided they be written to asking that representatives be appointed.

ASSISTANCE APPRECIATED.

Mr. Hall expressed his appreciation of the assistance rendered by the Press to the Austerity Loan, characterising it as wonderful publicity, which, in his opinion, was responsible in a large degree to the large number of subscribers, and he felt sure the same assistance would be given to the Third Liberty Loan.

PARTICULRS OF THE LON.

The Third Liberty Loan is issued at par; £100 buys £100 worth of securities, either of Treasury bonds or inscribed stock.

£10 BONDS.

The subscriber may lend for five years with interest at 2½ per cent, or for sixteen years with interest at 3½ per cent, and interest will be payable on March 15 and September 15, which will be calculated from the date funds are lodged. The minimum subscription is £10 for bonds, or £100 for inscribed stock. Anyone already holding £100 of inscribed stock may subscribe any multiple of £10.

PAY BY INSTALMENTS.

Loan applications may be paid by cash with application, or by deposit of 10 per cent, and the balance in one amount at any time up to July 10; by deposit of 10 per cent and three amounts each of 30 per cent, payable on or before May 10, June 10, and July 10; or by deposit of 10 per cent and nine monthly instalments, payable on or before the 10th of each month from May, 1943, to January, 1944, inclusive.

FREE OF STAMP DUTY.

Third Liberty Loan bonds are free from stamp duty. The Commonwealth Bank will hold bonds for safe custody for any investor without charge. Other banks will provide the same service free for their customers.

"READILY REALISABLE."

Should a subscriber require to regain the use of money invested in the loan, bonds or stock are readily realisable. They may be sold through a sharebroker at a very small charge. The Commonwealth Bank, or the subscriber's own bank or savings bank will arrange this without charge other than brokerage.

INVEST NOW.

Gladstone residents are now asked to invest in the Third Liberty Loan.

ENGINE CLEANER WANTED.

Applications for employment as engine cleaner in the Railway Department are being invited in this issue from lads who have attained their 17th birthday and not exceeded their 19th on the 3rd April, 1943.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND GUILD.

The next Church of England Guild street stall will be held in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, March 26, and donations of produce, cakes, sweets, etc., will be much appreciated. The secretary is Mrs. M. Brawn, the Rectory, Gladstone.

GLADSTONE TENNIS CLUB.

The annual meeting of the above club will be held at Mr. P. M. Jones' Newsagency on Wednesday, March 24, at 8 p.m. It is to be hoped that all members and prospective members will endeavour to be present, and help to make this season as successful and enjoyable as these times will allow.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

MONTHLY MEETING

Excellent Work Performed

At an important committee meeting of the Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society, Mr. A. W. Drewe occupied the chair in the absence of the President (Mrs. H. V. Phillips. There were also present: Mesdames L. Golding, H. Browne, E. Cooper, L. M. Hanson, M. Coppin, L. Rigby, R. Yum, H. Hando, E. Friend, M. Ricketts, N. J. Burnhope, E. Johnstone, Messrs. A. H. Friend, and V. A. Summers. Apologies for non attendance were received from Mesdames Phillips, D. Connellan, W. N. Hall, H. Gollnick, Miss A. Joyner and Mr. J. W. Rigby.

SEWING CIRCLE.

The lengthy reports submitted by nine different committees, circles, etc., instanced the phenomenal growth of Red Cross activities in Gladstone and district.

Mrs. L. Rigby (sewing convenor) advised that the attendance had improved wonderfully during the month, with the result that the circle had a big consignment of finished articles ready for headquarters. Coloured quilts were required, and seven had already been completed. Material was on hand for another dozen.

When in Brisbane recently headquarters commented on the quality of the Gladstone work. Both sewing and knitting consignments were always looked forward to.

For the present packing over 1000 finished articles were on hand, 666 being Gladstone, and the remainder Benaraby and Builyan sub-branches. White quilts are also required. Old linen was specially requested, this being required for urgent hospital pads. Thanks were extended Mesdames Cavill and G. Byrne for carrying on during the convenor's absence.

Thirty-three members had their new uniforms, and another six were waiting. Visits to Red Cross work rooms in Brisbane and Stanthorpe were very instructive. Headquarters paid very high compliments to Gladstone garments, certain articles being picked out as examples of perfect work.

KNITTING CIRCLE.

Mrs. D. J. Connellan, knitting convenor, reported that no wool had been bought during the month. 71 skeins given out made 9 prs. socks and 5 sleeveless cardigans. 10 skeins of white knitting cotton had been given out to make socks for tinnea patients. Thanks were due to the ladies who made the following articles:—Sleeveless cardigan, Mrs. McDermott; 4 prs. cotton socks, Mrs. Watson; 3 prs. socks, Mrs. Norris; 2 prs. socks, Miss J. O'Neill; 1 pr. each, Mesdames Simpson, Grenfell, Misses Liddicoat and Gilmore.

The following list of articles, to be forwarded to headquarters, was contributed to by Benaraby, Nagoorin and Many Peaks sub-branches and our own circle:—72 prs. socks, 5 scarves, 15 chest protectors, 15 Balaclava caps, 18 skull caps, 2 prs. gloves, 2 prs. mittens, 1 hotwater bag cover, 9 prs. knee caps, 13 prs. white socks, 4 sleeveless cardigans, 2 long sleeve pullovers. White cotton socks for tinnea patients were still urgently needed, and another appeal was made to all knitters to assist in making these articles.

V.A.D's.

Miss Alma Joyner, commandant Voluntary Aid Detachment, advised that the unit had four officers, 13 fully trained members, and 6 members with hospital hours incomplete. When this training was completed the detachment would have 100 per cent fully trained personnel. At next meeting more new members would join, and first aid classes would be resumed.

On March 8 all members attended a picture programme, demonstrating first aid, etc. It proved very interesting and informative. All V.A.D.'s attend the Ambulance every Tuesday evening at 7.30 for first air practice, and meet all hospital trains in case their services are required.

New officers were assistant commandant, Miss J. Worthington; quartermaster, Mrs. A. H. Friend.

JUNIOR RED CROSS.

Mr. F. C. Thompson, supervisor Junior Red Cross, reported that the first meeting of the year was held on February 17, when 21 members attended at the State School. First aid instruction was recommenced, with a revision of last year's work. Plans for the ensuing year were discussed, and it was decided to commence sewing with the making of stuffed toys.

HOSPITAL VISITED.

Mrs. Hilda Gollnick, reporting on behalf of the Hospital Committee, advised that since February 18th 42 visits had been paid 42 servicemen, and cigarettes, matches, writing material and magazines left with them. The boys now looked forward to these visits, and express thanks to the branch for making such a service possible. The sisters and nurses at the District Hospital were thanked for their unfailing courtesy in giving information concerning patients and their needs.

BENARABY SUB-BRANCH.

Miss D. Colyer, secretary, advised that the Benaraby sub-branch had sent 147 articles to Gladstone, and had received an acknowledgment for same. Recent floods had interfered with entertainments arranged. The canteen orders forwarded to the Benaraby members of the forces were received and greatly appreciated by all.

P.O.W. STREET SCHEME.

Messrs. Summers and Connellan, co-organisers, reported that the prisoners of war street adoption scheme was well under way, and thanks to the splendid work of Mesdames Coppin, Watson, Elliot, Ricketts, M. Tait, Hallom, F. Johnstone, Hartley, Lodder, Miss M. Hill, assisted in collections by scouts from Nos. 2 and 3 Groups, it promised to be a record revenue producer for the branch. Of a total of £150 received to date, nearly £70 had been collected in the 14 days of March. The organisers, with Mrs. Coppin and the joint hon. secretary (Mrs. Browne), had put a lot of work into the organisation, and it was hoped to complete the balance of the town during the month. The little gate tags had been affixed, and were undoubtedly a striking advertisement for the scheme. In recognition of their great assistance, Boy Scouts were to be given the honour of attaching the large street signs now available. Long streets, like Gondoon, Auckland, etc., had taxed the energy and canvassing abilities of the ladies, but they had come through with flying colours. High tributes to the Red Cross by returned boys had been of great assistance, and letters from prisoners of war proved the immense value of the service.

FINANCIAL.

Mrs. A. H. Friend reported that Paddy's market had again been very successful, returning £35/14/-. The financial statement revealed receipts totalling £109, principally P.O.W. scheme £73/13/-, and entertainments £19/1/-.

AN OPEN LETTER

TO WOMEN OF GLADSTONE

Visit of Mrs. Atkinson

Because of the urgency of the call, I pen this letter to the women of Gladstone and adjacent areas, who are between the ages of 18 and 50 years and not gainfully employed.

As officer commanding the Land Army on the field in Queensland, I am personally visiting your city, that such women may have an opportunity to visit me and receive first hand knowledge and advice in connection with this, the Fourth Auxiliary service to the Navy, Army, and Air Force.

I am seeking women under alternative conditions of enrolment:—

1 For my standing army during the duration of the war;
2 For the Army Auxiliary, into which we enroll women for upwards of two weeks and longer. Such auxiliary members camp with us, receive award rates of pay, working clothes and boots, and all fares to and from camps are paid.

I, therefore, call on girls about to take holidays from Government offices, other offices, shops and factories. Won't you devote those days to us? Your help will not only allow a permanent army girl much needed leave, but remember the greatness of the service. No ship can put to sea, and no boy can climb ranges or fly without food. Munitions need our cotton crop.

All camps are run under army conditions, with picked officer matrons and cooks.

It's a health giving service. Two for your country and one for yourself.

Join the soldiers of the soil, the army behind the army.

If you've a husband, son, brother or sweetheart in the forces, don't be content to talk and write about him—work for him.

Make your appointments now with the National Service Officer (Gladstone Court House), who will advise you of the date of my arrival.

Direction of women in Queensland is at hand. Be a volunteer.

A. M. ATKINSON,
Officer commanding Queensland on the field.

AMBULANCE BRIGADE

MONTHLY MEETING

Certificates Presented

Mr. A. T. Power presided over the monthly meeting of the Ambulance Brigade, and there were also present: Messrs. A. S. Fry, H. N. Ballantine, W. O'Reilly, W. Ross, Geo. Wyatt, and W. V. Coase (secretary).

A vote of thanks was passed to all subscribers during the months of January and February.

BEARER HUTCHEON.

The Chairman (Mr. A. T. Power) presented Bearer P. Hutcheon with a hon. instructor's certificate, which he recently sat for and passed, and congratulated him on his success.

Bearer Hutcheon suitably returned thanks.

CERTIFICATE OF HONOUR.

Two certificates of honour were forwarded to the Brigade for Mr. A. T. Power (chairman) and Mr. A. S. Fry (treasurer) for 20 years continued service on the committee in the Q.A.T.B. (Gladstone centre) by the Executive Committee, Brisbane.

Mr. O'Reilly (deputy chairman), in presenting the certificates, said he had much pleasure in doing so, and congratulated the chairman and treasurer. It was a great honour, he said, to present the certificates, and spoke of the good work carried out by both gentlemen. He trusted they would be spared to continue on the committee for many years to come.

Mr. W. Ross, Mr. W. H. Ballantine, and Mr. G. Wyatt endorsed the remarks.

Mr. Power thanked Mr. O'Reilly and fellow colleagues for the kind remarks, and said he was pleased to receive the certificate, and pleased that Mr. Fry had also received one. They had worked together for many years, both on the Ambulance Committee and other committees for many years. There had been many ups and downs during his 20 years on the committee, but he was very plaesed to see after 20 years that the committee could show a large credit balance.

Mr. A. S. Fry said he was very pleased to receive the certificate, and thanked Mr. O'Reilly for his kind remarks, and trusted he would be spared to remain on the committee for many years to come.

MR. T. L. WILLIAMS

An Error Corrected

The report of the Town Council meeting, published in our issue of Wednesday, March 10, contained, among other things, a long letter from the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams) in regard to a priority for the Boyne River water scheme.

The letter, as published, stated: . . . "You will see that after representations to the chiefs of staffs, Priorities Committee, he (Mr. Forde) has been successful in raising the priority for the Gladstone water supply scheme from 'B' to 'A2,' thus placing it next to urgent operational work. I was very pleased to learn that he had been unable to secure such a priority for the work in Gladstone."

The latter portion of the letter should have read: "I was very pleased to learn that he (Mr. Forde) had been 'able' to secure such a priority for the work in Gladstone."

Mr. Williams has drawn our attention to the matter, and the editor regrets the error, a mistake having been made in typing the letter for publication. There was no intention whatsoever of injuring Mr. Williams; far from it. As the great Gladstone once said, "It is human to ere," and we now take the first opportunity of correcting the error.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Miss M. Leahy, of Ruby Vale, who spent a short holiday with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Smith, Gladstone, has returned home.

L.A.C. John Crowson is at present spending his leave with his wife and family. He leaves by Tuesday's train to rejoin his unit in the north.

Mr. Kev. Wilson, the popular teller of the Q.N. Bank, leaves next week for the south in respone to notice of his call-up. While in Gladstone, Mr. Wilson made a host of friends, all of whom wish him the best of good luck.

C.W. ASSOCIATION

GLADSTONE BRANCH

Various Matters Dealt With

There were nineteen members present at the monthly meeting of the C.W. Association. The President (Mrs. E. W. Uhillips) presided.

SILENT PRAYER.

The meeting opened with the reciting of "My Creed," followed by a two minutes silent prayer for the fighting forces and those bereaved.

WELCOME EXTENDED.

The President welcomed Mrs. Paxton, a member from Rockhampton, and as this was the first meeting after recess, also welcomed all members, and hoped they would have a very happy year.

EUCHRE EVENINGS.

Mrs. Leadbetter reported that the euchre evenings were still popular, and the branch recorded its appreciation to Mr. D. Jackson for kindly assisting Mesdames Irwin and Leadbetter to carry on this work.

HOSTESSES.

The President suggested that hostesses for afternoon tea be taken in alphabetical order. This was agreed to.

Mesdames Baynton and W. Chapman were the hostesses for the meeting, and Mesdames Dennis and Cross will be for the next meeting.

YOUNGER SET.

Mrs. W. Chapman, supervisor for the Younger Set, reported that no meetings had ben held since going into recess, but hoped to resume shortly. They held a very enjoyable party on New Year's Eve, to which they invited servicemen and voted having spent a very happy evening.

NO DISTRESS CASES.

There were no distress cases. One traveller's aid was called upon, which Mrs. Galloway attended to at Bundaberg, and the branch voted thanks to her.

HOSPITAL VISITING.

Hospital visiting has been carried on each Thursday afternoon throughout recess by Mesdames Phillips, Picton, W. Chapman, Ricketts and Burnham.

XMAS EVE.

The president and secretary visited the hospital and presented small gifts to each patient from the branch. Thanks are due to Mesdames Millward, Fleetwood, Bensted, Hillhouse, Stanfield, and A.C.F. for papers, magazines, etc.

The cottage is occupied and in good order.

CAMOUFLAGE NET WORK.

Camouflage net work is going ahead, and twenty nets to date have been sent to Rockhampton. The Junior Red Cross members are now taking lessons, and will soon be able to form a group.

HOUSEKEEPER SCHEME.

The one penny per week scheme was discussed, when several members paid their annual subscription of 4/4. It was decided to vote £2/2/- to executive for the housekeeper's fund, and it is hoped Gladstone will soon be in a position to establish a C.W.A. housekeeper in our own centre.

MYSTERY PARCEL.

The mystery parcel (donated by Mrs. Burnham) was won by Mrs. Phillips.

Mrs. Ogg kindly offered to donate the next parcel, and Mrs. Cross for May.

DEMOCRAT'S STATEMENTS

CASE FOR SOCIALISM

Mr. Funck in Reply

"Democrat's" statement that my idea of socialism represents that state of society, in a primitive form, is not in accord with facts, but if that were so, what a beautiful thing socialism would be when it blossomed into full maturity!

SUPPORT OF FORGAN SMITH.

He complains about my being given space in the press to advocate socialism, the very policy put forward by Mr. W. Forgan Smith, late premier of Queensland, and one who "Democrat" follows, according to his remarks of "Our Australian Labour Party."

Speaking at the A.W.U. annual delegate meeting in January, Forgan Smith said: "In our new order we must postulate the public ownership of the means of production and entire elimination of the profit motive. We do not want a new order; we want a just social order now. We do not any longer want the domination of the nation's resources by vested interests. They mean inflation of land values, and inflation of industrial capital, which in turn mean increased prices, with the worker carrying the burden all the time."

Surely "Democrat," an ardent supporter of Labour policy, will not suggest that Forgan Smith spoke with his tongue in his cheek. Surely "Democrat" will not suggest that Forgan Smith advocated a policy which was not in accord with Labour party ideals, and thus committed political heresy. The only fault with Forgan's speech was he failed to tell the people how to achieve this.

POLITICAL POLICE.

Yes, Russia has her OGPU, and being surrounded by countries whose desire it is to smash this truly democratic state, to wreck this progressive workers' country, must of necessity have their political police to scotch the activities of Trotskyites or their Australian or foreign admirers.

Tell me one country that has not its political police.

CARE OF SICK.

You ask for my version of "adequate provision in illness, etc." In a pamphlet "Health in the Soviet Union." Reg. S. Ellery, M.D. F.R.C.A.P., of Melbourne, one time professor at the Melbourne University, writes: "Diagnosis and treatment are free, no matter how extensive they may be. In dustrial accidents and domestic illness receive immediate treatment, and the worker is paid wages from the first day of disability until he is able to resume his occupation. If he is sent to a convalescent home his wages continue. If he is permanently disabled he receives a pension, which varies according to the degree of his disability."

RETIRING PENSIONS.

Ellery has this to say:—"Men of 60 and women of 55 may retire on a pension. Old age pensions vary according to the length of service: they may be as high as 75 per cent of the maximum wages earned, and are never less than 50 per cent. And Reg. S. Ellery, M.D., F.R.C.A.P., is no "decadent democrat," and the pamphlet costs 8d.

WEEKLY WAGES.

The weekly wages paid in the Soviet Union vary from 400 to 900 roubles a month. The more responsible positions carry the larger salaries. The highest salary is paid to doctors working in leprosariums. Now, if you want what each individual class of worker receives in wages, then you will have to arrange for me to have a full issue of the "Observer." I challenge you to tell me the weekly wages paid under your so-called democracy—I mean to each individual class of worker.

QUEENSLAND BASIC WAGE.

We all know that the basic wage of £4/16/- per week in Queensland is the highest in the Commonwealth, and we also know that it is the minimum amount necessary to replace the labourer's energy burnt up from day to day—i.e., the amount necessary for food, shelter, and poor quality clothing, and to enable him to beget two more of his kind to keep up the supply of labour power.

ARBITRATION COURT.

The Arbitration Court, which is part of the Labour policy, has decreed a basic wage for Queensland of £4/16/- per week for man, wife and two children. Yet even a noted anti-working class Government like the Menzies, Fadden combine realised the inadequacy of this wage, and granted an endowment bonus of 5/- per week for each child after the first. Hats off to the Arbitration Court. Yes, hats off and heads down in shame.

POLITICAL SUPPRESSION.

You ask would any sane person expect the Prime Minister to deport Mr. Fadden. Definitely not.

I ask, would you want Prime Minister Curtin to deport Mr. Forgan Smith for advocating elimination of profit motive, for advocating the public ownership of means of production. You certainly would not, because he is too prominent in the party you follow.

Did you raise your voice against the enforcement of illegality on the Communist party. Definitely not.

Did you raise your voice with the many to have the ban lifted. Definitely not.

You do not want Mr. Fadden suppressed; you would not want Mr. Forgan Smith suppressed. Yet you are quite prepared to have suppressed the Communist party for telling how to put into practice the policy stated by Mr. Forgan Smith at the A.W.U. delegate meeting.

You want to suppress the only party which could and did give leadership in the agitation against sending pig iron to Japan!

THE BALLOT BOX.

Your charge about my remarks concerning the ballot box being crude is possibly due to my inability to choose the correct word to suit you. I did not question when the votes were counted. The point stressed was that we choose not our representatives, but the representatives of the money bags, and the truth of this is borne out by Mr. Forgan Smith's statement at the beginning of this article: "Vested interests dominate the resources of the nation." In the face of this, do you still seriously contend that the parliamentarians represent the people as a mass?

DEMOCRATIC HOYLE.

You cannot dump your "Democratic Hoyle" by pleading confusion, and I do not care whether he is a horse or merely an ass—your Democratic Hoyle, I mean. The reading of your letter satisfied everyone as to your state of mind. If milking cows, separating, and slushing round the cow yards are not considered manual tasks, then would you class it as a game of kindergarten?

SHALLOW HYPOCRISY.

The women of Mt. Larcom and elsewhere worked in the cow yard, and followed the plough, and yes, even used the hoe to till the fields, long before the war started, and will be doing so again until the next war, if the social order is not corrected. But for you to put this down to war effort is shallow hypocrisy.

COST OF LIVVING.

At the outbreak of war the basic wage was fixed by the Arbitration Court at £4/5/- per week, but since the war started the cost of living has increased 22½ per cent, which means if the basic wage had been increased to keep pace with the cost of living it would to-day be £5/3/4 instead of £4/16/-, so the worker is again mulcted of 7/- per week. All glory to the Arbitration Court.

CONTROL OF BANKING.

When you express satisfaction with the domination of Australian resources by the Bank of New South Wales, do not you think that you should give some idea as to what private banks can do that a properly constituted Government bank cannot? If you will not tell me, then please tell Mr. Forgan Smith.

JUMPING RATTLER.

Yes, Stalin, Lenin, Timoshenko, Molotov, Voroshilov and others did "jump the rattler" out of Sibera, where they had been exiled by the Czar and his political police, and the terrors inflicted on them made them all the more determined to see that future generations of Russians would not have to endure these hardships, and this could be prevented only by the introduction and establishment of socialism.

LOANS.

I did not expect you to know anything about N.S.W. or anyone else borrowing £16,000,000, nor do I expect you to know that we are still paying for the Boer war; neither did I expect you to know that out of every sixpence collected in tolls on the North Shore Bridge 5½d goes to the bondholders; and, yes, out of every shilling collected on the Murrumbidgee irrigation scheme 10d goes to the bondholders.

WAR DEBTS.

Of course, the Soviet Government repudiated the war debts incurred by the Czarist regime, but you forgot to say that England surrendered two-thirds of the debts owing to her by France. You did not mention that Italy was made a present of one-third of her debts, and on more than one occasion the annual repayment from England to America had to be suspended.

FINANCING GERMANY.

You did not say that in 1934, after having an interview with Stalin, Lord Beaverbrook informed the Treasury officials that it was necessary to expand production of tanks and aeroplanes. Mr. Montagu Norman (governor of the Bank of England and financial agent to the British Government), and incidentally a private trading bank, informed the Government that the financial position of Great Britain would not allow the extra amount of money to be spent. The same week he financed a loan of £100,000,000 to Germany to build tanks and aeroplanes.

Unlike you, all these statements of mine can be verified by checking. You say, "Under socialism wars and crises are inevitable." I challenge you to prove your statement, confident in the knowledge that on your part it is merely wishful thinking.

MOCK HEROICS.

I fully realised your inability to carry the responsibility you had shouldered, hence my remarks about heroics.

TROTSKY.

Trotsky was no victim of circumstances. His crimes merely caught up with him. He wanted to be not only the jockey on the rails, as suggested by you, but also starter, handicapper and judge, and when he could not accomplish this, was prepared to sell out to the highest bidder.

Even during the counter revolution of 1919 at Tsaritsin, he was prepared to sell out to the forces of intervention, and it was Lenin who despatched Stalin to bring order out of the chaos into which Trotsky as War Commissar, was trying to lead the revolution.

Lenin said of Trotsky (and remember you called Lenin a Messiah), "And yet he isn't one of us; with us, but not of us."

In conclusion, I support the policy of abolition of profit motive, the public ownership of means of production, the end of the domination over the country of vested interests. In short, socialism, which alone can give emancipation from the fetters of capitalist wage slavery.

MORTGAGE BANK BILL.

The Commonwealth Bank Bill, by which the Mortgage Bank department of the Commonwealth Bank will be set up by the Federal Government to assist primary producers, has passed all stages in the Senate.

WOMEN "TRAMMIES"

Women tram conductors are threatening to walk off their jobs if transport is not provided to take them home after working the last cars. The matter will be considered at two mass meetings of tramway unions on Monday.

CAN YOU HELP?

Books, magazines and old clean newspapers are urgently needed by the Gladstone branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. If you have any old newspapers, books, or magazines, kindly leave same at Gladstone Cash and Carry, where they will be collected regularly and despatched to the troops in camp. The camps in the outlying centres are much in need of reading matter and indoor games, such as playing cards, etc. See what you can do.

There's a Pledge Form waiting to be filled in by you which will signify your wholehearted support of Australia's war effort. In the foyer—when you are in or near a theatre—you'll find it a convenient way of expressing your intention to subscribe all you can to the Third Liberty Loan.

MULTIPLYING the Nation's Wealth

THERE is a good deal of loose talk about Security in these days. Many people are beginning to think of Security as if it were the mainspring of life, whereas Opportunity, Enterprise, Energy and Courage are the qualities that make the world go round and provide such security as is good for us.

The A.M.P. Society exists solely to provide Security for its members—on an average it helps one family in every two in the Commonwealth to provide against the risks of life and death—but it knows that before there can be a general Security there must be a multiplying and conservation of the Nation's wealth, and not a dividing of it. Before there can be Security there must be Work and Production. The farmer does not succeed by eating his seed corn but by going out manfully to prepare the land for its increase.

To date the A.M.P. has put £50,000,000 of its members' conserved earnings into Commonwealth Loans. It is adding to this at the rate of £500,000 a month.

VALUE OF DEHYDRATION

Australia's Opportunity

Some of the innovations for solving agricultural war problems in Australia may outlast the war, some will not. Among the probables is dehydration. Dried mutton is now coming from one or two of the new processing centres, and the verdict of those best qualified to judge its suitability for ordinary domestic consumption is favourable. Its culinary treatment, as is the case with any other food product,can make or mar it. Its primary purpose at the present time, however, is not to provide another convenience for flat dwellers said to "dine out of a tin."

LARGE BRITISH PURCHASE.

The British Government is so well pleased with the Australian product that it has already ordered 3000 tons, with the likelihood of an additional 2000 tons before the year is past. The Minister for Commerce and Agriculture (Mr. Scully) expects that big orders will be received from Eastern markets because of its cheapness.

By means of dehydration a ton of meat can be compressed into one-seventh of the space it would normally occupy, and it remains well preserved in cartons for six months, and in tins for two years.

A PASTORALIST'S OPINION.

Mr. R. J. F. Boyer (president of the Queensland Untied Graziers' Association) sees big possibilities ahead of the industry. He recently attended the Institute of Pacific Relations conference in Canada, and while abroad conferred with members of the U.S.A. food relief organisation established by President Roosevelt, which has for its purpose the feeding after the war of the starved peoples of Axis occupied Europe. Famine now ravages Poland, Greece, and other countries, and when the struggle is ended it is almost certain that Europe will face starvation on a widespread scale.

"A dried meat programme is undoubtedly the only answer to any talk of surplus flocks in this country," Mr. Boyer states. "To wilfully reduce our flocks when the meat they represent may mean the saving of countless lives cannot be contemplated. We must push on with our dehydration proposals for Queensland in spite of all opposition."

Within a short time Australia will have ten dehydration factories in operation.

FRESH APPLE PACK.

Before the war a Tasmanian firm of packers was manufacturing an excellent apple product in a form ready for use in pies or puddings, or eaten as fresh preserves. It is still being made, but the product is now required for the fighting services.

This method of processing, plus the rapid expansion of dehydration is already going a considerable distance towards solving the problem of utilising Tasmania's unmarketable apple crop.

It so happens that Taspania's principol culinary variety, the Sturmer, and certainly one of the best cooking varieties produced, is grown more cheaply in that State of low production costs than any other variety, owing to specially favourable climatic and soil conditions. This apple in pre-war days headed the list in point of quantity in Australia's apple exports, and Tasmania provided practically the whole of the shipments.

HOW PREFERENCE IS ESTABLISHED.

To the average Australian housewife a cooking apple is any kind of apple, provided it is green, while, conversely, a dessert apple, to attract her fancy, must be highly coloured. Because of these erroneous distinctions the average Australian household has been denied the best, or unquestionably one of the best, of its choice cooking apples, and the British housewife benefited.

It may be that after the war the Sturmer crop will be sent abroad in tins, and so continue to save hundreds of tons of costly refrigerated space.

The Council for Scientific and Industrial Research is assisting in overcoming dehydration difficulties, and the work of its technical officers appears likely to result in a great improvement on the previous products.

Quality is already being attained by selection of suitable varieties and improved processing technique, and there is reason to expect that a product of high grade will permanently establish itself even on the Australian market.

Before you strike a light remember the needs of the armed forces. The demand for matches is enormous, but the output is adequate for all, provided matches are used sparingly. Some of the chemicals used to make matches have to be shared with the munitions industry. So adopt the slogan: Fewer matches, more munitions.

WAR DAMAGE INSURANCE.

Applications for war damage insurance on household goods and personal effects had been substantially increased immediately following the air raid alarm in Sydney, said the War Damage Commission's Controller General (Mr. Hitchcock). Of the total of £300,000 premiums in N.S. Wales last year for private chattels, renewals totalling £100,000 had either lapsed or had been deferred.

WHY - - £300,000

IS RE QUIRED IN 1943 BY THE QUEENSLAND DIVISION

DISBURSEMENTS by the Queensland Division of the Red Cross Society must progressively increase in direct ratio to the need and demand for the service it provides. The following figures tell their own story:—

FOR TWELVE MONTHS from 1st July, 1941, to 30th June, 1942, Payments of £167,738 exceeded Receipts of £147,613 by £20,125. EXPENDITURE for 1941-42 averaged almost £14,000 per month. For July, August, September and October of 1942 the average was over £20,550 per month, and it is anticipated that this rate will be increased in 1943.

GLADSTONE'S QUOTA £30,000.

The cash quota for Gladstone in the Third Liberty Loan is £30,000, and the subscribers' quota 332. The Calliope Shire is £10,000, and subscribers 324, and the Miriam Vale Shire £5000, and subscribers 158.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND GUILD.

The next Church of England Guild street stall will be held in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, March 26, and donations of produce, cakes, sweets, etc., will be much appreciated. The secretary is Mrs. M. Brawn, the Rectory, Gladstone.

A.W.L. SOLDIER—MAN FINED.

A fine of £25 was imposed on Jask Pasman Chapman in the Ipswich Police Court on a charge that he contravened a provision of the National Security Regulations in that he harboured a member of the defence forces of the Commonwealth who was absent without leave.

TUBELESS TYRE.

Details of a tubeless tyre have been sent to the Department of Supply and development. Officers of the department are greatly impressed with its potentialities. After ten days' running an air pressure check showd that less than ½ lb. had been lost of 40 lb. pressure.

WOMEN TRAM CONDUCTORS.

A mass meeting of members of the Brisbane Tramways Union decided that women tram conductors would not sleep in the bunk-houses the Tramways Department of the City Council intends providing for them in order to avoid having to transport them home after they have worked late trams.

BOWLING

DISTRICT SINGLES

Win for Joe Hogan

Keen interest centred in the semi-final of the district singles between Joe Hogan and George Dennis, as both had been playing good bowls. The former ran away to an early lead, and although Dennis made strenuous efforts to regain it, Hogan eventually won 32-23.

Jack Comino has already entered the final, and he will play the winner of the Hogan-L. B. Cameron fixture for the championship.

In the district pairs Alan Sly and Geo. Wilson advanced a stage further when they met and defeated Henery and Golding 39-14.

Social games resulted:—

Duff, Witty, Dr. Skinner, Busteed v. Garrett, Pugh, Chapman, Jackson 30-22.

Hando, Chapman, Golding, Cooper v. Garrett, Seaton, Drewe, S. C. Wilson 26-17.

A Friend, Weiske, G. Wilson, Loveday v. Sly, Joyner, Johnston, Busteed 34-17.

Dahl, Bycroft, Dr. Skinner v. Coxon, Barker, Dennis 32-19.

Ferris, Browne, Dr. Yum v. Schmidt, Buetell, Matthews 29-21.

Comino, Barker, Archay v. Friend, Browne, Drewe 35-15.

Ferris, Dahl, Dr. Yum v. Menzies, Matthews, Johnstone 22-18.

VICTORY SUIT

Purpose Served

When the order relaxing the restrictions on men's and boys' tailored clothing was promulgated it would be found as liberal as wartime conditions required, said the War Organisation of Industry Minister (Mr. Dedman).

Mr. Dedman said that the victory suit had served a useful purpose in saving civilian wool cloth at a critical time. He believed it would still be sought by many men who knew the value of money and of their ration tickets.

One factor which had contributed largely to the building up of wool cloth stocks in Australia for military and civilian use had been the return of troops from the Middle East.

It was no longer necessary to send such huge stocks of warm clothing overseas. The troops in North Australia and New Guinea generally had light summer kit.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

MONTHLY MEETING

Appeal for Funds

At the monthly meeting of the Society correspondence included a letter from the Secretary Red Cross Bureau, enclosing a communication from the International Red Cross, Geneva, seeking information concerning a Greek citizen, Mr. Vassilis Stratigos, said to be resident at Gladstone, Queensland. The original inquiry came from the Greek Red Cross at Athens. The Secretary advised that he had forwarded the information concerning the death of Mr. Stratigos in Gladstone last year.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS.

The Hon. Secretary (Mr. J. S. Robertson) Red Cross Appeal Committee, advised concerning the urgent need for funds, and the peak set of £300,000 to be raised in 1934. To reach the objective branches would have to exploit every avenue. Details of a pennant competition were enclosed. Red Cross Sunday had been fixed for May 16, and Red Cross week from that date to May 2. The President of the Queensland Division (Lady Wilson) also endorsed the appeal and the need for additional funds.

TYPEWRITTEN LETTERS.

Concerning the recent instruction that only typewritten letters would be delivered by the Japanese to prisoners of war in their hands, many inquiries had been received as to whether the Red Cross could re-write (type) letters for local relatives. In most cases someone connected with the local Red Cross branch would undertake this work for those inquiring.

BUILYAN SUB-BRANCH.

Mrs. L. Muspratt (hon. secretary, Builyan sub-branch) wrote concerning activities at that centre, and advised despatch of a parcel to the Sewing and Knittle Circle.

Mrs. Dicker (Nagoorin) was thanked for an offer to arrange a dance for Red Cross funds.

Mrs. V. Dickinson (Calliope) was thanked for her committee's efforts in raising £19/4/3 for the Prisoners' of War Fund.

GENERAL.

Miss Mavis Barker, hon. treasurer W.N.E.L., Gladstone branch, was thanked for a donation of £5/5/- from her organisation to the P.O.W. Fund.

Mr. H. H. Waddell (Taragoola) was thanked for a donation of £1/1/-.

Letters of thanks were forwarded to Messrs. C. D. Patrick and E. Barker, in charge of Nos. 2 and 3 Scout Groups, for their assistance in connection with the Prisoners of War street adoption scheme.

Messrs. Friends (Pty.) Ltd. were thanked for donation of valuable advertising space in detailing the finances and work of the Gladstone Red Cross.

Spr. James J. Fitzpatrick expressed thanks on behalf of several servicemen for comforts from the local branch during their stay as patients in the Gladstone Hospital. The men fully recognised the devotion of members to the aims and duties of the Red Cross.

In acknowledging notification regarding change of officers, Miss G. Richardson (general secretary) conveyed thanks to the retiring secretary (Mr. Hallam), and congratulated Mrs. Browne and Mr. Summers on their joint appointment. Previous work by Mr. Summers in this position had been appreciated.

It was decided to renew a request that coupons be allowed street collectors P.O.W. scheme for shoes used in this work.

Mrs. Ricketts reported on the work of the entertainment committee, special mention being made concerning the otustanding success of the weekly Red Cross dances.

It was decided that members be advised of the strict ruling that Red Cross uniforms were not permitted to be worn outside of actual Red Cross work, and that a notice be posted in the branch rooms to that effect.

To celebrate Red Cross week in May, it was decided to organise a monster Paddy's market to take the place of the usual function that month, Builyan and Benaraby sub-branches are to be asked to organise their own functions for that week.

PETROL TICKET HOARD.

For having been in unlawful possession of petrol ration tickets, representing 10,990 gallons of petrol, John Piggott, 41, car dealer, was fined £100 and sentenced to 12 months imprisonment in the Sydney Criminal Court. Piggott declined to reveal where he bought the tickets, or the price he paid.

CALLIOPE SHIRE COUNCIL

TRIENNIAL ELECTIONS

Cr. Beak Chairman

Nominations closed on Saturday for the triennial elections of the Calliope Shire Council, the Returning Officer being the Shire Clerk (Mr. H. H. Whittle).

Two nominations were received for the position of chairman, the sitting Chairman (Councillor Walter Beak) and Mr. R. R. Nothling, who filled the position for one term—1936-39.

The Returning Officer (Mr. Whittle) rejected the nomination of Mr. Nothling on account of it being signed by electors of Division 1 instead of by electors of all the three divisions. Councillor Beak, therefore, was elected unopposed.

The Councillors in Division 3, W. C. Dickinson, E. H. C. Steel, and J. F. Drynan were returned unopposed, as were also the members for the Harbour Board, Messrs. A. W. Drewe and R. S. Wilson.

An election will be held in Divisions 1 and 2, the nominations being:—

FOR DIVISION 1.

Messrs. J. H. Cummings, S. J. A. Creed, R. W. Hunt, W. Hansen, and Jas. Schafer. The sitting members are: Councillors Cummings, Creed, and Hunt.

FOR DIVISION 2.

Messrs. Hugh-Neill Ballantine, J. M. Campbell, G. H. Potter, R. S. Wilson, and H. E. Jefferis. The sitting members are Councillars Ballantine, Campbell, and Potter.

CALLIOPE

C.W. ASSOCIATION

Monthly Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Calliope branch of the Country Women's Association was held in the hall on March 18. Present: Mesdames Chandler (president), Armour, Bentley, Dickinson, Ferguson, McKean and Wheeler. Apologies were received from Mesdames Waddell, Simpson, Mylne, McKenna and Courtney.

SILENT PRAYER.

The meeting opened with the recitation of "My Creed," followed by a silent prayer for all on active service.

MEMBERS WELCOMED.

This being the first meeting of the year, the President extended a welcome to members, and explained that rain and flooded streams had made it impossible to hold meetings during January and February.

RESIGNATION OF SECRETARY.

Mrs. H. Wright's resignation as secretary was accepted with real regret, and it was decided that a letter of appreciation be sent from this meeting; also that a silver badge be purchased and presented as a token of gratitude for the friendship and willing help in the work of the branch that she at all times bestowed and rendered.

SECRETARY.

On the motion of Mrs. Dickinson, seconded by Mrs. Armour, Mrs Wheeler was appointed secretary.

DANCE AND RAFFLE

Arrangements were made to hold a dance and conduct a raffle during the month of April.

DONATIONS.

It was decided that a donation of £1/1/- be sent to the Gladstone Ambulance Brigade, and £1/1/- to the Central Executive towards the expenses of removal to Bundaberg.

CAMOUFLAGE NETS.

It was reported that two completed 24ft. x 24ft. nets would be despatched at an early date. The secretary was requested to order more twine and four mesh sticks.

MYSTERY PARCEL.

This month's mystery parcel realised 1/3. It was presented by Mrs. Bentley, and won by Mrs. Wheeler.

PENNY FUND.

The penny fund, which was increased by 3/6, has now to be devoted to the emergency housekeeper's scheme.

PROGRESSING WELL.

Feature of the first five days of the £100 million third Liberty Loan campaign was the steady flow of small investors. This was reported from all States, and it is hoped to get a record number of small subscriptions. The Commonwealth Loans Organiser (Mr. C. R. Banfield) said that the drive for subscriptions from industrial areas was progressing well.

TOWN COUNCIL

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME

Financial Assistance Asked For

The fortnightly meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen J. Deveney, W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson). Apologies were tendered and accepted for the absence of Aldermen M. A. Busteed and R. E. Smith.

EARNING INTEREST.

Department of Local Government, Brisbane, wrote in reference to a credit balance held by the Council in a trust fund, which fund consisted of moneys subscribed by residents of Gladstone for the establishment of an aerodrome, and advised it was of the opinion that there was no legal objection to the Council investing these moneys in war loans. It was for the Council to decide whether or not it would be advisable for the moneys to be invested in long term loans or be available at short call.

It was explained that the money was invested in the Commonwealth Savings Bank, and was earning interest.

NONE AVAILABLE.

General Secretary, Red Cross Society, Brisbane, asked the Council to make available any old blueprints, as same could be made into material for sick and wounded soldiers in hospitals. Handkerchiefs made from blueprint materials were really excellent.—To be advised that the Council had no blueprints available.

"SLOW DOWN" SIGN.

Rev. H. MacNeil Saunders, Gladstone, wrote relative to serious accidents at the Gondoon-Bramston Street intersection, and suggested that steps be taken to have a "slow-down" sign erected at each approach, or other suitable warning to motorists. Further, a stricter regulation of speeds across the intersection would be in the public interest.

It was decided that action be taken in accordance with the views expressed by the Rev. Saunders.

SERVICEMEN.

Trades and Labour Council, Gladstone, asked that a meeting of all interested bodies be convened for the purpose of forming a welcome home committee for servicemen.

It was decided that the Trades and Labour Council be asked to appoint three representatives to meet the Council to discuss the matter raised in their letter.

POLLING BOOTHS.

Trades and Labour Council, Gladstone, asked the Returning Officer to make available additional polling booths at the forthcoming elections, and suggested the following:—Meatworks School, Parson's Point, Eggstein's shop, Town Hall, Hallam's store, and Railway Station.—The matter was left in the hands of the Returning Officer (Mr. Grayson).

GENERAL.

Ald. Deveney asked would the Council, under the new building by-laws, have power to pull down old houses that did not come up to specification.

Ald. Golding stated that old houses would not be affected by the new by-laws. It was only the erection of new houses that would have to comply with the by-laws.

Water Authority

FEDERAL GRANT.

Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) wrote as follows:—

"I am in receipt of your letter of 4th inst., requesting me, on behalf of the Gladstone Town Council, to make representations to the Hon. the Treasurer for a Federal grant of £20,000 to assist in financing the Boyne River water scheme, and intimating that in the opinion of the Council the early completion of the scheme is now a matter of national importance. I am giving the question my immediate attention, and you and your Council may rest assured of my best efforts."—Received.

STATE SUBSIDY.

The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams) wrote as follows:—

"I have to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 5th inst., having reference to your Council's desire to obtain a State subsidy in connection with the Boyne River water scheme. I am taking up the matter with the Hon. the Treasurer, in an endeavour to assist in this direction, and I shall communicate with you as soon as I have any information to convey to you."—Received.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE ASKED.

With a view to obtaining financial assistance from the Railway Department and Swift Australian Company (Pty.) Ltd., in the Boyne River water supply undertaking, Ald. Tudman moved:—

"That we take up with the Minister for Railways (Mr. J. Larcombe) and Swift Australian Company (Pty.) Ltd., advising them that the Council was undertaking a new water supply scheme from the Boyne River, which would assure the town and industries established therein of an abundance of good water for all time at a cost of £120,000.

"The Council had in the past given every consideration to the requirements of these industries, and the now proposed scheme was necessary owing to their increasing requirements.

"The time had arrived when we must seek their co-operation and support, and looked forward to receiving an annual fee from them as a guarantee against their estimated yearly requirements, and thus assure themselves of an adequate supply of water whenever required, and at the same time bear an equitable proportion of the cost of such scheme, and not to be dependant on the generosity of the citizens of Gladstone."

The motion was seconded by Ald. Golding and carried unanimously.

COMFORTS FUND

STREET STALL £41

An Appeal by President

At the monthly meeting of the Gladstone branch of the A.C.F. there were present: The President (Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan), hon. treas. (Mrs. A. D. Hopper), and Mesdames W. Beale, C. Chapman, J. Worthington, W. Chapman, Gordon, Turner, Beutell, Jones, Stewart, and the hon. secretary (J. Garrett). Apologies were received from Mesdames H. C. Smith, W. Keller, and J. Henriksen.

The meeting opened with the National Anthem, followed by a prayer for the members of the fighting forces.

STREET STALL.

The convenors of the street stalls (Mesdames J. Henriksen and C. Chapman) reported the proceeds from the February stall was approxicately £41.

Accounts amounting to £27/16/- were passed for payment.

The convenor of the Sewing and Knitting Circle (Mrs. J. Worthington) reported that from February 12 to March 12 the following goods had been completed:—

18 prs. pyjamas, 27 prs. socks, 83 calico mess bags, 208 handkerchiefs, 43 hussifs, 1 muffler.

Two camouflage nets have also been completed.

Donations of books and magazines have been received from Mesdames C. Cooper, Roebuck, Bauer, McEwan, Ballantine, Whittle, Jones (Boyne Island), Trott, Edwards, W. E. Musprat, P. Vallis junr., Macfarlan, Dwyer, Unie, A. Young, Wood, Horne.

A set of bobs and playing cards was also received from Mrs. Horne (Rockfield).

DAY OF MEETING.

Owing to the street stalls now being conducted on the third Friday of each month, it was found necessary to alter the date of meetings to the second Friday of the month.

AN APPEAL.

The President (Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan) welcomed two new members, and thanked all officers and members for the efficient manner in which the work was carried on during her absence; also Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen for the amount of time and energy devoted to the organising of the street stalls which were conducted monthly for the joint appeal fund.

If all members of the A.C.F. and Patriotic Fund would be thoughtful enough to forward donations of cash or kind to the stall each month without waiting to be asked it would save the organisers much worry and many miles of walking.

As these stalls were now an important source of revenue, Mrs. Macfarlan appealed to members of both organisations to please remember the third Friday of each month.

There being no further business, the President declared the meeting closed.

Electric Light Authority

POWER FOR CRANE.

Harbour Board notified the Authority that it was prepared to meet representatives in conference to discuss the matter of payment for electric power used by the Board's crane. The Mayor (Ald. Dennis), and Aldermen Busteed and Anderson were appointed representatives.

FOR FEBRUARY.

During the month of February the Brigade attended 52 accidents, 160 transports, 48 office cases, total 260 cases.

The cars visited the following places for cases:—Meatworks (4), Calliope (2), Yarwun Road (2), Beecher, Calliope Road (2), Boynedale, Calliope, and travelled 909 miles.

The following donations have been received since last meeting:—Bank of New South Wales £1/1/-, Harry Page £1/1/-, Mrs. L. M. Hewit 6/-, Mrs. Wally Owbridge 4/-, Mrs. C. Schacke 2/-, S. C. Milford 5/-, E. Twaite 4/-, Miss E. M. Wills 5/-, Mrs. Bauer senr. 2/-, ladies' committee £32/2/7, Wall's Camp, Calliope (per W. E. Moller) £2/9/-, Dr. G. J. Byrne £2/2/-, Commercial Banking Co. of Sydney £1/1/-, Mrs. Harman 5/-, bearers' euchre £2/14/-.

James Herbert, A. Allison, F. O. Austin, J. Carruthers, N. Casey, H. Mason, J. Curran, C. Coleman, W. Deveney, J. Chreece, C. Gibbs, G. Hare L. Hanasky, A. Hughes junr., S. Hunter, S. Hill, J. SAVINGS BANK.

Australian savings bank deposits at the end of February totalled £327,491,000, more than three times the amount required for the third Liberty Loan. Deposits were £996,000 higher than at the end of January, and £64,396,000 more than at the end of February, 1942.

FRUIT PRICES.

State action in the fixation of fruit and vegetable prices is likely to be taken. The Premier (Mr. Cooper) indicated this when he said that the Government was seeking permission from the Federal Government to exercise a meausre of control over such prices.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

THIRD LIBERTY LOAN

MORE SUBSCRIBERS NEEDED

Money Must Be Found

When the Prime Minister (Mr. Curtin) revealed to Australians in opening the £100,000,000 Third Liberty Loan campaign the part their hard cash had played in the great battle of the Bismarck Sea, many people got for the first time a realistic picture of how money subscribed to war loans really does fight.

It cost Australia £1,577,000 to strike the blow that wiped out the Japanese convoy of 22 ships and killed 15,000 soldiers, who, if they had landed in New Guinea, would have cost us infinitely more, especially in human lives, before they could have been eliminated.

To win this war the tempo of the Bismarck Sea battle must be intensified. To do that means more planes, more guns, more ammunition, more ships. These things in turn mean more money.

That money must be found.

Let all Australians think clearly in terms of how much of their money they are prepared to turn into weapons of war in order to back our fighting men and save their country, their homes, and their families, and the Third Liberty Loan should be over subscribed in record time.

The Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Fadden), in pledging the Opposition's support at the opening of the loan, reminded the people that the Government must have every shilling it needs to give Australia an effective war effort. He added that the Third Liberty Loan appeal was not confined to any political party or creed. It involved the whole nation.

Similar words were used during the Austerity Loan by Mr. Menzies, who said: "Whatever Government was in power to-day, it would still be asking the people for £100,000,000."

MORE SUBSCRIBERS NEEDED.

The War Loans Campaign aims to obtain at least 500,000 subscribers to the Third Liberty Loan before the campaign closes on April 20. Among that number it hopes to include many thousands of good wage-earners who have so far put no portion of those wages back into the war effort that created them.

As in past loans, it is possible for subscribers, especially small subscribers, to obtain £10 bonds by paying a deposit of £1 and nine monthly instalments of £1.

In cases of emergency bonds can be readily sold for market price and the money obtained promptly.

Investments in the Third Liberty Loan have a double value. They produce money that goes immediately into our struggle for survival; and they provide a handy "nest-egg" for the days of peace, when the maturing of the loan and the return in full of invested money will prove a boon to people adjusting themselves to a happier and more prosperous future.

MOTOR REGISTRATIONS.

Although there was an increase of 541 motor vehicles on the register of the Main Roads Commission in February, there were 2940 fewer vehicles than what the register showed on February 28 last year.

Before you strike a light remember the needs of the armed forces. The demand for matches is enormous, but the output is adequate for all, provided matches are used sparingly. Some of the chemicals used to make matches have to be shared with the munitions industry. So adopt the slogan: Fewer matches, more munitions.

Stewarts & Lloyds have devised perhaps the best check of all plants on their employees. Everyone who joins the firm, having shown the national identity certificate, signs name and address at the Gate House. A pass is issued and it must be signed also. A head and shoulders photo incorporating the pass number and the height of the person, is fixed to the leather-bound folder of the pass. Without this no one is admitted inside the high fence which surrounds the factory.

FIREWOOD

"Come and Get It"

"Come and get it," is the motto of most wood merchants in Melbourne. One at Footscray goes so far as to provide horses and carts, leaving his customers to arrange for drivers.

He said that many men in his district on shift work who had an odd morning off frequently brought orders from friends and relatives. They would stack up a lorry and deliver it themselves.

On one occasion a woman called for wood, saying that she could wait no longer. A loaded lorry was waiting. She mounted it, took up the reins and set off for home.

A Toorak merchant says some of his customers even hired taxis, and by the time they got 5 cwt. of wood home it cost them 30/-.

LIBYA

Foretold Its Fate

Audrey Russell, speaking in a B.B.C. Radio Newsreel the other day, talked about "a Libyan prophecy and its fulfilment." She told how Rosita Forbes, the celebrated traveller, learned of it in Kufra twenty years ago.

The penalty for any Christian discovered in sacred Kufra, she said, was to have eyes and tongue cut out. But, in Arab disguise, with her face veiled, and accepted as "a pilgrim from Egypt," Rosita Forbes was allowed into the Qubba, the tomb of the Senussi saint.

There she learnt of the prophecy: "If an infidel footstep presses the stones of this holy place, within ten years it will be wiped out by the march of an enemy host. But their dominion will only endure for yet another ten years, then it will be swept away like salt on a desert lake."

Miss Forbes went there in 1921. In 1931 the Italians took Kufra. With planes, tanks, and guns the Senussi were driven out to die in the sea of sand. The flame of hate then lit has never died. Ten years later, in 1941, General Wavell's forces seized Kufra. To-day it is an outpost of the Fighting French.

MUSSOLINI

An Italian Story

This pointed Italian story was broadcast recently in the B.B.C.'s French transmission:—

A workman, arriving home tired and hungry after a hard day, finds that all his wife has to give him for his meal is some miserable-looking gruel.

He upbraids her, but she says she has been unable to do better, though not for want of trying.

"To get bread," she says, "one has to stand in a queue for hours; to get macaroni one has to stand in another queue; to get vegetables, in yet another queue, still longer. Everywhere one has to wait, wait——!"

With set jaw the husband gets up, goes to a drawer and takes out a revolver.

"What are you going to do?" his wife asks fearfully.

"I can't stand any more. I'm going to shoot Mussolini." He goes out.

An hour drags by. The door opens, and with a dejected air the husband comes in.

"My poor husband! You have killed him?"

"I was unable to," was the reply. "There, too, one must wait in a queue for hours."

MR. WINSTON CHURCHILL

What Happened in the Moonlight

"Let me tell you another story about Mr. Churchill—about something which happened only a few weeks ago. By the way, it's never been told before," said Mr. Macdonald Hastings in a B.B.C. broadcast.

After a very long meeting, which lasted well into the night, the Prime Minister announced that he was going for a walk in the moonlight. His colleagues were all exhausted, but one of them volunteered to accompany him, and the two set out.

During the walk Mr. Curchill was on top of his form. He discoursed on the beauties of the night, of the history of famous buildings, on memories of his own exciting career. Then suddenly he spotted the statue of a great parliamentarian of the last century. 'Ah,' said Mr. Churchill, raising his hat to 'John Bright.' 'Now, if John Bright were alive to-day, do you know what he'd say to me?' 'Look, I'll give you an impression.'

To his solitary companion, in the dark deserted street, Mr. Churchill there and then gave a burning display of oratory in the Victorian manner. Then, facing about to John Bright's statue, he said: 'And now, I'll show you what Churchill would say to John Bright.' And he gave another brilliant harangue. I wish I knew what he said.

The man who told me the story didn't know. But I'll wager it was grand stuff. And it's the measure of Churchill's greatness that the energy, which even now he's got to spare—the spilling over of his brain at any given moment—is more concentrated than the energy most people can manufacture in a full month."

THIRD LIBERTY LOAN
Brings Chance of Service by all

Each citizen must search conscience on the Third Liberty Loan Investment.

Opening of the Third Liberty Loan gives every man and woman a further opportunity to participate directly in Australia's War effort. The maximum possible contribution is the least expected from everyone.

All must be ready to avoid spending money except for absolute essentials. All savings must be used to buy Liberty Bonds and thus provide the arms and equipment needed by the troops to blast back our enemies to where they belong. No one is asked to give his money, but to lend it to Australia under a written guarantee from the Commonwealth to repay it in full.

QUICK FACTS ABOUT THE THIRD LIBERTY LOAN

1. Liberty Loan Bonds are the safest place in the world for your savings.
2. Good interest is paid half-yearly. If you invest your money for 5 years the rate is 2½% or for the longer term 3½%. Interest starts from the day of subscription.
3. You can pay cash for your bonds, or buy them on convenient instalments over a period of ten months.
4. Arrange your subscription now through any bank, savings bank, money order post office or stock-broker.

Keep your Premiums PAID UP TO DATE

It is good War-time practice, and good family practice, too

THE War has upset both family and business life. It has raised taxes and the general cost of living, and has jolted many people out of their way of life. As a result there are some men and women who fail to pay the premiums on their Life Assurance. Happily, there are not many, but there should be none at all. Life Assurance is one of a man's first duties; it is an essential part of every man's War effort; it protects his family, gives him confidence in himself, and provides money for the War Loans. It helps to stabilize the Nations' finances and makes for National strength.

If you have let your A.M.P. premiums go unpaid, ask the nearest A.M.P. office how your policy or policies stand. If they are policies of some years' standing it is likely that the Society has kept them in force, but do not depend on this. The Society keeps them in good shape for a relatively long time after a member's neglect, but it cannot do it for ever. The wise man pays his premiums when they are due. Enquire how your policies stand. Enquire to-day.

To date the A.M.P. has put £50,000,000 of its members' conserved earnings (their premiums) into Commonwealth Loans. It is adding to this at the rate of £500,000 a month.

HOUSING PROBLEMS

Industrial Stoppages

"My contention is that our strikes to-day are brought about by lack of good housing," said the Hon. J. H. Tonkin, M.L.C., M.I.E., in an exclusive interview with Industrial News Service in Sydney last week. Mr. Tonkin is a Council member of the Town and Country Planning Institute of N.S. Wales. "I work with and amongst the men I employ, and I know what their outlook is.

"In the last war," Mr. Tonkin went on, "we had more of a national spirit. But in 1930, when the depression was at its worst, men who had fought in the last war were put on the scrap heap, and no one cared whether they lived or starved. Now the men are saying: 'We worked and fought in the last war, and look what happened to us in the depression; they won't catch us a second time! This time we're working for what we can get out of it now.'

"We must overcome this attitude somehow, and build up a national spirit, and the only way we can build up a national spirit is by building it in the growing generation. Children whose only playground is a dirty back street won't grow up with a national pride. But give every man the right to his own home, and say, 'There is your own part of Australia; there is your own garden to dig,' and a new national spirit will be implanted in every family.

"The powers that be don't seem to realise what a state we are drifting into, and the Government in its wisdom is building sub-standard homes for factory workers which they have promised to pull down after the war. But will they be pulled down? I'm afraid they'll be allowed to remain, thus creating within a few years new slum areas out of the wartime housing settlements.

"Another thing is this. These N.S. Wales Government settlements are being built of Australian wood, so aggravating a position which is already very serious. Before the war, Mr. E. H. F. Swain, Commissioner for Forests, estimated that at the then rate of depletion, there would not be an Australian tree capable of being cut into building timber in 25 years time.

At that time about 80 per cent. of soft woods used for building were imported—most from Oregon. Now that importation has been stopped and the Government is making a serious drain on Australian timber and building with it only sub-standard homes which they admit (by their promise to demolish them after the war) have only a short span of usefulness.

"The answer to the problem is to build concrete homes which will last a lifetime. Stoppage of Council road making and other peacetime constructional schemes means that Australia has more cement, blue metal and sand than she can use, and the Victorian Housing Commission has proved by the settlements it has built at Fisherman's Bend, Preston, Richmond and Brunswick, that attractive homes (and each with its own garden) can be built and handed over to tenants for purchase at a low weekly rental, some of the rents being under £1 a week.

"Before the war the annual increase in homes was about 10,000 a year. The depression years depleted the number by about 38,000 in five years. In 1941 Mr. Dedman decided that there should be no more homes built privately, although even then N.S. Wales was about 36,000 short, and had about 25,000 sub-standard houses. Now, with depreciation of old houses beyond repair, and the rising marriage rate, New South Wales must be short of an additional 20,000 homes."

It instantly perks up the tired taste buds on your tongue so that they will register the full, fine flavour of the tobacco. The delicious flavour refreshes you thoroughly, and Wrigley's Chewing Gum helps keep your teeth bright and healthy besides aiding digestion. Three fragrant flavours from which to choose—P.K. AUSTRALIAN SCRAP IRON

"Getting Her Own Back"

Some of the scrap iron Australia sold to Japan has come back to Australia as "daisy cutters," but now Australia, as well as 20 other countries, is sending scrap iron to the States to help conserve America's iron ore resources.

Members of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel Incorporated at their war conference in New York a few weeks ago disclosed that some of the scrap imported from the South Pacific war zone was originally exported to Japan from the States. So Australia is not the only country to be getting her own back. She is getting her own back in another way too, for in Stewarts and Lloyds there is a Japanese Kohan 400 lathe which is helping Australia's war effort against Japan.

Australia got the lathe by the skin of her teeth, and the full story is still on the "hush-hush" list, but it's very satisfying that a Japanese machine is helping to turn out munitions for the destruction of its own lord and master.

Scrap is being collected from the global battlefields, and what is left of Japanese and German tanks, aeroplanes, guns, panzer divisions and marine wrecks has gone to swell the scrap metal supplies piling up at American ports on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. The scrap is carried as ballast from the South Pacific and North African battlefields.

Supplies of scrap metals are also sent to the States from the sugar mills of Cuba; from the blacksmith shops of Greenland; from the oilfields of Venezuela; from the oil refineries of the Netherlands West Indies; from tin factories of New Zealand; from tool factories of Canada.

JAPANESE MENACE

"REELING BACK TO TOKIO"

Work and Vigilance

The people of Australia are justified in looking forward to a progressive, though gradual, brightening of the war horizon as a result of recent successes in this theatre.

The apparent fighting superiority of our Air Force and its growing strength are indicated in successive communiques issued from General MacArthur's headquarters, while the destruction of the enemy convoy in the Bismarck Sea clearly shows that the days of spectacular Japanese advances have come to an end.

However, it is important that we do not let the signs of our growing strength distort our view of the enemy's formidable array of strength.

It is true that we have scored encouraging victories in recent localised engagements, and that the Japanese advance to the south has been effectively halted.

We may even cease to fear invasion of our mainland, or an attempted invasion, and we can undoubtedly be confident that any such invasion would prove expensive, if not disastrous, to the Japanese.

SOME SOBERING FACTS.

But these cheering facts must not be permitted to obscure the over-all position.

Our ability to prevent the Japanese from landing in Australia is not necessarily indicative of our ability to beat them back from their present positions; nor have our recent victories sapped much material strength from the powerful constitution of the Japanese fighting force.

During the past few weeks the war in the South-West Pacific has been mainly confined to aerial combat in which the enemy has sustained much greater losses than have we; nevertheless, there are indications that these losses are being made good by reinforcements at a rate which enables the enemy to keep substantially the same effective air force in operation.

This fact suggests, at least, that we must build up an irresistible strength of men and machines, both on land and in the air, before we can embark upon any major move to push the enemy back beyond the limits of our immediate geographic influence.

In the meantime we cannot expect the enemy to call a halt or rest on his laurels. Even if we feel confident that we can adequately cope with any threat of actual invasion, we must not feel equally confident that the Japanese will not do everything within their power to prevent us from accumulating the strength to launch an offensive.

JAPANESE POLICY.

It can, and must, be assumed that they will do all they can to retain what they now hold, and to this end they will doubtless follow two lines of policy.

First, they will attempt to make their chain of bases impregnable by building up fortifications and great air strength; and second, they will concentrate their fighting force against our preparations.

The final conclusion is clear: the Japanese are not to be defeated by the processes of time. Only work, work, and more work will give Australia the strength to send the Japanese reeling back to Tokio.

CHILD WELFARE

WHY DOES BABY CRY

Children Nation's Wealth

Late one afternoon last week one of the nurses of the Maternal and Child Welfare Service was travelling in a crowded railway carriage in which sat a young mother with a new baby who was crying lustily. The mother was accompanied by another young woman, apparently a friend.

During the journey the nurse was distressed to note the way the mother handled the baby, and realised that she must have been discharged from hospital completely untrained in the management of her baby.

Instead of being cradled gently but firmly in the mother's arms, the infant was held upright against her shoulder, between her hands and across her knee, whilst a continuous and vigorous patting was administered in an attempt to still the baby's cries.

Then the friend, obviously as embarrassed as the mother at the unfriendly attention they were receiving from the other passengers, took the baby from the mother and skilfully composed him, so that in a few minutes he was asleep. The men resumed their papers with audible sighs of relief, and the little drama was ended for that time at least.

But how much oftener will it be repeated when the mother does not know why baby cries, nor the correct way of dealing with him when he thus expresses his dissatisfaction with his surroundings.

This little baby who was only about three weeks old, should not have been travelling in a railway carriage at six o'clock in the evening. His cot was the place for him at that hour, and he was crying for the very good reason that he was tired and sleepy.

Suppose we think of a few other reasons why baby cries, and see what can be done about it. Of course, the first thing a baby does when he is born is to cry—this is how he expands his lungs for breathing. A young healthy baby needs to have one cry each day; this does him good, and serves to strengthen his chest, and in moderation a good healthy cry will do him no harm.

A baby will cry because he is hungry, but if baby is properly and regularly fed this will only happen at or near his meal times. Mother soon learns to recognise the continuous lusty cry of hunger which ceases as soon as baby is fed.

If baby seems to be hungry other than at his meal time, visit your nearest welfare centre and arrange for a series of test feeds, and Sister will advise you what to do if your supply is short. Do not try to manage this without advice, or baby's cry may change to one due to indigestion—another common reason for crying in babyhood.

The colicky pains of "wind" and indigestion are spasmodic and accompanied by the quick drawing up of the knees and turning the thumbs inside the closed fingers.

Sit baby up half-way through his feed and put him gently up over your shoulder after a feed, so that he may get rid of the air he has swallowed. Overfeeding with either breast or bottle, or giving the wrong sort of food, are common causes of indigestion and colic. Always obtain professional advice on feeding if baby seems to cry from colic.

Baby may cry because he is irritable and cross. Too much excitement caused by visitors, or even the family talking to him or playing with him, noise and bright lights, may result in nervous irritation and cause crying. Baby's early life should be as quiet and peaceful as possible.

Discomfort is another cause of crying. This may be due to a wet napkin, a tight binder, too many clothes on a hot day, or too few on a cold one, or a badly made bed. Mother should investigate all these things when baby cries.

And lastly, you may have taught baby to cry for his own way. You may have allowed him to expect that if he cries he will be rocked to sleep or given a dummy, and he cries because he knows he can make you do what he wants. Do not develop bad habits in baby; they are neither good for him nor for you. And remember that the really good mother checks over all these causes and tries to find out why baby is crying, so that she may help him. It is only a careless and lazy mother who will try to stop him with a dummy or other pacifier just for her own peace and quietness.

Questions on this and any other subject concerning maternal and child welfare will be answered by communicating personally with the Maternal and Child Welfare Information Bureau, 184 St. Paul's Terrace, Brisbane, or by addressing letters "Baby Clinic, Brisbane." These letters need not be stamped.

PRIMARY PRODUCERS

STATISTICAL RETURNS

Must Be Filled In

Under National Security Regulations primary producers are obliged to fill in an agricultural and dairying and pastoral statistics form. They are requested to call at the nearest police station and collect the form, which must be returned within seven days. This form takes the place of the return under the Statistical Returns Act.

The need to organise food supplies for Australian and Allied troops and for the civilian population is more imperative now than ever. The rural industries are the source of this food supply, hence the urgency of the collection of information.

Fuller particulars are also desired in respect of commercial vegetable growing.

SHARE FARMERS AND STOCK OWNERS.

The return includes also a number of important particulars required for the Australian Food Council, the Meat Industry Commission, the Controller of Defence Foodstuffs, the Director General of Manpower, and other wartime authorities.

The occupier of a holding is responsible for the return of particulars of all operations on his holding, including those of share farmers, as well as his own.

The attention of all stock owners is also drawn to the necessity to furnish returns of stock for January, 1943, many of which are long overdue.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

66 UNITS OF VITAMIN "B1" FOR BREAKFAST!

Professor Priestley, of the Sydney University, writes in the "Australasian Baker" of July, 1942:—

"With respect to their vitamin B1 content, breakfast foods may be divided into two groups: Those that are wholly pre-cooked ready to eat and those not pre-cooked, or only partially pre-cooked during the process of manufacture.

"With few exceptions all members of the former group are extremely low in vitamin B1.

"Members of the second group retain the greater part of the vitamin B1 present in the original cereal grain from which the breakfast food was prepared.

"Thus, a plate of a pre-cooked ready-to-eat breakfast food without the milk, gave 2 units of vitamin B1, while a plate of porridge of rolled oats gave 66 units—33 times as much."

Here is further convincing proof of the wonderful food value of Uncle Toby's Oats — the cleanest, freshest and highest quality rolled oats obtainable. Remember, a breakfast of Uncle Toby's Oats provides 66 units of Vitamin B1 — serve it regularly throughout the year. Sold by grocers everywhere

At Rest.

In Memoriam

WONGUNG.—In loving memory of my dear wife, Elizabeth, and our darling mother, who departed this life on the 29th March, 1941.

The stars are brightly shining
On a grave not far away.
Sleeping without dreaming
Lies the one we could not save.
Upright and just in all her ways.
Faithful and true to the end of her days.
She left behind some aching hearts
That loved her most sincere.
That never have and never will
Forget you, dear wife, and mother dear.

(Inserted by her loving husband, daughters, and sons-in-law.)

WONGUNG.—In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Elizabeth Emma, who passed away 29th March, 1941.

No more we see her dear face,
Nor hear her loving words.
But in our hearts we treasure
Loving memories true and tender;
We who loved her still remember.

COST PLUS TO GO.

Within the last month an advisory cost committee has been established to make a careful survey of the munitions department's costing methods. Use of the cost plus system is far less extensive now, and the Government is placing the most stringent conditions on its operation to safeguard against abuse and overcharge.

PRE-NATAL ALLOWANCE.

Some mothers may be allowed to collect the pre-natal maternity allowance before the birth of their children. Under a Bill to amend the maternity allowance Act, which passed all stages without amendment in the House of Representatives, provision is made for the payment of 25/- for four weeks immediately before and after the birth of a child.

WORKING DAY AND NIGHT.

Mr. W. R. Golding (Chairman of the Patriotic Fund), and Mesdames C. W. Macfarlan (president) and J. W. Garrett (secretary) of the Comforts Fund, have farewelled our soldier boys at the Railway Station each day and night this week on behalf of their respective organisations, besides arranging and attending other functions to raise funds for the boys when they return. The "nest egg" is growing in size, and it entails working day and night, but this important work will be continued until the boys finally return to Gladstone.

THIRD LIBERTY LOAN

GLADSTONE COMMITTEE

House-to-House Canvass

A meeting of the Gladstone Third Liberty Loan Committee was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Messrs. W. R. Golding, J. Burrows, R. H. Grayson, A. E. Taylor, H. Hall, H. Watt, J. Robinson, C. W. Macfarlan, and the secretary (Mr. H. Peters).

GROUPS.

Mr. Burrows reported having waited on certain business establishments with a view to furthering the loan, and he considered it was only a question of organising the groups and getting them to work.

AT MEAT WORKS.

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) stated he had paid a visit to the Meat Works, where he discussed the matter of the loan with Mr. Drewe, and delegates had been appointed to attend the meeting that night, and he regretted they were not present. However, he felt sure that groups would be formed.

INDIVIDUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Mr. Golding said he had taken the matter up with a number of his men in regard to subscribing to the loan. The men spoken to were not in favour of the group system, but he had not received a knock-back, the men favouring individual contributions, and he was prepared to make weekly deductions from their wages.

Individuals can join the group system by paying 5/- a week, or if preferred, can make application to a bank for a £10 bond, paying £1 down and the balance under the instalment plan.

TO BE EXPLAINED.

The matter of a personal canvass of the Meat Works was left in the hands of Messrs. Burrows and Robinson to explain the group system and the plan for individual subscriptions.

BUSINESS INTERESTS.

Mr. Grayson expressed regret at the small attendance, and mentioned that business interests were not represented.

HOUSE-TO-HOUSE CANVASS.

It was decided to zone the town with a view to making a house-to-house canvass.

FOR GLADSTONE

TWO SPECIAL PENNANTS

Austerity Loan Contribution

The Secretary of the Gladstone War Loan Committee (Mr. H. Peters) has received the pleasing information that the town has been awarded two special pennants for its contribution to the Austerity Loan. The letter from the State Organising Secretary (Mr. A. V. Porter) reads as follows:—

Under separate cover we have today forwarded to you two pennants to be awarded to Gladstone for the splendid response of the residents to our appeal in the recent £100,000,000 Austerity Loan, the green one in recognition of their financial efforts, and the dark blue one to commemorate the over subscription of subscribers' quota, the result being as follows:—

Financial quota allowed	£40,000
Amount obtained	£26,290
Subscribers' quota allowed	339
Number obtained	581

We have advised the Mayor of Gladstone that you have these pennants, and have intimated to him that you will arrange for a suitable presentation at a later date.

The suggestion was also made that the member for Capricornia (Mr. F. M. Forde) might be available to make the presentation to the Council. Failing the Federal member, Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., might make a visit to Gladstone for the occasion.

The thanks of the Commonwealth Government has been conveyed to the citizens of Gladstone for the splendid result.

MR. FORDE THANKED.

At a Trades and Labour Council meeting reference was made to the splendid work of the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) in connection with the Boyne River water supply scheme. It was mentioned that Mr. Forde had on three different occasions sent lengthy telegrams advising of the progress of negotiations. A resolution was carried extending the best thanks of all unions to Mr. Forde for his work in connection with the scheme.

STEALING CHARGE

SOLDIER PLEADS GUILTY

Convicted and Fined

Douglas Francis Deshon, otherwise Ronald Douglas Deshon (21), soldier, appeared in the Court of Petty Sessions before the acting S.M. (Mr. J. F. Donovan), on a charge of stealing one wallet, containing £5 in money, and a leave pass, the property of Ronold Kinnest.

After evidence of arrest had been given by Constable Gerber the defendant was remanded for a period of eight days, pending the arrival of a warrant from Bundaberg.

On Tuesday afternoon Deshon appeared before the court and pleaded guilty. He was convicted and fined £7/10/-, to include £5/10/- restitution, in default two months' imprisonment in Brisbane Gaol.

THE FACTS.

The facts of the case disclosed that defendant was a member of the A.I.F., and was in Bundaberg on March 17. He met the complainant about 7 p.m. on that day, and on account of being well known to him they both had a drink at the Palace Hotel, and then went to the W.A.T.S. rooms in Quay Street for a meal.

On completion of the meal the complainant became ill, and defendant accompanied him to a vacant allotment, and when Kinnest was in the act of sitting down Deshon struck him on the chin, partially dazing him, and he fell to the ground. The defendant then removed the wallet and contents from Kinnest's pocket.

The following morning, about 11.30 o'clock, the defendant was located in Targo Street, Bundaberg, and questioned by Second-class Sergt. Holzberger regarding his identity and leave pass.

Deshon then produced his leave pass, which was the property of Kinnest, stating his name was Kinnes', and that he was attached to the military on leave.

On the pass being examined Deshon suddenly turned and ran away.

On Sunday, March 21, Deshon was located asleep in a house in Gladstone by Constables Gerber and Gregg. He was questioned regarding his identity, and denied that his name was Deshon.

At the Police Station, however, he admitted committing the offence and to sharing the money with two other soldiers. He also admitted to giving the wallet away to a soldier, while he retained the leave pass.

COMFORTS FUND

Duty Day and Night

They were on duty day and night, members of the Australian Comforts Fund, who recently met men and nurses returning from service abroad, but try to find an A.C.F. member who minds a little thing like hard work when it's for the troops! A.C.F. vans loaded with "reception kits" were drawn up at a convenient point, and a gift parcel of useful comforts handed to each of the returning men and women.

The "returnees" looked tanned and fit, and were unanimous in their praise of the work of the A.C.F., many of them saying that boxes of very acceptable comforts arrived just when they were most needed.

One soldier smilingly handed a cake, still packed in its tin and addressed calico covering, to an A.C.F. helper, saying: "You ladies have this for your tea. I just got it before we left for home, and I'll be paying back just a bit of what I owe the A.C.F. They've done plenty for me."

Yes, that's the word that come back from all fronts at home and abroad, where our service men and women fight and labour for Australia.

That's why the Australian Comforts Fund must be enabled to carry on.

RETURNED 9th DIVISION.

The men of the returned 9th Division will march through Brisbane city streets on Monday afternoon. It will be one of the most spectacular marches so far arranged.

HOSE FOR FIRE BRIGADE.

Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., has been advised by the Minister for Health and Home Affairs (Mr. E. M. Hanlon) that additional supplies of canvas hose had now been received, and the issue of 3000 feet included for the Gladstone Fire Brigade Board. The hose would be despatched at an early date.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

P.O.W. STREET SCHEME

Total Collections £160/12/9

One of the most satisfactory features of Red Cross activities in Gladstone is the success of the prisoners of war street adoption scheme. The audited figures to cover collections for the period ending March 20th were as follows:—November £2. December £10/8/-. January £15/14/6. February £45/16/-. March (to 20th inst.) £86/14/3, total £160/12/9.

Mesdames R. Elliott, A. J. Watson, M. Tait, R. Ricketts, H. P. Hallam, and the co-organisers (Messrs. V. A. Summers and D. Connellan) attended a special meeting of the scheme committee on Monday night, when the secretary of the society (Mr. Summers) detailed various aspects of the scheme, and congratulated the canvassers and collectors on their splendid work. All books were handed in for audit, and it was decided to make a special drive next week to complete sections of the town not yet opened up.

There are now more than 500 regular contributors, and the total contributions mean that Gladstone is subscribing at least twenty parcels each week for our men who are prisoners of war in enemy hands.

Interesting features are that Mrs. Elliott is responsible for no less than eight books, Mrs. Watson 4, Mesdames Ricketts and Tait 3 each, Mesdames Hallam and Coppin 2 each, and Mesdames Lodder, Johnstone, and Miss M. Hill one each.

Practically every businessman in Gondoon Street is now a contributor, and requests for the attractive little gate tags have come from many residents in distant parts of the town.

Mrs. Clyde Smith has returned to resume her collections, and immediately took over two streets which were in arrears through shortage of collectors last week.

Mrs. E. J. Masterson, who volunteered to assist last month, has also returned, and has kindly taken over a section of Gondoon Street.

The Commandant (Mrs. J. W. Rigby) advises that the girl guides are subscribing 2/- per week to the scheme, and the girls employed at Swifts Ltd. cannery have inquired how they can join in the scheme.

The Secretary of the branch (Mr. Summers) is so impressed with the work of the ladies that he has made a request to Red Cross headquarters for coupons to enable the committee to purchase shoes for the P.O.W. canvass.

The secretary would be grateful if any ladies living in streets where the scheme operates, would volunteer to assist with collections each week. As the scheme grows there is a serious shortage of collectors, and Scouts from Nos. 2 and 3 Groups have been of great assistance in this connection.

OBITUARY

MRS. ANNIE IBBOTSON

A very old and respected citizen of the district in the person of Mrs. Annie Ibbotson passed away at her residence at Burua on Monday, March 15.

The deceased, who was 88 years of age, was born in Scotland, and arrived in Australia with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. D. Cairncross, when a girl of twelve years. After spending some years at Mt. Larcom and Langmorn Stations, her father selected land at Clyde Creek, remaining there until his death. She married the late Mr. John Rodger Ibbotson, who for many years conducted a sawmill on Clyde Creek, until old age compelled him to retire.

The late Mrs. Ibbotson was one of the few remaining pioneers who in those early days of hardship and adversity helped their husbands to build their homes in the bush and rear their families, and Mrs. Ibbotson could recall many vivid memories of sixty and seventy years ago, when the blacks roamed the country and settlers were few and far between.

Deceased leaves a family of three sons and three daughters: Mesdames F. Marek (Calliope), W. Padget (Gladstone), F. Gilmour (Brisbane), and John (Burua), Harry (Calliope), Eldred (Burua), also thirty grandchildren, and twelve great grandchildren.

The funeral took place at Calliope, the Rev. H. MacNeil Saunders officiating at the graveside.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Daylight saving ends officially at 2 a.m. to-morrow (Sunday), when all clocks will be put back one hour.

CORRESPONDENCE

(We do not necessarily identify ourselves with the views expressed by correspondents.)

FRIENDS THANKED.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—I wish to thank all kind friends, including Mr. and Mrs. R. Wilson, the Lyons and Winter families, Coronation Lodge No. 64, and the Trades and Labour Council, for the wonderful time that they have given me since my return from the Middle East with the 9th Division.

I am now returning from my leave and my respects go out to the wonderful work of the Red Cross. If everyone was to do the same job this "show" would soon end. Thanking you, yours, etc.,

L.-Cpl. G. T. ANDREW.

WIRELESS "PESTS."

Sir,—Some time ago I sent a letter to your paper regarding wireless pests, and someone who calls himself "Low-brow" rushed in to reply, and by the tone of his letter may be one of the pests.

If that is the case I fired at a crow and shot a duck in my letter.

I mentioned the word "cook" once, but this gentleman came back to it several times, so my advice to all cooks is to keep an eye on this chap.

At the finish of his letter he brings in his old pal and friend, Mr. Funk, and Mr. Funk looks up "Who Is Who" to find out who and what I am. He states I am an old age pensioner, 70 years of age, and that I made a bet in regard to the letter. However, Mr. Funk is wrong, and I hope his knowledge of things in general is better than it was in this case, but we will let that pass.

I wish to conclude with this statement, that the writer of this letter is James Campbell, of Calliope, and he is the only man of that name in this township. Some people think their address is Queensland, and if you mention a name the same as their own they jump to the conclusion that they are the only rose in the garden. Yours, etc.,

JAMES CAMPBELL.

Calliope, March 14, 1943.

CAMPBELL TO CAMPBELL.

Sir,—I have only just read Mr. Jack Campbell's letter, in which he states he has no connection with J. Campbell, of Calliope. I thank him for the compliment. He also states Calliope would be a better place if I was out of it, or words to that effect.

If Mr. Campbell did not like the tone of my letter he could say so, without using insulting words, which he did with no cause or reason, but perhaps it is a habit with him, and if so it is a bad one.

I hope I can command as much respect in Calliope as Mr. Campbell, but I do not want to waste words with this gentleman.

The letter I wrote had nothing to do with Mr. Campbell in any way, and as far as Mr. Jack Campbell is concerned he can fly to the land of nod and walk back as far as I am concerned.—Yours, etc.,

JAMES CAMPBELL.

LABOUR PARTY

"MAIN ENEMY OF COMMUNISM"

A Gladstone "Worker"

"Worker" writes as follows:—

There are many articles on Communism published in "The Worker," but I have not seen comrade Funk reply to any of them. Perhaps he may not read "The Worker," so I am enclosing for his benefit an article taken from that paper dated March 15, 1943.

THE ARTICLE.

Communist propaganda prosposing a link-up of the Labour Party with the Communist Party in a "united front" does not delude Labourites, who remember the not very distant date when Labour was regarded by Communists as the main enemy of Communism in the working-class ranks.

There has always been a close affinity between Communists and Tories, as seen in the running of candidates against Labour and the exchange of preference votes—an affinity that Labour has no desire to disturb.

The Communist-Tory "united front" will continue to be active at election time in the fight to smash the Labour Party.

The resolution of the A.L.P. conference in 1924 still stood. It laid down that neither the Communist Party nor a branch of it might become affiliated with the A.L.P., and no member of the Communist Party might become a member of the A.L.P.

In addition, the Federal executive of the A.L.P. ruled on February 16, 1928, that individual members of the A.L.P. were prohibited from advocating the policy of the Communist party.

"STOOGES"

In the House of Representatives last week, Prime Minister John Curtin, speaking with emotion, said that there were interests in Australia which did not like the Government and were anxious to foment industrial turmoil.

"They have a number of stooges working for them," he said. "Some even have infiltrated in the trade union structure."

Another Labour statement said that the pretence of the Communist Party that it sought unity with Labour was worthy only of contempt, particularly when it suggested that the need for a greater war effort was the basis for the appeal. The Australian workers would not readily forget that when the British workers and their wives and children were being done to death by Nazi bombs, Australian Communists were referring to the war as "a filthy Imperialistic slaughter."

COMMUNISTS' 1934 DECLARATION.

Attention has been drawn to the following declaration in the Communist "Workers' Weekly" on June 27, 1934:—

"In Australia the Labour Party is very strong. If we are to be successful in the struggle against war, Fascism, and for Proletarian dictatorship, then we must strengthen in every way the struggle against the Labour Party, which is the main

FINANCIAL POLICY

BANK OF INTERNATIONAL SETTLEMENTS

Views of Mr. Leo Funk

I have written previously explaining how banks control the destinies of nations, and I have made some attempt to show how they effect a stranglehold on industry by restricting credit or issuing same at will.

I think everyone recognises that their one and only desire is power linked up with profits, and that service to the community does not enter into their calculations, yet there is one bank about which we hear little, and of which probably quite a number of people have never heard. I refer to the "Bank of International Settlements."

This "mysterious" bank was formed in 1930, mainly to deal with reparation payments from the 1914-18 war, and its board of directors comprises three Germans, three French, two British, two Japanese, two Italians, and one each from Holland, Switzerland, Belgium and Sweden—a total of 16 directors.

AXIS POWERS CONTROL.

It is quite clear that of the 16 directors 12 are under the control of the Axis powers, and 72 per cent, or nearly three-quarters of the capital is likewise controlled.

Despite the Axis domination of this bank, three British officials are allowed to serve on the staff of this bank at Basle, and Sir Kingsley Wood, for the British Government, has flatly refused to withdraw these British subjects on the ground that the Bank of England would lose £60,000 per year—interest on its holding of £1,000,000 share capital.

You ask, "if Germany controls 12 of the 16 directorates and 72 per cent of the capital, why not take over the whole concern?" and the answer: From the very day of its establishment the bank has been a tool in the hands of those favouring appeasement.

POLICY OF APPEASEMENT.

From the very beginning the British directors were personal friends of the principal German director, Schacht, and are known to have supported him on many occasions against the French directors. For instance, in 1937, two years after Hitler's seizure of the Rhineland, the British directors supported the claims of the German Hechler for the position of general manager as against the claims of the French nominee, Auboin. At this time British foreign policy was pro-French, so that the activities of the directors representing the Bank of England were in opposition to their country's foreign policy, and when the British foreign policy became one of appeasement the Bank of England could and did give full support to it.

"But, how does Australia come into this?" you ask.

FOOD SHORTAGE

MR. CURTIN'S FORECAST

Cause Summarised

The matter had already been brought under the notice of the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams), who will confer with the Premier on the matter. However, it was primarily a matter for the Federal authorities.

The Prime Minister (Mr. J. Curtin), in the House of Representatives on Thursday, forecast a shortage of meat, milk, vegetables, fruit, canned fruit and rice, jam, dried fruits and fish was likely to occur in Australia, but that the Government did not consider any good purpose could be served at present by establishing a Ministry of Food.

Mr. Curtin summarised the cause of shortages as follows:—

Increased demand caused by greater national spending power.

Heavy demands by the services.

Production and transport difficulties arising from manpower shortages.

Mr. Curtin said the Rationing Commission would be available when necessary to apply plans to ensure equitable distribution of essential foods not now rationed.

The Government was planning an active campaign for the production of vegetables which would include guaranteed minimum prices. Domestic vegetable gardening was no less a national duty than subscribing to the war loan.

BOYNE VALLEY

Mr. N. Hellen's Property

The many friends of Mr. Nicholas Hellen, of Hellen's Siding, Ubobo, will regret to learn that he has had to leave his property to seek a holiday and medical advice on account of continued ill-health. Mr. Hellen has been 30 years on the Boyne Valley, and during that period built up a splendid property, working from morning till night right through the long period.

In an interview with the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), Mr. Hellen suggested that the Government should take over his property as a training centre for the Women's Land Army, and this has been put before the Premier (Mr. Cooper).

It was pointed out that it was one of the best farms on the Boyne Valley, and situated right in the centre of a valuable agricultural and cotton growing area. It had large modern buildings, and all the facilities necessary for such a training centre.

Mr. Hellen had offered the property to the Government at the low rate of 4 per cent interest on the capital value.

Keep your Premiums PAID UP TO DATE

It is good War-time practice, and good family practice, too

THE War has upset both family and business life. It has raised taxes and the general cost of living, and has jolted many people out of their way of life. As a result there are some men and women who fail to pay the premiums on their Life Assurance. Happily, there are not many, but there should be none at all. Life Assurance is one of a man's first duties; it is an essential part of every man's War effort; it protects his family, gives him confidence in himself, and provides money for the War Loans. It helps to stabilize the Nations' finances and makes for National strength.

If you have let your A.M.P. premiums go unpaid, ask the nearest A.M.P. office how your policy or policies stand. If they are policies of some years' standing it is likely that the Society has kept them in force, but do not depend on this. The Society keeps them in good shape for a relatively long time after a member's neglect, but it cannot do it for ever. The wise man pays his premiums when they are due. Enquire how your policies stand. Enquire to-day.

To date the A.M.P. has put £50,000,000 of its members' conserved earnings (their premiums) into Commonwealth Loans. It is adding to this at the rate of £500,000 a month.

Nature's Perfect Food is

MILK

Providing more nutrition than any other single food, Milk contains the vital vitamins and minerals needed to protect against illness, ensure good digestion, build healthy tissues, strong bones and teeth.

It aids normal growth, develops energy, and protects against ill-health.

Children up to 16 years should have 1½ pints of milk daily—either to drink, or in soups, sauces, custards or puddings.

★ ★ ★ ★

In country areas where fresh cow's milk is not plentiful, full cream powdered milk is an excellent substitute—providing the same benefits almost completely.

RURAL DEVELOPMENT

Price Control

The recent statement by Professor Copland, Commonwealth Prices Commissioner, that price control must continue to operate in some form when the war is over, strengthens the growing tide of opinion in favour of such a course.

He has expressed the broad general opinion that "as part of an ordered plan of rural development, continuance of price control for primary industries was in some form an essential condition."

It is perhaps too early, at this stage, to discuss the subject in detail, for much will depend upon the interpretation of the Atlantic Charter, or that section of it pledging the Allied Nations to implement the principle of full availability of raw materials to all peoples.

It is certainly difficult to see how, without some form of price control and orderly marketing, the pressing needs of the war-stricken and impoverished countries of Europe, and of those, also, who are to succour them, can be met.

Until industrial rehabilitation in some form has been attained and credit re-established, trading between individuals on the old catch-as-catch-can basis would be fraught with peril to primary producers. Whatever the defects of the system, it has carried Australia through the most crucial period of its history, and until trade equilibrium is restored, no alternative is apparent.

INSIDE GERMANY

A Surprise Ending

One of those who took part, not long ago, in a B.B.C. studio party at which all the allies were represented, told a remarkable story which throws yet more light on conditions inside Germany.

The story concerned a refugee from Germany, now safely in Britain. So secret did the German keep all his preparations that even his family had no idea that he was planning to depart. Three hours before he was due to leave there came a startling summons. He must go and serve on a jury in one of the dreaded so-called "people's courts."

The cases seemed unending, while time went swiftly. He was tortured by suspense. If he missed this chance of escape it would never come again. At last the proceedings closed. He had a margin of twenty minutes. He rushed for his hat and coat, but as he opened the exit door he was touched on the shoulder. He turned to face an officer whom he knew to be a reputed Nazi bully. His worst fears were endorsed when he saw that the officer held his wallet, the wallet in which were all his papers.

"Yours, I think," the bully said.

The man hesitated about claiming it. There was just a chance, of course, that it had not been closely searched.

The officer didn't wait. "You might as well admit it's yours," he said. "I've seen what's inside."

Everything was up. The man was too overwhelmed to speak.

The officer gave the man a penetrating look. Then, handing him the precious wallet, he whispered: "Take it; you'll need it and good luck."

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

AUSTRALIA

FOOD POSITION

"In a Serious Mess"

Under pressure of war, new ideas in many fields are developing rapidly in the "forcing box" conditions which rarely come about in peace time. One of the experiments is developing so rapidly that news about it is almost out-of-date from one week to the next. This is the dehydration of food.

Australia herself has made rapid strides in this new industry, and dehydrated peas, apples, carrots, and other vegetables and fruit now no longer attract any comment. Dehydrated honey and milk are both incorporated in the R.A.A.F. emergency ration tablets. Further developments may be expected to cops with the tremendous increased demand for the fighting services, shortage of manpower for farm work, difficulties in transport.

"The food position in Australia is in a serious mess, and will be much worse during the winter," said Sir Earle Page, M.P., last week, advocating one control to co-ordinate food production, processing, and distribution.

"The opening of a second front in Europe," he continued, "would sharply increase Australian food liabilities, especially if such action were combined with much greater military activity in the Pacific."

In America experiments are now being made with food which is both dehydrated and compressed. The additional space saved by compression ranges from 30 per cent for dried whole milk to 80 per cent for cream of cabbage soup. The food bricks are wrapped in cellophane, which is then heat-sealed against moisture and germs. A potato brick the size of a shoebox, when crumbled into hot water, will make mashed potatoes for 1000 soldiers. A one pound brick of dried eggs contains the equivalent of about 38 eggs. Beets, carrots, and onions can also be "bricked" in the same way.

Compression and dehydration of food will be of incalculable value after the war when starving millions will need food quickly and shipping space will be scarce and ships comparatively slow. One bomber can carry enough dehydrated soup to make a meal for 500,000 people, and 500,000 well and quickly fed people make powerful allies in an unsettled world.

REGULATIONS BUGBEAR

DIFFICULT TO UNDERSTAND

Simplification Needed

The matter of regulations has become somewhat of a bugbear. War time conditions have made many of the regulations to which we are now subject necessary, but there are other regulations which many people find it difficult to interpret in this light, and which in many cases are extremely difficult to understand.

In some cases it has been suggested, even those who have promulgated them can scarcely know what they mean. Regulations supersede one another with amazing and often bewildering frequency. No small part of our time is now occupied by the filling in of forms, and our pocket-books are full of certifications of one kind or anther. A judge said the other day something to the effect that any man who gets out to make anything without an accountant and a legal adviser at his elbow is a brave man. The average citizen and the business man in particular is becoming gravely bewildered, and a definite and radical simplification of the regulations to which they are subjected is urgently needed.

We have no capable and authoritative survey of the situation in Australia, though such a survey is greatly needed, and an adequate writer who would undertake this task would render a great national service.

A DARING RAID

Ships in Exile

The daring raid on a Norwegian fiord last week, carried out by light coastal craft of the Royal Navy manned by Norwegians, has focussed attention again on exiled navies and sailors.

Norway, despite its losses, still has the largest exiled navy, claiming some 60 warships—destroyers, submarines, corvettes and minesweepers.

During the war Norwegian tankers have carried about 40 per cent of the petroleum required in the British Isles, and shipping authorities in England have credited the Norwegian mercantile marine with a major role in the defence of England.

Great Britain agreed to replace some of her ally's losses with new tonnage, and twenty ships have been placed under the Norwegian flag. Six of these were former United States ships sold to Britain, and the rest were from the 1941 British production programme.

FOOD SUPPLY

HOUSEWIVES WARNED

"Few Spares on Shelves"

"Workers often need educating in the right type of food they should eat, and the free distribution of milk and between-meal snacks which is now being tried out in some American factories is an excellent idea from the education-in-food as well as the nourishment point of view," said Miss Joan Woodhill, the National Council of Women's representative on the Nutrition Committee (an advisory body to the Australian Food Council). Miss Woodhill is chief dietitian at the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital in Sydney, and the only person training dietitians in N.S.W.

Fewer pies and more milk is Miss Woodhill's tip.

"The bread, milk and meat shortages which Sydney housewives have had to cope with during the past few weeks are not shortages which country people are so likely to meet," Miss Woodhill went on, "but every housewife should have a few spares on her shelves in case of emergency. Dried milk, for instance, should be on every emergency shelf, for it possesses all the more important nutriment values of fresh milk, and can be made at double strength for extra food value. Many country children who will not drink farm milk will drink dried milk. It would also be an excellent basis for a 'one dish meal' such as soup to serve in an emergency—easy to prepare, easy to cook, easy to digest, and with cornflour or flour or pre-cooked cereals used as a thickening (sago or tapioca would take too long to cook in an emergency) and with flavouring added, it would be highly nutritious.

"Unfortunately, the protective foods, such as milk, eggs and fresh fruit, will always be relatively expensive, because at any time the perishability of food is the factor which governs its cost. Refrigeration, pasteurising, cold storage, and the careful handling necessary, all send up the price whether in peace time or in war time.

"And for the busy housewife on the farm who wants to make a contribution to her own and therefore to Australia's food supply, I would recommend growing tomatoes. They are a good source of vitamin C, the vitamin for which oranges are so valuable, and can be served cooked or raw.

"American factories are calling their free distributions 'energy snacks.' That's a good catch phrase, but all food is energising, and factory fatigue is undoubtedly lessened by frequent food breaks."

ALL-AUSTRALIAN EXPRESS

Speed of 75 Miles an Hour

Level crossings and other vantage spots in the city at Newcastle were crowded when news got abroad that the new class 38 streamlined express locomotive—one of the most modern in the world—would make trial runs to the city from Sydney. On the round trip the engine hauled 325 tons, the heaviest load hauled by a single passenger engine on this run.

The engine, specially constructed for the New South Wales Railway Department, weighs 183 tons, and has a speed of approximately 75 miles per hour. The new locomotive was designed and built in Australia with steel from the Newcastle Steelworks (hence Newcastle's particular interest in the new express). After further trials she will be used for long distance journeys, probably on the Sydney-Albury run.

66 UNITS OF VITAMIN "B1" FOR BREAKFAST!

Professor Priestley, of the Sydney University, writes in the "Australasian Baker" of July, 1942:—

"With respect to their vitamin B1 content, breakfast foods may be divided into two groups: Those that are wholly pre-cooked ready to eat and those not pre-cooked, or only partially pre-cooked during the process of manufacture.

"With few exceptions all members of the former group are extremely low in vitamin B1.

"Members of the second group retain the greater part of the vitamin B1 present in the original cereal grain from which the breakfast food was prepared.

"Thus, a plate of a pre-cooked ready-to-eat breakfast food without the milk, gave 2 units of vitamin B1, while a plate of porridge of rolled oats gave 66 units—33 times as much."

Here is further convincing proof of the wonderful food value of Uncle Toby's Oats — the cleanest, freshest and highest quality rolled oats obtainable. Remember, a breakfast of Uncle Toby's Oats provides 66 units of Vitamin B1 — serve it regularly throughout the year. Sold by grocers everywhere

To win this war, the whole nation must swing over to an austere wartime way of life. This can't be done without the whole-hearted co-operation of every woman in the community. Use your influence with the family, friends, every one with whom you come in contact, to discourage extravagance and encourage saving. Above all, set a personal example—wear last year's frocks, and be proud to do it; live simply; cut out spending on pleasure, and invest every penny you can in War Bonds and War Saving Certificates.

CORPORAL NOEL FERRIS.

Corporal Noel Ferris, writing from the Middle East to his father, Mr. Walter Ferris, often referred to the comforts and luxuries supplied the diggers overseas, the last occasion being the 1942 Xmas dinner served him in hospital. This was equal to anything he had at home. Noel is still in military hospital in Brisbane, and unfortunately far from well.

H.M.A.S. GLADSTONE

APPEAL BY MAYOR DENNIS

Citizens Asked to Contribute

Fellow citizens,—

I know that you will all share with me the pride and pleasure that it has given me when I was advised that the Commonwealth Authorities had decided to name one of our new warships the H.M.A.S. Gladstone.

Lieut. J. W. Pennet, R.A.N., commander of the ship, has written me suggesting that the town of Gladstone might desire to present to the ship some momento in honour of the name she bears, which would be greatly appreciated.

The hon. sec. of the Comforts Fund (Mrs. J. W. Garrett) has received a similar letter suggesting that this Fund might be willing to service the vessel whilst in commission, the initial cost of which would be approximately £150, and £10 per quarter thereafter.

Articles suggested are wireless sets, electric urns, indoor and deck games, and the usual supply of comforts.

My Council has decided to co-operate with this body in raising the sum of money necessary to purchase these comforts.

That you will all be keen to do your share and follow with considerable pride and eager expectation the career of this vessel, which I have no doubt, will uphold the highest tradition of our Navy.

I make this appeal to you to contribute towards the cost of fitting out this ship, of which we will all be as proud of as we are of the town which bears this name.

As this appeal will close in a fortnight it will be necessary to act quickly, and I know that I can depend

P.O.W. LETTERS

Street Adoption Scheme

For the information of residents of Gladstone and district the Red Cross Publicity Officer advises that the latest official information concerning prisoners in Japan is as follows:—

The International Red Cross delegate in Japan states that 230,000 letters for allied prisoners of war have been distributed recently to the various areas in which prisoners are held. Mail distribution in Malaya has been 180,000 letters, and in Java 10,000, these being the areas in which most of the A.I.F. are thought to be held. The delegate visited sorting offices and saw 150,000 letters being sorted by 40 full time workers. This may be a comforting assurance to people in this district who are writing every month and getting no replies to their letters.

TYPEWRITTEN LETTERS.

The Red Cross Society has received the following cable:—

"Write letters in English, one page very legibly, typewriting preferable in view Japanese censorship."

Prisoners friends who have no typewriter may find someone who could do the small service of typing a short letter once a month to a prisoner in Japanese hands. If this cannot be arranged the Red Cross Publicity Officer will be glad to assist. Only one side of a sheet of notepaper may be used. Any person wishing to avail themselves of this service is asked to 'phone 174, or send the matter to be typed to the Publicity Officer, Red Cross Society, Gladstone.

PATRIOTIC FUND

£2000 IN WAR LOANS

Total Credits £3244

A general meeting of members of the Gladstone and District Patriotic Fund was held in the Town Hall on Thursday night. Present: Mr. W. R. Golding (chairman), and Messrs. A. W. Drewe, A. H. Friend, R. Power, P. A. Friend, C. Tweed, C. N. Joseph, H. Neil Ballantine, H. Hersant, and the secretary (Mr. F. Peardon).

Messrs. C. N. Joseph, Ladner, and A. E. Taylor were appointed to the general committee.

Messrs. C. Joseph, J. W. Busteed and Ladner were appointed to the Appeal Committee.

Messrs. C. N. Joseph and J. W. Busteed were appointed Patriotic Fund representatives on the Trustee Combined Fund.

It was decided to fully support the Battle Stations Appeals Fund, the drive to comence on June 1.

ORCHESTRA.

Messrs. J. W. Busteed and C. N. Joseph were appointed a sub-committee to consider the question of an orchestra for future dances.

BOYS FAREWELLED.

The Chairman (Mr. W. R. Golding) reported they had had a busy time over the last few weeks farewelling boys. One hundred and seventy-five boys had been farewelled to date.

STATEMENT REFUTED.

Mr. Golding refuted the statement that he was neglecting his duty in this respect. He had never failed, he said, to go to the station to see the boys off, provided he knew they were going.

A BIG TASK.

Members expressed themselves freely in regard to this matter, and considered Mr. Golding was carrying out a tremendous task in this respect.

RETURNED SOLDIERS

PREFERENCE IN EMPLOYMENT

Position Explained

When the war is won hundreds of thousands of soldiers, sailors and airmen will need all the help this nation can give to enable them to become reabsorbed in gainful employment, said Mr. Geo. McLeay (Leader of the Senate Opposition).

On demobilisation thousands of the fighting men of our forces will be in a position to look after themselves, and will need no assistance insofar as rehabilitation is concerned.

A great majority of the discharged members of the forces will, however, be dependent upon the promises made to them on enlistment. We must not fail them.

I have been asked to explain why preference in employment should be given to returned soldiers.

In the first place it must be realised that by "returned soldier" we mean all branches of the defence forces.

No one will deny, for instance, that repatriation benefits—such as advances to enable re-establishment in business; to furnish a new home on discharge from the Army; to purchase necessary tools and equipment; pensions to invalided returned men; allowances to wives, widows, children, etc., are the just due to our fighting men.

They have risked their very lives that we may live in comfort and safety. Preference in employment can be placed in the same category as these other benefits, and must therefore, be regarded as a form of repatriation.

It is true that many a non-soldier has had to abandon for a time his civil occupation, but engaged on similar work in war production establishments at wages far in excess of those of the servicemen, and certainly not with the constant risk of death, he is placed at a great natural advantage over the returned men.

If the ex-serviceman has the qualifications for a position and is a competitor with a civilian for the vacancy, then he should be given the preference.

I feel sure that at the present moment no one will dispute the rights of the men who are in daily danger of losing their lives, or of suffering some irreparable damage to their health.

It is, however, when the heat of the moment has gone and in the calmer days of peace, that we must remember them and honour them.

CATHOLIC CHURCH

Rev. Father Campbell Transferred

Gladstone's popular parish priest, Rev. Father D. J. Campbell, has been transferred to the Marist Diocese of Ashgrove, Brisbane.

Father Campbell has seen his parish grow out of all recognition during his stay here of seven years.

Our Lady, Star of the Sea, Church has been enlarged to cope with the increased number of worshippers. He was also responsible for the decision to have a new Convent School erected in Gladstone. Plans and specifications had been drawn up, but were held over on account of war conditions.

A host of friends and well-wishers in town and district will regret to learn of Father Campbell's projected departure. He assisted many charitable and patriotic efforts, and the local Red Cross are particularly grateful to him for granting the free use of the Empire Theatre for their weekly Prisoner of War dances.

Father Campbell will leave Gladstone next week, and Father A. J. Cullen, of Ashgrove, Brisbane, will succeed him here.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr. J. P. O'Sullivan, who was vice-president of the Gladstone branch of the Waterside Workers' Federation before he joined the R.A.A.F., spent a few days leave with his family and returned on Monday to his base. Mr. Sullivan was through the early bombing of Darwin, being one of the first waterside volunteers to go to that centre. He is now attached to stores branch of the R.A.A.F.

kinds. [illegible] was granted only for religious or funeral services or charity gatherings.

THE WORLD AT STAKE.

"The Axis was playing for the planet" (said Colonel Walter Elliot, speaking in the B.B.C. series, "Britain speaks." Whoever won would control the world. It is not a very big world on these terms. No one can use a radio anywhere without it being audible to modern science all over the world. No one can send up and train aeroplanes in any quantity or even concentrate steel and explosives required for a modern land force without it being known to modern science before that concentration has reached any strength that matters. Under those circumstances the loser has no means of escape, no refuge: winner takes all."

a kind and genial disposition, and was well liked by all who knew her. She was a member of the local branch of the C.W.A., a member of the Calliope branch of the Australian Comforts Fund, and for both those organisations she was a keen worker—always busy with the knitting needles.

The deceased was born in the County of Surrey, London area, and came to Queensland in 1913 along with her husband, Mr. G. H. Potter, who is at present a member of the Calliope Shire Council. They took up their present selection, "Sherewood," in 1922, and have one son, Private Len Potter, and his wife, who resides in Brisbane.

Len is in the transport service of the A.I.F. They are left to mourn the loss of a good wife and mother.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Ash, of the Anglican Church of England, Rockhampton, officiated at the graveside.

It is because Gladstone Red Cross P.O.W. canvassers have the above facts in their possession that they are able day after day to take up arduous street collections for the local scheme. To trudge up and down some of our hills and suburbs is no picnic, but Mesdames Elliott, Watson, Ricketts, Coppin, Lodder, Hallam, M. Tait, F. Johnstone, and Miss M. Hill are aware that the organisation has already been successful in raising at least twenty weekly parcels from Gladstone to our men held in enemy camps. The work goes on. New collectors appointed include Mrs. Linnane (Bundaberg Road) and Mrs. Funk (Glenlyon Street). Boy Scouts are still assisting several of the canvassers, and Mrs. Rigby has promised some Girl Guides to link up with week-end collections. Mrs. Clyde Smith has taken over Roseberry and part of Gondoon Street, and Mrs. E. Masterson the balance of Gondoon Street. The co organisers (Messrs. Summers and Connellan) are hopeful that March collection will reach the century (£100).

measures to control the abuse of lay-by systems. It will introduce them early in April. Chief causes of complaint against lay-by operations are false advertising and misrepresentation of contract terms and the goods themselves. In some cases there has been a refusal to refund payments when, for good reason, the buyers are unable to continue instalments. The proposed legislation will compel vendors to keep a register and set aside the goods when the contract is made to provide for the inspection of the goods by the customers at reasonable times.

BOWLING

DISTRICT SINGLES

Win for J. Hogan

J. Hogan and J. Comino will be the finalists for the district singles title to be decided this week-end. In the semi-final Hogan and L. B. Cameron staged one of the most interesting matches ever played on the local green. In a neck and neck struggle the pair were level 28 all at the 36th end. They were level again 29 all at the 38th, and level again at the 40th end. Then Hogan gained three points at the 41st end to win the game 33-30.

LADIES PLAY WELL.

In mixed bows matches the ladies did very well, and the play of some compared favourably with that of the men.

Details:—

Matthews, Masterson, Mrs. Jenkinson, Weiske v. Lodder, Buetell, Mrs. Tracey, Dr. Skinner 27-20.

Pring, Hando, Mrs. Garrett, Cameron v. Bycroft, Hunter, Mrs. Schmidt, Drewe 27-22.

Schmidt, Dennis, Mrs. Barker, P. Friend v. Garrett, Browne, Mrs. Joyner, C. Cooper 23-12.

Coxon, Mrs. Parsloe, Mrs. Busteed, Golding v. Ferris, Mrs. Chapman, Mrs. Golding, Wilson 27-26.

SOCIAL GAMES.

Schmidt, Hunter, Humphries and Bycroft v. Menzies, Pugh, Dennis and Brown 33-16.

A. Friend, A. Joyner, Mrs. Cameron and Johnston v. Comino, Seaton, Mrs. Sievers and Busteed 32-23.

Henery, Chapman, Drewe and Cooper v. Comino, Weiske, Wilson and Loveday 27-25.

NEW RATION PLANS

Extra Leaves in Books

A Rationing Comission spokesman said that extra leaves would be included in the new ration books to be issued on June 15, to prepare for extended food rationing.

It was disclosed that the commission has been investigating food rationing for some time, and that complete schemes have been prepared. It will take about six weeks to get each scheme into operation.

Should any other comomdity be rationed before June 15 (butter is considered to be the most likely) consumers will have to register with their regular traders and draw limited supplies until the new ration books are issued.

PRICE OF ORANGES

Current Season Fixed

Orange prices for the current season have been fixed by the Commonwealth Prices Commissioner (Professor Copland).

Actual price, he said, would depend upon the number of oranges in a case, but the upper limit of retail price in capital cities would be 3d an orange until November 1 this year, and 3½d after that.

Retailers were warned that their actual selling prices must not exceed the cost into their shops plus 25 per cent.

This would mean that for a great part of the season the retail price of oranges of average size should not exceed 2d or 2½d each.

The open market price would be based upon a maximum wholesale level of 21/- a case in Sydney and Melbourne until October 31. From November 1 next to March 31 next year the ceiling wholesale price would be 26/- a case.

"OURS, I HOPE."

Some amusing anecdotes were included by Mr. Macdonald Hastings in one of his B.B.C. overseas broadcasts. The following story, he said, was told at a luncheon by Mr. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, at the expense of the War Office:—Two American boys walking along Whitehall (the street where the chief Government offices are situated) hailed a passing Tommy and said: "Say, which side is the War Office on " "Blimey," said the Tommy, "Ours, I hope."

COMPLACENCY OR INDIFFERENCE

BETTER THINGS EXPECTED

Of Political Representatives

"It is hard to reconcile our national peril with recent happenings at Canberra," said the President General of the Methodist Conference of Australia (Rev. H. M. Wheller), speaking in the Albert Street Methodist Church on Sunday night.

"We have a right to expect better things of our National Parliament," he said. "The general public should not be blamed for complacency or indifference. Either the situation is not as serious as reported, or our political representatives are unable to set before the nation a manner of life commensurate with our peril.

"Beyond question, there are men in Parliament who would be an asset to any legislative body. However, the men of Canberra, no less than the men of the forces, carry in their hands the honour and prestige of Australia.

"Our valiant men are writing another brilliant page in national history. Surely it should be possible for the political parties to suspend all party schemes and combine to write a page in political history.

"For the sake of the men of all classes who are giving everything for the future and honour of the country, that page should be written now.

"It might well be Canberra's greatest contribution to the day of peace."

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES

Price Control

Price control is to be extended to the more important fruit and vegetables now uncontrolled, said the Minister for Customs (Senator Keane).

The Prices Commissioner would determine the ceiling prices to be fixed, Senator Keane said. The Government was also extending its programme of guaranteed minimum prices.

Development of the plan to guarantee minimum prices of all meats had been suspended because of the Senate's disallowance of the Meat Industry Commission regulation, but the Government would proceed with it as rapidly as possible.

Senator Keane said that over a large field, if not over the whole field, of the meat trade while maximum price control was in operation the Government would protect meat producers against any severe decline in prices brought about by temporary surpluses. Plans were being worked out by the Meat Controller and the Prices Commissioner.

WORKING FOR GOVERNMENT

Opposition Voiced

"Grocers cannot afford to spend any more time than at present acting as clerks for the Government," said the secretary of the Queensland Grocers' and Retail Traders' Association (Mr. F. C. L. Derrick) when voicing the opposition of grocers to rationing by registration on a wide scale.

His association unanimously opposed the proposal, he said, and that opposition was shared by the Federation of Retail Grocers of Australia.

Grocers' experience of registration was an unenviable one, he said. It had been shown that it led to fraudulence, families registering more than once, as no statutory declaration was required. The system of reference was clumsy and far from economical.

Grocers would vigorously oppose any proposal that would impose further work on already understaffed and overtaxed members of the trade, he said.

AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY

Women at Work

Women in the Australian aircraft industry had proved that in certain classes of work they were in some instances superior to men from the aspects of finish and output, said Mr. A. McNolty (Federal secretary of the Sheet Metal Workers' Federation).

He added that in some cases women had exceeded a man's output by 50 per cent. He thought that this was due to a large extent to the fact that women concentrated more on repetition work, at which they became very adept.

AMBULANCE DANCES

At Calliope and Gladstone

The dance held at the Trocadero last Friday night was a great success, a large crowd attending. Music was supplied by Mr. Reg. Winter (piano), G. Fry (drums), while extras were played by Miss D. Fraser and Mrs. C. Stitt. Mr. W. Ross acted as M.C., assisted by Mr. Geo. Curran.

The spot waltz was won by Miss T. Joyner and Mr. Seymor, and the Monte Carlo by Miss L. Jacobsen and C. Parker.

On Saturday night the usual monthly dance and euchre was held at Calliope, and was largely attended. The country people were in full force, with a large crowd from town. Dancing was kept going in full swing to mu ic supplied by Miss M. Archay (piano), Mr. M. Moran (violin), while extras were played by Messrs. Ron. Michel and Don Cameron, and the Misses Gladys McFarlane and Beryl Rideout.

The spot onestep was won by Mrs. Moller and Mr. Gunston, and the Monte Carlo by Miss Stratigos and Mr. Houston.

The euchre was in the hands of Mr. Sam Dickenson and Mr. Aldous, and the ladies' prize was won by Mrs. Tom Wright, and the gent's by Mr. Tom Wright. The raffle ticket sellers were Mr. Geo. Curran and Mr. Frank Farmer. Hon. Bearer Barker acted as M.C., and Mr. Jim Ironmonger was doorkeeper.

Parcel of groceries (raffled) was won by Mr. H. J. Chapman (Calliope), with ticket No. 3691.

The next dance will be held at Calliope on Easter Saturday night, April 24.

THIRD LIBERTY LOAN

War Bonds Negotiable

There is a generally held and entirely wrong view on the part of small investors in Australia that putting money into Government bonds for a period of five or ten years means tying it up beyond recall for the whole of that period.

This point was made in a recent broadcast in support of the £100,000,000 Third Liberty Loan by the Governor of the Commonwealth Bank (Mr. H. T. Armitage).

He added that it could not be too strongly stressed that in an emergency Government bonds can always be sold at market price and the money obtained promptly. The Commonwealth Bank, or any other bank, savings bank, or stockbroker will undertake the sale of Government bonds on behalf of an owner at any time.

It should also be remembered that money invested in the Third Liberty Loan pays a double dividend. It becomes immediately a fighting weapon —a means of backing up our fighting men, and an aid to the Government to push on unhampered with its victory plans.

At the same time, money put into the Third Liberty Loan to-day is an instalment on our security in the future. Tens of thousands of investors in Government loans have the comfort of knowing that they will have a nest-egg—a stand-by — when peace comes again.

FOOD RATIONING

Be Increased

Assistance was still needed by peoples of Allied countries, and it was likely that food rationing would be increased in the Commonwealth, said the Deputy Rationing Director (Mr. S. F. Cochran).

While Australia was producing more than sufficient food for the services and civilians, the reduced export surplus had compelled men and women of allied countries to tighten their belts. Australia could assist in this respect by making further sacrifices.

WORK IN THE TROPICS.

"Never before has there ben such a clear demonstration of what men can do in the tropics as we are having to-day. It is being amply demonstrated daily that men can successfully carry out the hardest physical labour under the hottest natural conditions with no abnormal consequences, provided they are well fed, well trained, and contented," said Professor D. H. K. Lee in his presidential address to the Royal Society of Queensland at the University on Monday night.

DISTRUSTED

GOVERNMENT REHABILITATION

A Soldier Speaks

"We front line soldiers feel that if what we had was good enough to enlist and fight for, it's good enough to come back to as a prelude to a general improvement in world conditions. We feel that as a basis for any 'new order,' the old order must be re-erected as a jumping off place," said Frank Browne, former lieutenant in an A.I.F. commando unit, recently discharged after a recurrent break-down in health.

"Most of the coves in my unit, and I believe it's a general feeling— just want to come back and pick up their civilian life where they left off," he went on. "They distrust most of the talk about a 'new order,' for they feel that any 'new order' being shaped in their absence will not distinguish itself by any great tenderness towards the returned soldier. Nine out of ten of the men," he continued, "feel that private enterprise offers them their only hope in taking up life from where they left off. They distrust rehabilitation by Government regulation because they feel that Government regulation will introduce many anomalies which, though not aimed at penalising the returned soldier, will have that effect just the same. They also feel that the Government has shown in many ways that it regards Trades Union support as much more valuable than that of the men and women in the services. The refusal of the Government to forego excise on tobacco is freely quoted in contrast to the attitude adopted towards strikers who are apparently conceded every demand they may see fit to make.

"During the past three or four days I have spoken to many returned soldiers who, like myself, are in the first stages of rehabilitation, and I've found them amazed that the Government is prepared to stand by and see disputes drag on to the detriment of the families of men who are away fighting. A concensus of opinion is expressed in the comment, 'if the Government is prepared to do this to fighting men during the war, it's a pretty black outlook for them after the war'."

Keep your Premiums PAID UP TO DATE

It is good War-time practice, and good family practice, too

THE War has upset both family and business life. It has raised taxes and the general cost of living, and has jolted many people out of their way of life. As a result there are some men and women who fail to pay the premiums on their Life Assurance. Happily, there are not many, but there should be none at all. Life Assurance is one of a man's first duties; it is an essential part of every man's War effort; it protects his family, gives him confidence in himself, and provides money for the War Loans. It helps to stabilize the Nations' finances and makes for National strength.

If you have let your A.M.P. premiums go unpaid, ask the nearest A.M.P. office how your policy or policies stand. If they are policies of some years' standing it is likely that the Society has kept them in force, but do not depend on this. The Society keeps them in good shape for a relatively long time after a member's neglect, but it cannot do it for ever. The wise man pays his premiums when they are due. Enquire how your policies stand. Enquire to-day.

To date the A.M.P. has put £50,000,000 of its members' conserved earnings (their premiums) into Commonwealth Loans. It is adding to this at the rate of £500,000 a month.

FOOD FACTS

NUMBER 3A

Nature's Perfect Food is

MILK

Providing more nutrition than any other single food, Milk contains the vital vitamins and minerals needed to protect against illness, ensure good digestion, build healthy tissues, strong bones and teeth.

It aids normal growth, develops energy, and protects against ill-health.

Children up to 16 years should have 1½ pints of milk daily—either to drink, or in soups, sauces, custards or puddings.

★ ★ ★ ★

In country areas where fresh cow's milk is not plentiful, full cream powdered milk is an excellent substitute—providing the same benefits almost completely.

FIGHTING FRENCH AND FAMILIES

Broadcast Connecting Link

"Mademoiselle Annette" is a "nom de guerre." It screens the identity of a young Parisian in England who acts as connecting link in the chain of events that stretch between the Fighting French and their families in France.

On four days a week, for a few brief minutes (longer would be too dangerous for the listeners) she sits before the microphone in a B.B.C. studio and broadcasts intimate messages across the Channel.

Each message carries word to some French man or woman that Michel or Jacques or Andre is safe and well. Often that is the first word they have had, in months of anxious suspense, that a husband, a son, or a brother is alive instead of just one of the "missing."

Surnames, of course, cannot be mentioned, and christian names only rarely, for the Germans listen carefully. But even the relentlessness of Nazi detection is no match for either French wit or mother wit.

The Fighting French have a "system," so worked that the Germans can never tell who is sending the message, although it is easy for the relatives to recognise from whom it comes. Age is given, and the neighbourhood to which the message-sender belongs, but it is little personal details that bring the thrill of recognition to those who risk liberty, and even life, to listen. "Henri, who always broke his shoe laces: Jean, who still has the scar where he cut his knee on the bill-hook: Jules, who hated soup; Rene whose favourite wine was ———, are only pointers in the identity chart.

"Mademoiselle Annette" has a sympathetic personality. As she fingers the official forms on which officers and men, and women, of the three fighting French services write their short personal notes, she says: "I do not just read these. I say from my heart what they contain, as I would if I could stand face to face with their mothers and wives in France."

And does she know that the messages are received? She does. Messages come back in return. There have even been letters with Petain stamps on them. One was addressed: "Marcel, born July 14, 1915, c/o B.B.C., London." The Fighting French had to go through all their records, but they found the right Marcel in the end.

On two other days of the week another French "inconnu" gives similar messages to France from French civilians in Britain.

IN RUSSIA

Crossing On Ice

"There are three main methods of bridging a frozen river where the ice isn't entirely reliable. One is to thicken the ice. In a hard frost this can be done by pouring water over the crossing, though after a day or two this method results in a weakening of the ice underneath. Another way is to clear all the snow from the surface (said Mr. Paul Winterton in a despatch recorded from Moscow and broadcast in a B.B.C. news reel.

On the Volga it was found that ice kept free from snow reached a thickness of 115 cm. by the end of the winter, while an adjoining area uncleared of snow had never got thicker than 80 cm. Holes can be dealt with by cutting large blocks of ice from a different part of the river, and then freezing and wiring them to the sides of the holes.

If weather conditions aren't suitable for any of these methods, then it's always possible to lay wooden platforms across the ice, which distribute the strain, or else to drive piles into the ice and build proper bridges."

"BORDER HOPPING."

To check "border hopping" identity cards will have to be presented in future before tickets are issued for inter-state travel.

LIQUOR REFORM SOCIETY

ABUSE OF DRINKING

Grave National Danger

Recognising the evils associated with the abuse of alcohol, and realising the adverse effects of excessive drinking upon morale, efficiency and leadership, a Liquor Reform Society has been formed in Brisbane.

The name of the society sufficiently indicates its ultimate object, and further indicates the recognition of a problem in connection with the use of alcohol in human communities.

As practical individuals we have to recognise that alcohol must, for the present at least, be given a place in our social system, and attempt to control its use in such a way that it ceases to be a social evil.

For this purpose, all that is suggested in a broad way is that drinkers should carefully avoid over indulgence and shun drinking conditions which in the least degree are perilous for human decency and dignity.

For each person there is an amount of liquor beyond which, if taken even in the best conditions, drunkenness will rsult, and it is important for each person to decide his capacity and to know when he has had enough, and then to stop. It is the object of the society to make the public fully acquainted with the theoretical aspects of drinking, to disseminate accurate knowledge about its effects, and to create a healthy public opinion about the dangers and ugliness associated with its abuse.

Opinions will differ about the practical way of securing this object, but it is felt that such a potentially dangerous commodity as alcohol can no longer be left in the control of persons who make more profit the more alcohol is consumed. The trade should be controlled by some statutory body which has no monetary interest in the sale of alcohol, but which, on the contrary, does its best to reduce consumption.

Nobody can deny that the conditions in which alcohol is consumed at present are no credit to any self-respecting community, and the society proposes to secure drastic alteration of these conditions.

No reform is of permanent value or effect unless based on an enlightened public demand expressed through the elected representatives of the people in Parliamnt. Reforms have no practical effect unless backed by specific legislation. Whatever laws are made, it will be the duty of the community to see they are rigidly enforced. In the past violation of the laquor laws has been a public scandal.

The legal and legislative side of the work of the society will be delicate, and perhaps the most difficult of its objects, and that is why the society needs and requests a large measure of public support for its objectives.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

TWO WARS

Link Indians and Diggers

Growing importance of India to us calls for a wider Australian interest in Indian problems, argues Douglas Wilkie, Melbourne war correspondent lately retuned from Malaya, Burma and India.

One Australian newspaper suggested we should bring Chinese guerillas to North Australia, says Mr. Wilkie. Indian troops, or at least a labou corps, might help us defend West Australia.

Obvious stress has been laid on just how useful a few tens of thousands of Gurkhas might be in the New Guinea jungle instead of being immobilised in Assam, or on police duty in Calcutta or Delhi.

Where Australians and Indians have shared the perils and hardships of campaigns, a strong bond has developed, he adds.

EXPLOITS IN NORTH AFRICA.

Back in 1915 partly trained Australians who stormed Gallipoli were quick to appreciate the skill of the brawny, smiling Gurkhas, who slid by night into the Turkish trenches, knives between their teeth. In this war it was an Indian division which reduced the great Italian stronghold of Keren, East Africa, in one of the most amazing and least publicised exploits of British arms. This same division served later in the desert.

Any digger back from the Middle East will tell how the Indians faced Rommel's panzers with the same courage and resource as they had shown in the Abyssinian mountains.

When some of the A.I.F. passing through Bombay staged a harmless but lively escapade which offended residents, Indian soldiers, also on their way back from the Middle East, sent a deputation to a Bombay newspaper, urging the Indian people to show better understanding of their Australian "cobbers." Had not the Australians shared their Christmas hampers with the Indians in the desert? And dealt with them as soldiers and men, not as inferiors?

Early in the Malayan campaign Gurkhas, and one or two veteran Indian battalions fought to the death in a nightmare hide-and-seek in the jungle, costing the Japs many of their best storm troops. If some of the other Indian units did not fight so well, it was because they were green recruits, quarter-trained, ill-equipped.

The Australians won the gratitude of many Indian formations in Malaya by sharing with them some of their own medical supplies, which the Indian Army had not provided for its hasty but overlate reinforcements.

FORTITUDE OF SEPOYS.

In the retreat out of Burma many Australian airmen trekked for weeks over mountains they could have crossed in an hour or two by plane—if there had been any planes.

Again, Australians learned to recognise the discipline and fortitude of Indian Sepoys, who reached the India border after much hardship, still shouldering rifles and tommyguns along trails littered with dead.

Revaluating our Asiatic allies, we are beginning to realise how Asiatic manpower, and the specialised fighting qualities of many Asiatic troops, are helping us to check the Japs—and could help us to push them back a lot more quickly if this manpower were fully mobilised.

SYDNEY HARBOUR BRIDGE

Building Brought a Few Headaches

The Sydney Harbour Bridge was 11 years old last week.

The last year has been an expensive one for the bridge, for since the introduction of petrol rationing, revenue has fallen off enormously, and it is expected that the deficit will amount to £250,000 by the end of this coming June.

When visitors to the Australian pavilion at the New Zealand Exhibition a few years ago were asked what Australia meant to them, the almost inevitable reply was, "Don Bradman, the Sydney Harbour Bridge, Gladys Moncrieff, and man-eating sharks."

The bridge will always be one of Australia's best advertisements, not only because it is built of Australian steel, but also because it is a structure which has a very definite and pleasing personality.

The building of it brought a few headaches.

Asked whether it had been necessary to wait for a suitable temperature before the two arches of the bridge could be joined, the designer, Dr. J. J. C. Bradfield, said that the action of winds and atmospheric changes had been so important a factor that their possible influence had been fully investigated and taken into account during the designing of the bridge.

Calculations had been so accurate that the span of 1650 feet (a mass of steel, concrete, timber and asphalt weighing 43,000 tons) was completed by a point one inch square running accurately into its proper place 200 feet in the air above the harbour.

In calculating the possible extremes of wind and temperature which might have obstructed the linking of the two halves, Dr. Bradfield made exhaustive research into weather records.

The severest gale experienced in N.S.W. reached a velocity of 120 miles an hour, and the bridge had to be designed to withstand a similar gale either during or after construction.

Temperatures also had to be thoroughly investigated. Parts of the bridge exposed to the sun could be as much as 25 degrees hotter than parts away from the sun, and the cables supporting the structure relaxed or taughtened according to whether they were in the shade or in the sun.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

IS REQUIRED IN 1943 BY THE QUEENSLAND DIVISION

DISBURSEMENTS by the Queensland Division of the Red Cross Society must progressively increase in direct ratio to the need and demand for the service it provides. The following figures tell their own story:—

FOR TWELVE MONTHS from 1st July, 1941, to 30th June, 1942, Payments of £167,738 exceeded Receipts of £147,613 by £20,125. EXPENDITURE for 1941-42 averaged almost £14,000 per month. For July, August, September and October of 1942 the average was over £20,550 per month, and it is anticipated that this rate will be increased in 1943.

CURRENT TOPICS

NAME AND ADDRESS ESSENTIAL.

For an reference in this issue that may be construed as bearing upon the Local Authority elections (Town Council, Harbour Board, and Calliope Shire), C. W. Macfarlan, Gondoon Street, Gladstone, is responsible. All contributions for publication must carry the name and address of writer.

THIRD LIBERTY LOAN.

Up to the closing hour of the banks yesterday 141 applications had been received for the Third Liberty Loan, representing a total of £8700. The figures include advance subscriptions.

COMMUNIST CANDIDATES.

In our last issue it was stated that Messrs. A. R. Paterson, D. Lewis and M. Thompson were contesting the Harbour Board and Council elections as independents. However, this is not correct, as they are standing in the interests of the Communist Party.

MR. T. L. WILLIAMS.

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) will be in Gladstone during the coming week-end, and will be staying at the Grand Hotel. Mr. Williams, who has been made Minister for Food and Emergency Supplies in Queensland, as well as Minister for Agriculture, will attend the monthly meeting of the A.L.P. during his visit, and expects also to be able to visit the local Convent and State and High Schools, Hospital, and Meatworks before returning to Brisbane on Monday's afternoon's train.

BARLEY PRODUCTION.

"Unless a very early decision is reached by the Comonwealth Government on its barley production programme, it will be far too late for this State to assist this year," said Mr. T. L. Williams, Minister for Agriculture. "The planting season is upon us, and much of the land which could have been used for barley is now being placed under oats. I am hopeful that early advice will be received of the price which may be expected. Last season's values will require to be considerably increased to make the proposition attractive to our growers."

MISS EDNA WILLIAMS.

Miss Edna Williams, A.A.M.W.S., formerly a V.A.D. serving in the Middle East, has returned to Australia with the 9th Division, after nearly 18 months' service in Palestine. Miss Williams is the youngest daughter of the Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) and Mrs. Williams, of Northgate, Brisbane, and she will shortly resume duty at a northern battle station, where her eldest brother is also doing service. She speaks highly of the excellent work being performed by the Red Cross and A.C.F. overseas, without which help and assistance the Middle East with its thousands of Australian soldiers and nurses would be a much more difficult land in which to live and serve.

COMFORTS FOR HOSPITAL.

The dance held under the auspices of the Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society by members of an Australian survey unit attracted a record crowd to the Trocadero on Monday night, and even standing room was at a premium. The receipts, which totalled £43, will be devoted towards the purchase of a radio and other accessories for installation at the District Hospital for the comfort and convenience of wounded and convalescent servicemen in the military ward. The music for the function was supplied by Mr. T. Rees' orchestra, with Mrs. G. Fry (violin) and Mrs. Darling (piano). During the evening soft drinks were on sale by ladies of the Red Cross branch. The President (Mrs. H. V. Phillips) and other officers were present at the function.

PATRIOTIC COMFORTS FUND

MONTHLY STREET STALL

Donations Asked For

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the joint A.C.F. and Patriotic Appeal Fund will be conducted in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, April 16.

The convenors (Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen) would much appeciate donations of jam, fruit, cakes, vegetables, sweets, or any other home manufacture or articles for sale on that date.

Donations may be left with the convenors, or at Gladstone Cash and Carry.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

P.O.W. STREET SCHEME

Excellent Progress Made

The Gladstone P.O.W. street scheme continues to make excellent progress. The goal of £100 set for the month of March was exceeded, and it is now estimated that the complete scheme will return approximately £1500 per year.

Mrs. Hallam completed Scenery, Bayne and Railway Streets, and arranged with Miss Myrtle Liddicoat to do Kent Street and the balance of West Gladstone. This area has now been completely canvassed, and Miss Liddicoat has her own book, and is an authorised collector.

Mrs. M. Tait has taken out a new book for Central Lane.

Mrs. Elliott continues to open up new streets for the scheme, and has appointed Mrs. D. Linnane for Bonar Street, and Mrs. Funk for Glenlyon Street.

Mrs. Watson has charge of Auckland Hill, Marine Parade, Lord and Rolla Streets, and does her own collecting.

Mrs. Ricketts has a large area, including Tank Street, Fisher Street, Fowler Estate, etc.

Miss Margaret Hill continues to do Auckland Street, and Mrs. Frank Johnstone Barney Point.

Mrs. S. Coppin has completed Parson's Point canvass, where she was successful in obtaining every resident there.

Mrs. Clyde Smith, who recently took over Roseberry and part of Gondoon Street, has made regular collections here, and Mrs. E. Masterson has done splendidly in Gondoon Street.

Mrs. Lodder continues to collect in Oaka Lane and Herbert Street.

A drive will be made shortly on the long stretch of Toolooa Street, and some small lanes not yet canvassed.

The joint hon. secretary, Mrs. H. Browne, has returned after a short absence from town, and her assistance to the scheme is again available.

Canvassers and collectors will meet again next Monday night, when books will be revised and the final drive to complete the town discussed.

The secretary and co-organiser, Mr. V. A. Summers, will be present to give any necessary information and direct the campaign.

The ladies working the scheme in Gladstone deserve every congratulation, and their efforts compare very favourably with that of larger towns in the State.

Other centres have had a great deal of outside assistance. For instance, at Rockhampton air raid wardens, girl guides, and members of other patriotic bodies had co-operated with the P.O.W. Committee. In Gladstone the only assistance to date has been given by members of the Boy Scout groups, but these lads have been very helpful.

2060 PRISONERS.

International Red Cross has given official information regarding 597 officers and 1463 other ranks held prisoner by the Japanese. It was also stated that 95 Australian soldier prisoners had died since internment. Next of kin of prisoners about whom the Japanese had supplied information were informed within 12 hours, and any further information would be sent to next of kin immediately it was received.

As stated in our last notes, letters to prisoners sent through the Red Cross are definitely being delivered in Japanese internment camps, and large distributions of parcels of food and medical supplies have already been made there under Red Cross supervision. All letters to prisoners should be typed and the local branch will assist with this service if necessary. The local secretary or publicity officer would also be pleased to receive any information or items from letters sent home by prisoners.

ITALIAN CAMPS.

Writing from Camp 57 PM in Italy to a Red Cross publicity officer, Corporal Jim McIntosh wrote early complaining that something should be done about Dominion Red Cross parcels, which were held up and very irregular in delivery.

Australian prisoners found it very hard to make ends meet, as there was a very severe ration in the camp. Later he advised receipt of a British Red Cross parcel, which was shared with a fellow Aussie not so fortunate. "It was like dining at the Savoy again."

Then came a Canadian Red Cross parcel, very nice, all food, but the A.I.F. man's thoughts turned to the severe winter ahead. He said there was two feet of snow there last winter, and if they did not get plenty of clothes and blankets they would die. However, once again the Red Cross saved the day with a large consignment of parcels of clothing for all the men.

The next letter was more cheerful, and the boys had received plenty of sporting material sent by the Red Cross, but unfortunately there was no where to play, and now the final letter: "We had a red letter day yesterday: received Red Cross parcels of food and English cigarettes. We sat up all night smoking and eating, and eating and smoking."

Gladstone contributors reading the above should feel proud that this town is now contributing some 25 weekly parcels of food, clothing, etc., to our prisoners, and the most sceptical must agree that the prisoners are getting the parcels regularly.

GLADSTONE SHOW SOCIETY

RODEO TO BE HELD

Aid of Patriotic Funds

At a well attended meeting of the Committee of the Gladstone Show Society, it was unanimously decided to hold a rodeo on the Gladstone Show Grounds on Saturday, June 5, and to divide the nett proceeds equally between the Gladstone and District Patriotic Fund, Gladstone Comforts Fund, Calliope Comforts Fund, Red Cross and Red Shield.

A committee was appointed to draft the programme, which was afterwards prepared.

It provides for prize money of approximately £50, and comprises open and maiden camp drafts, bullock riding, buckjumping, and other events for the general public, and particularly the children.

Since the holding of a rodeo was first mooted some weeks ago there have been many inquiries, and indications are that it will be well supported, especially as Gladstone has had no sporting programmes of any nature for a considerable time.

The committee will meet again in a mon's time to finalise matters and appoint officials.

The secretary reported that exactly half of the members who had been written to had paid their subscriptions for the current year, and several more had informed him they would renew their membership.

PRIMARY INDUSTRIES

Examination Asked For

The Prime Minister (Mr. Curtin) has undertaken that, during the parliamentary recess he will have an examination made of the points raised by the Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Fadden) concerning the position of Australian primary industries, with a view to appropriate action being taken.

Mr. Fadden, in emphasising the need for complete consideration by the Government of the conditions existing in primary industries, asked the Prime Minister to have the examination made.

In the motion which he moved last week, Mr. Fadden asked the House to express the opinion that the stability of productiveness of the primary industries were essential to the nation's war effort.

That those engaged in those industries were entitled to just treatment, including a fair wage, based on Australian standards and comparable with that prevailing in secondary industry, to employees, and a fair price to employers.

That it was unjust to establish any wage fixation scheme for primary industries that did not provide for impartial and full investigation of the facts, and a due consideration of the economics of the industries concerned.

That the time was overdue for the complete consideration by the Government of the position of the primary industries from the viewpoint of man power requirements, prices, and costs, having in mind that ultimate soundness could be achieved only by fair prices, adequate wages, proper living conditions, and improvement generally in the amenities of country life.

RED CROSS DANCE.

Dancers and supporters of the Red Cross are reminded that a mid-week dance in aid of the general funds of the branch will be held in the Trocadero to-night (Wednesday). Good music will be provided, and dancers are promised a pleasant evening. Many servicemen have advised their intention of attending.

OUR LADY STAR OF THE SEA CHURCH

REV. FATHER D. J. CAMPBELL FAREWELLED

VALUED SERVICES RECOGNISED BY PARISHIONERS

On Sunday night the people of Our Lady Star of the Sea Church, Gladstone, took farewell of the Rev. Father D. J. Campbell, who has been transferred to Ashgrove, Brisbane.

The Empire Hall was completely filled with parishioners and friends, and a pleasant evening was spent. Mr. W. G. Otty presided, and he was accompanied on the platform by the Rev. Fathers Campbell and McSherry, Dr. W. Yum, and Messrs. P. Ryalls, P. Tracey, V. Ryalls, S. Clapham, and W. Wallace.

Proceedings took the form of a musical evening and an interesting presentation ceremony. The artistes who contributed to an enjoyable programme were: Messrs. Len Mylne, Rev. Father McSherry, J. W. Busteed, and Mrs. J. W. Busteed, and the Misses Pat Jordan and Sheila Royston.

VALUED SERVICES.

It is pleasing to record that the parishioners fully recognised, with deep affection and gratitude, the valued services rendered by the Rev. Father Campbell in a practical way, the form of recognition being the presentation of a wallet of notes.

A WARM FRIEND.

Rev. Father Campbell was a great worker, and was always doing some work connected with the parish, and his congregation had a warm friend whose wise advice and sympathetic help could be relied upon on every occasion.

UNSELFISH IN HIS UNDERTAKINGS.

He was always willing to co-operate in any work for the good of the parish, and was very unselfish in all his undertakings, besides possessing a current of sympathy, a stream of kindness that admirably fitted him for his important work, and he carried out a great deal of good work that was unseen by the ordinary parishioner.

CITIZENS' GOOD WISHES.

Rev. Father Campbell, who left on Monday for Brisbane, carried with him the good wishes of the citizens, and wherever he goes in the future he will have their kindly thoughts circling round him.

REV. FATHER CULLEN.

Rev. Father Campbell will be succeeded by the Rev. Father Cullen, B.Sc., of Ashgrove, who for some years was rector of St. Patrick's College, Wellington, New Zealand.

SPIRIT OF FRIENDSHIP.

Mr. W. G. Otty, after explaining the object of the gathering, said that night their hearts beat as one—a spirit of friendship and gratitude to the Rev. Father Campbell, who had been transferred to Ashgrove, Brisbane. The little function had been arranged to give the parishioners and his friends the opportunity of wishing him God-speed and to acknowledge his work with a presentation.

GOOD WORK.

Rev. Father McSherry said it was indeed a sad function when they came to say good-by to the Rev. Father Campbell, who had performed a great deal of good work during his stay of seven years with them. During that time Rev. Father Campbell had made many friends in Gladstone, and it was with deep regret that he was leaving, but his work would live after him. He personally regretted his departure, and they had assembled to wish their good friend and spiritual adviser God-speed to Brisbane, and to express the wish that his labours in his new sphere would be as successful as they had been in Gladstone.

"GUIDE AND COUNSELLOR."

Dr. W. Yum said every parishioner was deeply regretful that the Rev. Father Campbell was leaving Gladstone, for he was loved and esteemed by everyone. He hoped the function was only to say au revoir and not good-by, and what was their loss was a decided gain to others. During the seven years the Rev. Father Campbell had been stationed at Gladstone the church had made considerable progress, and had it not been for the war their new school would have been erected, but when it was it would be another monument to the Rev. Father Campbell, who had worked hard for the advancement of the church. "He will be a guide and counsellor in Brisbane, and I wish him God-speed," concluded Dr. Yum.

A SINCERE FRIEND.

Mr. Tracey, in endorsing the remarks of the previous speakers, said during the time the Rev. Father Campbell had been in Gladstone he had endeared himself to every member of the parish. There was something in him that appealed to everyone, and they were losing a sincere friend. Rev. Father Campbell would leave behind him a record of service that would ever be remembered by the parishioners. During his stay with them he had carried heavy responsibilities, but had nobly and successfully carried out his work. In his departure, Rev. Father Campbell would carry away with him the best wishes of the people of Gladstone, and it would be a joyous day when they learned that he was coming back.

DEPARTURE REGRETTED.

Mr. V. Ryalls said they regretted the departure of the Rev. Father Campbell, and all the parishioners felt it deeply, as they fully recognised the magnificent work he had carried out. He wished him the best of luck, good health, and happiness in his priestly duties.

COURTEOUS AND GENIAL.

Mr. Pat Ryalls, after expressing his regret at the departure of the Rev. Father Campbell, said it was very easy to get on with him, as he possessed a most courteous and genial natue. Rev. Father Campbell had always been ready to assist and co-operate with the Hibernian Society, and the members would miss him. His work in the interests of the church at Gladstone had been outstanding, and he felt sure he would do the same at Ashgrove, and wished him every happiness in his new sphere.

"A CONSPIRACY."

Mr. Stan Clapham said about seven years ago he had been introduced to the Rev. Father Campbell by Mr. Breslin, and when he heard the name "Campbell," a Scot, he came to the conclusion there was a conspiracy with his friend Mr. Macfarlan at the "Observer" Office. (Laughter). Mr. Clapham went on to say he had received a real pain when he learned that the Rev. Father Campbell was leaving Gladstone. During his stay here the Rev. Father Campbell had made many friends, possessing, as he did, a most friendly disposition, and he felt sure he would continue to do so at Ashgrove. In conclusion, Mr. Clapham wished the Rev. Father Campbell the best of health and luck in his new sphere at Brisbane.

A PRESENTATION.

Mr. R. Wallace said the parishioners were deeply privileged and honoured to make a presentation to the Rev. Father Campbell as a small token of the esteem in which he was held, and in handing over a wallet of notes Mr. Wallace added: "I trust your future will be full of brightness and happiness, coupled with the best of health, and that you will long be spared to work in the vineyard of our Lord."

REV. FATHER CAMPBELL.

Rev. Father Campbell, on rising to reply, had the heartiest of receptions. He said he was indeed grateful for the nice things that had been said about him, and would ever remember his association with the church in Gladstone and the many friends he had made during his seven years of priestly duties. He had had a nice time at Gladstone, and regretted he was leaving so many good friends.

PEOPLE MOST FRIENDLY.

Seven years ago he came to Gladstone from New Zealand. At that time it was a bit of an adventure, but he decided to come to Australia and find out all about the Australian people, and he had found them most friendly and kindly, with big open hearts. However, when he did arrive in Gladstone he was a little blue, a little lonely, a little home sick; but when he got acquainted with his parishioners and the people he had enjoyed every minute of his stay.

"FEELINGS OF DEEP REGRET."

"I am leaving many dear friends, and am doing so with feelings of deep regret," continued the Rev. Father Campbell. He went on to thank the various speakers, especially Mr. Clapham, who was not a member of his church, but was a real good friend. He had not done much for Mr. Clapham, but on the other hand he had done a lot for him.

CO-OPERATION APPRECIATED.

He thanked the ladies for their assistance and co-operation with the functions associated with the church, which to a large extent were responsible for the successful work carried out in the parish. He also took the opportunity to thank Mr. J. Busteed and the other artistes for the enjoyable musical programme submitted, and concluded by saying, "I thank you one and all."

H.M.A.S. GLADSTONE

APPEAL BY MAYOR DENNIS

Citizens Asked to Contribute

Fellow citizens,—

I know that you will all share with me the pride and pleasure that it has given me when I was advised that the Commonwealth Authorities had decided to name one of our new warships the H.M.A.S. Gladstone.

Lieut. J. W. Pennet, R.A.N., commander of the ship, has written me suggesting that the town of Gladstone might desire to present to the ship some momento in honour of the name she bears, which would be greatly appreciated.

The hon. sec. of the Comforts Fund (Mrs. J. W. Garrett) has received a similar letter suggesting that this Fund might be willing to service the vessel whilst in commission, the initial cost of which would be approximately £150, and £10 per quarter thereafter.

Articles suggested are wireless sets, electric urns, indoor and deck games, and the usual supply of comforts.

My Council has decided to co-operate with this body in raising the sum of money necessary to purchase these comforts.

That you will all be keen to do your share and follow with considerable pride and eager expectation the career of this vessel, which I have no doubt, will uphold the highest tradition of our Navy.

I make this appeal to you to contribute towards the cost of fitting out this ship, of which we will all be as proud of as we are of the town which bears this name.

As this appeal will close in a fortnight it will be necessary to act quickly, and I know that I can depend on all to do their share.

Donations may be sent to the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson), or to Mrs. J. W. Garrett.

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB

THE 1943 SEASON

Many Difficulties Encountered

With so many of its members on active service, officials of the Gladstone Golf Club have found many difficulties in the way of opening the 1943 season. The main stumbling block was the fairways, where the grass had grown several feet. With labour unavailable the only solution was a working bee to get the links in order. Fortunately, one of the officials who has his annual holidays spent last week-end getting the machinery, gear, ets., in order, and he is now busily engaged mowing the links with the aid of "Bessie the 2nd" and mechanical appliances. However, there is a great deal of work to be done, and members and intending members are asked to put the day in next Sunday assisting in raking the grass, sanding the greens, etc. It has also ben suggested that associates might make a day of it by providing luncheon one week-end and assist in keeping members on the job.

The club is undoubtedly an asset to Gladstone, and a favourite spot for recreation by visitors and members of the services, and it is hoped that the working bee will be well attended and extremely successful. Mr. Harold O'Sing, who has been on holidays, has written to say that he will be home shortly to lend a hand with the club's affairs.

STALAG LUFT III.

Camp for Airforce Prisoners

Stalag Luft 111 is a new camp at Sagan, in East Germany, for Airforce prisoners of war. The officers and men are in separate compounds. Both officers and other ranks have a reading room.

The men were rather crowded when a Red Cross inspection was made in May, but new barracks were under construction. Bathing facilities were satisfactory, though wash-rooms were not sufficient.

Red Cross and next-of-kin parcels were arriving regularly.

Advice was also recently received to the effect that all prisoners from camps Stalag 111 E and Stalag Luft (Barth) have been moved to this camp.

The following cheerful letter from a prisoner of war describes a few of the conditions of this camp:—

"This camp is a new one, built for Airforce prisoners of war, and it is under the control of the Luftwaffe, not the Army. After my last it seems like a holiday camp, and I feel sure that life will be much more pleasant and bearable once we have settled down.

"The camp is surrounded on four sides by a forest of pines, spruce and larch. The huts are wooden and quite comfortable: there is good canitation and washing facilities, and each barrack hut has proper cooking facilities.

The supply of Red Cross food seems to be very reliable, and this factor alone goes a long way to cheering us up.

CORRESPONDENCE

(We do not necessarily identify ourselves with the views expressed by correspondents.)

CAMPBELL TO CAMPBELL.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—I suppose Mr. James Campbell, of Calliope, expects me to make some reply to his literary effort in the "Observer" of 27th ult., but as he has such a vivid imagination I could not make the most harmless remark without running the risk of his finding an insult hidden in it somewhere. Therefore I must refrain from any comment.

I have a grievance though. Mr. Campbell has omitted to supply full directions to the land of nod, and I can't find the place in my atlas either.—Yours etc.,

JOHN M. CAMPBELL.

GREATLY INCREASED ACTIVITIES

Wide Range of Services

Mr. Charles K. Gamble, chairman and managing director of the Vacuum Oil Company (Pty.) Ltd., recently returned to Australia after about five months in America.

In October last, at the request of Mr. Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross Society, Mr. Gamble flew to Washington in order to discuss the many problems ahead of that organisation in this part of the world. Mr. Gamble was at that time delegate for the American Red Cross in Australia.

Subsequent to his visit to the national headquarters, Mr. Gamble was asked to assume responsibility for additional territory in the South-west Pacific. This includes New Zealand, Fiji, New Hebrides, New Caledonia, and the Solomons. He now carries the title of American Red Cross High Commissioner for the Southern Pacific.

Big work is ahead. The American Red Cross offers a wide range of services. Its functions embody those of such organisations as the Australian Comforts Fund and other welfare bodies, in addition to the normal work of a Red Cross Society. Thus the recreational and social needs of American troops in foreign lands are catered for, which in themselves involve a vast amount of organisation and work.

Great developments are anticipated. At present there are 225 specially trained A.R.C. workers from America over here; an additional 300 will be arriving within the next few months.

Some idea of the work ahead may be gained from the fact that the budget for the balance of this year only is estimated at more than a million pounds. Yet in all probability this will have to be greatly increased.

In this territory the American Red Cross is now operating between 30 and 40 clubs and convalescent homes. In all the larger hospitals which are servicing American troops there are trained representatives of the society.

In addition to the American personnel, there are large numbers of voluntary helpers from amongst local residents. Thousands of volunteers are helping the American Red Cross in the conduct of its clubs, rest areas, convalescent homes and the like. To these the society is extremely grateful.

The society also receives much appreciated assistance from the Australian Red Cross and the Australian Comforts Fund organisations.

Mr. Norman H. Davis, in Washington, specially asked Mr. Gamble to convey the grateful thanks of the American Red Cross to the many helpers in Australia.

Mr. Gamble, in addition to being chief of the American Red Cross in this part of the world, is also liaison officer in Australia for the Anzac Division of the British War Relief Society of New York. While he was in America he made a first-hand report to the headquarters of that body—a body which also does a vast amount of good work for fighting forces in this part of the world. Its tangible assistance to the Australian Red Cross and the Australian Comforts Fund (and similar organisations in New Zealand) runs into many thousands of pounds.

RED CROSS WORK.

It costs over £3500 per day to keep the Australian Red Cross Society functioning, and as the sick and wounded, the prisoners of war, and the men the women, the children who become bomb victims need the help of the Red Cross—the Red Cross needs you. Needs you as a member, as a blood donor, needs your sympathy, needs your support, whether it be in money or in work. You are a shareholder in this great company of good Samaritans, this legion of mercy, and the dividends depend on you. Now you can understand why the Queensland Division of the Red Cross is appealing for £300,000 for its 1943 quota. Every shilling donation counts, will you help? Your local Red Cross branch will gladly acknowledge donations or answer inquiries about Red Cross work.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

PREFERENCE FOR SOLDIERS

"Not a Question Being Generous"

"The Commonwealth Government ought to put it beyond doubt that when a job is offering returned soldiers of this war—provided they apply for the job and are capable of doing it—should get the job," said Hon. Lieut. Colonel M. F. Bruxner, Country Party member for Tenterfield, and leader of the Opposition in the N.S. Wales State Parliament, in an exclusive interview with Industrial News Service last week. The interview, which took place at Parliament House, was punctuated with handshakes as friends came in to wish the Colonel "many happy returns."

"New land should be made available for returned soldiers on the same conditions," the Colonel continued. "The community at large must be made to realise that war takes an enormous toll from a man, not only physically, but by uprooting him from his chosen walk of life during very valuable years, and possibly disorganising his whole existence for good. It's not a question of being generous," he went on emphatically, "It's a question of being fair.

"Trade Unions will accept preference to soldiers only, provided none of their privileges are endangered. Now," he continued, "the organisation of people in the same walk of life is excellent, provided it is used for the betterment of the individual without suppressing anyone else. The Guilds in the old days, for instance, were excellent institutions, but the unions are becoming altogether too powerful. In England, the unions are prepared to waive their privileges for the duration. They have only one idea—to get on with the job of winning the war. I feel that the trade union attitude in Australia is unBritish."

RED CROSS SOCIETY

Monthly Paddy's Market

The monthly Paddy's market, organised by the convenor (Mrs. A. H. Friend) and committee of ladies, will be held at the Red Cross hut on Friday next, when the usual donations of fruit, vegetables, flowers, cakes and home manufactures will be on sale. A large quantity of home made jam will be available at the stalls. Features of the function will be the raffle of a turkey gobbler donated by Mrs. Doelle, a very nice Easter gift for the lucky ticket holder, and a beautifully dressed doll made and donated by Mrs. A. E. Easterby.

Supporters of the Red Cross in town and country are asked to forward their donations as usual to Friends (Pty.) Ltd. in good time for the market.

The Society relies to a great extent on the Paddy's markets for funds to finance its knitting and sewing circle, hospital supplies, evacuee and wounded servicing and V.A.D. organisation, and it is hoped that the public generally will continue to support the function to the fullest extent.

COUNTING Our Blessings

THE burdens of the Australian people seem to grow daily, and easement of them may be a long way off, yet we are free.

Our cities have not been bombed. Our women and children can walk the streets unafraid. Our schools are open. Our Parliaments can still meet. Freedom of Speech and of the Press is not greatly restricted. Our people can still air their grievances. In how many other countries of this war-torn world can these things be said?

Let us pray that we may be worthy of the fighting men of the Empire and our Allies who, by their toil and sacrifice, preserve these freedoms to us.

Our part as Citizens is to bear cheerfully the burdens of rationing and of such restrictions as are necessary (yet with constructive criticism where that seems desirable) and to save every penny we can for the War Loans.

One family in every two in the Commonwealth enjoys some measure of A.M.P. life assurance, paying premiums from ONE SHILLING A WEEK UPWARDS. These savings by members for their own Security have enabled their Society to put £50,000,000 into Commonwealth Loans, and to add £500,000 a month to this vast sum.

AUSTRALIAN TANKS

Equal to the World's Best

Hitherto undisclosed details of fascinating experiments, in which Australian industry evolved from limited resources a tank equal to the world's best are given in the current number of an Australian Army journal.

In the construction of the best British and American tanks, rolled plate armour was used for the hull. Here was a major barrier (we did not have the machinery to turn out plate armour heavy enough for tanks. Nor did we have the right kind of machinery to cope with the angled surface of a tank such as the American M3, the General Grant. There was only one way out—Australia would have a crack at a new technique.

Turrets of British, American and enemy tanks were made from cast armour. Why not construct the entire hull from it, if it would replace plate armour? Cast armour had high shell resistance; bitter battle experience of riveted tanks merited consideration for the new idea. But most metallurgists shook their heads: no country in the world had yet turned out cast armour hulls; such a project would be utterly beyond Australia.

But with our designers and our engineers it was a case of experiment or be damned. Our armour would have to be developed along new lines, revolutionary lines. Lacking certain vital alloying elements, substitutes had to be found.

Experts concentrated on this first problem. Their ultimate formula produced cast armour of quality able to make an armour-piercing anti-tank shot look ill. Cheaper to produce, tougher than most, the Australian product is equal to the world's best.

COMPLETE HULL CAST.

This was a flying start. Next to cast a complete hull. Trial efforts were cast in several bits with the intention of bolting them together. But, now well under way, the engineers decided that a complete cast armour hull was not impossible.

Then began trial castings of the hull—a weight, two or three times greater than ever attempted elsewhere. There were failures, but in the end—about October, 1941—one whole hull came from the furnace.

The secret lay in precision timing of the tempering treatment, the establishment of the exact heat temperature, how long to hold it at that point, and the quenching of the casting in a water bath. And the hull represented a triumph in foundry art.

Soon Libyan experience high-lighted the weak points of the box-like riveted tank. When hit rivets would fly inside. Welded tanks were called for. But the Australian cast hull lacked nothing of the qualities of welded armour.

The cast hull meant that the tank could have new space-saving qualities, stream-lining.

Our tank, though mostly Australian and British in conception, reflects in some measure the deep refugee hate for Hitler and Fascism. Engineers and draughtsmen hounded by the Gestapo from Germany and other occupied territories have helped to build it.

Foremost amongst these is a Fighting French engineer, lent in the early 'thirties by the French Government to the then friendly Japanese. Several of his designs have earned world recognition. When in 1940 he smelt treason he left Tokyo for Shanghai. Chased by the Japanese police, he moved to Hong Kong and the Philippines, and finally shaking off the Nips, he made his way to Australia.

Another task was to turn out the gear box and final drive. The gear box was the largest ever made in Australia, calling for delicate precision work with high-grade steel. Once feared to be the likely bottle-neck in tank production, the gear box programme has kept firm step with the rest.

AN ALL-PURPOSE WEAPON.

From drawing board to assembly line the tank is a real mass production job. Not only are parts and spares manufactured together, but many assembles are interchangeable with those on American medels.

A handy weight, the cruiser tank can be used either as an infantry support weapon, or take its place in the line-up of a regular armoured division.

It is an all-purpose tank. It is built for every task and most climates. It will go any place which will take a 14-stone man, and turns like a ballet dancer.

There is nothing on it or to it without battle purpose. We will build it in quantity. It is a 1943 model, but it will not stop that way. The flexibility of its design means that it will keep abreast of tank times.

REDUCE personal spending—that means more tanks, aeroplanes, ships, munitions, equipment, to be used by our men for our defence.

Here is a vital war-time job for you—to see that not a single penny is wastefully or unnecessarily spent, and that every penny so saved goes into the total war effort. Until Victory is won, the Government needs all your savings, not only the money you have now but all that you can put aside.

GUARD YOUR LIFE

Making War on Rumour

"This is on me," said a man in a Boston saloon. "I'm celebrating. Just got the first letter from my boy in Australia. He's a corporal now."

"Australia?" echoed a stranger beside him. "No cause to celebrate, my friend. Hundreds of soldiers who went out there are right back here in Boston now. Insane, bad food, terrible living conditions. Why, I'm told there's not even room for all of them in the hospitals."

Another vicious rumour had gone to work for the Axis. But this one did not do the damage its originators had hoped. As soon as the man left, the bartender wrote the conversation down and sent it to the Rumour Clinic headquarters of Boston's unique battle against enemy gossip propaganda.

A few days later both rumour and answer were printed in the Boston Herald's "Rumour Clinic" column, posted on bulletin boards in factories, slipped into department-store pay envelopes, sent by laundries to customers along with the clean wash. There wasn't a word of truth in it, according to army authorities. The fact was that 47 soldiers had been returned to Massachusetts for mental care. Not one of them had come from Australia.

The enemy is making a skilful effort to discourage, divide and defeat us here at home. We can stop him if we carefully guard our own lips and challenge every story that might push us even an inch along the dark way of defeat.

IN AMERICA

Payroll Deductions

One of the most remarkable developments in the U.S.A. since Pearl Harbour has been the spread of the payroll deduction method of buying war bonds, in which an employee authorises his employer to take a regular sum for the purpose from his pay.

At the start of 1942 700,000 workers were signed up, with average allotments of 4 per cent of their pay. By the end of 1942 the total had rocketed to 23,000,000 workers in 156,000 firms, laying aside an average of 8 per cent.

One of the cardinal points of Treasury Department procedure in setting up payroll savings plans is that the campaign in each plant be conducted by a joint committee of management and labour, with Government emissaries keeping in the background as advisers.

Some sceptics expected this practice to stir up trouble, requiring as it did that the lion and the lamb lie down together, and that labour unions not only permit but promote an outside invasion of that sacred precinct the payroll. These forebodings happily, have not been borne out.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

AFTER THE WAR

PROSPEROUS COUNTRY TOWNS

What 3rd Liberty Loan MEANS

When victory has been won by the United Nations, Australia will be a vastly changed continent from what it was before the war. Country districts and many country towns will never be what they were before—struggling little settlements isolated from the big cities of the seaboard. For in finding accommodation, munitions and communications for her fighting forces, Australia has found herself.

The Commonwealth Government's booklet, "The Job Australia is Doing," tells the story of our development: the story that points the moral to our future, and one of its most striking pages discloses that the Allied Works Council, now only a year old, has completed or has authorised works valued at £60,000,000. Expenditure on works of vital importance has exceeded £1,000,000 a week.

Those works include a vast network of highways—over 5000 miles of them—stretching out into and right through the "never-never." They include huge aerodromes and military establishments, and they also include big munition factories.

That last fact is of the utmost importance to the future of the rural areas of Australia.

At the outbreak of war Australia had four munition factories. To-day she has 25 in production and 24 under construction or authorised. Of those 49 munition factories, more than half are in rural areas. And to-day munition factories employ over 515,000 workers.

To the country dweller these figures carry a message for the future, for they mean that when post-war reconstruction comes the whole face of rural Australia must be changed.

Those great munitions factories must be turned over to peace-time production, for every one of them has been built to last. Those highways stretching out into the distances must carry new loads and new hope to the outback. Those new railways must be used for produce, and those aerodromes will be halting places for a new network of the skies.

What does all this mean to the country dweller?

It means that no longer will the workers be crowded around the principal cities.

It means that no longer will the country trader and the outback farmer be starved for the benefit of the city dweller.

It means that factory workers will support the country town.

It means that the village whose only industry before the war was the local butter factory, will be the home town of workers earning good wages.

It means all these and a dozen things more—the closer knitting of national life throughout the continent, the spreading of spending power, the extension of comforts and amenities.

Post-war reconstruction will mean new life for Australia, and no country dweller who looks at the question fairly and squarely to-day can fail to see the benefits.

Obviously, then, people who put money into the £100,000,000 Third Liberty Loan, who help to raise the funds to build all these things that are needed now and will be needed after the war, are the wise people who are putting their money into the safest and most profitable investment possible—a re-born post-war rural Australia.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

Prisoner Service

The Central Council of the Australian Red Cross Society has issued an illustrated booklet setting out the work it does on behalf of prisoners of war. The title is "What Red Cross Means to Our Prisoners," and the booklet is sold at 1/- a copy, the proceeds being used to further Red Cross work.

Through picture and display this publication fills a great need in that it brings forcibly and clearly before the reader just what people who have relatives or friends in prison camps may expect the Red Cross to do for them. Every service is explained and the steps taken to give that service are clearly set out.

Such a guide is necessay and should be studied by all people seeking to make use of the service.

Understanding by the public makes the work of the Red Cross much easier by eliminating many delays that should not occur in such vital work as this.

To use the Red Cross prisoner service intelligently is to make it efficient, whether that service may relate to parcels for prisoners, letters, clothing, medicines, education or recreation.

Study of the easily assimilated matter set out in the booklet reaps rewards in the shape of prompt Red Cross action.

Copies of the booklet are obtainable from Queensland Red Cross headquarters, 21 Adelaide Street, Brisbane.

MATERNITY ALLOWANCES

Bill Provides for Increases

The Maternity Allowance Bill, which passed through all stages of Parliament last week without amendment, provides for increases in the minimum maternity grant, and for an allowance of 25/- a week for eight weeks to provide nursing, domestic and other assistance.

Until the Bill went through Parliament there had been a means test conducted before allowances were granted.

Parents received £4/10/- for their first child if their total income did not exceed £247. For their second or third child they received £5 if their income did not exceed £273, and for other children they were granted £7/10/- if their income did not exceed £338.

With the removal of the means test allowances will be paid irrespective of parents' income after July 1.

The grant for a first child has been increased to £5, and for a second or third child from £5 to £6. The grant to families of four or more children is unaltered at £7/10/-.

AUSTERITY MESSAGES

From the wives . . .

. . . of AUSTRALIA'S LEADERS

To win this war, the whole nation must swing over to an austere wartime way of life. This can't be done without the whole-hearted co-operation of every woman in the community. Use your influence with the family, friends, every one with whom you come in contact, to discourage extravagance and encourage saving. Above all, set a personal example—wear last year's frocks, and be proud to do it; live simply; cut out spending on pleasure, and invest every penny you can in War Bonds and War Saving Certificates.

CURRENT TOPICS

THIRD LIBERTY LOAN.

Up to the closing hour of the banks yesterday 177 applications had been received in connection with the Third Liberty Loan, representing £10,590.

AUCTION SALE.

Attention is drawn to an advertisement in this issue of a property which will be submitted for sale by Gladstone Agencies. Splendid opportunity for small farmer, as property adjoins the North Coast railway at Benaraby.

LOAN PENNANTS.

At the picture shows to-night (Saturday) the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams) will present the pennants to the Mayor (Ald. Dennis) one green and the other purple, which were won in connection with the Austerity Loan.

TAX DODGING CLAIM.

The Federal Treasurer (Mr. Chifley) said that he would have an investigation made into a Queensland banker's suggestion that the increase in the circulation of large denomination notes in the Commonwealth meant a spread of tax dodging. Federal taxation authorities, however, said that the suggestion was "merely a matter for supposition."

COURT OF PETTY SESSIONS.

At the Court of Petty Sessions on Tuesday, before the S.M., Mr. J. F. Donovan, Noel Johnson, of Gladstone, was convicted and fined 10/-, costs of court 6/-, in default 48 hours in the lock-up, for riding a bicycle without a light in Gondoon Street. Sergeant Coxon stated that complaints had been received regarding persons riding vehicles without a light, and action was being taken to stop this offence.

PRIVATE KEVIN CORR.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Corr, of Gladstone, will be pleased to learn that their son Kevin passed his signalling examination very meritoriously. At the regimental course of instruction at Warwick this lad gained a theoretical pass of 89.7 per cent. and a practical pass of 100 per cent. Prior to joining the A.I.F. Private Corr was on the staff of Messrs. . C. Moore & Co., and many friends will join in congratulating him on his success.

NOMINATION OUT OF ORDER.

In view of the forthcoming elections the following should prove of interest: Mr. J. F. McGill, who recently announced his intention to nominate as an independent candidate for the Hamilton ward at the municipal election, will not be able to nominate for that ward, as his name is not on the Hamilton roll. The qualifications for nominations include the provision that the nominee must be on the annual roll for the ward for which he nominates.

TEA COUPONS.

Tea coupons C15 and C18, inclusive, and sugar coupons B17 and B18 will become available next Monday. The Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming) emphasised that the tea coupons would be valid only until May 2, the usual period of four weeks. Sugar coupons would be valid until the issue of the new ration books. The sugar ration of 2lbs. per coupon, and the tea ration of 2ozs. per coupon remain unchanged.

AIR RAID WARDENS.

Sergt. S. Coxon advises that a meeting of air raid wardens will be held in the Court House next Thursday at 7.30 p.m., when Mr. E. Radford will deliver a lecture.

BREAD CARTERS CALL-UP.

Bread carters employed in the Brisbane area are receiving call-up notices for the Civil Construction Corps. Those being called up are carters under 35 who had been granted exemption on September 28 last year.

A.W.U. WARNING.

The Queensland branch of the A.W.U. has decided to advise members not to participate in the one-day stopwork meetings to be held throughout the State next Monday by C.C.C. members as a protest against the new award.

PAPER SITUATION DESPERATE.

Shortage of paper of all kinds was more acute, and the Queensland Master Printers' and Allied Traders' Association was making every effort to secure supplies, said the secretary of the association (Mr. L. Suggars). No paper had come into Queensland for months, he said, and some printers could not fulfil their orders.

FILM ON V.D.

The production of a short modern film on a scientific basis to combat venereal disease has been suggested by the Federal Health Minister (Mr. Holloway). "The problem has to be tackled immediately on a common sense and courageous basis," he said. Methods of controlling V.D. will be discussed at a conference of medical authorities from all States soon.

EX-DIGGERS ONLY.

The war veterans' march on Anzac Day (Sunday, April 25) in Sydney will be confined to ex-servicemen. This is because of strict ceremonial that would have to be observed if A.I.F. and other service units were included. Demobilised diggers of the 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th divisions will be allotted positions in that order in the march immediately following divisions of the 1st A.I.F.

MEATWORKS PEAK SEASON.

"It is essential that all meatworks should operate to the highest capacity during the peak season for cattle supplies, which is now beginning," said the Deputy Controller of Meat Supplies (Mr. E. F. Sunners). The Brisbane Abattoir and other meatworks in Queensland were packing an enormous quantity of canned meat and boneless beef for service requirements, he added.

COURT ORDER DISOBEYED.

Because the Queensland branch of the Meat Industry Employees' Union has refused to obey the order of the Industrial Court to supply labour to work overtime at the Brisbane Abattoir, the Meat Industry Board will make another application to the Court. The Board Secretary (Mr. J. Simpson) said he could not disclose the nature of the application. One course open to the board would be to apply for the deregistration of the union.

SUGAR FOR JAM.

Forms obtained by consumers from the Rationing Commission for the additional sugar for jam issue cannot be presented to traders after the date of issue of next year's ration books. This has been pointed out by the Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming). Traders must return used forms for the additional sugar for jam making issue at the close of the month in which the sugar has been supplied.

CANNED MEAT TRADE.

At the annual meeting of Swift & Co., Ltd., Chicago, the President (Mr. John Holmes) stated that during 1942 more than 250,000,000 lb. of fresh ham and pork, which normally would have gone to the civilian trade, had been canned for Government use. In 1941 the company was equipped to produce slightly less than 2,000,000 lb. of canned meat per week, but today the capacity was more than 8,000,000 lb. per week. Although sales to the armed services and for lend-lease ran into "very impressive totals," the civilian business still constituted the major part of the company's activities, he added.

WOMAN FINED FOR SPREADING RUMOUR.

Mrs. Hilda Ethel Warr, an elderly widow, was fined 10/- with 24/- costs, in Fremantle Police Court, for having spread a false rumour. Mrs. Warr met an acquaintance who told her that a certain steamer had been bombed. Mrs. Warr became upset because she had a relative on board the ship. She caught a bus, and during the journey saw a man who had served on the ship. She called out that the vessel had been hit. The rumour caused a sensation among passengers on the bus, and Mrs. Warr alighted hysterical and weeping.

THIRD LIBERTY LOAN

GLADSTONE COMMITTEE

"The Best Meeting"

A meeting of the Third Liberty Loan Committee was held on Tuesday night last, when the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis) presided over an attendance of 15 members.

TELEGRAM FROM TREASURER.

The following telegram was read from the Treasurer (Mr. Chiefley):—

Generally the progress results of the Third Liberty Loan campaign is so disappointing that if your quota is not yet filled I am impelled to ask you to intensify your efforts to ensure a satisfactory response from your district. Filling your quotas, both subscribers and money, will be an important contribution to the loan success. Glad to have your help, and I am confident I can count on this further effort by your committee."

Mr. J. Burrows said the town was showing a decided lag in subscriptions to the loan, some contending that taxation was too high. He had visited the Meat Wors, where he had met Mr. Drewe, and the most he could promise was to collect the initial pound from employees, but no subsequent subscriptions.

The Mayor said Mr. Drewe was prepared to collect the first pound to start the group scheme, but was not prepared to make weekly deductions from the wages of employees.

Mr. Henderson said he was sorry when he heard that Swifts through Mr. Drewe was not prepared to co-operate to the fullest extent.

Mr. J. Vallis said he was disappointed when he learned that Swifts were not prepared to make weekly deductions from their employees wages. Without the payroll deductions the scheme would be no good, the contention of Mr. Drewe being it would envolve too much bookkeeping. If they could have arranged for a 5/- weekly deduction the scheme would have gone ahead, and the employees at the Meat Works would have made a good showing.

Mr. H. Hall suggested that the matter be again taken up with the management, and if they refused to co-operate to get in touch with the Loan Director in Brisbane by telegram, and moved a motion accordingly.

Mr. J. Vallis, in seconding the motion, said the little extra bookkeeping involved in the national interests should be undertaken, and he thought if the committee got in touch with Mr. Rolfe all matters could be arranged. If a big company like Swifts was not prepared to co-operate to the fullest extent what would be the feelings of the workers in subscribing to the loan.

Mr. Hall said no one wished to antagonise the company, but they expected their fullest co-operation, and if it was not forthcoming the matter could be reported to the Loan Director in Brisbane.

The motion was then put and carried.

It was decided that the Mayor (Ald. Dennis) and Mr. J. Burrows wait on the management of Swifts in regard to the matter.

Mr. H. Hall stated that Mr. Peters had lodged thirty-six applications, representing £460.

Mr. J. Burrows said he had been successful in obtaining twenty applications, the biggest one being £250.

Mr. Bentley stated he had made a canvass in the country, and the persons he had talked to all referred to the heavy taxation.

Mr. McCabe reported that he had canvassed the civil construction workers, and felt he would be successful in some instances, but it was a tough proposition.

Mr. H. Hall informed the committee that he had interviewed Mr. Stan Clapham, who had an attractive display at the Embassy, but the scheme as far as attracting subscriptions had proved a real washout.

Mr. W. R. Golding said his employees had taken advantage of subscribing to the loan, and he had pushed it forward.

Mr. H. Hall suggested that two speakers should address the audience at the respective picture shows during the interval for five minutes each, stressing the necessity of subscribing to the loan, also following up with the personal contact. The proprietors of both picture theatres had generously made this offer.

Mr. J. Vallis considered the suggestion a good one, and should be carried out.

A sub-committee, consisting of the Mayor and Messrs. Hall, Tudman and Vallis, was appointed to arrange for speakers at the respective picture shows.

In closing the meeting the Mayor stated it was the best meeting so far and the best attendance.

CORRESPONDENCE

(We do not necessarily identify ourselves with the views expressed by correspondents.)

SOVIET POLICY.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—This newspaper controversy seems to be anybody's fight, so with your permission I will send over a few punches myself.

Right at the beginning I want to make it perfectly clear that I am not a member of the Communist Party, and as I have no intention of joining that or any other political party, my desire to remain anonymous is explained.

In dealing with any quotation, such as submitted to your valued journal by "Worker," one must be careful to always look for the source of inspiration. The article in question appeared in the "Worker" (a trade union journal controlled by Mr. C. G. Fallon, as chairman of directors). Yes, Mr. Fallon and his henchmen hate the communists because they have consistently exposed to the workers the reactionary leadership of the clique.

Some few years ago two militant members of the A.W.U. had to take to court this same type of leadership to force them to allow the members' (Lane and Broad) names to be submitted to a ballot for official position.

Yes, it is the same crowd, led by Mr. Fallon, who, when he failed in his efforts to crack the political whip over the militia proposals, declared, "I am finished with the Government." And this is the source of inspiration quoted by "Worker."

The communist party policy in regard to elections is, I have been informed: If the labour candidate is a progressive militant type of person they will not only oppose him, but actively support him. I had quoted to me the recent Mackay bye-election, when Mr. Fred Paterson, prominent communist and brilliant scholar and speaker, took the platform on behalf of the labour candidate.

A study of recent election results leads one to the conviction that it was only the communist party support of labour which turned obvious defeat into a comfortable victory.

Two weeks ago Prime Minister Curtin said, "there are interests in Australia which did not like the Government and were anxious to foment industrial trouble."

The communist press has been pointing this out ever since labour assumed office. Witness the activities of the coal mine owners, continually pinpricking the miners with the single purpose of causing upheaval and thereby smashing the Labour Government.

In every industrial trouble the communist party has given the lead in an endeavour to stave off strikes in their honest effort to build up the war effort in the fight against Fascism.

In the recent C.C.C. strike it was the effort of Mr. G. Dawson (building trades secretary) and Mr. E. J. Hanson (painters' secretary), both prominent communists, who, whilst others dallied, took immediate action to get the men back to work and prevent the strike from spreading. The communist party believes in a strike only as a last resort, i.e., when all other means of settling disputes have failed.

Most people to-day understand the change of communist policy towards this war, but for the benefit of "Worker" I will set out not only the change of Soviet policy, but also the change in international situations which caused this change in policy.

For a start, I not only admit that Soviet policy did change completely over, but I claim that for Soviet Union to adhere to a fixed policy in spite of the sharp turns and twists in international affairs, would have been a criminal betrayal of the faith reposed in Soviet leaders by their 180 millions of peoples.

Those responsible for Munich—Chamberlain, Daladier, etc.—built up the military power of Germany with the hope of turning it against the Soviet Union. This they achieved, but instead of Germany's attack being followed by a united front of counter revolutionary activity against the Soviet Union, it gave birth to the unity of America, China, Soviet Union and Britain.

In 1940 the British and French Governments were actively promoting interventionist war against the Soviet Union. They sent guns and planes to Finland, and it was only the collapse of the Mannerheim line which prevented their sending soldiers. At this time Germany was maintaining friendly relations with the Soviet Union, whilst the British Government has signed a pact of mutual aid and alliance with Russia.

Is this not a change in international relations?

Again, in 1940, in a paper, "The British Case," written by Lord Lloyd with a preface by Lord Halifax, Hitler is accused of the "supreme betrayal," because of his non-aggression pact with Soviet Union. To-day Hitler accuses the British Government of the same crime of "supreme betrayal," because she has signed a pact of mutual aid with the Union.

At the same time Mannerheim and Tanner were held up as "the darlings of western democracy, and Soviet strategic action for the defence of Leningrad was denounced as "blood-stained aggression."

At that time Stalin was denounced by the labour party in its pamphlet on Finland as "Red Czar," "Allen and unscrupulous despot," "gangster," "the depts of iniquity of M. Joseph Stalin are still unknown." These are but a few of the terms hurled at him by the labour party, but now the labour "Daily Herald," official organ of the same party, says: "Three great figures lead mankind in the struggle to defend human freedom—Churchill, Stalin, and Roosevelt."

Is it not obvious that any intelligent party must change its policy to meet these changing conditions if it is to be really consistent, but to my mind the question is not whether there has been a change in policy, but is the new policy put forward correct and adequate?

Had Germany attacked the Soviet Union in 1939, with Chamberlain and Daladier in power in Britain and France, it is quite clear now how quickly the united counter revolutionary front would have been formed against the Union. The two years gained by brilliant Soviet diplomacy has saved not only the Soviet Union, but may well give rise to heartfelt thanks from all peoples fighting in the allied cause.

The process of the war may be divided into three phases:—

First phase when the world passed almost imperceptibly from peace to war, through a series of extending localised conflicts. This developed from the Japanese invasion of Manchuria in 1931 to the Anglo-French declaration of war on Germany in 1939.

The second phase of the war extended from September 1939 to June 1941, and bore the full character of imperialist war.

It was only with the invasion of Russia by Hitler's hordes that the war entered the third phase, or the war of the united nations against Fascism, or the war for the liberation of the people enslaved by Fascist Germany.

To enlarge upon these statements would take up a deal of space, but if anyone challenges my statements then I will reply at length.

The statement that "Australian workers will not readily forget that when bombs were falling on British women and children, etc."

I reply: "The Australian workers will not readily forget that the British Government knew of and gave its approval for the Italian campaign against Abyssinia two years before it was launched."

They will not forget that after the Italians had landed sufficient war material (purchased from Britain) in Italian Somaliland, the same Government prohibited the export of arms to both belligerents (well armed Italy and completely disarmed Abyssinia).

Again, Australian workers will not forget that at a most critical time in Japan's Fascist aggression on China, the same British Government, at the request of Japan, closed for three months the only available highway along which China could get supplies—the Burma Road.

The Australian workers will not readily forget that the Chinese Government offered to protect Honk Kong with 100,000 troops, but the offer was turned down.

The Australian workers will not forget that Soviet Union offered to share in the protection of Poland, that Poland would accept Soviet protection only from the air, and refused to allow any Soviet soldier to set foot on Polish soil.

Finally, they will not forget that right up to the invasion by Germany, the Soviet Union did everything possible to prevent war, and even after war had started in 1939 strove for immediate peace amongst all nations.

So out of this discussion we arrive at the conclusion that it was only Soviet policy which could be successfully adapted to meet the changing international situation.—Yours, etc.,

"MARLEN."

"Anything less than unconditional surrender would be temporising with murder and negotiating with treachery since the overweening Japanese ambition is to eventually invade and conquer the United States."—Mr. Joseph Grew, former American Ambassador to Tokio, in a speech at Harrisburg, U.S.A.

H.M.A.S. GLADSTONE

APPEAL BY MAYOR DENNIS

Citizens Asked to Contribute

Fellow citizens,—

I know that you will all share with me the pride and pleasure that it has given me when I was advised that the Commonwealth Authorities had decided to name one of our new warships the H.M.A.S. Gladstone.

Lieut. J. W. Pennet, R.A.N., commander of the ship, has written me suggesting that the town of Gladstone might desire to present to the ship some momento in honour of the name she bears, which would be greatly appreciated.

The hon. sec. of the Comforts Fund (Mrs. J. W. Garrett) has received a similar letter suggesting that this Fund might be willing to service the vessel whilst in commission, the initial cost of which would be approximately £150, and £10 per quarter thereafter.

Articles suggested are wireless sets, electric urns, indoor and deck games, and the usual supply of comforts.

My Council has decided to co-operate with this body in raising the sum of money necessary to purchase these comforts.

That you will all be keen to do your share and follow with considerable pride and eager expectation the career of this vessel, which I have no doubt, will uphold the highest tradition of our Navy.

I make this appeal to you to contribute towards the cost of fitting out this ship, of which we will all be as proud of as we are of the town which bears this name.

As this appeal will close in a fortnight it will be necessary to act quickly, and I know that I can depend on all to do their share.

Donations may be sent to the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson), or to Mrs. J. W. Garrett.

HARBOUR BOARD

MONTHLY MEETING

£2000 for Government

The monthly meeting of the Board was held yesterday. Present: The Chairman (Mr. A. W. Drewe), and Messrs. W. R. Golding, J. F. Donovan, E. W. Crow, C. W. Macfarlan, C. S. Schache, R. S. Wilson, and the Secretary (Mr. A. D. Hopper).

POWER CHARGES.

The Board wrote the Town Council agreeing to meet the Electric Light Committee in conference to discuss charges for electric power supplied to the crane.

The Chairman reported that the conference had been held the previous evening. It was decided that the Board pay at schedule rates for A.C. power consumed, and be given a six-months trial.

ACTION CONFIRMED.

The Town Council wrote soliciting a donation towards the fitting out of the H.M.A.S. "Gladstone."—The action of the Chairman in donating £10 was confirmed.

FINANCE.

Payments amounting to £174/4/4 were confirmed, and accounts amounting to £208/12/7 were passed for payment.

It was decided to remit £2000 to the Treasury Department on account of interest and redemption.

GENERAL.

The Chairman stated that as this was the last meeting of the Board as at present constituted, he appreciated the kindly feelings and assistance that had been extended to him by all members, and he hoped all would be returned.

ANZAC DAY

Ban on Picture Shows

Picture shows will not be open for servicemen in Brisbane, or elsewhere in Queensland, on Anzac Day—a Sunday.

Announcing this, the Premier (Mr. Cooper) said it was fitting that the observance should be complete on the coming Anzac Day because the landing at Anzac was made on a Sunday.

Commenting on the request made by the Prime Minister (Mr. Curtin) to State Governments to co-operate this year in the celebration of the day, Mr. Cooper said that its commemoration originated in Queensland, and the Queensland Government had always jealously guarded its observance.

Other arrangements that were ordinarily applied to Anzac Day would apply on April 25.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr. W. R. Golding has been elected unopposed to represent the Miriam Vale Shire on the Gladstone Harbour Board. Mr. Golding is undoubtedly an acquisition to the Board.

PATRIOTIC COMFORTS FUND

MONTHLY STREET STALL

Donations Asked For

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the joint A.C.F. and Patriotic Appeal Fund will be conducted in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, April 16.

The convenors (Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen) would much appreciate donations of jam, fruit, cakes, vegetables, sweets, or any other home manufacture or articles for sale on that date.

Donations may be left with the convenors, or at Gladstone Cash and Carry.

NEW BEEF RATES

PERTURB GROWERS

Statement by Mr. J. L. Wilson

New beef prices which Queensland producers would receive as a result of the decision of the Commonwealth Prices Commissioner (Professor Copland), warranted a strong protest from the President of the Central Coastal Graziers' Association (Mr. J. L. Wilson, of Calliope Station).

Fixing of first quality ox beef at 36/6 per 100 lb., Brisbane, came as a shock to producers, he said. It was generally recognised in the industry that a fair price would have been 40/-. That figure would have returned pre-war prices plus increased costs of production. Anything below that price must result in an unfair hardship on growers.

On the basis of reatil prices ruling on February 26, the date selected to peg ruling rates, growers were entitled to even more than 40/- per 100 lb. for first quality ox beef.

Graziers who had purchased store cattle in competition with New South Wales' fatteners would now show a loss on their investments, for as far as was known fat stock prices in New South Wales were still considerably in excess of those to operate in Queensland.

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB

A WORKING BEE.

All members, associates and intending members are asked to meet at the golf house to-morrow (Sunday) to operate a working bee. A start was made last week to mow some of the fairways, and good progress has been made on Nos. 1 and 2 holes. To-morrow members will be asked to assist in raking grass from the fairways, clearing the greens, placing sand on them, and generally assisting to put the course in order. The associates will provide luncheon at the club house, and the nineteenth will be officially opened for the 1943 season.

Committeeman R. Elliott has already done excellent work on the links. He found the Golf Club's horse "Bally" is in such good nick that it took the best part of two days to yard him up and get him in harness, but he has now settled down to work in great style. Works committeeman Mr. H. Moore, has been out supervising operations, and Mr. Leo Collins has assisted both members. A good roll up is expected to-morrow.

DAIRYMEN'S ORGANISATION

Ballot on Registration

Cabinet has approved of a request by the Agriculture Minister (Mr. Williams) that the Queensland Dairymen's Organisation be permitted to conduct a ballot under the Primary Producers' Organisation and Marketing Act on the Q.D.O. being declared a compulsory farmers' organisation.

Mr. Williams said that he had been assured by leaders of the organisation that a substantial majority of dairymen were in favour of a compulsory levy being made on the industry to enable the Q.D.O. to register under the Act.

Some time ago a similar ballot was taken, but because of a paucity of voters, and the small percentage of farmers voting in the affirmative the organisation's request for registration had to be refused.

COUNTING Our Blessings

THE burdens of the Australian people seem to grow daily, and easement of them may be a long way off, yet we are free.

Our cities have not been bombed. Our women and children can walk the streets unafraid. Our schools are open. Our Parliaments can still meet. Freedom of Speech and of the Press is not greatly restricted. Our people can still air their grievances. In how many other countries of this war-torn world can these things be said?

Let us pray that we may be worthy of the fighting men of the Empire and our Allies who, by their toil and sacrifice, preserve these freedoms to us.

Our part as Citizens is to bear cheerfully the burdens of rationing and of such restrictions as are necessary (yet with constructive criticism where that seems desirable) and to save every penny we can for the War Loans.

One family in every two in the Commonwealth enjoys some measure of A.M.P. life assurance, paying premiums from ONE SHILLING A WEEK UPWARDS. These savings by members for their own Security have enabled their Society to put £50,000,000 into Commonwealth Loans, and to add £500,000 a month to this vast sum.

FOOD FACTS

NUMBER 3A

Nature's Perfect Food is

MILK

Providing more nutrition than any other single food, Milk contains the vital vitamins and minerals needed to protect against illness, ensure good digestion, build healthy tissues, strong bones and teeth.

It aids normal growth, develops energy, and protects against ill-health.

Children up to 16 years should have 1¼ pints of milk daily—either to drink, or in soups, sauces, custards or puddings.

★ ★ ★ ★

In country areas where fresh cow's milk is not plentiful, full cream powdered milk is an excellent substitute—providing the same benefits almost completely.

GERMANY'S FOOD PROBLEM

PRESENT DAY TROUBLES

Position Outlined

It is simple to plan for production, but its attainment can be reached only if adequate labour is available and if the seasons are favourable. So far these conditions have not been fulfilled in the case of Germany.

Between the inauguration of the Nazi scheme and the outbreak of war, Darre, then Minister for Food Supplies, estimated the shortage of farm labour at 800,000. Accordingly the plan was amended to enforce amalgamation of holdings to permit of the intensification of mechanisation, particularly in the production of grain.

Since the war, the flight from the land has continued, and manpower difficulties have been intensified by the additional demands made upon agriculture.

Skilled agricultural workers have been called up for military duties and replaced by foreign workers from occupied territories and by prisoners of war. Women and school children are doing full-time work on the farms.

Although it was estimated that two million addition hands had been impressed into the Nazi service by the middle of last year, the technical journal "Farben Und Lacke" admitted that foreign workers when producing for Germany achieved only 40 per cent. of the German workers' output.

RESERVES EXHAUSTED.

As the result of hoarding and of favourable harvests, Germany entered the war with full granaries. Stored grain represented more than a year's supply. War-time harvests, however, have been uniformly bad, and in October of last year Staatsrat Meinberg, speaking on Germany economy in war time, stated that "the considerable grain reserves with which Germany entered the war have been used up."

There is a great deal of evidence to show that, in spite of persuasion and coercion, peasants apparently have not been too eager to deliver their produce to the State.

The Danish newspaper "Svenska Dagbladet" divulged that numerous farmers had received very severe sentences for supplying wrong information. Similarly the German press has referred from time to time to numerous acts of sabotage by foreign workers.

So far there has been little indication that yields are suffering because of an insufficiency of phosphates. However, it is still early for this crack in the structure to be revealed. Besides, relying on heavy dressings of superphosphate to maintain production, German farmers use large quantities of nitrogenous and potassic fertilisers.

Pre-war average application of manure per acre of the area under cultivation amounted to nitrogen 19lb., phosphoric acid 20lb., potash 35lb.

If nitrogen suplies have to be reduced considerably the drop in production would be swift and serious.

It is not unreasonable to expect that the chemical industry, facing the enormous demand for military purposes, may be forced to place agricultural industry on short commons.

PHOSPHATE SUPPLIES.

Reduction of supplies of phosphates in the last war resulted after two years in a serious decline in the yield of potatoes, one of Germany's mainstays, and in the third year affected grain production.

The fertiliser position, with cessation of supplies from French North Africa (before the war they represented 70 per cent of Europe's total imports), must be substantially deteriorating.

The admission is made in a survey published in the "Berliner Beorsen Zeitung" that "not all the expectations with regard to the areas under sugar beet cultivation have been fulfilled. Labour difficulties and shortage of fertiliser, too, have made farmers hesitate to cultivate the amount of beet planned for."

Other references in the German press in the last 12 months indicate a shortage of seed. In the spring of 1942 it became necessary to re-sow large areas because of seasonal troubles. The fact was bewailed in the "Woelkisher Boerbachter" that, "regarding the re-sowing, it is calculated that 100,000 tons of seed will be required, and it is very doubtful whether all the seed needed for the spring sowing will be really obtainable everywhere."

Extracts from the German press also reveal serious difficulties connected with transport, the supply of agricultural machinery, fuel, and the insufficiency of agricultural building.

One such typical allusion in "Der Deutsche Volkswirt," entitled "The Hard Tasks of Agricultural Production," says: "Most apparent were the difficulties in the provision of potatoes. Here it was impressively demonstrated that it is not only a question of the extent of food production, but that transport and provision of storage facilities play a most important part."

The food position of occupied countries from which Germany has drawn heavily to supplement her supplies is all too well known.

A LOAN QUIZ

Q. Is money invested in the Third Liberty Loan tied up for the full period of the loan?

A. No: there is no investment more easily negotiable than a Liberty Loan bond.

It is just like carrying cash about in your pocket and being paid interest for having it there.

Should require to regain the use of money invested in the loan, bonds or stocks may be sold readily through a sharebroker at a very small charge and the money obtained promptly.

The Commonwealth Bank, or any bank, will arrange this without charge other than brokerage.

RAILWAY APPEAL BOARD

A GLADSTONE CASE

Appeal Successful

In a case which attracted considerable interest locally, Duncan McDonnell, stationmaster's clerk, Gladstone, was successful in an appeal against the appointment of Peter Joseph Hunt, 5th class chief ticket clerk, Rockhampton, to the position of 4th class chief ticket clerk, Rockhampton.

The Railway Appeal Board, sitting at Rockhampton, consisted of Messrs. W. Simpson, S. M. (chairman), T. S. Allen (departmental representative), and J. L. Macarthur (employees' representative).

Another appellant in the same case was Isaac Edgar Lambert Major, chief parcels clerk, Rockhampton.

Mr. W. J. Merrill appeared for the department. Mr. J. Lloyd (Railway Salaried Officers' Union) for Major and McDonnell appeared on his own behalf.

McDonnell's grounds of appeal were greater, or at least equal, suitability, seniority, and that he had been wrongly passed over.

Major's grounds were that he was the most suitable employee next in rank, position or grade.

McDonnell stated in evidence that he had previously held the position of chief ticket clerk, Rockhampton, from 1918 to 1930, and was quite capable of again taking charge of the ticket office.

Major deposed that he had quite a lot of ticket experience, and had worked in the Rockhampton ticket office. With his experience as chief parcels clerk andhis knowledge of ticket work he would have no difficulty in doing the job.

Ernest Gardner, first assistant to pay clerk, Rockhampton, stated he had been in charge of the ticket office at Rockhampton for 15 years, and left the position in 1920. The appellant, Major, had a good experience of ticket work and his knowledge of parcels

SCIENTIFIC DEVELOPMENT

Meeting the Cost

Scientific intruments of war which once were never made in Australia are now being turned out in huge quantities throughout the country.

Before the war Australia relied on imports for the many highly intricate products of everyday use which it had never attempted to manufacture.

We did this because we did not know how to or did not need to produce them, or because it was more economical to get them from other countries.

War necessities demanded that Australia must evolve production of scientific goods it had not previously attempted to make. It just had to be done, no matter what the cost.

Most of the 150 main chemicals needed for explosives are now being made in Australia. Less than half of them were made here four years ago.

Many of the more complex metals needed for munitions, which were never made here, are now in production after wide research.

Australian scientists have been called on to do a vital war job. Materials such as optical munitions—predictors for anti-aircraft guns, range finders, and sets of infinitely precise sighting gauges requiring lenses—were urgently needed.

Before the war the glass was produced by only eight firms in the world—most of them European.

Our scientists went to work, welding together strips of high quality plate glass. Experiment went on to find the perfect optical glass. We now produce as fine a glass as any produced by the eight firms.

It all cost a lot of money, but we did it."

LOAN SUCCESS

Keep Prices Down

It is the clear duty of the Australian people to subscribe to the Third Liberty Loan, and thus assist in returning to the Government extra spending money which has been distributed among the people, said Mr. W. C. Taylor senior vice-president of the Australian Labour Party (N.S.W.) recently.

"It is in this way only that we can control prices and ration goods fairly," said Mr. Taylor. "The success of the loan will mean that prices of commodities are less likely to rise. The failure of the loan might well mean more increased taxation.

"Since the outbreak of war our national income has increased from about £750,000,000 a year to approximately £1,150,000,000.

Everybody is in work, or ought to be, and as a result of Government expenditure there is much more money in the community. But, allied with this expenditure, we have restrictions on production and we have rationing, and these controls mean less goods for civilian needs.

The result is that we have more money to-day but less goods on which to spend that money.

Many of us still want these goods and are unwilling to practise self-denial. This unwillingness is exhibited in panic spending and black markets. The continued purchase of unnecessary civilian goods exhausts manpower which the Government dearly needs for war purposes."

Mr. Taylor said the main object of the Third Liberty Loan was to drain back to the Government the central bank credits which had been issued. Unless this money was diverted back to the Government, prices would be difficult to control, and wages would never catch up to increasing prices.

LOAN QUIZ

The Purchase of Bonds

Q. Must I pay outright for each £10 Third Liberty Loan bond on application?

A. No. If you do not wish to pay cash with application, there are several ways in which you can pay for bonds by easy instalments:—

1. By deposit of 10 per cent (£1 on each bond), and the balance in one amount at any time up to July 10, 1943.

2. By deposit of 10 per cent and three amounts each of 30 per cent., payable on or before May 10, June 10, and July 10.

3. By deposit of 10 per cent (£1) and nine monthly instalments of £1, payable on or before the 10th of each month from May, 1943, to January, 1944, inclusive.

RAILWAY APPEAL BOARD

A GLADSTONE CASE

Appeal Successful

In a case which attracted considerable interest locally, Duncan McDonnell, stationmaster's clerk, Gladstone, was successful in an appeal against the appointment of Peter Joseph Hunt, 5th class chief ticket clerk, Rockhampton, to the position of 4th class chief ticket clerk, Rockhampton.

The Railway Appeal Board, sitting at Rockhampton, consisted of Messrs. W. Simpson, S. M. (chairman), T. S. Allen (departmental representative), and J. L. Macarthur (employees' representative).

Another appellant in the same case was Isaac Edgar Lambert Major, chief parcels clerk, Rockhampton.

Mr. W. J. Merrill appeared for the department, Mr. J. Lloyd (Railway Salaried Officers' Union) for Major and McDonnell appeared on his own behalf.

McDonnell's grounds of appeal were greater, or at least equal, suitability, seniority, and that he had been wrongly passed over.

Major's grounds were that he was the most suitable employee next in rank, position or grade.

McDonnell stated in evidence that he had previously held the position of chief ticket clerk, Rockhampton, from 1918 to 1930, and was quite capable of again taking charge of the ticket office.

Major deposed that he had quite a lot of ticket experience, and had worked in the Rockhampton ticket office. With his experience as chief parcels clerk andhis knowledge of ticket work he would have no difficulty in doing the job.

Ernest Gardner, first assistant to pay clerk, Rockhampton, stated he had been in charge of the ticket office at Rockhampton for 15 years, and left the position in 1920. The appellant, Major, had a good experience of ticket work, and his knowledge of parcels work would help him in balancing the accounts in the ticket office.

The appointee stated in evidence that he had occupied the position of chief ticket clerk, Rockhampton, since September, 1930, and had had no complaint from the chief stationmasters or auditors. He considered he was more suitable than either applicant.

William Michael Hayes, chief stationmaster, Rockhampton, testified that the appointee had performed the work in a very satisfactory manner, and he had recommended him for the position. The work in the ticket office had increased in latter years.

In reply to Mr. McDonnell, witness stated he did not know McDonnell was an applicant, and considered he would be a suitable man for the position of chief ticket clerk. When McDonnell had previously occupied the position he had performed the work in an efficient manner.

The Board upheld McDonnell's appeal, Mr. Allen dissenting, and unanimously dismissed Major's appeal.

McDonnell was allowed £1 costs.

"G" AND "H" COUPONS.

The deposit of "G" and "H" coupons cannot be made as part surrender of the appropriate number of coupons for garments to be delivered at any time during the next ration year, said the Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming). As in the cases of lay-by transactions, the full number of coupons must be surrendered at the time the goods are selected, he added. "G" and "H" coupons other than those special coupons marked "S" cease to have effect after the issue of the new ration books for purchases by retail customers.

THIRD LIBERTY LOAN

SCIENTIFIC DEVELOPMENT

Meeting the Cost

Scientific intruments of war which once were never made in Australia are now being turned out in huge quantities throughout the country.

Before the war Australia relied on imports for the many highly intricate products of everyday use which it had never attempted to manufacture.

We did this because we did not know how to or did not need to produce them, or because it was more economical to get them from other countries.

War necessities demanded that Australia must evolve production of scientific goods it had not previously attempted to make. It just had to be done, no matter what the cost.

Most of the 150 main chemicals needed for explosives are now being made in Australia. Less than half of them were made here four years ago.

Many of the more complex metals needed for munitions, which were never made here, are now in production after wide research.

Australian scientists have been called on to do a vital war job. Materials such as optical munitions—predictors for anti-aircraft guns, range finders, and sets of infinitely precise sighting gauges requiring lenses—were urgently needed.

Before the war the glass was produced by only eight firms in the world—most of them European.

Our scientists went to work, welding together strips of high quality plate glass. Experiment went on to find the perfect optical glass. We now produce as fine a glass as any produced by the eight firms.

It all cost a lot of money, but we did it.

We have many other achievements to our credit. The Owen Gun, mass production of tanks, manufacture of costly materials for making armour plate, are only a few jobs the Commonwealth is tackling to-day which were never before attempted here.

To establish these new industries Australia had to spend millions of pounds.

To keep going at the present rate of production is going to cost millions more.

Wartime scientific development is just one more reason why we must lend our money to the Third £100 Million Liberty Loan. Because these new Australian sciences take us so many more steps forward along the road to victory and liberty.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

LOAN SUCCESS

Keep Prices Down

It is the clear duty of the Australian people to subscribe to the Third Liberty Loan, and thus assist in returning to the Government extra spending money which has been distributed among the people, said Mr. W. C. Taylor senior vice-president of the Australian Labour Party (N.S.W.) recently.

"It is in this way only that we can control prices and ration goods fairly," said Mr. Taylor. "The success of the loan will mean that prices of commodities are less likely to rise. The failure of the loan might well mean more increased taxation.

"Since the outbreak of war our national income has increased from about £750,000,000 a year to approximately £1,150,000,000.

Everybody is in work, or ought to be, and as a result of Government expenditure there is much more money in the community. But, allied with this expenditure, we have restrictions on production and we have rationing, and these controls mean less goods for civilian needs.

The result is that we have more money to-day but less goods on which to spend that money.

Many of us still want these goods and are unwilling to practise self-denial. This unwillingness is exhibited in panic spending and black markets. The continued purchase of unnecessary civilian goods exhausts manpower which the Government dearly needs for war purposes."

Mr. Taylor said the main object of the Third Liberty Loan was to drain back to the Government the central bank credits which had been issued. Unless this money was diverted back to the Government, prices would be difficult to control, and wages would never catch up to increasing prices.

The Purchase of Bonds

Q. Must I pay outright for each £10 Third Liberty Loan bond on application?

A. No. If you do not wish to pay cash with application, there are several ways in which you can pay for bonds by easy instalments:—

1. By deposit of 10 per cent (£1 on each bond), and the balance in one amount at any time up to July 10, 1943.

2. By deposit of 10 per cent and three amounts each of 30 per cent., payable on or before May 10, June 10, and July 10.

3. By deposit of 10 per cent (£1) and nine monthly instalments of £1, payable on or before the 10th of each month from May, 1943, to January, 1944, inclusive.

Olga O'Blamey

To win this war, the whole nation must swing over to an austere wartime way of life. This can't be done without the whole-hearted co-operation of every woman in the community. Use your influence with the family, friends, every one with whom you come in contact, to discourage extravagance and encourage saving. Above all, set a personal example—wear last year's frocks, and be proud to do it; live simply; cut out spending on pleasure, and invest every penny you can in War Bonds and War Saving Certificates.

CURRENT TOPICS

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY.

At the street stall held on April 6, conducted by members of the Women's Auxiliary R.S.S.A.I.L.A., the fruit cake was won by Mrs. R. Grayson, and the pair of ducks by Mrs. M. Soppa. Mrs. Percy Friend kindly donated the cake, and Mrs. King, of Beecher, the pair of ducks.

1d TOLL CHARGE.

At a special meeting of the Calliope Shire Council, held for the purpose of passing draft by-law No. 32, providing for a toll charge of 1d per head on stock, the proceeds of the toll to be expended on improvements to the Stowe-Gladstone stock route, Councillor Ballantine moved that the draft by-law imposing a toll charge on travelling stock be passed and advertised, as required by "The Government Acts 1936-1943." Seconded by Cr. Campbell and carried.

MR. FRANK CRABB.

Mr. Frank Crobb, of Swifts, who was well known in Gladstone and district when connected with the reorganisation of the local plant, has written to a friend from his home in Omaha, Nebraska. Frank is now in charge of one of the largest canneries in the States, with things running smoothly, but labour becoming a problem. The temperature was well below zero most of the time, and he often thought of Gladstone with its splendid climate. The meat season was one of the best on record, with factories working day and night. He wished to be remembered to all town and district friends.

SURF EXAMINATION RESULTS.

On Sunday last members of the Gladstone Surf Life Saving Club were examined by the Queensland State Centre S.L.S.A.A. Superintendent (Mr. A. Kennedy) at South End beach. Medallions were gained by E. Craven, E. Coxon, A. George, qualifying certificate by R. Smith, and instructor's certificate by J. Starmer. R. Smith completed the medallion test, but being under 16 years of age, was only eligible for the qualifying certificate. 95 per cent of this club's members have enlisted in the fighting servjes, one (R. Patrick, who was killed on active service) having been decorated with the Military Medal.

SPORTSWEAR COUPONS.

No more coupon permits for sportswear will be granted to sporting clubs unless the club collects the necessary coupons from the players and returns them to the Deputy Director of Rationing. The Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming) said that the decision would eliminate the unfairness that existed when the coupon-free concession was not extended to non-sporting bodies, whose application had equal merit.

PRISONERS OF WAR.

The Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) advises that further substantial lists of the names of Australian prisoners of war in Japanese hands have been received by cable through the International Red Cross. A total of 27 cables received to date gave official information regarding 597 officers and 1463 other ranks. It had been officially disclosed that 95 Australian soldiers prisoners had died. The names had been checked and communicated to the next of kin

THIRD LIBERTY LOAN

GLADSTONE CHALLENGE

Businessmen v. Workers

At the weekly meeting of the Third Liberty Loan Committee, held in the Council Chambers last Tuesday, one of its members, whose name cannot be divulged for reasons of security (his, not national), intimated that he had accepted on behalf of the committee a challenge handed out by one of Gladstone's most prominent and popular business men, to wit, A.W.F.G. (Goddy) Crow.

It would appear that in the course of one of his many arguments—or shall we say discussions—with Goddy (and it might be mentioned here that Goddy is just as likely to argue on the merits or demerits of the teachings of Aristotle as he is to enter into a heated discussion as to the winter quarters of the common house fly, on which latter subject, by the way, he is particularly well versed, having obtained considerable data from those of his customers who drink with them during summer), the question as to which section of the civil population of Australia as a whole, and of Gladstone in particular, was more fully shouldering its share of the burden of the war's cost, was the subject of an argument.

The anonymous one took up the cudgels on behalf of the workers, and Goddy stubbornly defended the business section. The discussion culminated in a challenge being thrown out by Goddy to the effect that he would obtain twenty subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan of £100 each, or the equivalent in money (£2000), from the business section before the Loan Committee could obtain 100 subscriptions of £10 each, or the equivalent in money (£1000) from the workers. A stipulation was made that only applications lodged with the various banks on and after Wednesday, the 14th, marked "B" (for business), or "W" (for worker), were to be included in the count.

The Loan Committee readily endorsed the acceptance of Goddy's challenge, and the fight is on.

We understand that during recent mornings frequenters of Gladstone's main business thoroughfares have beheld the spectacle of a tall man, well past middle age, but athletic withal and still retaining a semblance of an erstwhile martial bearing, parading up and down with a sheath of papers beneath his arm.

The more observant ones have also noticed that every now and then furtive forms cautiously protrude themselves beyond the entrances to various business houses and shops, only to quickly withdraw as the upright figure approaches. The furtive forms, some corpulent, some very much otherwise, are, we understand, business men anxious to avoid the oncoming figure, which is that of Goddy Crow, for they well know that the papers he carries are not the writings of the wise old raven, but application forms for the Third Liberty Loan.

But this game of hide and seek will avail them nought. Easier by far to escape Nemesis or dodge Fate than to turn this bloodhound from the scent. And so Goddy gets his man, and from him an application for a bond in the Third Liberty Loan.

But Goddy knows well that, to make good his challenge, he has a stern task ahead, and the betting at the moment favours the acceptors of the challenge.

May we ask at this juncture if you have yet lodged your application for a bond in the Third Liberty Loan? If not, do so to-day, and mark your application "W" or "B" according to which side you desire to give your support.

The closing day of the loan is next Tuesday, the 20th. Invest now!

ELECTIONS.

In connection with the triennial elections of the Brisbane City Council and the by-election of the State electoral district of Barcoo, both held on May 1, facilities are available at the State Electoral Registrar's office, Court House, Gladstone, to enable electors serving in the forces or engaged on defence works who may be in the State electoral district of Gladstone between now and 6 p.m. on April 30 to record absent votes, for either of the elections. Should electors be unable to attend within the usual office hours the Registrar will arrange with the administration to attend at the camp or works at a suitable time to take the votes of all electors entitled to vote.

BOYNE WATER SUPPLY SCHEME

CONSIDERED TO BE OF NATIONAL IMPORTANCE

"COUNCIL HAS PUT UP A GOOD CASE" FOR RATEPAYERS

With the intention of placing the facts before the public representatives and the various unions in regard to the progress of the Boyne River water scheme, a largely attended meeting of delegates was held in the board room at the Council Chambers on Thursday night. The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis) presided.

DEADLOCK REACHED.

The Mayor, in opening the meeting, stated the Council had some time ago made application to the Co-ordinator General (Sir Harry Brown), Deputy Co-ordinator General (Mr. Kemp), and the Commonwealth Government, through their parliamentary representatives, in regard to advancing various aspects of the scheme, but up to the present had received no information. It now appeared as if a deadlock had been reached, and the Council could go no further in regard to the scheme at present. Although they had an "A2" priority, nothing further could be done until the financial arrangements had been completed.

ALD. W. R. GOLDING.

Ald. W. R. Golding said the Council was pleased to see such a large gathering, and to receive the co-operation of the various bodies. Unfortunately, the meeting had clashed with the opening of the Labour campaign, but when he had moved the motion at the Council inviting the delegates to attend he was not aware of the opening of the campaign, and the labour representatives on the Council did not inform him nor the Council, and Thursday was the only night on which the board room was available.

NATIONAL IMPORTANCE.

The first thing to do, continued Ald. Golding, was to prove to the satisfaction of the Commonwealth Government that the Boyne River water scheme was of national importance, and the Council in its application to the Federal Treasurer (Mr. Chiffley), through the Minister for the (Mr. Forde), had submitted its case on the basis of national importance, both for a grant of £20,000 and a loan of £80,000, which the State Premier (Mr. Cooper) had informed the Council had been referred to the Co-ordinator General (Sir Harry Brown). He hoped the meeting would endorse the action of the Council that the scheme was of national importance.

ONLY A FEW MEN AVAILABLE.

Although the first portion of the scheme had been started, the Council had only been successful in securing a few men for the job, the most at one time being six, and it had now dwindled down to two with the foreman. Unfortunately, the cost to date had exceeded the estimate by a considerable sum owing to the rising cost of materials. It was almost impossible to secure labour, and the point to be considered was whether the scheme should be handed over to the Allied Works Council, but if this were done, in his opinion, it would cost considerably more. The Council started off by borrowing £15,000, the engineer's estimate for the first portion, but it would cost somewhere in the vicinity of £25,000. If it was decided to hand the scheme over to the Allied Works Council they would have to get an assurance that the balance of the money would be forthcoming to complete this portion.

NO WORD RECEIVED.

The Council had not received any word from the Commonwealth Government in regard to the application for a grant of £20,000, nor from Sir Harry Brown in reference to the loan of £80,000, nor from Mr. Kemp in respect to the important matter of manpower and plant, and he considered someone should be sent to Brisbane to wait on Mr. Kemp, and, as a result of this, he felt sure many of the difficulties would be overcome.

"FIRST LEG."

Mr. Bert Heathwood said the first leg of the scheme was most important, and to his mind they should start from the scource and put in a booster pump for the old mains. If they started from the other end he felt sure they would have more success.

STEEL AND CAST IRON PIPES.

Mr. J. Burrows stated he had been informed that if the water pipes were laid above the ground, as in Rockhampton, it would considerably reduce the cost.

A COMPARISON MADE.

Ald. Golding stated he had raised the point mentioned by Mr. Burrows with the Council's consulting engineer, but it must not be overlooked that the Rockhampton pipes were steel, and it was better, according to engineering authorities, to have cast iron pipes under the ground, as they would last over one hundred years, compared with steel pipes for twenty years.

Mr. H. Daley asked if there was much difference in the price.

Ald. Golding stated that steel pipes were cheaper, but as he had pointed out, they would only last a few years as compared with cast iron pipes that were placed underground.

FINANCING THE SCHEME.

Mr. J. Burrows said the Premier (Mr. Cooper) had informed him recently when passing through Gladstone that their only hope in financing the scheme was through the Federal Government, as they had lost their taxation field.

Mr. Burrows then asked the aldermen what was their attitude in regard to the scheme.

PLEDGED TO THE SCHEME.

Ald. Golding: We have already pledged ourselves to go on with the scheme. The original cost was £90,000, but he considered it would cost about £120,000 on account of rising costs. The Government would have to assist the Council in financing the scheme, as a national undertaking, as it would not be right to ask the ratepayers to pay an extra rate of 8d or 9d in the pound, while the capitalising of interest would help the scheme.

£40,000 SUBSIDY.

Mr. Bert Heathwood considered they should go for a subsidy of £40,000 and work on that as a basis, and get the Commonwealth Government to move on these lines.

SCHEME MUST GO ON.

Mr. J. Burrows said time was the essence of the contract, and they should go on with the £90,000. In discussing the original scheme, he said, it was only the allowance of the one-third on wages, which was not a sufficient subsidy, and this was responsible for stopping the job. The Council, at the time, would have gone on with the scheme if a definite subsidy had been forthcoming. However, the scheme must go on, and no ratepayer would begrudge paying £1/13/8 for a bath in clean water. It would definitely pay the Hospitals Board to pay double the price for a first-class water supply, and he estimated the saving in linen alone would be £100 a year.

SHOULD GO TO BRISBANE.

Mr. C. Joseph agreed that the scheme was of national importance, and with a view to furthering it delegates should go to Brisbane to contact the authorities.

SERIOUS POSITION.

Mr. T. Caterson said there was no question the scheme was of national importance, and he referred to the serious position of their industries a few years ago on account of the dry spell—Swifts, Butter Factory, also the railways.

Ald. Golding: I am definitely in favour of the scheme, even the bigger one.

NATIONAL IMPORTANCE.

Mr. Burrows moved that this representative meeting considered the scheme was of national importance. Seconded by Mr. H. Daley and carried.

"ELECTORS IMPATIENT."

After further statements had been made by various speakers, Mr. Bert Heathwood moved that the Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) be written to, asking him to expedite matters in regard to the scheme, as the electors were impatient, and more improvement was looked forward to in the future than in the past. Seconded by Mr. T. Caterson.

Mr. H. Daley said he felt sure Mr. Forde would do his best in regard to the scheme.

The Mayor: It was over three months ago that application had been made to Mr. Forde with a view to obtaining a Commonwealth grant of £20,000.

An amendment to the foregoing motion, moved by Mr. Drewe and seconded by Mr. Joseph, asked that a representative be sent south to contact the authorities in regard to the scheme.

Mr. Burrows stated that Mr. Forde would be visiting Gladstone in the near future, but the date had not been fixed.

MANPOWER DIFFICULTY.

Mr. H. Davey: Have you got all the material for the first section?

The Mayor: All the pipes are on the ground, but the difficulty was to secure manpower.

Mr. T. Caterson said if the views of this meeting were forwarded to Mr. Forde he felt sure action would be taken.

"A GOOD CASE."

Mr. Bert Heathwood said Mr. Forde was a very busy man, he was a politician, and no fool, but the people of Gladstone wanted better results, and they had to keep pushing these things under his nose. They had to give Mr. Forde a chance, and he would like to see included in the motion "that we wire Mr. Forde." In conclusion, he added, "the Council has put up a good case."

The motion was carried and the amendment defeated.

MR. WILLIAMS INCLUDED.

Ald. H. Anderson said Mr. Williams should not be overlooked, as he had done a lot of good work in connection with the scheme.

Mr. Bert Heathwood: With the permission of my seconder I will include Mr. Williams. This was agreed to.

CO-OPERATION.

Mr. J. Burrows moved that a committee be formed from the various bodies and unions to push forward the Boyne River scheme, and that it meets regularly.

Mr. Bert Heathwood, in seconding the motion, said with the co-operation of the unions they would be able to overcome some of the difficulties.

Mr. C. Joseph, in supporting the motion, stated the committee must be properly constituted.

The motion was then put and carried.

REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Burrows moved that the number be two representatives, with the exception of the Meatworks, who should have four delegates. Seconded by Mr. T. Caterson and carried.

In answer to Ald. Anderson, the Mayor stated that all members of the Council should be on the committee.

"LIST OF MATTERS."

Mr. Burrows moved that the Council be asked to submit a list of all matters in regard to the scheme where no replies had been received, and which the Council was waiting on, and added, "no section can get the scheme; we must all co-operate."

The motion was carried.

Mr. Burrows moved that Mr. Forde and Mr. Williams be written to, notifying them that no replies had been received to the Council's letters.

One is in regard to the grant of £20,000, and the other in reference to manpower and plant.

The motion was seconded by Mr. Peters and carried.

It was decided that the name of the committee be "Boyne Water Scheme Committee."

The meeting then concluded.

CORRESPONDENCE

(We do not necessarily identify ourselves with the views expressed by correspondents.)

HOSPITAL AND WATER CHARGES.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—According to your report of the last Council meeting the charges for water to the Gladstone Hospital, under the proposed by-laws, were discussed. Mr. Dennis stated the charges had never been discussed by the Board, and Mr. Golding stated that something had been done which was "not gracious."

As you no doubt know, the A.L.P. has protested against the proposed charges to the Hospital on the grounds that they are unfair.

I saw the water by-laws last Sunday for the first time, and I think they are very unfair, in spite of Mr. Dennis' remarks. For instance, we will take a few places at present on a meter—the Hospital, Meatworks, and Fisheries. Under these proposed charges the Hospital can be made pay 3/- per thousand gallons, and with a minimum of £25; the Meatworks and Fisheries cannot be charged more than 2/6 per thousand, with no minimum.

One alderman stated that the 3/- would never be enforced in regard to the Hospital, but that argument is almost as ridiculous as the one that we shouldn't squeal, as we are not paying it personally.

If the Council did not intend to charge it why was it put in? It is just as ridiculous to say the same could apply to the other concerns.

Mr. Dennis' statement that the charges had never been discussed by the Board must be right, as he said so, yet the minutes of the Board confirmed on 11th September last, when Mr. Dennis was present, contains a motion as follows:—

"Mr. Dennis, in moving a motion that provision be made for a further £70 for the cost of water, stated the new by-laws would shortly be gazetted."

As this £70 plus £20, the provision already made, was for only a portion of the year, it is fairly obvious that whatever the intentions of the other aldermen, there was no risk of what Mr. Dennis would charge the Hospital, which he has been fortunate enough not to require during my time.

Yours, etc.,

JAS. BURROWS.

CALLIOPE SHIRE COUNCIL

TENDER FOR CLEANSING SERVICE RECOMMENDED

STOCK TRAVELLING THROUGH CATFISH SCRUB

At the monthly meeting of the Council there were present: The Chairman (Cr. Beak), and Councillors S. J. A. Creed, J. H. Cummings, R. W. Hunt, H. Neill-Ballantine, J. M. Campbell, G. H. Potter, W. C. Dickinson, J. F. Drynan, and E. H. C. Steel, the Shire Clerk (Mr. H. H. Whittle), and the Health Inspector (Mr. P. F. Browne).

SYMPATHY EXPRESSED.

The Chairman moved that a letter of sympathy be written Cr. G. H. Potter, conveying the sincere sympathy of the Chairman, fellow councillors and staff to him and his son in their recent sad bereavement.

The motion was carried by all standing in silence.

VISIBILITY DISCS.

The District Engineer, Rockhampton, advised having forwarded visibility discs for erection on the "Gentle Annie" section of Hut Creek-Raglan section of the Northern Highway.—Received.

GLADSTONE-CALLIOPE ROAD.

The District Engineer, Rockhampton, advised approval had been received to apply a seal coat of bitumen on the Gladstone-Calliope Road.—Received.

STOCK ROUTE.

The District Engineer, Rockhampton, advised in reply to the Council's request to have fresh access provided for stock travelling along the highway through Catfish Scrub owing to the construction of the highway having encroached upon the old track, was receiving consideration.

It was resolved that the Clerk make further representation to the District Engineer with the object of having the work expedited.

LICENSED GATE AND MOTOR GRID.

Messrs. A. H. and T. C. Mann applied for permission to erect a licensed gate and motor grid on the Highway-Tannum Road at the eastern end of the section of the road recently resumed through portion 129, parish of Iveragh.

The application was approved for the erection of the licensed gate and motor grid to conform to the requirements of the standard plan adopted by the Council.

CUTTING TIMBER.

Messrs. Ferguson and Brown applied for permission to cut timber on the Calliope-Tableland Road to fulfil orders for defence requirements.

It was decided to forward a copy of the letter to the District Engineer, Rockhampton, offering no objection to the cutting of timber on the Calliope-Glassford Creek main road only, provided the tops of the fallen trees were properly lopped and stacked so as not to impede or injure the passing of travelling stock.

The Council declined to recommend the application to the Forestry Department for permission to fell timber on the section of the road under the control of the Council.

NO OBJECTION.

Land Agent inquired whether any objection would be offered to a special lease being granted to T. W. Watt over about five acres of the Camping Reserve No. 5, parish of Milton, abutting on A.F. 1823A, portion 145, parish of Milton.—It was agreed to offer no objection.

Mr. C. W. Fraser confirmed his verbal application to the Chairman for an allowance of £1 per week for servicing Division 3 truck while driving it.

The action of the Chairman was confirmed, and the rate of payment to continue until the truck was withdrawn for use on urgent shire work.

EMPLOYMENT EXCHANGE BOARD.

Department of Labour and Employment advised the result of the election of representatives on the Gladstone Employment Exchange Board.

The Chairman, on behalf of the members, congratulated Cr. Ballantine on his election as a member of the Board.

Cr. Ballantine thanked those who had voted for him.

HORRIGAN CREEK ROAD.

The Dairymen's Organisation, Raglan, asked for repairs to the Horrigan Creek Road.

It was decided to advise that the Council was making representation to the Allied Works Council for the temporary release of the shire's patrol grader to effect urgent repairs. Should the machine be released the repairs asked for would be effected.

CEDAR VALE ROAD.

The Dairymen's Association, Wilmott, asked that repairs be effected to Weston's cream route on the East-End-Cedar Vale Road.

It was decided to advise that the Council is making representation to the Allied Works Council for the temporary release of the shire's petrol grader to effect urgent repairs. Should the machine be released the repairs asked for would be effected.

BOYNEDALE-NETHERLEIGH ROAD.

Mr. J. M. Macdonald asked that repairs be effected to the Boynedale-Netherleigh Road.

It was decided to reply stating repairs would be effected as soon as the tractor and pull-grader was available.

REPAIRS BE CARRIED OUT.

Mr. S. Strano again asked for repairs to the road leading to his place.

It was decided to reply thanking Mr. Strano for his assistance in extricating the Chairman's car when inspecting the road in company with Cr. Cummings, and to advise that repairs would be effected when the grader was available.

£5 BE OFFERED.

Mr. A. T. Sitcheff asked that repairs be effected to the road to enable the crop of paw paws to be marketed.

It was decided to offer the writer £5 to repair the road to the satisfaction of a representative of the Council.

ROAD REPAIRS.

Mr. R. H. Coulter asked that repairs be effected to the road from the highway to his property. It was decided that repairs would be effected when the grader was working in or passing the locality.

DART'S CREEK ROAD.

Mr. F. D. Johnson asked that the lantana in the scrub section of Dart's Creek Road be brushed.—The action of the Chairman in arranging with the writer to carry out the work for two days' wages was endorsed.

GRADING ASKED FOR.

The estate of G. H. Horne asked the Council to grade about a mile of the private road.

The Chairman stated Mr. Horne had been written to asking that he get in touch with Mr. Pitter to have the work carried out by one of the Allied Works Council's graders, as there was no prospect of the shire grader being in the vicinity in the near future.

BOYNE ISLAND ROAD.

Mr. E. P. Colyer asked that repairs be effected to the Boyne Island Road.

The Chairman stated Mr. Colyer had been written to stating the grader and gangs were fully occupied in reconditioning the main roads, highways and more important shire roads.

RECEIVE ATTENTION.

Mr. K. McCray asked that a scour near the Riverston turn-off be repaired.—It was decided that the request would receive attention when the grader was operating in the vicinity at an early date.

CONSIDERATION DEFERRED.

Mr. A. K. Walker advised having paid his brother (Mr. G. J. Walker) £1 to effect urgent repairs to the Diglum-Tableland Road, and asking for a refund of the amount.—Consideration of the request was deferred pending a report from Mr. R. E. Brown.

DANGEROUS SCOUR.

Mrs. R. J. Davis advised having paid a man a day's wages to fill up a dangerous scour as arranged with Cr. Steel.—It was agreed to reimburse Mrs. Davis the amount paid.

GRANT OF £100.

Mr. Horsley Clarke advised the Mines Department had expended a grant of £100 on his road, and the writer had effected repairs with his own labour estimated at £350.—Received.

TENDERS.

The only fresh tender received for the cleansing service at Calliope was that of Mr. Ralph Ray at the undermentioned prices for a period from March 22, 1943, to June 30, 1945.

Nightsoil removal 1/6 per pan, refuse removal 2d per bin, removal and disposal of sheep, pigs, goats 5/- each, horses and cattle £1 each, and dogs, cats, etc., 2/6 each.

The Chairman stated having with Cr. Potter agreed to recommend the tender for acceptance, and arranged for the service to be commenced from March 22, 1943.

On the motion of Crs. Campbell and Cummings the recommendation of the Chairman and Cr. Potter was endorsed.

GENERAL.

Cr. Campbell stated having paid J. Cain £1/10/- for effecting repairs to the Barmundu-Diglum Road.

It was resolved that the amount be refunded to him.

Cr. Hunt stated he had arranged with Mr. E. Jaekne to destroy burr at £1, and effect repairs to the Boat Creek Road at £2.—Payment of £3 was approved.

It was decided to thank the Forester, Kalpowar, for having repairs effected to the Many Peaks-Golembil Road.

Cr. Steel, on behalf of the members for Division 3, thanked the Chairman and Division 1 members for making the patrol grader available for fourteen days to recondition the loan works in the Calliope-Many Peaks and other roads.

It was decided (1) To make representation to Mr. Engineer Pitter for the release of Division 1 patrol grader for at least one month at intervals of not less than fourteen days to enable urgent road repairs to be effected.

(2) The operator of the grader (Mr. Alex. Williamson) be informed that in the event of the grader being temporarily released to carry out shire work, and while he remains enrolled in the Civil Construction Corps this Council would pay him the equivalent he would have received if he had not been temporarily withdrawn from the Civil Construction Corps.

Payment of £1/10/- was approved to Mr. R. Hamm for road repairs as arranged with Cr. Creed.

The Shire Clerk stated that Mr. Chas. O'Connor had called at the office and asked that repairs be effected to the approach on the Benaraby side of the bridge over Machine Creek.

It was resolved that the Clerk convey a request to Mr. R. E. Brown, asking that repairs be effected, the burr in the creek on the upstream side of the bridge, and in a creek on the Benaraby-Calliope 10-Chain Road be destroyed.

Payment of £19/19/7 to Mr. V. A. Davis for erecting a new fence round the sanitary depot at Builyan was approved.

The Chairman thanked members for their co-operation, and the staff for their courtesy and efficiency during his term of office, and hoped members would be returned at the triennial election.

The Shire Clerk's report on the amount required to redeem the balance of the loan for the purchase of the patrol grader was, on the motion of Crs. Ballantine and Creed, held over pending the decision of the new Council as to whether part of the anticipated surplus at June 30 next be applied to redeem the loan.

Accounts amounting to £510/4/1 were passed for payment.

C.C.C. WORKERS

STOPWORK MEETING

Protests Entered

At a well attended stop work meeting of C.C.C. workers, held in the Oddfellows' Hall, resolutions were passed protesting against the manner in which the A.W.C. management was forcing on the C.C.C. workers of Australia an unacceptable set of monetary rules and conditions, contrary to the promise on compulsory enrolment that all trade union conditions would be observed.

Further, that the meeting was astonished at the way A.W.C., as a labour agency, was using conscripted labour for private contractors and semi-government bodies, and that a strong protest be sent the Prime Minister on this matter.

Another protest to be sent to Mr. Curtin was the present set-up of the Arbitration Courts, both State and Federal. The meeting was of opinion that in future judges should be appointed by the people; also a protest against the O'Mara award.

The A.C.T.U. is to be asked to draw up a new award in conference with the unions concerned.

The meeting was attended by members of all unions affiliated with the Trades and Labour Council.

BLACK MARKET HABIT

Old Italian Custom

Despite the activities of Mussolini's Blackshirts, the Italian people find it extremely difficult to give up one old national custom—the black market.

Broadcasting over Rome radio on March 11, Valori, a Government spokesman, explained why measures taken to suppress black markets had proved effective.

"There will always be" he said "a certain number of cases which will escape control. For many it will perhaps involve a heavy sacrifice, because it will be difficult to give up certain habits, especially bad ones."

"This black market habit is due in part to an old Italian habit regarding law breaking as legitimate.

This alone can explain why serious brave, disciplined people like the Italians who give a magnificent demonstration on the battlefields have yet been unable to eliminate completely the bad habit of going to the black market."

COUNTING Our Blessings

THE burdens of the Australian people seem to grow daily, and easement of them may be a long way off, yet we are free.

Our cities have not been bombed. Our women and children can walk the streets unafraid. Our schools are open. Our Parliaments can still meet. Freedom of Speech and of the Press is not greatly restricted. Our people can still air their grievances. In how many other countries of this war-torn world can these things be said?

Let us pray that we may be worthy of the fighting men of the Empire and our Allies who, by their toil and sacrifice, preserve these freedoms to us.

Our part as Citizens is to bear cheerfully the burdens of rationing and of such restrictions as are necessary (yet with constructive criticism where that seems desirable) and to save every penny we can for the War Loans.

One family in every two in the Commonwealth enjoys some measure of A.M.P. life assurance, paying premiums from ONE SHILLING A WEEK UPWARDS. These savings by members for their own Security have enabled their Society to put £50,000,000 into Commonwealth Loans, and to add £500,000 a month to this vast sum.

FOOD FACTS

NUMBER 3A

Nature's Perfect Food is

MILK

Providing more nutrition than any other single food, Milk contains the vital vitamins and minerals needed to protect against illness, ensure good digestion, build healthy tissues, strong bones and teeth.

It aids normal growth, develops energy, and protects against ill-health.

Children up to 16 years should have 1½ pints of milk daily—either to drink, or in soups, sauces, custards or puddings.

★ ★ ★ ★

In country areas where fresh cow's milk is not plentiful, full cream powdered milk is an excellent substitute—providing the same benefits almost completely.

BASIS FOR PROSPERITY

Post-War Reconstruction

Post-war reconstruction is a problem which Australia cannot shelve or side-step, and like England, America and Canada, she is awakening to a post-war consciousness and to the necessity for constructive planning now for the future.

"The strength and extension of secondary industries forms the surest basis of continual prosperity in primary industries," said Mr. D. H. Drummond, Country Party member for Armidale, leaving the House for a few minutes last week for an exclusive interview with Industrial News Service.

"A vigorous policy which has as its object co-operative action between these two, with encouragement of private initiative and individual enterprise, will do more to help Australia in post-war reconstruction than any other one scheme.

"Australia should use the present abnormal demand created by the war as a period to place primary production and industries on a payable footing, and at the same time ensure an increasingly important home market," he went on.

"Land settlement may absorb an increased number of men in the post-war period, but the stability and progress of primary industries must be dependent on some material factor which makes for the growth of the home market. One of the directions this policy can take is to establish a power link-up throughout N.S. Wales, and plans which have already been drawn up by previous non-Labour Governments should be put into effect as soon as possible.

"Results would snowball from such a scheme," he continued. "It would give a tremendous impetus to secondary production by the manufacture of essential plant for the generation of power and its reticulation. Large numbers of unskilled men would be required on the development of such works as the Snowy and Clarence River hydro-electric schemes. Thousands of others would be needed to supply the necessary cement and steel reinforcing. And the linking up of hydro-electric and other power schemes would in itself provide an excellent opportunity for the opening up of irrigation channels for farm land. The two schemes could be combined."

HEALTH INVIGORATION

Food Value of Tomatoes

In the course of recent history many food crops have become of great importance. One of the comparatively recent crops to be added to our ordinary diet is the tomato, and to-day tomatoes rank among our best crops from the standpoint of food value and health invigoration.

For a crop to become of such great importance it must grow on a large variety of soils and under varied climatic conditions, yield well, and lose little of its healthful quality through processing and other uses.

The tomatoe fits all these requirements, and so a crop of such value makes its economical production a matter of outstanding importance, especially at the present time.

Fortunately for the tomato grower, high yields and high quality go together, leaving out of consideration for the moment the incidence of pest and disease.

For tomato growing, as with other crops, the fact that the soil on every man's farm differs from that of every other man's in one or several ways should be kept in mind. These differences have to be acknowledged, understood, and studied; and the soil worked accordingly.

In the old countries of the world secrets of the soil were handed down from father to son, but in Australia they have to be studied scientifically. In the course of this study a lot of important information has been accumulated and made available to the producer by research workers in association with our field workers.

Perhaps in no other branch of farming is the art of knowing how and when to do the right thing is more important than in growing tomatoes. Of course, it has to be acknowledged that there is a certain amount of luck in growing any crop. Sometimes everything is just right, and at other times, for one reason or another, everything seems to go all wrong. However, many of the findings of research men have come from trained observation of mistakes made as much as actually doing the right thing in practice. Progress, however is like that

MILKING MACHINES

Preservation of Rubber Parts

The keeping of milking machines in good working order depends to a large extent on the continued resilience of the rubber tubing and teat cup liners, and here are a few practical hints from an official source on the preservation of the rubber parts of a milking machine:—

Never allow milk to dry on the inside of the tubes or liners.

Dried-on milk can't be removed without damaging the rubber. Water should be run through the machine just as soon as each milking is finished.

When the rubber parts are being sterilised they should not be put directly into a metal steam chest. The contact of metal and rubber at this high temperature takes the springiness out of the rubber and makes it sticky. The rubber parts should be placed in a muslin bag and the bag suspended in the sterilizer.

Attention to these details, as most dairy farmers know, will considerably prolong the life of the milking machine—an important point in present circumstances.

"MADE IN AUSTRALIA"

OVERSEAS MANUFACTURE

Not Necessarily the Best

Australia has for years suffered from an industrial inferiority complex. "Made in Germany" or "Made in Italy" were trade marks of origin which were eagerly looked for or even demanded for certain goods.

Australia had no faith in her own ability to compete with master craftsmen with centuries of tradition behind them. But, as Mr. R. G. Menzies said recently, "Under the growing urgency of war, Australia is developing a newly realised skill in the production of many goods, including machine tools, precision engineering, and aircraft construction."

Before the war Germany, Great Britain, France, United States, Russia, Japan and Canada were the only countries in the world manufacturing optical glass—and altogether there were a very limited number of factories. It was an industry entirely new to Australia, but months ago she was in the proud position of being entirely independent of overseas sources of supply. Nor is the manufacture of optical glass of war-time importance only.

In war time the glass is used for the lenses and prisms of telescopic gun sights, range finders, anti-aircraft gun predictors, prismatic compasses, and tank periscopes. In peace time optical glass is needed for the manufacture of cameras, telescopes, binoculars, compasses and microscopes.

Plate glass and electric light bulbs are two other newly developed Australian manufactures.

COMMONSENSE INGENUITY.

In the early days of the war, before Australia had trained experts of her own, she had to rely in some industries on commonsense and on the faithful copying of jigs and patterns sent out from Britain and the States. Every one of the 10,000 parts in the first "Wirraways," for instance, had to be copied with pin-point accuracy from 10,000 parts imported from the States—a triumph for the then un

MATERNAL WELFARE

CARE OF MOTHER AND CHILD

Sleep and Food

The poets, from Shakespeare downwards, have sung of the virtues of sleep, and some of the world's most beautiful songs are lullabies. Who has not felt the appeal of a picture of a young mother hushing her baby to rest with a window open to the setting sun as a background, or even, in spite of our modern upbringing, the mother knitting as she sings a lullaby and rocks the old wooden cradle with her foot.

Many mothers nowadays realise the importance of feeding babies correctly, but not so many realise the importance to the baby of sufficient sleep and rest.

While awake, a baby is very active, and it is during sleep that growth takes place and Nature has time to repair the worn-out parts. When one considers that a baby doubles an average birth weight in five to six months, it will be realised that the maximum amount of sleep is needed for this important work.

The most important war work for mothers these days is the care and nurture of the next generation—the babies who must take the place of the young men whose lives are being lost in this world upheaval.

It is wise, then, to concentrate on giving a baby his rights in the matter of rest and sleep and food. That will be the mother's best contribution to the war effort. Many babies are cross and difficult to feed, and will not settle down because they are over tired. During the early weeks of life a baby should sleep nearly all the time between his feeds. After the first month or so he remains awake longer, because he is beginning to be aware of his power of movement and to use his arms and legs. As time goes on a baby can enjoy himself for quite a while crowing and kicking and

FOOD CENSUS FORMS

How To Fill Them In

Primary producers who were being called upon to fill in questionnaire forms being used in the present Australia-wide survey of farm production must give each question careful consideration before answering the Acting Commonwealth Statistician (Mr. S. R. Carver) said last week.

Although he was pleased with the prompt response by those who had received their forms, mistakes were being made in some cases, especially in the vegetable section.

More than 258,000 questionnaire forms have been distributed to farmers throughout the country in this survey, which is being conducted as a basis for the planning of future food policy.

Mr. Carver said some people were filling in forms and leaving them deficient in one particular.

Where vegetable crops had been grown, full details had not been shown on page 3 of the form as well as page 1, as was required.

He also urged farmers to pay particular attention to questions concerning areas harvested in the year 1941-42, and areas and yields in the year 1942-43. Where no definite records of figures were available, persons filling in the forms should make estimates as near to correct as possible.

He asked farmers to note the following points:—

(1) Read all instructions carefully before filling in the form.

(2) Figures given for vegetables on page 1 must agree with those on page 3. If crops have not been harvested, best estimate available will do.

(3) Give full particulars of vegetable crops planted so far during 1943, and those proposed to be planted during April, May and June.

(4) Fill in your return correctly. Do it at once, and return it to your nearest police collector.

"MADE IN AUSTRALIA"

OVERSEAS MANUFACTURE

Not Necessarily the Best

Australia has for years suffered from an industrial inferiority complex. "Made in Germany" or "Made in Italy" were trade marks of origin which were eagerly looked for or even demanded for certain goods.

Australia had no faith in her own ability to compete with master craftsmen with centuries of tradition behind them. But, as Mr. R. G. Menzies said recently, "Under the growing urgency of war, Australia is developing a newly realised skill in the production of many goods, including machine tools, precision engineering, and aircraft construction."

Before the war Germany, Great Britain, France, United States, Russia, Japan and Canada were the only countries in the world manufacturing optical glass—and altogether there were a very limited number of factories. It was an industry entirely new to Australia, but months ago she was in the proud position of being entirely independent of overseas sources of supply. Nor is the manufacture of optical glass of war-time importance only.

In war time the glass is used for the lenses and prisms of telescopic gun sights, range finders, anti-aircraft gun predictors, prismatic compasses, and tank periscopes. In peace time optical glass is needed for the manufacture of cameras, telescopes, binoculars, compasses and microscopes.

Plate glass and electric light bulbs are two other newly developed Australian manufactures.

COMMONSENSE INGENUITY.

In the early days of the war, before Australia had trained experts of her own, she had to rely in some industries on commonsense and on the faithful copying of jigs and patterns sent out from Britain and the States. Every one of the 10,000 parts in the first "Wirraways," for instance, had to be copied with pin-point accuracy from 10,000 parts imported from the States—a triumph for the then unskilled aircraft production workers in the Victorian factory at Fisherman's Bend.

In many instances machines for the initial production of war goods were not available. Some Australia had thought never to need. Others, ordered by foresight, were still on the high seas. But engineers in private firms throughout the Commonwealth rose to the occasion fi transforming, reconditioning, re-assembling existing (or even discarded) plant to do a new job.

The story of the switchover by Stewarts and Lloyds' engineers of a machine which had been turning out steampipes and boiler tubes to the manufacture of shell forgings is now common knowledge. They did it within three weeks. Other unsubsidised firms did similar jobs. They switched over to war production without waiting for the delivery of special machines from overseas.

CRUISER TANKS.

Now Australia is making her own machinery for the manufacture of many of her new products. Australian built cruiser tanks are one example of the achievement of heavy industry in war production. The tanks embody some 20,000 parts (excluding the power unit). They are the first in the world to have a complete armoured steel hull cast as one solid unit. Australian engineers eliminated rivets when it was found in combat that flying rivets killed troops when shells did not. And for the production of these armoured steel tanks Australia is producing her own armour plating. This was formerly imported from Britain, but Australia is now producing as good a quality at a quarter the cost.

No, Australia need feel no inferiority complex about the quality of her production now. She can be proud of the "Made in Australia" trade mark.

MATERNAL WELFARE

CARE OF MOTHER AND CHILD

Sleep and Food

The poets, from Shakespeare downwards, have sung of the virtues of sleep, and some of the world's most beautiful songs are lullabies. Who has not felt the appeal of a picture of a young mother hushing her baby to rest with a window open to the setting sun as a background, or even, in spite of our modern upbringing, the mother knitting as she sings a lullaby and rocks the old wooden cradle with her foot.

Many mothers nowadays realise the importance of feeding babies correctly, but not so many realise the importance to the baby of sufficient sleep and rest.

While awake a baby is very active, and it is during sleep that growth takes place and Nature has time to repair the worn-out parts. When one considers that a baby doubles an average birth weight in five to six months, it will be realised that the maximum amount of sleep is needed for this important work.

The most important war work for mothers these days is the care and nurture of the next generation—the babies who must take the place of the young men whose lives are being lost in this world upheaval.

It is wise, then, to concentrate on giving a baby his rights in the matter of rest and sleep and food. That will be the mother's best contribution to the war effort. Many babies are cross and difficult to feed, and will not settle down because they are over tired. During the early weeks of life a baby should sleep nearly all the time between his feeds. After the first month or so he remains awake longer, because he is beginning to be aware of his power of movement and to use his arms and legs. As time goes on a baby can enjoy himself for quite a while crowing and kicking and exercising his various faculties, but even when he reaches the age of a year he should have as much as three hours' sleep each day as well as his twelve hours at night.

Any kind of over stimulation or excitement is injurious to a baby, but particularly to the restless, highly-strung type. A baby may be made very sleepless and irritable, and the seeds of a neurosis may be sown by his being kept up late. The condition is further aggravated by taking him amongst noise and bright lights, or by playing with him just at bedtime.

Think again of the picture of a mother hushing her baby to rest with a lullaby, and remember that whatever views there may be about the wisdom of rocking a baby to sleep, our mothers and grandmothers had the knowledge which in these unsettled days we are liable to lose sight of, that to be fit and well a baby must have all the sleep he needs, and to obtain this he should go to bed surrounded by an atmosphere of peace, love, and security, whether in his mother's arms or in his cot.

Questions on this and any other subject concerning maternal and child welfare will be answered by addressing letters, "Baby Clinic, Brisbane." These letters need not be stamped.

FOOD CENSUS FORMS

How To Fill Them In

Primary producers who were being called upon to fill in questionnaire forms being used in the present Australia-wide survey of farm production must give each question careful consideration before answering the Acting Commonwealth Statistician (Mr. S. R. Carver) said last week.

Although he was pleased with the prompt response by those who had received their forms, mistakes were being made in some cases, especially in the vegetable section.

More than 258,000 questionnaire forms have been distributed to farmers throughout the country in this survey, which is being conducted as a basis for the planning of future food policy.

Mr. Carver said some people were filling in forms and leaving them deficient in one particular.

Where vegetable crops had been grown, full details had not been shown on page 3 of the form as well as page 1, as was required.

He also urged farmers to pay particular attention to questions concerning areas harvested in the year 1941-42, and areas and yields in the year 1942-43. Where no definite records of figures were available, persons filling in the forms should make estimates as near to correct as possible.

He asked farmers to note the following points:—

(1) Read all instructions carefully before filling in the form.

(2) Figures given for vegetables on page 1 must agree with those on page 3. If crops have not been harvested, best estimate available will do.

(3) Give full particulars of vegetable crops planted so far during 1943, and those proposed to be planted during April, May and June.

(4) Fill in your return correctly. Do it at once, and return it to your nearest police collector.

WHY - - £300,000

IS REQUIRED IN 1943 BY THE QUEENSLAND DIVISION

DISBURSEMENTS by the Queensland Division of the Red Cross Society must progressively increase in direct ratio to the need and demand for the service it provides. The following figures tell their own story:—

FOR TWELVE MONTHS from 1st July, 1941, to 30th June, 1942, Payments of £167,738 exceeded Receipts of £147,613 by £20,125. EXPENDITURE for 1941-42 averaged almost £14,000 per month. For July, August, September and October of 1942 the average was over £20,550 per month, and it is anticipated that this rate will be increased in 1943.

ANZAC DAY SERVICES.

The Anzac Day service to be held in the Presbyterian Church will commence at 7.30 p.m., and not 8 p.m. as previously advertised.

INTEREST FREE LOAN.

The manager of the Gladstone branch of the Commonwealth Bank (Mr. W. H. Hall) advises that the sum of £16 and £500 has been received as interest free loans to the Commonwealth Government from persons who desire to remain anonymous.

WAR LOAN COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the War Loan Committee held on April 13 it was decided that the "Observer" be asked to publish the following:—Since our meeting, held on April 6, Swifts Ltd. immediately consented to deduct moneys for the group system, which action the committee very much appreciate.

MR. J. F. McCOY.

Mr. J. F. McCoy, who has been acting C.P.S. at Gladstone in place of Mr. T. Mee (who has been on sick leave) for the last eleven weeks, left for Brisbane on Monday. Mr. McCoy proved himself to be an officer of outstanding ability, combined with courtesy and tact, and besides renewing many old friendships, made many new ones. During his stay here Mr. McCoy addressed audiences at the picture shows, stressing the necessity for every citizen to subscribe to the third liberty loan, and he is a speaker of no mean ability. Mr. McCoy left Gladstone with the best wishes of his many friends, and the hope was expressed that Mr. Mee's health had greatly benefited during his holiday.

FAREWELLED

MR. AND MRS. E. G. OGG

Popular Gladstone Citizens

Two of Gladstone's best known citizens in Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Ogg have left for the Stanthorpe district, where Mr. Ogg has purchased a sheep property adjoining the well-known Pikedale Station.

Residents here for over 20 years, both were noted for their fine public spirit, enterprise as citizens, and splendid war records.

Mr. Ogg came to Gladstone and opened the S.S.S. Stores, a business which prospered and became a household word throughout the district.

He gained his commission in the 5th Light Horse in the Great War, and won the Military Cross for heroism in the campaign. From the moment he returned wounded he commenced assisting the returned soldiers, and was a prominent officer of the local branch of the R.S.S.A.I.L.A.

Long before Japan entered the war he warned his fellow returned soldiers and citizens of the Asiatic danger, so much so, that he was on occasions called an alarmist.

When war did come against the Japs he communicated (in the interests of Gladstone) direct with the Minister for the Army and other Federal Ministers.

Mr. Ogg formed the Gladston V.D.C., and was their leader, instructing and drilling the unit until recently. It is now regarded as one of the best country units in the State.

In early years he took a great interest in the Barrier Reef, making many trips with notable visitors in his launch the Madeline. A keen naturalist, he knew every inch of the southern extremity of the reef, and contributed many articles on Mast Head, Heron, Nor-West, and other coral islets for southern inquiries.

Mr. Ogg could always be found with the diggers, and he assisted in keeping the returned soldiers together as an active body in Gladstone. His departure will be a severe loss to these and allied organisations.

Mrs. Ogg was one of the founders of the Gladstone branch of the Country Women's Association, and she was for many years its secretary. She attended all meetings and took an active interest in it until her departure. She was also supervisor of the Younger Set, and helped with all their functions.

Mrs. Ogg will probably be best remembered for her musical association with patriotic, charitable, and social functions during and since the last war.

She appeared on the concert platform of practically every local presentation, and assisted in organising the functions.

TRIENNIAL ELECTIONS

QUESTION OF POSTAL BALLOT

Law Set Out

The Clerk of the Calliope Shire Council (Mr. H. H. Whittle) has received the following letter from the Department of Local Authority Affairs:—

Several returning officers for the purposes of the ensuing triennial election of chairman and members of local authorities have approached this department requesting advice as to whether in the case of an elector serving with the armed forces an application for postal ballot may be witnessed by a commissioned officer of the armed forces.

"In each case the department has advised these local authorities that the application must be witnessed by those persons set out in the form contained in Rule 50 of the third schedule to the law, i.e., a justice of the peace, an elector of the same area or the returning officer.

"It has now come to the notice of the department that Regulation 63 of the National Security (Supplementary) Regulations made under 'The National Security Act, 1939-1940,' enables certain commissioned officers of the armed forces to witness affidavits, and for the purpose of this regulation the term 'affidavit' includes any statutory or other declaration. The Solicitor-General advises the department that pursuant to this regulation the commissioned officers named therein would be competent to witness an application for a postal ballot.

"The officers authorised by the regulation to so witness signatures are officers holding rank not below the following:—

(1) In the case of a naval officer, lieutenant.

(2) In the case of a military officer, captain.

(3) In the case of an airforce officer, flight-lieutenant.

"The department regrets that it was not aware that this regulation was made and requests that the provisions of the regulation be given every publicity."

AMBULANCE BRIGADE

At the monthly meeting of the Brigade there were present: Mr. A. T. (Power (chairman), and Messrs. W. O'Reilly, W. Ross, J. F. Clayton, A. S. Fry, and Mr. W. V. Coase (secretary). Apologies from Messrs. H. N.

C.W. ASSOCIATION

MONTHLY MEETING

Various Matters Dealt With

The usual monthly meeting of the C.W.A., Gladstone branch, was held in the Rest Room on Tuesday, April 13. Mrs. V. Phillips (president) presided.

The meeting opened with the reciting of "My Creed," followed by a two minutes silent prayer for the fighting forces and those bereaved.

There was a fair number of members present, and several apologies were received.

EUCHRE EVENINGS.

It was reported that euchre evenings were well attended each Saturday night.

SMALL WEDDING GIFTS.

The Supervisor (Mrs. W. Chapman) reported that the Younger Set held a nice meeting on Monday night, April 5, and as two of their members were being married, they decided to present each of them with a small wedding gift.

DISTRESS CASE.

The Secretary reported one case of distress, and 25 garments were given out. There were no calls for travellers' aid during the month.

HOSPITAL VISITED.

Hospital visiting had been carried out by Mesdames W. Chapman, Ricketts, Hughes and Burnham. These ladies visited the hospital alternately each Thursday, and reported the distribution of reading matter and bootees for infants. Our thanks are due to Mrs. C. Gill for paper, etc. Mesdames Chapman and Phillips will be the visitors for this month.

"Havarest" is occupied and in good order.

There have been several engagements for parties at the Rest Room.

CAMOUFLAGE NETS.

Mrs. Ricketts asked for a month's leave of absence from the camouflage nets, which was granted. Mesdames Paxton and Blair are now working on the nets, and the A.C.F. is doing good work. More net workers are urgently needed.

ANZAC DAY WREATH.

Some of the members agreed to meet at Mrs. Phillips' residence to make the wreath for Anzac Day.

PUBLIC CONVENIENCE.

A discussion arose regarding a public convenience in Gladstone, and the Secretary was instructed to write to the Town Council on the matter, as this branch felt that this was a most essential necessity.

A PRESENTATION.

During the month the Association held a little social evening to farewell Mrs. Ogg, who is leaving Gladstone to reside in the Stanthorpe district. The Association was indeed sorry to lose Mrs. Ogg, who has been a very kind and conscientious members, and members were going to miss her very much.

WHY - - £300,000

IS REQUIRED IN 1943 BY THE QUEENSLAND DIVISION

DISBURSEMENTS by the Queensland Division of the Red Cross Society must progressively increase in direct ratio to the need and demand for the service it provides. The following figures tell their own story:—

FOR TWELVE MONTHS from 1st July, 1941, to 30th June, 1942. Payments of £167,738 exceeded Receipts of £147,613 by £20,125. EXPENDITURE for 1941-42 averaged almost £14,000 per month. For July, August, September and October of 1942 the average was over £20,550 per month, and it is anticipated that this rate will be increased in 1943.

STAPLETON.—In loving memory of John Stapleton, who passed away on 23rd April, 1941.

At Rest.

(Inserted by his loving wife, daughters (Kin and Hazel), and grandchildren.)

JOYNER.—In loving memory of Roland George Joyner, who departed this life on April 24th, 1942.

Loving and true in all his ways.
Upright and just to the end of his days;
Sincere and kind in heart and mind.
What a beautiful memory to leave behind.

(Inserted by his loving wife and family.)

WARNER.—In loving memory of my dear Husband and our Father, Frank William Warner, who passed away on the 25th April, 1942.

What would I give his hand to clasp,
His dear face to see
To hear again his loving voice
That meant so much to me.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 21, 1943.

CURRENT TOPICS

EASTER SATURDAY.

No issue of the "Observer" will be published on Easter Saturday, April 24. Subscribers and advertisers please note.

ANZAC DAY SERVICES.

The Anzac Day service to be held in the Presbyterian Church will commence at 7.30 p.m., and not 8 p.m. as previously advertised.

INTEREST FREE LOAN.

The manager of the Gladstone branch of the Commonwealth Bank (Mr. W. H. Hall) advises that the sum of £10 and £500 has been received as interest free loans to the Commonwealth Government from persons who desire to remain anonymous.

WAR LOAN COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the War Loan Committee held on April 13 it was decided that the "Observer" be asked to publish the following:—Since our meeting, held on April 6, Swifts Ltd. immediately consented to deduct moneys for the group system, which action the committee very much appreciate.

MR. J. F. McCOY.

Mr. J. F. McCoy, who has been acting C.P.S. at Gladstone in place of Mr. T. Mee (who has been on sick leave) for the last eleven weeks, left for Brisbane on Monday. Mr. McCoy proved himself to be an officer of outstanding ability, combined with courtesy and tact, and besides renewing many old friendships, made many new ones. During his stay here Mr. McCoy addressed audiences at the picture shows, stressing the necessity for every citizen to subscribe to the third liberty loan, and he is a speaker of no mean ability. Mr. McCoy left Gladstone with the best wishes of his many friends, and the hope was expressed that Mr. Mee's health had greatly benefited during his holiday.

COMFORTS FUND

MONTHLY MEETING

More Sewers Wanted

At the monthly meeting of the A.C.F. there were present: The President (Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan), the Hon. Treasurer (Mrs. A. D. Hopper), and Mesdames C. Chapman, W. Chapman, Jones, Turner, Gordon, Henriksen, Clarice, H. C. Smith, Coxon, Cross, and the Hon. Secretary (Mrs. J. Garrett).

Apologies were received from Mesdames R. Barker, Beutell, Picton, Stewart, and D. Smith.

The meeting opened with the National Anthem.

WELCOME EXTENDED.

The President extended a welcome to two new members, Mesdames Coxon and Clarice.

ACCOUNTS PASSED.

Accounts amounting to £26/15/3 were presented and passed for payment.

SEWING AND KNITTING CIRCLE.

The convenor of the Sewing and Knitting Circle (Mrs. J. Worthington) submitted the following report from March 12 to April 9:—

5 prs. pyjamas, 37 prs. socks, 18 hussifs, 110 mess bags, 243 khaki handkerchiefs.

A case of comforts was despatched to headquarters on April 4, containing 20 prs. pyjamas, 243 khaki handkerchiefs, 48 prs. socks, 1 muffler, 61 hussifs, also a case of books and magazines.

DONATIONS.

Donations of books and magazines were received from Mesdames M. Murphy (Mt. Larcom), Cross, S. Melford, Ballantine, Roebuck, Forrest, Muspratt (Littlemore).

Set of bobs, Doris West.

A further supply of books are needed for battle stations, and for troops travelling by train.

Table Tennis: F. Robinson.

STREET STALL.

The convenors of the street stall (Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen) reported a net profit of £32/0/7 from the March stall.

GENERAL.

The President reported that the H.M.A.S. Gladstone appeal had been launched, and had met with a good response. Mrs. Macfarlan asked all those who intend to subscribe to do so immediately, as the appeal would close in the very near future.

The fund was in need of many more sewers and knitters, and she would be pleased to welcome new members to their sewing meetings in the Diggers' Hall on Tuesday and Friday afternoons of each week.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mrs. Ellen Stapleton returned to Gladstone last week, and is staying with Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Browne, William Street.

Miss Thelma Hallam has been appointed as a cadet nurse at the Tweed District Hospital, Murwillumbah, and left on Saturday last to take up her duties. Her sister Lorna left the previous day to resume her studies at St. Faith's School, Barcaldine.

FIREWOOD SHORTAGE.

An official has been appointed by the Prime Minister (Mr. Curtin) to investigate Queensland's firewood shortage. He will co-ordinate the efforts of all concerned, and in all probability will establish camps to provide supplies for the cities.

DAIRY INDUSTRY.

At a recent meeting of the Kyogle and Upper Clarence War Agricultural Committee, it was decided to send congratulations to the Queensland Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Williams) on the emphatic stand he took in insisting on better conditions being created in the dairy industry; also to acquaint the N.S.W. Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Dunn) with what Mr. Williams was doing, and to ask him to take a similar stand in order to arrest the serious drift now taking place in the industry.

ADDITIONAL MATCHES FOR GLADSTONE.

The Gladstone branch of the A.L.P. has received advice from Mr. F. M. Forde (Minister for the Army) that the request of this branch for a better supply of matches to Gladstone had been granted. Mr. Dedman (Minister for War Organisation), in his letter, pointed to the desirability of increasing the existing quota, and therefore arrangements have been made for the supply of an additional twenty-one gross boxes of safety matches per month.

FAREWELLED

MR. AND MRS. E. G. OGG

Popular Gladstone Citizens

Two of Gladstone's best known citizens in Mr and Mrs. E. G. Ogg have left for the Stanthorpe district, where Mr. Ogg has purchased a sheep property adjoining the well-known Pikedale Station.

Residents here for over 20 years, both were noted for their fine public spirit, enterprise as citizens, and splendid war records.

Mr. Ogg came to Gladstone and opened the S.S.S. Stores, a business which prospered and became a household word throughout the district.

He gained his commission in the 5th Light Horse in the Great War, and won the Military Cross for heroism in the campaign. From the moment he returned wounded he commenced assisting the returned soldiers, and was a prominent officer of the local branch of the R.S.S.A.I.L.A.

Long before Japan entered the war he warned his fellow returned soldiers and citizens of the Asiatic danger, so much so, that he was on occasions called an alarmist.

When war did come against the Japs he communicated (in the interests of Gladstone) direct with the Minister for the Army and other Federal Ministers.

Mr. Ogg formed the Gladston V.D.C., and was their leader, instructing and drilling the unit until recently. It is now regarded as one of the best country units in the State.

In early years he took a great interest in the Barrier Reef, making many trips with notable visitors in his launch the Madeline. A keen naturalist, he knew every inch of the southern extremity of the reef, and contributed many articles on Mast Head, Heron, Nor-West, and other coral islets for southern inquiries.

Mr. Ogg could always be found with the diggers, and he assisted in keeping the returned soldiers together as an active body in Gladstone. His departure will be a severe loss to these and allied organisations.

Mrs. Ogg was one of the founders of the Gladstone branch of the Country Women's Association, and she was for many years its secretary. She attended all meetings and took an active interest in it until her departure. She was also supervisor of the Younger Set, and helped with all their functions.

Mrs. Ogg will probably be best remembered for her musical association with patriotic, charitable, and social functions during and since the last war.

She appeared on the concert platform of practically every local presentation, and assisted in organising the functions.

When the present war broke out she was the first woman in Queensland to broadcast an appeal for volunteers for the second A.I.F., and she spoke over several radio stations in Brisbane when recruits were asked for.

Mrs. Ogg's kindly acts of charity in Gladstone and district will be long remembered. Prior to her departure she was entertained at two farewell functions. C.W.A. and Younger Set members met and presented her with a nice handbag, the President (Mrs. H. V. Phillips) expressing the great regret at Mrs. Ogg's departure, and wishing her every success and happiness in her new home.

On Tuesday night 22 ex-employees of the S.S.S. Stores, many of them now married and in other business avenues, met at the Orion Cafe to pay tribute to their former employer. All spoke with feeling of the friendly associations over a long period of years, and joined in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Ogg every good fortune in the Stanthorpe district.

BOWLING

Week-End Games

In the district representative pairs competition to select two bowlers to play at Rockhampton this week-end, A. Joyner and H. V. Loveday defeated A. Sly and G. E. Wilson 25-10. The winning pair will now represent Gladstone in the Central District pairs.

Social games resulted:—

Hogan, Jenkinson, Golding v. Pring, Dr. Yum, Johnston 38-10.

Henery, Coxon, P. Friend v. Comino, Bycroft, Greasley 32-15.

P. Friend, Cameron, Cox, Mackay v. Johnston, Dahl, Lodder, Schmidt 30-17.

TRIENNIAL ELECTIONS

QUESTION OF POSTAL BALLOT

Law Set Out

The Clerk of the Calliope Shire Council (Mr. H. H. Whittle) has received the following letter from the Department of Local Authority Affairs:—

Several returning officers for the purposes of the ensuing triennial election of chairman and members of local authorities have approached this department requesting advice as to whether in the case of an elector serving with the armed forces an application for postal ballot may be witnessed by a commissioned officer of the armed forces.

"In each case the department has advised these local authorities that the application must be witnessed by those persons set out in the form contained in Rule 50 of the third schedule to the law, i.e., a justice of the peace, an elector of the same area or the returning officer.

"It has now come to the notice of the department that Regulation 63 of the National Security (Supplementary) Regulations made under 'The National Security Act, 1939-1940,' enables certain commissioned officers of the armed forces to witness affidavits, and for the purpose of this regulation the term 'affidavit' includes any statutory or other declaration. The Solicitor-General advises the department that pursuant to this regulation the commissioned officers named therein would be competent to witness an application for a postal ballot.

"The officers authorised by the regulation to so witness signatures are officers holding rank not below the following:—

(1) In the case of a naval officer, lieutenant.

(2) In the case of a military officer, captain.

(3) In the case of an airforce officer, flight-lieutenant.

"The department regrets that it was not aware that this regulation was made and requests that the provisions of the regulation be given every publicity."

AMBULANCE BRIGADE

326 CASES ATTENDED TO

Cars Travelled 1235 Miles

At the monthly meeting of the Brigade there were present: Mr. A. T. (Power (chairman), and Messrs. W. O'Reilly, W. Ross, J. F. Clayton, A. S. Fry, and Mr. W. V. Coase (secretary). Apologies from Messrs. H. N. Ballantine and G. W. Wyatt were received.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

The Superintendent (Mr. Coase) reported that during the month of March the Brigade attended the following cases:—78 accidents, 224 transports, 24 office cases, total 326.

The cars visited the following places for cases and travelled 1235 miles:—Benaraby, Booroom, Targinnie Road, Ubobo, Galloway Plains, Catfish (Wall's Camp), Catfish Scrub, Littlemore, Bindawalla, Builyan Road.

The following donations have been received since last meeting:—

A vote of thanks was passed to all subscribers during the month.

GENERAL.

The Chairman said that was the last meeting before the election, and thanked members for the courtesy and assistance that had been given to him as chairman, and extended the same to the Superintendent, bearer, and hon. bearers, and ladies' committee.

C.W. ASSOCIATION

MONTHLY MEETING

Various Matters Dealt With

The usual monthly meeting of the C.W.A., Gladstone branch, was held in the Rest Room on Tuesday, April 13. Mrs. V. Phillips (president) presided.

The meeting opened with the reciting of "My Creed," followed by a two minutes silent prayer for the fighting forces and those bereaved.

There was a fair number of members present, and several apologies were received.

EUCHRE EVENINGS.

It was reported that euchre evenings were well attended each Saturday night.

SMALL WEDDING GIFTS.

The Supervisor (Mrs. W. Chapman) reported that the Younger Set held a nice meeting on Monday night, April 5, and as two of their members were being married, they decided to present each of them with a small wedding gift.

DISTRESS CASE.

The Secretary reported one case of distress, and 25 garments were given out. There were no calls for travellers' aid during the month.

HOSPITAL VISITED.

Hospital visiting had been carried out by Mesdames W. Chapman, Ricketts, Hughes and Burnham. These ladies visited the hospital alternately each Thursday, and reported the distribution of reading matter and bootees for infants. Our thanks are due to Mrs. C. Gill for paper, etc. Mesdames Chapman and Phillips will be the visitors for this month.

"Havarest" is occupied and in good order.

There have been several engagements for parties at the Rest Room.

CAMOUFLAGE NETS.

Mrs. Ricketts asked for a month's leave of absence from the camouflage nets, which was granted. Mesdames Paxton and Blair are now working on the nets, and the A.C.F. is doing good work. More net workers are urgently needed.

ANZAC DAY WREATH.

Some of the members agreed to meet at Mrs. Phillips' residence to make the wreath for Anzac Day.

PUBLIC CONVENIENCE.

A discussion arose regarding a public convenience in Gladstone, and the Secretary was instructed to write to the Town Council on the matter, as this branch felt that this was a most essential necessity.

A PRESENTATION.

During the month the Association held a little social evening to farewell Mrs. Ogg, who is leaving Gladstone to reside in the Stanthorpe district. The Association was indeed sorry to lose Mrs. Ogg, who has been a very kind and conscientious members, and members were going to miss her very much.

Mrs. Phillips, on behalf of members, presented Mrs. Ogg, in a few well chosen words, with a very useful tapestry bag. Mrs. Ogg suitably acknowledged the presentation.

A very enjoyable evening was spent.

SEWING CERTIFICATES.

Mrs. Hamell reported having completed fourteen war saving certificates, an dwas highly commended for her good work.

MYSTERY PARCEL.

The mystery parcel (presented by Mrs. Ogg) was won by Mrs. Phillips, who kindly offered to donate the next parcel.

A dainty afternoon tea was served by the hostesses (Mesdames Beale and Baynton).

AFRCAIN WOOL

New Development

Increased use of South African wool is being made by the British mills, compared with the proportion consumed in times of peace. This is quite a recent development, and is caused by the saving in shipping space in comparison with the longer voyage to and from Australia.

Authorities in Great Britan consider that the South African clip, so far, has not deteriorated in standard because of the inability to import Australian rams. A marked improvement resulted from the use of rams from the Commonwealth.

Prior to their importation a yield of 28 per cent to 32 per cent of C[illegible] wools was quite usual. Th[illegible] adays is muc[illegible] Australia[illegible] qualit[illegible] can c[illegible] impro[illegible]

H.M.A.S. GLADSTONE APPEAL

LETTER FROM LIEUT. PENNY

Comforts Appreciated

Lieutenant Penny writes from the H.M.A.S. Gladstone as follows:—

"I am in receipt of your letter of the 22nd inst., and beg to advise that the three cases of comforts batteries and wireless sets, referred to therein, have been safely received on board H.M.S. ship under my command, and were warmly welcomed by all concerned.

"On behalf of myself, officers and ship's company, I wish to tender our most sincere thanks for your great kindness, and to convey our deep appreciation of your branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. The khaki shorts and shirts were particularly welcome, many of our ratings having joined unprovided for in this respect.

"We are also pleased to know that you intend to instal electric kettles, and these will be very welcome."

"The H.M.A.S. Gladstone has now left for an Australian port, and it is expected that an early opportunity will enable us to call at Gladstone.

APPEAL CLOSES MAY 1.

As the Comforts Fund is committed to an expenditure of £10 per quarter for servicing the ship, it is hoped that those who have not subscribed will do so before May 1, when this appeal will close.

3rd LIBERTY LOAN CHALLENGE

"BUSINESS" v. "WORKER"

Win for "Business" by Narrow Margin

The challenge race between Goddy Crow's old war-horse "Business," ridden by himself, and the Third Liberty Loan Committee's colt "The Worker," provided a most interesting contest and a very exciting finish, with Goddy's "Business" first past the post by the shortest of heads.

Although running on better at the finish, "The Worker's" jockey left his run until a little too late, and it appeared that, with more vigorous riding the result could quite easily have been reversed.

MAJOR TSIGANTES

Heroic Death Described

A message smuggled out of occupied Greece was read at the London celebrations of the 35th anniversary of International Women's Day.

It has been described by the London Press as the most moving of all messages from abroad.

It is the story of how Major John Tsigantes, of the Greek Army, fell in Athens, fighting alone against Italian soldiers on January 14.

Major Tsigantes escaped from Greece shortly after the German occupation, and was on active service in the Middle East. He arrived in Greece on a special mission, and was traced one day by the Gestapo in Athens to a house which was immediately surrounded by Axis troops. The whole block around his hideout and all possible ways of escape were covered with machine guns.

Troops then closed in, and Tsigantes drew his revolver and walked downstairs. Near the door of the house he saw five Italians. He killed two and wounded the others, one of whom died later.

When his revolver had been emptied Tsigantes was attacked from every side. Shot through the head he fell dead.

The population protested violently against the killing of Tsigantes, and the occupation troops, fearing disorders, were sent out to patrol the streets.

Defying strict orders, Athenians now cover the grave of Major Tsigantes with flowers. The word "vengeance" has been found chalked on many of the city's walls.

A GLADSTONE FRIEND.

It will be interesting to note that Major Tsigantes was a close personal friend of Mr. Peter Feros, of the Paramount Cafe, Gladstone.

"Major Tsigantes was one of nature's gentlemen," said Mr. Feros, "a brave soldier, who was killed in the service of his country."

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

DOMESTICS AND TAX DEDUCTIONS.

Householders who employ domestic help are required to deduct tax instalments and purchase tax stamps for employees where the value of wages and board exceed £2 a week on each pay day from April 1.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

H.M.A.S. GLADSTONE APPEAL

LETTER FROM LIEUT. PENNY

Comforts Appreciated

Lieutenant Penny writes from the H.M.A.S. Gladstone as follows:—

"I am in receipt of your letter of the 22nd inst., and beg to advise that the three cases of comforts batteries and wireless sets, referred to therein, have been safely received on board H.M.S. ship under my command, and were warmly welcomed by all concerned.

"On behalf of myself, officers and ship's company, I wish to tender our most sincere thanks for your great kindness, and to convey our deep appreciation of your branch of the Australian Comforts Fund. The khaki shorts and shirts were particularly welcome, many of our ratings having joined unprovided for in this respect.

"We are also pleased to know that you intend to instal electric kettles, and these will be very welcome."

"The H.M.A.S. Gladstone has now left for an Australian port, and it is expected that an early opportunity will enable us to call at Gladstone.

APPEAL CLOSES MAY 1.

As the Comforts Fund is committed to an expenditure of £10 per quarter for servicing the ship, it is hoped that those who have not subscribed will do so before May 1, when this appeal will close.

ANZAC MEMORIES.

(By Adella Millar.)

The writer is a sister of Mrs. R. Farnsworth, of Gladstone.

You may not see the Anzacs march
As in the days of yore;
You may not see assembled crowds
To greet them as before;
But memory's lane will bring them home.
Heroes from far away.
To loved ones, as they celebrate
This sacred Anzac Day.

* * * *

In many guises they will come:
Maybe as boys at school,
Or clinging tight in childhood's years.
Or on the beaches cool.
Forest and country lands will find
Familiar faces there.
And round the board, Anzacs will fill
The empty place o[illegible] chair.

* * * *

So bonny were the Aussie [illegible]ds
Who died for liberty,
Who came from shop and factory,
Or from the ships at sea.
Oh, they are everywhere this day.
And claim its hours their own;
But we will aye remember them
When all its hours have flown.

* * * *

And ever, they are young and brave,
And none would them enthrall,
Who fought and died for Empire's need,
In the greatest cause of all
For Anzacs of fourteen-eighteen
Were the flower of our land,
And proudly we remember them
Of the A.I.F. command.

3rd LIBERTY LOAN CHALLENGE

"BUSINESS" v. "WORKER"

Win for "Business" by Narrow Margin

The challenge race between Goddy Crow's old war-horse "Business," ridden by himself, and the Third Liberty Loan Committee's colt "The Worker," provided a most interesting contest and a very exciting finish, with Goddy's "Business" first past the post by the shortest of heads.

Although running on better at the finish, "The Worker's" jockey left his run until a little too late, and it appeared that, with more vigorous riding the result could quite easily have been reversed.

Both horses got away to a good start, and over the greater part of the distance the running was fairly even, first one and then the other taking the lead, but coming round the bend just before entering the straight, Goddy went for the whip, and thus stole a march on his opponent. "Business" responded by bounding to the front and although "The Worker" strove hard to make up the leway, energetic riding by Goddy enabled his mount to pass the post a winner by the narrow margin previously stated.

The winner showed obvious signs of distress after the race, as did also his jockey, but the loser appeared as though he could have covered the distance twice over, and we are therefore prompted to prophecy that if the horses meet again on similar terms over a longer distance "The Worker" will win in a cakewalk.

The race was run cleanly throughout, although "Business" appeared to bore in a little at the top of the straight, when Goddy went for the whip. We would not suggest, however, that this threw "The Worker" out of his stride. It was rumoured freely in some quarters after the race that dope had been used on "Business," but this rumour probably emanated from one disgruntled punter who had seen his rider come out of a certain chemist shop with a parcel under his arm. We have it on good authority that the parcel contained nothing more than loan embrocation.

It seems quite feasible, however, from the unexpected energy displayed by the rider throughout the race that he had a battery on himself.

The race finished at 3 p.m. on Monday. The total investments on the respective contestants will not be known until after settling time to-day, but it is understood that a last minute plunge by supporters of "The Workers" stable (£1230 by the Gladstone Meatwork's Group) was being accepted as the winner was passing the post.

HOSPITAL BOARDS

Engaging Nurses

A case has just come under my notice where a trained nurse was engaged through a nurses' club and sent out to a country hospital.

This is quite contrary to Manpower requirements, said the Deputy Director General of Manpower for Queensland (Mr. F. E. Walsh).

Hospital boards and committees must engage both their trained staff and domestics through the National Service offices.

The department is not concerned with the selection and appointment of trainees.

This is a function of the hospital committees, and he impressed on them the urgent necessity of securing the services of suitable trainees for hospital work. The sooner they realise that this is their job the sooner will one of the most pressing difficulties of hospital committees, and country hospital committees particularly, be overcome. But once these trainees are selected their names must be forwarded to the Manpower authorities.

If suitable girls for training as nurses offer their services to hospitals, and they are already employed in protected undertakings, arrangements will have to be made with the Manpower authorities for their release.

Hospital boards and committees are expected to replace with trainees nurses who have qualified for registration as general nurses. This will permit those thus replaced to fill vacancies now existing in country hospitals.

MAJOR TSIGANTES

Heroic Death Described

A message smuggled out of occupied Greece was read at the London celebrations of the 35th anniversary of International Women's Day.

It has been described by the London Press as the most moving of all messages from abroad.

It is the story of how Major John Tsigantes, of the Greek Army, fell in Athens, fighting alone against Italian soldiers on January 14.

Major Tsigantes escaped from Greece shortly after the German occupation, and was on active service in the Middle East. He arrived in Greece on a special mission, and was traced one day by the Gestapo in Athens to a house which was immediately surrounded by Axis troops. The whole block around his hideout and all possible ways of escape were covered with machine guns.

Troops then closed in, and Tsigantes drew his revolver and walked downstairs. Near the door of the house he saw five Italians. He killed two and wounded the others, one of whom died later.

When his revolver had been emptied Tsigantes was attacked from every side. Shot through the head he fell dead.

The population protested violently against the killing of Tsigantes, and the occupation troops, fearing disorders, were sent out to patrol the streets.

Defying strict orders, Athenians now cover the grave of Major Tsigantes with flowers. The word "vengeance" has been found chalked on many of the city's walls.

A GLADSTONE FRIEND.

It will be interesting to note that Major Tsigantes was a close personal friend of Mr. Peter Feros, of the Paramount Cafe, Gladstone.

"Major Tsigantes was one of nature's gentlemen," said Mr. Feros, "a brave soldier, who was killed in the service of his country."

A.W.C. STRIKE SEQUEL

Union Official to be Prosecuted

As a result of a stopwork meeting at a Victorian Allied Works Council project the Deputy Crown Solicitor (Mr. Clausen) has issued a summons against the secretary of the Building Trades Federation of Victoria (Mr. D. Thomson).

Thomson, who is summoned to appear at the Port Melbourne Court, is charged with an offence against the National Security Act. The information states that on April 7 Thomson induced men constructing an essential war factory to cease work and attend a meeting. It is alleged that after he addressed the stopwork meeting the job was declared black, and the men walked off.

The strikers have also been summoned to appear at the Port Melbourne Court on the same day.

The decision to prosecute Thomson was referred to the Prime Minister (Mr. Curtin) by a deputation from the A.C.T.U., but Mr. Curtin declined to interfere pending the hearing of the court.

FARMERS' ROADS

Amending Bill

The Main Roads Act Amendment Bill passed all stages in the Legislative Assembly last week.

Mr. Bruce (Minister for Works), who announced the investment of £250,000 from this year's main roads fund in the war loan, said the Bill provided for the creation of a new type of road—farmers' roads—which would be roads which the Commissioner considered were used or were likely to be used by the primary producers for getting their poduce to the railways or markets.

The liability of the local authorities for such roads would not exceed 50 per cent.

COMMUNIST TO OPPOSE MR. MENZIES.

Sergeant E. A. H. Laurie, A.I.F., has been endorsed by the Central Committee of the Communist Party to oppose Mr. Menzies for Kooyong at the next Federal elections. Sergt. Laurie is now serving in the north. He is the former secretary to the Australian Soviet Friendship League.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

DOMESTICS AND TAX DEDUCTIONS.

Householders who employ domestic help are required to deduct tax instalments and purchase tax stamps for employees where the value of wages and board exceed £2 a week on each pay day from April 1.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

CO-OPERATION moves mountains

THERE is no limit to what a nation can do when its people learn to co-operate with each other, but some idea of the possibilities may be gathered by studying the lesson of the A.M.P. Society.

One family in every two in the Commonwealth has helped, and is helping, to build up the strength of the A.M.P. to the end that it might be the better able to protect its members. The measure of protection that each family enjoys depends, of course, on the amount that each contributes to the common fund.

Contributions range from a shilling a week upwards, but so widespread is the co-operation, so vast the membership, that the Society's income last year was £17,315,000 and its assets are valued today at £140,000,000.

Last year the Society paid out £8,250,000 in benefits to members and their beneficiaries, but in addition it has been, and is, putting £500,000 a month into the War Loans. To date it has loaned £50,000,000 to the Commonwealth. Its ability to help its members and the Nation grows from day to day.

When the war is over the Society's strength will be turned to helping the Nation get squarely on its feet again. Co-operation not only moves mountains, but makes easier the hardest of tasks.

LIME FOR THE GARDEN

Essential Plant Nutrient

Lime fulfils many functions which are essential to soil fertility. Its most useful action is neutralising the acidity of strongly acid soils, for with the removal of acidity the other valuable effects of liming follow.

Lime improves the physical condition of heavy acid soils, ensuring better drainage and aeration, and making cultivation easier, and is an essential plant nutrient, and when present in sufficient amount promotes many phases of bacterial activity, especially those ultimately bringing the reserves of nitrogenous material in the soil into the soluble forms of nitrogen which plants utilise.

There is no foundation for the common statement that exposure of acid soil to sun and air "sweetens" or reduces its acidity. Acidity is developed through an insufficiency of lime in the original soil-forming material, or by the loss of lime through leaching and absorption by plants.

Acidity thus developed can only be counteracted in field or garden practice by the use of some form of lime. The forms of lime used for counteracting soil acidity are hydrated or slaked lime, ground limestone or carbonate of lime, and the various grades of dolomitic or magnesian limestones.

The soil to be limed should be dug over and reduced to good tilth, the lime uniformly spread, and then lightly worked into the top several inches of soil.

The amount of lime to be used depends on the degree of acidity in the soil, its texture, organic matter content, and the type of plant to be grown. Unless all these features can be determined, suggestions on the amount of lime that it is necessary to add to a soil can only be approximate.

On loams and heavier soils, dressings may range from 1 lb. of slaked lime, or 1 and 1/3d lb. ground limestone per square yard, on loams, to double these quantities on clay loams and clay. Sandy loams or still more sandy soils can receive lighter dressings of approximately half the amount for loams.

Lime is lost most rapidly from sandy soils, which are usually more acid than heavier soils under the same conditions. Under garden conditions, with frequent waterings, lime is continually being lost, especially from the sandier types of soil.

After the initial liming, which may need to be heavy to counteract strong acidity, it is preferable to add light dressings each season rather than occasional heavy dressings.

VALUE OF CHEESE

Substitute for Milk

Mothers who find milk and meat difficult to procure should not forget the value of cheese. In England and other European countries a lot of cheese is eaten as a definite part of a meal, but in Australia it is much less used, and then only in small quantities as a tasty tit-bit at the end of a meal, or as a sandwich filling.

Cheese is one of our richest protein (body building) foods, and also contains the milk fat and its vitamins. It also contains those important bone and tooth-forming minerals—lime and phosphorus.

Cheese, which keeps well, can be regarded as the very, very good friend of the housewife. Not only can it be used in its natural state with tomatoes and other vegetables, or with apple, but with a little cooking it is useful as a basis for many tasty dishes—Welsh rarebit, cheese souffle, macaroni cheese, etc.

Dishes containing chese should be cooked at a moderate temperature, as high temperatures or long cooking tend to make it stringy and tough.

Some people think that cheese is indigestible for children, but this is not so if the cheese is grated or properly cooked.

The crusts of cheese which have become dry or hard need never be wasted; they can be grated and kept in a screw-top jar for use in flavouring various dishes or in making savoury biscuits.

It should be remembered that cheese, like meat and eggs, is a first-class body building food, and when a cheese, or chese and eggs dish is used the children do not need meat. Cheese will keep better and be more appetising if kept covered in a cool place.

TOMATO PLANTS

Selection For Seed

The first rule in saving tomato seed is to save only from the very best and most outstanding plants. This means going right through the crop just before the picking of the first fruit. Seed from tomatoes selected on the packing bench should not be saved, as they may have come from poor yielding or diseased plants.

The ideal seed tomato plant should have a healthy vigorous top growth, with heavy clusters of fruit not only on the bottom setting, but also on the following bunches, right to the ends of the vines. This indicates a heavy yielding type of plant. Always aim to select plants with a good number of medium sized fruit on the bunch rather than a plant with two or three fruit of exceptional size. The shape of the fruit should be nearly perfect, although on every plant one or two fruits which are of rather odd shape will be found; invariably these are the result of faulty pollination.

The fruit should be allowed to remain on the bush until red-ripe. This assures that the seed will be perfectly mature.

UNITED WAR EFFORT

TASK IS CLEAR

Unconditional Surrender

Certain types of American fighter planes are now fitted with rubber lifeboats which automatically inflate when they come in contact with water, and pilots climbing from a crashed plane before it sinks find fully equipped and fully inflated boats awaiting them attached to the plane by a light line.

The rubber boat is fitted with a water sensitive switch, which automatically opens the release valves on two cylinders of carbon dioxide. The gas from the first of these cylinders opens the hatches of the raft compartment in the top of the fuselage.

Gas from the second cylinder expands to 450 times its stored volume and inflates the raft, which then floats free. Hand operated controls are also provided for operating the hatch and the inflation cylinders.

Balloon-like floats ("inflation gear") are also being made for aircraft, to attach to the wings of planes which crash into the sea in the hope of keeping them afloat long enough for salvage gangs to reach them.

Strategic zones, territorial boundaries, and national claims can often blunt the edge of realisation that the present world struggle is in every respect "total war." Two events of the past week, however, have given sharp reminders of its all-embracing scope.

The first of these was President Roosevelt's disclosure that several U.S. airmen who took part in the raid on Tokyo had been executed by the Japanese, in violation of all agreed methods of waging war.

The second has been the cunningly-conceived, carefully planned but rather too obvious methods adopted by the Nazis to disrupt and split the unity of the Allied Nations by the belated "disclosure" of alleged Russian atrocities. The result has been to give the enemy a superficial but, it is hoped, merely temporary success in the battle of guile—a fresh adaptation of the strategy of divide and conquer.

In the first instance, United States leaders have rightly determined that anger should not be allowed to influence strategy, while ensuring at the same time that full retribution will be exacted at the proper time.

In the second, every endeavour is being made to promote a level-headed settlement and to defeat the enemy's political poison gas offensive.

An essential underlying all effort by the Allied Nations opposed to Axis criminality in whatever form must be an implacable resolution: an undeviating pursuit of basic objectives, which is neither deterred nor distracted, but which merely gains added strength with every foul and treacherous blow.

Warfare of this kind demands, as well, qualities of clear-perception and moral strength which remains unaffected by insidious propaganda and diplomatic subtlety.

It is front-line and home-front warfare requiring, besides physical courage, fitness and adequate modern equipment, a united self sacrificing devotion to the common cause among those not actually engaged in hostilities. In short, clear headed singleness of purpose.

It is not Japanese jungle fighters alone who can infiltrate through and around opposing lines. The shafts of enemy cunning carefully designed to play upon human weaknesses and natural tendencies can accomplish as much as the airborne artillery of aerial bombardment upon civilian targets.

Nor is this all, for behind every frontier and battlefront are potential fifth columns. Doubts, fears, suspicions, irresolution, self interest, and sectional interests exist which, under the stress of war, are apt to spring into spontaneous activity.

There can only be one answer to all this—total, united effort. The task is clear. The goal is, as Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt pledged at Casablanca, the unconditional surrender of the Fascist powers.

WAR IN THE PACIFIC

JAPANESE MENTALITY

"Spirit of Blind Obedience"

How far does the average Japanese believe in the cause for which he is fighting? Apparently many of them fighting in the Pacific could not answer this question themselves.

The plain fact appears to be that they do not hold any opinions of their own, and are animated by a spirit of blind obedience rather than any glorified race theory.

This appraisal is endorsed by Captain John Burden, of the United States Army, now in Australia.

For years Captain Burden, formerly a doctor of medicine at Maui, Hawaii, has served with the American Army forces as interpreter of Japanese, and from contact and observation has acquired a close knowledge of the Japanese soldier.

Born in Tokio, he lived there for fifteen years, and to his observations of Japanese character as a youth he has added others resulting from service at Guadalcanal.

There are some hundreds of Japanese troops now in American custody who were "talked" into surrendering by Captain Burden, who was awarded the Silver Star for bravery and devotion to duty in broadcasting to the enemy under fire and flying low over Japanese lines to drop leaflets.

When dropping leaflets the plane in which he was flying was set on fire by Japanese guns, and the pilot, Captain H. Hansen, was forced to make a pancake landing in the sea about half a mile from the shore. Burden had two ribs fractured and Hansen suffered a head injury, but they managed to swim ashore.

UNTHINKING AUTOMATONS

Advancing the view that the average Japanese soldier is merely an automaton, Captain Burden says: "Among the non-commissioned officers military spirit and deep pride in the army are apparent, but it is only among the very much higher-ups that you find evidence of the vaunted race theory in any strength. The rest do not seem to have any convictions."

They have, he says, been drilled never to question the statement of a superior officer, and to regard disobedience of an order as the ultimate in crime.

From observations he suggests that the largely untutored and unquestioning mind of the Japanese soldier has been almost completely possessed by the horror stories continually pumped into it by Japanese military propagandists, who tell satanic tales of the torture and brutality that await him at the hands of the Allies.

Captain Burden provides a pointer to the fanaticism with which the Japanese fights to the very last when he says that the Japanese regards capture as a disgrace. A Japanese prisoner's first desire is that his family should not be advised of his capture for fear that members of his family will be made to pay some penalty if news that he is a prisoner gets back home.

"At first many Japanese prisoners would give us wrong names so that we could not give publicity to their capture. Others preferred death to giving themselves up," he says.

"Many Japanese consider that to die in glory in the service of their country will give them great honour in the next life. Because of this they will endure greatly and resist to the last. But when they become sick for starved it is another story—they lose a great deal of their toughness, and then many will respond to orders to surrender. Although at first they treated these orders contemptuously, they have gradually discovered that our prisoners are well treated. The Japanese prisoner is becoming well behaved and grateful for kindness shown him."

21st BIRTHDAY SOCIAL.

A very enjoyable social evening was held in the Buffaloes' Hall on Wednesday to celebrate the 21st birthday of A.C.W. James, and to bid her farewell before she returns south. A.C.W. James is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. James, Central Lane, and has been in the Airforce fifteen months. A beautiful two-tiered cake, which was made by her sister (Mrs. P. Doherty) and iced by Mrs. Walker, held pride of place on the supper table. Excellent music was supplied by Mrs. J. O'Brien. The guest of honour received many telegrams, wishing her a happy birthday, and these were read during the supper.

LABOUR DAY PICNIC.

Labour organisations in Gladstone celebrated Labour Day with a monster picnic and sports programme at Barney Point on Sunday. The newly elected Mayor and aldermen were present, together with officials of the A.L.P., A.M.I.E.U., Trades and Labour Council, and other bodies. The highlight of the day was the 100 yards sprint, won by Tom Judge. Free 'busses, trucks and cars conveyed the children and aged people from town to the location, and the secretary (Mr. Jas. Burrows) thanked the proprietors for their kind gesture, enabling many residents to be present. It is estimated that about 2000 people, including 1500 children, attended, and were given free ice cream, soft drinks, etc.

GLADSTONE DETACHMENT V.A.D.

It is learned with regret that Mrs. R. E. Farnsworth, superintendent of the Gladstone Detachment of the V.A.D. has resigned from that organisation. During the last four years Mrs. Farnsworth has taught the theory and practice of home nursing, and some 40 Gladstone V.A.D.'s owe their home nursing certificates mainly to her teaching. Several of these have joined the Women's Services. This is the second war that has occupied Mrs. Farnsworth's time as in the last war she did four and a half years active service in Egypt, France and England with the 2nd Australian Hospital and the 2nd Australian Casualty Clearing Station, the latter being situated only three miles behind the front line near Armentiers and Messines Ridge. Mrs. Farnsworth was on the staff when Messines Ridge battle took place, being kept awake three days and three nights by the bombardment which preceded its capture.

BOYNE RIVER WATER SCHEME

BRIGHT NEWS RECEIVED FOR THE RATEPAYERS

WONDERFUL GESTURE ON PART OF PREMIER COOPER

At the Town Council meeting, held on Monday, April 12, Ald. W. R. Golding, dealing with the Boyne River water scheme, again stated he was not satisfied with the progress being made with the scheme. The Council, he said, had received no information from the Commonwealth Government through the Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) in regard to their application for a grant to assist in financing the scheme, as it was considered to be of national importance. Neither had they received any information from the Commonwealth Co-ordinator General (Sir Harry Brown) in regard to the loan, nor from the Deputy Co-ordinator General (Mr. Kemp) in regard to manpower and plant.

ALLIED WORKS COUNCIL.

It now appeared, if the scheme was to be completed within a reasonable time, said Ald. Golding, it would have to be handed over to the Allied Works Council, which, he believed, would be at an increased cost on the engineer's estimate, and this would fall on the shoulders of the ratepayers.

HAVE TO FIGHT HARD.

Ald. Anderson stated they were definitely up against a brick wall, and they would have to fight, and fight hard, if they were to get the Boyne River water scheme, and he fully endorsed the remarks of Ald. Golding.

NATIONAL IMPORTANCE.

Speaking at a meeting of public and union representatives, held in the Town Hall on Thursday, April 15, Ald. Golding pointed out that the first thing to do was to prove to the satisfaction of the Commonwealth Government that the Boyne River water scheme was of national importance, and the Council in its application to the Federal Treasurer (Mr. Chifley), through the Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) had submitted its case on the basis of national importance, both for a grant of £20,000 and a loan of £80,000, which the State Premier (Mr. Cooper) had informed them had been referred to the Co-ordinator General (Sir Harry Brown).

ACTION ENDORSED.

The meeting endorsed the action of the Council that the scheme was of national importance.

RISING COSTS.

Continuing, Ald. Golding pointed out that it was almost impossible to secure labour, and the point to be considered was whether the scheme should be handed over to the Allied Works Council, but if this were done it would cost considerably more. The Council had started off by borrowing £15,000 the engineer's estimate for the first portion, but it would cost somewhere in the vicinity of £25,000. If it was decided to hand over to the Allied Works Council they would have to get an assurance that the balance of the money would be forthcoming to complete the first portion. The original cost was £90,000, but he considered it would cost about £120,000 on account of rising costs. The Government would have to assist the Council in financing the scheme as a national undertaking, as it would not be right to ask the ratepayers to pay an extra 8d or 9d in the pound on account of rising costs brought about by the war.

A GOOD CASE.

Mr. J. Burrows stressed that time was the essence of the contract, and they should go on with the scheme, and Mr. Bert Heathwood (Trades and Labour Council) informed the meeting that the Council had put up a good case.

MINISTER FOR THE ARMY

Taking advantage of the visit to Gladstone of the Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde), the Council met him on Wednesday night at the Town Hall in regard to the Boyne River water scheme, when there were present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), W. R. Golding, M. A. Busteed, R. R. Tudman, H. Anderson, J. Deveney, and R. E. Smith.

MR. FORDE WELCOMED.

Mayor Dennis, after extending a welcome to Mr. Forde, stated although the Council had obtain an "A2" priority, very little progress had been made in regard to obtaining plant and manpower, and the work could not be started in a big way until finality had been reached in regard to the grant and the loan.

FEW MEN ON JOB.

Ald. Golding, after endorsing the welcome extended to Mr. Forde, informed him that the pipes were on the ground, and they had obtained a loan of £15,000, which was not sufficient for the first portion of the scheme, besides they only had a few men engaged on the job. Was it possible, he asked, to hand the work over to the Allied Works Council; and he went on to say that the original cost was £90,000, but on account of rising costs it would probably cost £120,000.

ESTIMATE ON COSTS.

Mr. Forde suggested that the Council should get its engineer to report and prepare an estimate in regard to the difference in costs brought about by the war, and have it forwarded to him, which would strengthen his hand in his application to the Treasurer for the grant of £20,000.

DECISION OF SIR HARRY BROWN.

Continuing, Ald. Golding said the scheme was of national importance, and this aspect had already been placed before Mr. Forde in the Council's application for a grant of £20,000. The scheme now hinged on the decision of the Co-ordinator General (Sir Harry Brown) in regard to obtaining permission to borrow £80,000, and as to whether the work could be undertaken by the Allied Works Council, and he felt sure Mr. Forde would assist the Council in its application.

NATIONAL QUESTION.

Ald. J. Deveney said it was a national question, and the work had to be carried out in the national interests.

DUAL PURPOSE.

Mr. Forde pointed out it served as a dual purpose, supplying water to consumers of Gladstone and for defence purposes.

INTERESTS OF DEFENCE.

Ald. Anderson said that recently they had to get the Fire Brigade to assist in pumping water in the interests of defence. The Railway Department was their biggest consumer, and the engines were taxed to their utmost at times conveying water to Gladstone, and trains had been held up waiting for water. The pipes for the scheme were on the ground, but the Council had only three men working on the job, which was a calamity, and at the present rate of progress it would take twenty years to complete the Boyne River water scheme.

MORE INFORMATION.

Mr. Forde stated that full information should be supplied to Sir Harry Brown, showing how the defence aspect had entered into the scheme; that the scheme was more urgent to-day because of the defence aspect, and at a higher cost, and giving the estimated increase in cost since the last estimate was made.

URGENT AND ESSENTIAL.

Mr. Forde said he would recommend to the responsible Minister (Senator Collins) that the request that the work be undertaken by the Allied Works Council be favourably considered, as the scheme had become urgent and essential to war and defence activities, and that the Government should make a grant available because of its relationship to defence, and was essential in the national interests.

WATER ESSENTIAL.

Mr. Tudman stated water was essential for defence purposes, and the scheme was one of national importance.

TELEGRAM FROM TREASURER.

Proceeding, Mr. Forde read the following telegram he had received that day from the Treasurer (Mr. Chifley), which was as follows:—

"Following your further representations, have again examined the Boyne River water scheme proposal. In the light of further information have asked Co-ordinator General (Sir Harry Brown) to examine the matter and submit an early report on the proposal for the Commonwealth to share the cost. Will advise you further as soon as possible."

Mr. Forde said he would have the defence aspect placed before Sir Harry Brown, and have the matter expedited.

ANXIOUS TO HELP.

In answer to Ald. Golding, Mr. Forde said he could not definitely say whether the Allied Works Council undertook work of this kind, but assured the Council he was anxious to help in every way possible, and added, "anything I can do to help you will be done."

MR. FORDE THANKED.

Mayor Dennis thanked Mr. Forde for his efforts on behalf of the Council, and Mr. Forde suitably acknowledged the compliment.

PUBLIC BODIES AND UNIONS.

Subsequently Mr. Forde met a largely attended meeting of delegates from the representative public bodies and unions, when he outlined the action he had taken in advancing the interests of the scheme. Mr. Forde received a most hearty welcome.

LONG OVERDUE.

Mr. Forde said he was pleased to have the opportunity to meet the public and union representatives, and informed the meeting that he had discussed the matter with the Council. The scheme, he said, was long overdue. Of course, there were difficulties in getting finance, but it should have been in operation ten years ago. The population of Gladstone was then 2000, and now it was 6000.

AN "A2" PRIORITY.

Because of the difficulties experienced in getting manpower and material, little progress had been made, and he had been asked to endeavour to get the Allied Works Council to carry out the work. He had put the scheme before the chiefs of staffs, who had granted a "B" priority, but on making investigations he found it was necessary to get a better priority. As Minister for the Army he stressed the importance of the scheme, the defence aspect, and it was given an "A2" priority, and the Council could not expect a better priority. An "A1" priority covered all essential war material and manpower in the carrying out of urgent operational works.

ASSOCIATED WITH DEFENCE.

The Commonwealth Government, he said, did not carry out water schemes for local authorities, which was the function of State Governments, but the Boyne scheme had become associated with the war effort. He was most anxious to help the people of Gladstone all he could, and had asked the Council for further information. It was not an easy matter to get the Government to expend funds on water schemes, but he realised that the Boyne River water scheme had some association with defence matters.

TO BE AGAIN EXAMINED.

Mr. Forde stated he had received a telegram from the Treasurer (Mr. Chiefly) intimating that he had asked the Co-ordinator General (Sir Harry Brown) to again examine the scheme, and this would be done. It would give him great pleasure to get the £20,000 grant for the scheme, but he was only one member of the Cabinet, and urgent defence works, essential to the successful prosecution of the war, must be carried out first.

DO EVERYTHING POSSIBLE.

The interests of the people of Gladstone, said Mr. Forde, were his interests, and he would do everything possible to advance the scheme, and when he received Sir Harry Brown's report, the result of his further investigation would be forwarded to the Council.

After other speakers had stressed the urgency of the work in the national interests the meeting terminated.

LOAN OF £90,000.

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) has received the following letter from the Deputy Co-ordinator General (Mr. J. R. Kemp):—

"Further to my recent discussion with you relative to the Boyne River water supply, I have to advise that I have recommended to the Treasurer that the Council be authorised to negotiate for a debenture loan not exceeding £90,000 towards the cost of the Boyne River water supply scheme, such loan to be subject to reduction to the extent of the Commonwealth contribution, if any, ultimately approved, and that a subsidy of one-third of the annual instalments of interest and redemption on the loan be approved, subject, of course, to the agreement of the Loan Council Co-ordinator (Sir Harry Brown), whose final consideration of the matter is awaited.

The remission of one-third interest to operate over the first 15 years.

The Treasurer has approved of this recommendation, and I have taken the matter up again with Sir Harry Brown with a view to expediting his decision.

BRIGHT NEWS.

"APPLAUD AND APPRECIATE."

Commenting on the information contained in the foregoing letter, Ald. W. R. Golding said that this was the best bit of news that Gladstone had yet received in connection with the Boyne River water scheme, and could only be surpassed by the information to the effect that manpower would be made available to do the work, and he had no doubt that the united efforts of Mr. Forde and Mr. Williams would achieve this object.

WONDERFUL GESTURE.

The subsidy of one-third interest and redemption on £90,000 over 15 years, said Ald. Golding, was a wonderful gesture on the port of the Premier (Mr. Cooper), and one in which everyone would applaud and appreciate.

BIG ANNUAL SAVING.

In terms of money, said Ald. Golding, it would mean an annual saving to the ratepayers of £1648/15/4, and when it was taken into account that Premier Cooper had approved of a similar remission on the debenture loan of £15,000, which would represent an additional saving of £274/14/8 for 15 years, it became all the more appreciated, and represented a saving in terms of rates of 4½d in the £ valuation per annum.

NOT BEYOND OURCAPACITY.

Assuming that the completed cost of the scheme would be £105,000, it would involve the necessity of finding annually the sum of £3852/13/4, as interest and redemption. This should not be beyond our capacity to meet, when we consider what must be the result of the benefit of such a water supply.

DEBENTURE LOAN OF £15,000.

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) has received the following letter from the Deputy State Government Insurance Commissioner (Mr. T. A. O'Connor):

Referring to your representations regarding the Gladstone Town Council's debenture loan of £15,000 for water supply, approval for the loan, carrying interest at the rate of £3/17/6, was gazetted on the 21st March, 1942. The Council was asked on 23rd March, 1942, to advise the dates that instalments were required so that a debenture could be prepared and submitted for signature. On 4th March, 1943, we were advised by the Council that the loan would be required in instalments of £10,000 (to be paid as early as possible), £2500 one month after first payment, and £2500 the following month.

Unfortunately, when the debenture was sent for signature on 11th March, 1943, the rate of interest was shown as £3/17/6, in accordance with the original order in council, which was referred to when typing the debenture, the Acting Under Secretary's advice of 30th April, 1942, advising alteration of interest to £3/12/6 being overlooked.

On 19th March, 1943, we received a letter dated 16th March, 1943, from the Town Clerk drawing our attention to the oversight, and a fresh debenture was prepared and sent for signature on the 26th March, 1943. The debenture was returned to be stamped and signed by the Under Secretary to the Treasury on the 13th April, 1943, and was received at this office on 16th April, 1943. Same has now been stamped and signed, and a cheque to meet the payment of the first instalment of £10,000 is being posted to the Town Clerk to-day.

RATES OF PAY

Port Curtis Dairy Association Appeal

In the Arbitration Court at Brisbane the appeal of the Port Curtis Co-operative Dairy Association Ltd. was upheld against a decision of the Police Magistrate at Gladstone regarding cold storage and freezing room rates of pay.

It had been the practice of the Dairy Association to pay cold storage rates to its employees working in a temperature below 20 degrees fahrenheit.

The A.W.U. claimed that the men were entitled to freezing room rates.

The Magistrate decided in favour of the union, and the Dairy Association appealed against the decision.

The Arbitration Court were of the unanimous opinion that the appeal should be allowed. The Court held that there was no definition of freezer, and the men were only doing such work as came under the definition of cold storage work.

The Court added: "It is possible that something has been overlooked when the terms of the award were agreed upon. If so, the matter can be adjusted by variation. The appeal is allowed, and the decision of the Magistrate is set aside."

AT THE MEAT WORKS

ADDRESS BY MR. FORDE

Work of Vital Importance

On Thursday the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) addressed a largely attended meeting of the employees at the Meat Works, and gave a brief review of the nation's war effort. He received a very attentive hearing, and a vote of thanks was moved and carried at the conclusion of the meeting. Mr. Roy Darling presided.

DEFENCE POSITION IMPROVED.

Mr. Forde said that Australia's defence position had improved tremendously in the last twelve months. At this time last year, as a result of the great successes that the Japanese had had in Malaya and the Dutch East Indies, people were beginning to evacuate from Queensland to areas in the south. The nation's war effort had been such that hundreds of thousands of men had been enlisted into the fighting services, a quarter of a million people had been transferred from peace time industry to war production, and a considerable amount of assistance had been received from the United States and Great Britain.

JAPANESE CONCENTRATING.

Australia, with the assistance of American soldiers and airmen, had been able to drive the Japanese back from New Guinea, and Australia had successfully passed through the initial threat of invasion that faced her when her defences were not completely ready. However, the Japanese were concentrating in the islands to the north of Australia, and still presented a very serious threat. If we relaxed our war efforts there would be danger that the Japanese would attempt a large scale invasion of Australia.

SUBMARINE ACTIVITY.

It was known from recent reports that the Japanese had concentrated 25,000 men in the islands to the north of Australia, and had built up sufficient air strips in these islands to accommodate 1500 aircraft. In addition the Japanese submarine activity had increased around our coastline. This showed that the Japanese would attempt to knock Australia out of the war and seize this country if she saw a favourable opportunity.

FULL NAVAL ESCORT.

Referring to the arrival of the A.I.F. from the Middle East, Mr. Forde said that this had been made necessary because Australia did not have the manpower to fight the Japanese in New Guinea, defend the rest of the Australian coastline from the threat of Japanese invasion, as well as maintaining a big army in the Middle East. Even with the forces already here, including the returned A.I.F. and the American Forces, still more assistance was needed to undertake the large scale aggressive offensive that would result in the Japanese being finally defeated. The British Government had generously assisted in the return of the A.I.F. to Australia by providing not only the transports in which the men travelled, but also a full naval escort to protect the transports from enemy submarines.

LAST FOR SEVERAL YEARS.

Mr. Forde went on to say that all the indications were that the war in the Pacific would not end this year. In fact, the indications were that it would last for several years more, and Australians must be prepared to carry on the war effort with the greatest energy of which they were capable.

WAR EXPENDITURE.

Referring to the war expenditure in Queensland, Mr. Forde said that in the years 1939-40 defence expenditure in Queensland had amounted to £750,000. In the current year the army alone would spend £40,000,000 in Queensland, the greater amount of this sum having already been expended. In the first year of the war 1939-40 the Commonwealth Government had spent £55,000,000 in defence and war preparations. In the current year the war would cost the nation £571,000,000. This showed the tremendous increase in war expenditure in Australia since the war began. Apart from Army expenditure in Queensland there were other huge items of Commonwealth expenditure which would be of lasting benefit to this State after the war.

WORK OF VITAL IMPORTANCE.

Referring to the work that employees at the Meat Works were performing, Mr. Forde said it was of vital importance to the war effort. Not only should the supply of meat be kept up to the fighting forces in New Guinea, but it was also necessary to build up reserve stocks as well as to feed allied soldiers fighting in the South-west Pacific, and to send supplies to Great Britain to help feed the British Army and the British civilian population.

RED CROSS FETE

Big Gladstone Effort

To celebrate Red Cross Week in Gladstone and assist Sir Leslie Wilson's appeal for Red Cross funds for the ever increasing calls on the finances of the Society, the Gladstone branch has arranged a monster fete to be held at the grounds opposite Friends (Pty.) Ltd. in Gondoon Street next Friday. A small band of energetic ladies on the committee has organied eight stalls to cater for the wants of practically every town and country patron, and the success of the fete is already assured.

The produce stall, which is being organised by Mrs. W. H. Hall, pending the return of Mrs. A. H. Friend, asks for donations of fruit, vegetables, jams, pickles, eggs, poultry, etc. These may be left at Friends (Pty.) Ltd. A green woollen blanket donated by the same firm is on view at the premises. Tickets in this (6d each) are selling rapidly.

Mrs. Lionel Johnston, who is in charge of the cake stall, advises that an energetic band of helpers anticipate having 100 cakes for sale, including fruit cakes. Orders for these will be taken by 'phoning Mrs. Johnston, 149. A large fruit cake iced is now on display in Friends window. This was made by Mrs. Yum and iced by Mrs. Ricketts, and will be raffled.

Donors of cakes are reminded that the stall will be open for business at 9.30 a.m. on the day of the fete, and Mrs. Johnston will gratefully acknowledge any donations for this stall. Mrs. R. J. (Bob) Shaw is hard at work organising the country stall, which is always one of the main features of Red Cross fetes. She would appreciate donations of produce and jam from country supporters. Several raffles include a string shopping bag, donated by Mrs. W. McDonald (Cluden), a picture donated by Miss Bebe Menzies (Stowe), an iced fruit cake by Mrs. W. Menzies (Stowe), and a vase donated by Mrs. Keith Taylor.

There is very keen though friendly rivalry between the various stalls to see which can top the poll next Friday. A description of the remaining stalls will appear in Red Cross notes next issue.

GLADSTONE RAILWAY YARDS

Improvement Scheme

During his recent visit to Bladstone Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., Minister for Agriculture and Stock), received the following telegram from the Minister for Transport, following on an interview with Mr. Williams had had with Mr. Larcombe before he left Brisbane:—

"With reference to your interview with me yesterday, as new financial year commences shortly, I am making further investigations as desired by you to ascertain if any possibility of re-commencing work on the Gladstone railway yards improvement scheme in near future."

This news is most welcome, and both railway and business men, who are considerably handicapped by the present congested state of the railway yards and up and down lines, will be anxious to see the work carried on to completion as soon as possible.

Mr. Williams, who visited Gladstone for the municipal elections last week, returned to Maryborough on Saturday to connect with the through train for Monto. He spent the whole of the present week in Monto and other Upper Burnett centres of his large electorate, and has returned to Brisbane. The Minister commented on the extremely dry conditions prevailing throughout the greater part of Port Curtis.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr and Mrs H. C. Moore, of Gladstone, have received advice that their eldest daughter Phillis has been selected to enter an officers' training school, and will proceed to Melbourne early next week for that purpose.

PATRIOTIC COMFORTS FUND.

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the joint A.C.F. and Patriotic Appeal Fund will be conducted in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, May 21. The convenor (Mrs. C. Chapman) and her energetic committee would much appreciate donations of jam, fruit, vegetables, sweets, or any other articles for sale on that day. Donations may be left with the convenor or at the Gladstone Cash and Carry.

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB.

OFFICERS of kindred Clubs, Representatives of Sporting odies, and Servicemen are cordjally invited to attend the official opening of the Gladstone Golf Club's season this afternoon. BMixed Foursomes will be played. All members and associates are requested to attend the Annual Meeting at 5.30 p.m.

HOCKEY ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Gladstone Hockey Association will be held at Jenkinson's Cafe, Tuesday, May 25th, at 7.30 p.m.

Business: Report and Financial Statement, Election of Patron, President, 3 Vice-Presidents, and Secretary. Members and intending members requested to attend.

One family in every two enjoys

A M P. Protection

"GOD helps those who help themselves." The A.M.P. Society, the greatest Co-operative institution in Australia, was founded on that principle.

"He who saves a shilling starts to build an Estate," said Poor Richard. The main business of the A.M.P. Society is to help men and women build such Estates: to provide financial security for themselves during their lives and for their families after them.

Through A.M.P. membership one family in every two in the Commonwealth now enjoys some measure of financial security.

These families use the Society:—

to provide schooling;
to encourage marriage;
to build homes;
to sweeten old age;
to maintain income;
to protect widows and orphans;

Members' contributions range from a shilling a week upwards. But so widespread is the co-operation, so vast the membership that the Society's income last year was £17,315,000 and its assets are valued to-day at £140,000,000.

Last year the Society paid out £8,250,000 in benefits to members and their beneficiaries, but in addition it has been, and still is, putting £500,000 a month into the War Loans. To date it has loaned £50,000,000 to the Commonwealth. Its ability to help its members and the Nation grows from day to day.

FOOD FACTS

NUMBER 3A

Nature's Perfect Food is

MILK

Providing more nutrition than any other single food, Milk contains the vital vitamins and minerals needed to protect against illness, ensure good digestion, build healthy tissues, strong bones and teeth.

It aids normal growth, develops energy, and protects against ill-health.

Children up to 16 years should have 1½ pints of milk daily—either to drink, or in soups, sauces, custards or puddings.

NEW "CEILING" PRICES

2350 REGULATIONS

Courage of Traders Admired

The new subsidy scheme to control prices is regarded by Sydney business men generally as a step in the right direction to stop the present position of rising wages tailing rising prices.

The fixed "ceiling" price will stabilise prices and the value of money, but there is a threat of additional bureaucratic control which is causing no little concern.

Some 2350 regulations have already been issued under the National Security, and the Chief Justice, Sir Frederick Jordan, said recently that he admired the courage of any trader who still ventured to trade without having a lawyer and an actuary constantly at his elbow.

Commenting on the new "ceiling" price plan, Dr. Frank Louat, president of the Constitutional Association of N.S.W., said in Sydney last week in an exclusive interview with Industrial News Service, "The new prices control scheme is so far only a plan on a sheet of paper. Whether it will serve the purpose of checking the present grave drift towards inflation has yet to be proved.

Unhappily, mounting prices and black markets have flowed from deep-seated causes inherent in the financial policy of the Government. Uncontrolled expenditure, combined with badly distributed taxation have produced throughout the community a rising tide of purchasing power.

"This flood will not be stemmed by the paper barriers of price fixing alone, however essential these may be as part of the system of wartime control.

"Properly administered, the 'ceiling' price scheme will improve the position," Dr. Louat continued. "The chief obstacle in its way is public lack of confidence in the administrative methods which may be employed. Rule by officials in war time is inescapable, but this plan will obviously mean an extension of bureaucratic control to unpredictable lengths."

"JUNGLE CARTS"

With Aussies in New Guinea

"Jungle carts," a kind of rickshaw designed to carry stores, or to act as emergency ambulances, is one of the new type equipment which Australian engineers have evolved to suit the special conditions under which Australian troops are fighting in New Guinea. These jungle carts, made of steel tubing, can be drawn by two men, and with the ends dropped, can accommodate two stretcher cases.

The carts were designed for strength and lightness, the two first essentials in that mountainous, enervating country, where standard Army equipment is not always suitable. They are an example of the wide-awakeness of Australia's home front engineers and an example too of the adaptability of an Australian product—steel tubing.

Americans have realised the wartime value of Australian steel tubing as well as Australians, and they too have used it in the construction of pontoon bridges, tank shelters, telegraph poles, masts, derricks, and service huts.

The pioneers in the use of steel tubing for constructional purposes were Stewarts and Lloyds, who built a fabricating shop and warehouses of it, finding it cheaper and stronger than other steel sections. Now they are manufacturing it exclusively for the Forces. Some of their tubing was built into a water line running across the Egyptian desert. Some of it is doing another vital job nearer home—acting as telegraph and telephone poles to link up Northern Queensland and the Northern Territory. These poles were erected by the American Army.

This firm's weldless tube steel forging plant has played a romantic part in Australia's war effort.

Acting off their own bat, with no Government subsidy or guarantee, and in the face of the generally accepted theory of the security of Pacific isolation, the firm ordered shell forging plant in England some months before the outbreak of war. But parts of it were still on the high seas when war did break out.

Rather than await its arrival, the firm's engineers did a tremendous job in switching over the tube steel forging plant into a shell forging plant—and the first shell forging left the plant less than three weeks after the outbreak of war.

IN NEW GUINEA

Novel Use of Air Supply

How Australia contributed something new to logistics (the science of supply and transport) is described in the current number of the Army Educational journal.

In New Guinea we carried the technique of air transport to a new stage.

Jungles do not make for fast supply. New and novel use of the air made Buna and Gona possible. Light planes skimmed the tree-tops looking for level ground for landing strips. These were cleared by helpful native labour. Then came the big planes, landing not only men but materials. Tropical conditions called for new supply and transport techniques. There were no text-book bibles for guidance.

HOSPITAL FLOWN IN.

Soon two million pounds of supply were being landed a week. In one day 519,000 lbs. were landed. This was equivalent to 100 plane loads. A 250-bed hospital, with equipment and supplies for ten days, was flown in. Jeeps, Bofors guns, 105 mm. howitzers, 25 pounders and tractors also came by air. Time taken to load, unload and assemble was scaled down by hours through constant practice. Thousands of men were carried by 16 different types of planes. Even horses and mules went by air to spots in the Papuan jungle.

Supplies are now dropped by air to troops, saving days of weary bush travel. Pilots have learned to drop materials without loss. Wrappings must vary according to the materials. Surprising articles have been dropped by parachute, including wheelbarrows, guns, canned goods, even ammunition.

Much depends on the emplaning and deplaning officers who arrange priorities, loads and co-operation between the Army and Air Force. Emplanting tables have been worked out to a lb. for different types of planes. Transporting a commando company ready for instant action means that ammunition and food for five days must be carried. An infantry battalion not likely to fight at once will have still another emplaning table, and so on.

GROUND TRANSPORT PROBLEM.

Ground transport in New Guinea has its own special problems. In our logistics setup this is the headache of the "Q" men. On the road to Kokoda they had to wrestle with at least five different types of transport until capture of an air strip made their job immeasurably easier.

First stages were covered by 3-ton trucks and then by 15-cwt. vehicles. They were replaced in turn by Jeeps, pack-horses, and at last by hundreds of dependable native carriers.

When Buna and Gona had fallen the "Q" men in control of small craft sent luggers and an assortment of small ships along the coast.

When an invasion landing is planned the Navy steps in, convoying the troopships, bombarding the invasion coast if necessary. General MacArthur's whole logistical problem, whether he attacks by way of Rabaul or Timor, is bound up with effective naval support. While the Jap Navy remains strong, while the Jap Air Force maintains relative equality—at least in numbers—supply and transport cloud the victory trail.

PASTROLISTS AND FARMERS

Release of Rifles

The Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) announced that it had been decided that in cases where pastoralists and farmers needed .303 rifles for the extermination of pests that these weapons would be released to them by the Army, together with 500 rounds of ammunition per rifle.

Mr. Forde said that rifles, which would be released on application, would be chiefly single shot Martini Enfield rifles. They would be in a serviceable condition, and would be sold to the farmers at the same price as was paid by the Army on impressment.

Although 500 rounds of ammunition per rifle would be released, it was doubtful whether any further supplies of ammunition would be made available at present.

Mr. Forde said that it was not considered practicable to return rifles to the same persons from whom they were impressed, and only genuine applications by pastoralists and farmers for the issue of the weapons would be considered.

It would be necessary for the police authorities in the districts in which the applicants resided, to ensure that the applications were genuine and in accordance with public security requirements.

It was intended that in respect of the granting of approval of applications made for the issue of rifles, the decision of the General Officer Commanding of the line of communication area, after consultation with the local police, should be final.

METHODIST CHURCH

PRESENTATIONS AT BOWEN

Rev. G. T. A. Phillipson

On Monday evening, March 22, in the Parish Hall, Bowen, a large number of Red Cross workers assembled to say farewell to the Chairman of the Bowen branch of the Red Cross Society, Rev. G. T. A. Phillipson.

SUCCESS AND HAPPINESS.

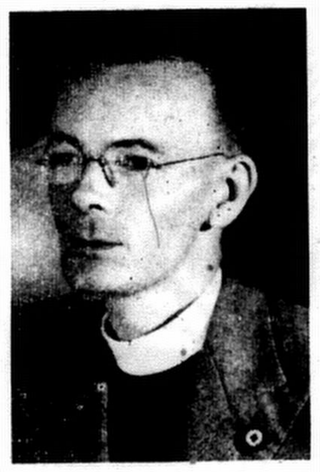
The assembled gathering sat down to a delightful supper arranged by the lady members. Mr. C. Swiss Davies (acting chairman and treasurer) addressed the members and stated that the Society would grievously miss Rev. Phillipson, who had done so much for the Red Cross during his four years in Bowen. Rev. Phillipson was being transferred to Gladstone, which would mean promotion to him, and on behalf of all members he wished him all success and happiness.

LOSS TO BOWEN.

Mr. R. Hogan (hon secretary) supported Mr. Swiss Davies, and stated that Rev. Phillipson had always been ready behind the scenes to do all in his power to assist the Red Cross. As a branch they would miss him very much, and as a friend and citizen his departure would be a loss to Bowen.

A PRESENTATION.

Mrs. R. Hogan (president) presented Rev. Phillipson with an inkstand and a pair of sleevelinks on behalf of the branch, and wished him God speed.



REV. G. T. A. PHILLIPSON

COMPLETE SURPRISE.

Rev. Phillipson, responding, stated that the evening function had come as a complete surprise to him, as he had thought that he was going to attend an ordinary committee meeting. He said that he had been chairman of the Red Cross in Bowen since its inception two and a half years ago, and prior to that had acted as representative at Miowera Camp. He had had no knowledge of Red Cross activities previously, and he now had the firm conviction that the Red Cross organisation was one which needed the support of every man and women in order that suffering among the wounded and distressed might be relieved. He spoke of the great strides the local branch had made during the past two years, and hoped that it would continue to grow in membership and strength through financial support of Bowen citizens.

BOWEN METHODIST CHURCH.

A large gathering assembled in the Methodist Church, when a farewell social evening was tendered to the Rev. G. T. A. Phillipson.

A FRIEND.

The Rector of Bowen, the Rev. R. G. Stephen, spoke of Mr. Phillipson's association with him as a friend, a member of the Ministers' Fraternal, and a friend of Holy Trinity.

PRESBYTERIAN GRATITUDE.

Rev. T. Robertson made reference to the gratitude of the Presbyterian people for the kindly help Mr. Phillipson had given to this church after the Rev. Asboe left, when they had no minister for several months. He felt that he was losing a friend. They had been inseparable companions, and he had once heard them referred to as the Siamese twins.

LOYAL MINISTER.

Capt. Stockwell presented good wishes on behalf of the Salvation Army. He had not known the departing guest very long, but knew he had been a loyal minister of the church. He trusted his ministry in Gladstone would be as successful as it had been in Bowen.

HAPPY FOUR YEARS.
